Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 50

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A light opening may result in a dark ending. In bridge, a light opening means an opening bid with a hand that lacks some of the stuff it needs.

The real needs for an opening bid of one in a suit are: Five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable suit. That can be proven by mathematics, logic and practice.

Horse Sense Bridge insists on all four items being complete. Other systems may know the items by other terms. But they mean the same thing when simmered down to facts.

To be light, the hand may be short a trick. Or it may be short a high card. Or it may be short a sure trick. Or it may be short a face in the bid suit. Or more.

You may have two sure tricks and four high cards and a biddable suit. But your opening bid would be light if you had only four tricks. You would be light one trick.

You may have two sure tricks and five tricks and a biddable suit. But your opening would be light if you had only three high cards. You would be light a high card.

You may have two sure tricks and five tricks and four high cards. But your opening would be light if your suit was not truly biddable. Your suit would be light.

You may have five tricks and four high cards and a biddable suit. But your opening would be light if you had only one sure trick. You would be light a sure trick.

Light openings are stupid. They wreck good partnership bidding. They result in guessing contests between partners. They interfere with the correct application of recognized signals.

You have this hand:

♠A Q 8 5 4
♥K 9 7
♣8 3

You are short a sure trick for an opening bid with that hand. It is too light for an opening of one spade.

Some experts advocate light openings. They have a convincing expression to make it sound brilliant. It is: "Attack is the best defence."

An assault with weaker forces may be wise in a pinch. But if the bidding is not opened, no such crisis exists. Why start a fight from fight?

However, their advice sounds very learned to some players. It tickles their vanity. It makes them think they are strategists. So, they open war, led by General Debility.

Is there a doctor in the house?

LESSON NO. 51

Such as it is, how did you learn the bridge you know? Probably like most persons. And, as with most persons, your game got no better fast. Unless you are an isolated exception.

No doubt you were first coaxed to some bridge party. Maybe they were desperate when one of their group could not show up. Or maybe you owned the only washing machine in the neighborhood.

At first, you hesitated with the apology: "I don't know how." But your friends chorused with confidence: "Oh, that's all right. We'll show you." And you fell for it, of course.

The other three at your table were experienced campaigners. You could tell that by the way they talked. Bridge lingo rolled off their tongues like marbles rattling down a pipe.

Every time it was your turn to do something, they all talked at once. One told you this. Another told you that. A third told you something else. All at the same time.

By the time they stopped, you were in a meckuvahess. Were you afoot or horseback? You knew not if you were coming or going. It was all so bewildering.

They should only have told you: Count your tricks; show partner your tricks and suits, if any; with no suit, bid no-trump; do not open with less than five tricks; respond with more than two tricks.

Suppose you have this hand:

♠A Q 6
♥K 10 3
♦8 7 4 2
♣A K 3

You have no suit that is strong enough to name as trump. So you bid no-trump. You also tell your partner that you have five tricks; two aces, two kings, a queen.

With that much of a start, you could easily go on from there. So, take these Horse Sense lessons. They are good for what ails you.

"HAPPY GO LUCKY"

A treat to eye and ear is on the screen of the Belle Theatre in Paramount's gay, refreshing "Happy Go Lucky," the technicolor musical which opened there Saturday.

The story is set in one of the garden spots of the world — a romantic resort island in the Caribbean — and has to do with Miss Martin's determination to land a rich husband. Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken, beach boys with an eye on a juicy commission, pitch in to help her work on millionaire Rudy Vallee. Betty Hutton, Mary's friend, does likewise. The four hold a council of war and decide how best to snag the indifferent, Rudy Vallee. Their ideas, which are no sooner thought of than put into action, prove to be hilarious but unproductive of the desired result. By the time Vallee is safely on the hook, Mary and Powell are that way about each other, causing further complications.

Five hit songs, plus a couple of extras, enliven proceedings which are lively enough to stand on their own feet even without aid of music. The songs are "Happy Go Lucky," "Let's Get Lost," "Murder, He Says," "The Fuddy Duddy Watchmaker" and "Sing a Tropical Song." Keep your ear peeled for Sir Lancelot, the famous Calypso singer; he's sensational.

Four Junior Features

The Belle Latest World News Events, a Madcap Models Novelty in technicolor "Jasper and Choo Choo," a clever novelette "Animals and Families," and a color novelty "Unusual Occupations" complete the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

AT THE CAPITOL

"My Heart Belongs to Daddy"

(First Belleville Showing)

If it's a good laugh you're after and you're not averse to an excellent heart warming story, your place tonight is in a seat at the Capitol Theatre, where Paramount's delightful new comedy-romance "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" opened Sunday midnight.

Without any illusions of grandeur or grand pretensions, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" tells in simple and forthright manner, with many a real hearty laugh en route, the story of a bubble dancer whose in-laws want to take her baby away from her because they don't think she knows how to bring it up properly. The girl, of course, has ideas of her own on the subject, as does a handsome young college professor in whose home she gives birth when the taxi in which she is on her way to the hospital gets hopelessly marooned in a blizzard. And so has the taxi driver, a philosophical old soul who, it turns out, puts everything to rights.

The taxi driver is Cecil Kellaway, veteran film comedian, and it is by far and away his best role. Martha O'Driscoll is the bubble dancer and Richard Carlson is the college professor while strong supporting roles are carried by Florence Bates, Mabel Paige, Frances Gifford and Velma Berg.

Go see "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." It will do your own a lot of good!

"Pride of the Yankees"

The added attraction is a great human interest story, sprinkled throughout with delightful, homespun comedy in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Pride of the Yankees," starring Gary Cooper.

Based on the life of the late Lou Gehrig, star first baseman of the New York Yankees, the film deals with his rise from poverty to wealth and fame. It depicts his life at home and in college prior to joining the American League ball club and carries on through his marriage and his untimely and tragic retirement from baseball as result of a death sentence imposed upon him by an obscure malady. Gehrig's mating with Eleanor Twitchell makes a stirring romantic tone to the drama.

Teresa Wright plays Mrs. Gehrig and Walter Brennan is seen as Sam Blake, sports writer and close friend of the Gehrigs. Others in the cast include Babe Ruth, Bill Dickey, Robert "Bob" Meusel of the baseball fraternity, as well as such popular film players as Virginia Gilmore, Pierre Watkin, Ernie Adams, Addison Richards, Harry Harvey and Spencer Charters. Veloz and Yolanda, dancer team, and Ray Noble and his orchestra figure in a big production scene. Sam Wood directed.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Chatterbox"

One of the happiest combines that has ever come out of Hollywood is the co-starring team of Joe E. Brown and Judy Canova, whose latest opus for Republic, "Chatterbox," opens today at the McCarthy Theatre.

Hilariously funny when appearing singly, they are a veritable earthquake of merriment as a co-starring attraction and "Chatterbox," based on an agreeably wacky premise, is an ideal vehicle for their talents.

With a dude ranch background, the story takes Joe and Judy through a series of merry adventures and misadventures which are guaranteed to make any onloooker howl with mirth. Joe is a radio cowboy who has never been on a horse. Judy is a slavey on the dude ranch which is the scene of Joe's introduction to the working press of Hollywood as a picture star. As a radio cowboy, Joe's life was comparatively simple; the hoofbeats of his horse galloping fearlessly over the mesas was purely a problem of the sound effects man. But as a movie cowboy, where all of his daring must be presented in terms of action on a silver screen, Joe was a distinct disadvantage, and only Miss Canova can match his ability to get into side-splitting scrapes.

Rosemary Lane and John Hubbard do extremely well in the romantic leads, and their performances are to be most heartily recommended. Anne Jeffreys is a stand-out in her small role, and Chester Clute, Emmett Vogan and Gus Schilling likewise turn in creditable performances.

THE WRONG ADJECTIVES

When the Press Club Dance was announced in Assembly, it was in glowing terms. It promised to be "wonderful, sensational, colossal, unique....very good." The dance certainly did not live up to expectations.

First of all, only fifty-nine people turned up. This meant that the elaborate program that had been planned had to be dropped. This meant that the few who turned up were disappointed. This meant that the dance was a failure.

Why did it fail? Perhaps the date was bad. Had it been one day earlier, it had a chance for success. The weather would have been cooler; more people might have felt like dancing. Then, more students could have been able to attend; many work after four, and on Wednesday the stores close. Air Cadets had to be ready for their annual inspection on Thursady night, by six-thirty, giving them only a half-hour to get home, have dinner, change, and return to the school. On Thursday, too, the first inter-form baseball game of the season was held on the campus.

But there is more behind it than a date. Few activities can boast of complete support, because of the strain of a crowded term, living in a period of history-in-the-making, and the added work taken on by students outside of school, both in local stores, and in community service (Air Cadets, Sea Cadets, Army Cadets, Reserve Army, Boy Scouts, Trail Rangers, etc.)

When we stop to consider, there has been only one really good tea-dance this year. That was the dance on Valentine Day, sponsored by the Girl Cadettes. The dance given by the Girls' Athletic Society after an evening basketball game was also an outstanding success. In fact, it may be supposed that the tea-dance, as it is now, is doomed.

Perhaps the reason is partly because of the increased proportion of Lower School students, as Upper Schoolers go to war. These Grade Niners cannot dance, for the most part, and are not interested, thank-you. The dance-after-school is short; few start before four-thirty, and they last until six. The usual program is a monotonous waltz, foxtrot, waltz, etc.

It has been said that the Press Club Dance is likely to be the last one of its kind for the term, as the weather improves, and baseball and bike-riding increase. However, the Press Club cleared expenses, and the minute profit will go towards the Overseas Correspondence Fund, which is for the sending of a newsletter to our ex-students and teachers now on active service, who would be interested in home town activities.

Cuff Notes

Coming back to school after the Easter Holidays, we were not surprised to see class-rooms depleted by the many students who left us to work on farms....There was a little delay in the releasing of students for work in cheese factories (Ontario Intelligencer, Sat., May 1) due to no word having been received by Mr. Turner to that effect, from the Department of Education. However, it is understood that several students, (including our Sports editor Jerry Hyde) are beginning work today in nearby cheese-making establishments.

Stamp sales over the holidays were quite low. We'll have to work all the harder now to keep up our $1000-monthly average. .... We're comparing notes on the first swallows and bluejays. Now don't you start bragging about that cedar waxwing....The idea of a boxing club is being dusted off again. We sincerely hope that this attempt will fare better than did its forerunners.....We were grieved by the announcement that Marshall Spalford has been reported missing..... As we enter the last term the trees are budding, the birds are singing, and the students are relaxing before the big push for the final exams, so they tell me.

AT THE CAPITOL

It's Gehrig and Dickey again! In "Pride of the Yankees," now at the Capitol these two are reunited, as here shown. Gary Cooper plays the role of Gehrig. The added hit "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" stars Richard Carlson and Martha O'Driscoll.

THE WAR TODAY

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

It's becoming clear that the Russo-Polish acrimonies have a meaning which thus far hasn't been displayed officially in the world's bulletin-boards, but which might better be understood in Allied circles for the good of all concerned.

The idea that the two countries are at logger-heads as the result of falling into a Boche propaganda-trap doesn't quite make sense. After all they're grown up and know their way about.

Rather it would seem that Moscow and the Polish government in London are in process of trying to whittle each other down to the size which will fit their respective views of what post-war Eastern Europe should be. In short, there is in the offing—or so I believe—a sizeable boundary dispute. And that won't be the only one which will have to be settled after the conflict.

Europe After the War.

The Polish government, headed by Premier Sikorski, apparently has reached trouble in the writing on the wall—and with good reason, for it will be an amazing thing if Europe is reconstructed along its old lines. Prime Minister Churchill the other day promised the restoration of a "great and independent Poland". Premier Stalin of Russia followed with a statement that he favored establishment of a strong and independent Polish State after the war.

Now you'd think that such declarations would clear the matter up. But there seems to be something missing from both those statements. Neither says that the post-war Poland will be territorially the same Poland and there is no guarantee that it will be identical.

Consensus of Opinion

The consensus among observers seems to be that Russia is likely to insist on numerous territorial readjustments for defensive purposes. There's no indication that Moscow wants more territory merely for the sake of swelling the size of the already Mammoth Union, but there are several strategic areas for which it might be expected to ask.

For instance, it will be strange if the Reds don't claim the zones taken from Finland in 1940. Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania may be expected to be taken back into the Russian fold. And the Russians didn't take over eastern Poland for nothing, when Hitler started his war. Then, too, they likely will reclaim Bessarabia, and demand control not only of the mouth of the Danube in Runania but other strategic points on the Black Sea coast, probably including the great Rumanian naval base of Constanta.

Possibility of Reshifting

Those are a few of the things which may happen. Similar reshifting may be expected in many parts of the world to ensure Allied security. Take for example the Japanese mandated islands which the Mikado fortified—contrary to terms of the grant by the league of Nations—and used against the Allies. Those islands certainly can't be left in possession of Tokyo. Nippon will surely lose both Korea and Manchuria.

Mussolini's African empire is shot to pieces. He will lose Albania, which will regain it independence. And presumably the Italian islands of the coast of Asia minor will be taken from him for military reasons.

So one could go on and find many places where there probably will be readjustments in an effort to make this a safer world to live in. We might as well make up our minds to that in advance. Changes which really make for peace or justice should cause of anguish anywhere.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 11

He laughed. "On the contrary, the strangeness would be if I had . . .In these days!"

Her next words came in the middle of a breath. "Jud, do you wish I were—not a nice girl?"

His eyes quickened. "I may but—I'll never be able to forget that you are."

His eyes had a moody look then, she thought. You can love a man as much as this and still not know him completely. Love isn't knowing. You know so little. It's a feeling.

"Is anything wrong, Temple?"

Jud put the hand over hers. "I had a date with another girl the night you were at Paula's. And oh, Lord, I was bored. I was bored because it wasn't you. I felt a thousand miles away from her. It wasn't any good at all. There's a challenge to you. Even though you probably think you were always sweet with me, there's always the possibility that you'll disagree with me. . .We've been sitting here so long they'll charge us parking fees."

Later, much later, siting in the car outside her house he said. "But this is unfair to you, Temple. That's one of the blind alleys I find myself walking down. Because all of this, all of this that we feel, this force and magnetism leads but to one thing—good-bye. I shall be in the service God knows where. Oh, I know you'll say you'll wait and you'll write. But how do you know I'll come back the same if I come back at all, or if you'll still feel the same?"

"We can't answer that. All I can say is that I'll write and I'll wait."

"We'll still be together up to the last minute. Is that what you want? That's what I want, too. That's what I want very much. . . But we couldn't stop seeing each other if we tried."

"Oh, come in, Temple. I've been missing you at dinner. It's too bad you had to pay for meals you don't eat here." She looked up at Temple standing in the doorway. "Miles has gone out of the country. He's. . .he's gone. I didn't cry. I look horrible when I cry. . . I thought I'd learn to sew at night."

Slowly, quietly, as she did everything Abby leaned forward and pressed her face against the bright, printed material. "I can cry now . . .No, don't come in. .Please go away."

Temple went quickly to her room thinking how irreverently and irrelevantly it was to think at such a moment that Abby should always wear plain colors and not prints. Then she saw herself like Abby crying in her room after a tearless good-bye. If the tears of women could win wars, they would be won before they had begun. . . She thought, "But Jud and I won't fight the war now. We'll fight time, wondering how much time we have left, how many more times we can see each other. . . But we can't hold back the Spring."

Spring came prematurely that year, making buds burst into bloom before their customary time. As she walked to work Temple saw and heard birds in the little grassy circles for which Washington is famous and saw trees she had always seen bare give shade to playing children. And the Japanese cherry blossoms drew thousands of flattering tourists from far and near.

When she looked back over the past months she saw them not as a series of episodes but as one continuous episode which Jud dominated. Her work was routine now as routine as the other necessary processes of living which did not include Jud. Ron's return from Florida was as methodical as his annual holiday there. He telephoned as he motored through regretting that he did not have time to see her. He asked her to come up for a visit but set no specified time. Temple did not tell him that she had not been home because, after careful deliberation she had decided that her train fare was more needed at home than her presence there.

Jud had not been "called" or had be enlisted. That he did not speak of it she interpreted as a sign that he did not want to hurt Temple by reminding her. It would be better, she thought, better and healthier if they talked about it and accepted it. Then she would not have to admit her ignorance of his plans when Abby or Paula quite naturally questioned her. But she had learned not to question him on that subject as she had also learned that his old car was no joke to him and that an expensive meal could never be amusing or that if he could not afford good seats at the theater he would not go at all.

When you are first in love, you see no flaws. When they become apparent, they are accepted as tenderly and forgiven as easily as a child's quick anger. As they become a part of a beloved personality you adapt yourself to them. Jud and his little flaws were quite obscure to her by the many highlights that punctuated brilliantly this joyful episode.

She thought of their drive to Baltimore in evening dress to the opera as a highlight and yet no more so than their discovery of some quaint little place where they went for tea or a cocktail, knowing that another Sunday afternoon had been spent together, that it was theirs and that nothing ever could take it away from them.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, What about a nice movie this evening, William? and pop said, If a nice movie means a picture with broad humorous lines and little or no makkish sentiment, I might be persuaded.

The result being ma started to look at the movie page in the paper, saying, This sounds attractive, William, at the Narcissis. One Heart that Beats for Two, with Cicily Longjean, she said.

It doesn't sound rough enough, pop said. I hear the new Burp Brothers picture is a knockout. I hear it's a wow, he said, and ma said, Such expressions. Really, William, I mean really, how do you ever expect to adopt a refined mode of speech if he hears that sort of thing from his own father in his own home? she said.

By gollies I believe you've got something there, I mean verily I concur with you in your assumption that environmental influence exerts an incalculable force in shaping the intangible threads of the warpen woof that make up the permanent pattern of juvenile caracter, pop said, and ma said, Now William for land sakes dont go off on one of your untrammeled streaks of exaggeration.

But my dear I am merely adducing verification of your conviction that elegance of frazeology impinges on the semicircular canals of the impressionable young with a commendably cultural impact, pop said, and ma said, Oh hush up. Now I declare you've made me forget what you were saying in the first place, but whatever it was I insist on your taking me to see One Heart that Beats for Two to make up for all that exaggerated nonsense, so get your hat, she said.

Which pop did, saying, Confucious say, He who opens big mouth even wider will find own foot in it.

Riot at Military Camp Results In Death of Soldier

Sussex, N. B., May 10 — (CP) — No official statement has as yet been made here on the riotous outbreak at Military Camp Sussex last Thursday night, which resulted in the death of Pte. D. M. Bennett of an Ontario regiment Saturday night.

A court of inquiry has been assembled to investigate the disturbance, it is announced by the Department of National Defence, but there is no word as to its plans.

Pte. Bennett, 18, is said to have belonged to Ottawa. An inquest into his death has been set for Thursday night.

In the melee of last Thursday, between members of two regiments in camp, it is reported 17 men were injured by bullet or bayonet wounds.

Saturday night, special precautions were taken in the town streets here against trouble. Among other things, military police have been barring enlisted men from the town post office in what is believed to be a move to prevent letters going out with accounts of the trouble. The telephone service also has been under surveillance.

How Much Cloth In Battle Dress For Canadian Army

Ottawa, May 10 —(CP)— Picture a carpet 54 inches wide from Halifax to Victoria and back to Calgary — that's how much cloth is needed to make 2,500,000 army battle dress uniforms, Canada's output in one year at the present rate of production.

The cost of these uniforms said the Munitions Department in a press release today, is more than $27,500,000. The figures do not include greatcoats, jackets or women's uniforms, "which also run into the millions."

During the first quarter of 1943, the uniforms division of the Munitions Department's purchasing branch bought made-up garments to a value of $29,000,000 and textiles costing $20,000,000. From July, 1939, to last Feb. 28, Canada spent more than $265,000,000 on textiles and uniforms for Canadian account alone.

In one recent month, the uniform purchasing division made an initial purchase of 70,000 complete outfits for army cadets, consisting of jackets, trousers, shirts and caps.

'End-of-War' Betting

London, May 10. (CP Cable.)—"End-of-the-War" betting was stimulated in stock market circles today by the Tunisian victory and in the city even money was waged on Italy being knocked out by the end of this year.

Similar odds were laid on unconditional defeat of Germany by November of 1944.

This betting left the Pacific situation completely out of account.

British Forced To Withdraw From Buthedaung

By PRESTON GROVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New Delhi, May 10—(AP)—Japanese soldiers have demonstrated once again that they are masters of jungle warfare in this section by compelling British and Indian troops to evacuate Buthedaung, leaving the east side of the Mayu Peninsula on the Bay of Bengal in enemy hands.

The British troops were falling back steadily toward the Indian frontier as reports indicated the Japanese had filtered through what had been considered a strongly-held defence line across the base of the peninsula.

It is difficult fighting country, with roads and trails scarce, but it is precisely the kind of country the Allies will have to reconquer ultimately when the time comes to drive the Japanese from Burma.

With the Japanese holding the Buthedaung end of the defence line, the other end of the line, at Maungdaw on the Bay of Bengal is left in a precarious position.

A British communique today said there was no contact with the enemy in the sector east of Mayu ridge yesterday, adding that operations in the coastal area south of Maungdaw had been confined to patrol activity by both sides. The communique said that R.A.F. fighter patrols "did considerable damage to a Japanese river transport along the Mayu River from Buthedaung downwards."

London, May 10 — (CP)—Powerful, 400-mile-an-hour American P-47 Thunderbolt fighters were disclosed today to have gone into action in the European theatre of operations.

Squadrons of them flown by Americans have been making intermittent sweeps over the continent and constituted a big portion of the escort which helped heavy bombers in the May 4 raid on Antwerp.

Exceptionally powerful, the heavy, single-engined monoplanes are armed with eight 50 calibre machine-guns. The fighters excell at high altitudes.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 10 — (CP) — Continuing the firmness shown at the opening, golds continued to spurt ahead on Toronto Exchange in late morning and afternoon trading with Aunor gaining 7 cents to a new high for the year at 1.90.

Beattie was ahead 16 and Buffalo Ankerite made 10. Lamaque and Macassa advanced 5 cents each.

In base metals Ventures got up to a new high at 6.25, up 35 cents, but sagged in later trading to 6.05. Sudbury Basin, Falconbridge and International Nickel improved but Ontario Nickel dropped 1 1-2 to 7, a new low for the year.

WALL STREET

New York, May 10 (AP)—Low-priced utilities and specialties were given a whirl in today's stock market, a number pushing up fractions to a point or so at best levels for the year or longer on blocks of 1,000 to 20,000 shares.

Renewed popularity of "penny" issues, brokers said, largely was due to public buying on the idea that many of these may benefit from a shortened war. Expanding idle funds remained as a trend prop and the rout of the Axis in Tunisia generally was viewed as a prime influence on bullish sentiment.

First hour dealings of 803,000 shares were the largest since May 1940. There were subsequent slowdowns and top marks were reduced or cancelled here and there near the fourth period.

Bonds improved selectively. Commodities were mixed.

Canadian issues were mixed. Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker gained 5-8 and 1-8 respectively while Dome Mines, McIntyre and Lake Shore eased fractionally. Canada 4s, in the bonds, were off 1-8.

750,000 Axis Loss Since Reconquest Of Ethiopia

London, May 10 — (CP) — The Axis has lost more than 750,000 troops in the retreat from Africa which began with the reconquest of Ethiopia.

In East Africa, the Axis lost 280,000 troops, including 200,000 negroes.

Casualties in North Africa were estimated at 426,000, not including the announcement that 50,000 had been captured around Bizerte and Tunis.

The casualties roughly are in the proportion of three Italians to one Germans.

Losses in Axis material since the beginning of the Mediterranean campaign total more than 2,000 tanks, 5,000 aircraft shot down in combat and additional thousands destroyed on the ground, and close to 1,500 guns, according to authoritative figures.

HAMILTON BRIDGE WORKERS STRIKE

Dispute With Management Over Collective Bargaining Agreement

Hamilton, Ont., May 10 —(CP)— About 500 employees of the Hamilton Bridge Company went on strike today in a dispute between the management and local 2537 of the United Steelworkers of America. (C. I. O.) over a collective bargaining agreement.

Production in the plant, engaged in manufacturing war equipment, came to a halt as only skeleton crews remained on duty.

The plant employs 1,100 workers but it was not known immediately if the night shift crews will join the day men in the strike. The shift change is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Pickets took up their duties outside the plant gates when the strike was called, following breakdown of negotiations between company and Union officials.

There was no immediate comment from company or Union officials after the strike started but it was indicated last night in statements from both that certification of the Union as a collective bargaining agency under Ontario's new collective bargaining legislation was one of the points as issue.

M. T. Montgomery, Field Representative of the U. S. W. A., said that company officials asked for certification "from the Ontario labor court and "the workers felt that in view of the fact that the John Inglis and other firms had signed union agreements without certification there should not be any further delay in this case."

The company's statement last night said the Union had agreed to seek certification under the new Ontario low "but so far has failed to do so."

Two Men Killed At Campbellford

Campbellford, May 10. — When the light truck in which they were driving left the road and crashed into a tree on highway No. 30 just south of this town late Saturday night, William McArthur, 22, was instantly killed. His companion, Francis (Amos) Oliver, 21, died four hours later in the Belleville hospital without regaining consciousness.

Both men sustained terrible head and body injuries when the cab of the truck crumpled up. McArthur was the son of Joel McArthur, well known Campbellford butcher. Francis Oliver, a private in the Midland Regiment, was home on leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Oliver, of this town.

Provincial Constable Gordon Hayes of Campbellford investigated. In the case of McArthur, Coroner D. E. A. Stuart deemed an inquest unnecessary. The military authorities may ask an inquest into Oliver's death.

How Farmers Can Beat Fuel Shortage

The farmer who owns a well-managed woodlot of 20 acres or so has little to worry about in the present serious fuel shortage in Canada, states the Dominion Forest Service. If the lot is in good condition it will provide from one-half to one cord per acre every year and actually leave the stand in better growing condition than if nothing was cut from it. A well-stocked woodlot on suitable soil will bear from 30 to 40 cords per acre. If most of the trees are sound and spaced so that all the crowns receive their fair share of sunlight, they will grow a cord an acre per year. But unless this cord per acre is cut regularly, the crowns will soon become crowded, the growth rate will become much slower, and finally so many of the trees will die that the loss from this source may be even greater than the annual growth.

It is a serious mistake to exploit the woodlot—to cut all the trees that are large enough to make fuelwood at one time. Such treatment would mean a wait of many years before there would again be trees large enough to cut. Not only that, but the growth on the few trees left would be much less than the land is capable of producing.

The proper procedure is to select and mark the trees that should be cut each year before actually starting to cut. First select the dead, defective and old, poorly shaped trees; second, enough of the largest trees scattered here and there to make up the cord or so per acre should be selected to let light in to trees beneath; but not so many should be taken in one place that large openings will be made in the crown cover.

It is a good idea to divide a large woodlot into a number of sections of 5 to 10 acres each, and cut the whole year's supply from one section at a time; then leave that section undisturbed until all the other sections have been cut over in the same way. That is, instead of cutting over the whole 20-acre lot to get 20 cords, cut 20 cords from one section each year.

Britain's bird population is falling. The rigors of war both over the countryside and around the coast are causing heavy casualties among many of the most popular species.

ENEMY RESISTANCE ON CAP BON COLLAPSING

AIR WAR PACES BATTLE FOR NOVOROSSISK

Pocket Axis Forces Still Fighting To South and East

British First Army Crosses Base Of Peninsula to Capture Hammamet—Axis Troops Crowded On To Cap Bon Appear to Have Lost Their Nerve

5,000 TAKEN IN LIGHTNING THRUST

London, May 11 —CP)— A Reuters dispatch from Allied Headquarters in North Africa said today it was officially announced that enemy resistance on Cap Bon was collapsing. The number of prisoners was increasing hourly.

London, May 11 —(CP)— A French communique broadcast from Algiers said German forces in the Zaghouan mountains west of Cap Bon had asked for armistice terms.

By WILLIAM B. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 11 —(AP)— Allied Headquarters announced today that British armor had forced a complete breakthrough on the neck of Cap Bon peninsula, closing that blind alley at its mouth and pocketing enemy forces which still were fighting fiercely to the south and west.

Advancing from the Hamman Lif area on the north side of the neck, the British 1st Army crossed the base of the peninsula to the outskirts of Hammamet on the south side, and took Soliman, Grombalia and Menzel Bou Selfa in the centre, the communique announced.

(A Reuters news agency dispatch from Allied Headquarters said the British troops entered Hammamet early today.)

Scorched by Allied fire from land, sea and air, the remnants of the German and Italian armies which were crowded into Cap Bon appeared to have lost their nerve after this bold, swift stroke by British armor and the prospects of a last stand on the mountain-ribbed peninsula were diminishing.

The opposition from these troops was slight, and the trapped soldiers were inclined to surrender at the first opportunity as British naval forces scoured nearby waters in what was described as a "mopping up" of small parties attempting a disorganized escape.

Pilots Sweep the Beaches

Pilots who continued to sweep the beaches reported little activity and said the cornered enemy apparently had recognized the futility of attempting to get away, while huge fires blazing along the roads of the bomb-riddled cape indicated the Germans were burning their supplies.

More than 5,000 prisoners were taken by British troops in their lightning thrust across the peninsula, including 600 members of the crack Herman Goering regiment which had fought strongly around Hamman Lif from entrenched and buried tanks.

Captured along with the flood of prisoners were messages of encouragement sent to the front lines by Hitler and Mussolini.

The Nazis had attempted to stop the British drive by using their tanks, drained of fuel, as fortresses, but when the British troops renewed their assault yesterday morning opposition cracked and Lt.-Gen, Kenneth Anderson's armor swept through to the south coast area with little difficulty.

Infantry Follow Tanks

Infantry forces which followed closely behind the tank breakthrough occupied Soliman, Grondalia, and Menzel Bou Selfa, three towns forming a triangle in the valley of the twin rivers of Oued el Melch and Oued el Djourf and controlling the main road across the base of the peninsula.

There was no let up in the stubborn resistance of the southern Nazi forces. At one point they even put in a counter-attack against French forces. It was repulsed.

The 8th Army made an attack against the die-hard German fighters southeast of Saouaf, 12 miles northwest of Enfidaville, and took 75 prisoners and 12 small field guns, and also made an assault on the right flank along the marshy coastal strip due north of Enfidaville. The latter attack met desperate resistance.

The French, fighting alongside the British 8th Army, mopped up a number of small pockets in the neighborhood of Zaghouana. The Germans made their ineffective counter-attack three miles south of Moghrane, just to the north of Zaghouan and about 30 miles west of Hammamet.

So completely blotted out was the German air force in this theatre that just one enemy plane was seen in the Tunisian sky. It was shot down.

The naval section of the communique said five small boats were shot off Cap Bon yesterday and Sunday night in mopping up the detachments caught at sea and said many prisoners had been captured. Among them was a German general caught trying to escape. That made seven generals captured.

"Intense naval activity still prevails off the coast of Cap Bon peninsula where large fires were seen last night. The coast is closely watched and blockaded and the work continues," said the communique.

Malta's squadrons of fighter-bombers and bombers assailed Biscari, Marsli and Porto Empedocle in Sicily, unloading bombs on airfields, railway stations and power stations. Four-engined R. A. F. planes delivered the second important attack on Messina, in Sicily, in 24 hours.

URGES VACATION LEAVES BEGIN, END IN MIDDLE WEEK

Munitions Department Asks Business to Schedule Employee Vacations Thru Year

LEVELLING-OFF POLICY

Ottawa, May 11 (CP)—The Munitions Department said today a general appeal is being made to Canadian employers to stagger vacation leaves, beginning and ending at mid-week periods, to reduce travel congestion through the summer, particularly at weekends.

A joint statement by Transport Controller T. C. Lockwood and Transit Controller George S. Gray said concentrated vacation travel in July and August must be avoided if bus and rail lines are to handle passenger traffic in Canada this summer.

"The usual midsummer and weekend peaks must be levelled off, and we are asking business and industry to get behind a policy of scheduling employee vacations throughout the year, instead of concentrating them into the summer months," the statement said.

"We are also asking them to begin and end all employee vacations on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from now on."

The policy is being recommended to all employers, and a letter signed jointly by the Transport and Transit Controllers is being sent to large employers, executives of trade associations, and similar groups.

Conserve Travel Facilities

In addition, employers are asked to help conserve travel facilities by supporting a policy of avoiding unnecessary train or bus travel at all times. The public is being urged to spend vacations at home or as near home as possible and to limit vacation trips by rail or bus to one round trip.

"For their own comfort, as well as for the sake of the rail and bus lines, the public should make every possible effort to avoid weekend travel," said the controllers. "We shall need all the co-operation we can get if Canadian traffic facilities are to be able to meet the heavy volume of passenger travel this summer."

'Sarge' Captures Five 105 m.m. Guns, A 6-Pounder, 11 Trucks

Algiers, May 11—(CP)—A British sergeant captured five 105 mm. guns, a six-pounder and 11 trucks in good condition during an engagement north of the Anchorite positions in North Africa. During the battle for the equipment he fired 2,000 rounds of .303 ammunition and 35 rounds of two-pound shells.

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Allied Air Forces in North Africa, May 11 — (AP) — The North African campaign has demonstrated as never before what air power can do toward winning a war.

The German air force, in the Battle of Britain and the invasion of Crete, never achieved even a fraction of the results scored by the Allied air forces in six months of fighting here.

The blows dealt the Axis in this campaign were so great they not only paved the way for the ultimate victory on the ground, but also inflicted losses which will greatly weaken Germany's defence of her "Fortress of Europe."

From this point of view it is fortunate that the armies failed to drive the enemy out of Africa in their first attempts last November and December. For the six months have cost the Axis almost its entire Mediterranean force, an enormous amount of shipping and incalculable other losses.

The campaign also set a new high mark in air support for ground troops. Something quite new, a "bomb carpet," was demonstrated May 5, when hundreds of bombers opened a path for the army approaching Massicault with such a plastering that not a single acre was left unscathed.

New tactics have been developed. Planes have been used in new ways, such as putting bombs on Spitfires and Lightnings. Pilots have developed many tricks which have been adopted as part of general tactics.

Since the campaign started Nov. 8, 1942, 1,700 enemy planes have been shot down exclusive of those bagged by the desert forces before their amalgamation with the Northwest African Air Forces in February. Hundreds of other enemy craft were blown to pieces on the ground.

About 75 ships, including a cruiser and at least four destroyers, were sunk by air attack, as well as many other smaller boats, and numerous others were left burning or listing and undoubtedly sank.

Harbors not only in Africa but in Sicily, Sardinia and Italy have been attacked heavily and repeatedly.

The campaign has not been waged without cost. More than 600 Allied planes have been lost and many pilots killed.

The Time of Test Is Now at Hand

Just like the axiom which says the home stretch is always the hardest, those last thousands of dollars which will put Hastings county "over the top" in subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan are the hardest to get.

Yesterday was begun the final six days of the campaign in this country "over the top" in subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan long way off. With only five days to go Mr. and Mrs. John Public have got to subscribe $766,700 or approximately $115,000 per day. It's a lot of money but Hastings can not, and will not, fail.

* * *

Frankly, Hastings is now faced with the supreme test. Her objective in the Fourth Victory Loan can only be reached by a great effort on the part of canvassers and salesmen, and—most important of all—the citizens of Belleville and the county who have not already purchased Victory Bonds with every dollar they can spare.

The money is available in Belleville and in Hastings. Of that Victory Loan committeemen are certain. What is lacking is the realization that Canada needs the money now as our soldiers on the fighting fronts approach the zero hour.

The larger subscribers have been contacted by Victory Loan salesmen and canvassers. So also have those who bought Victory Bonds in previous loans. The onus is now on those who have not yet purchased their Victory Bonds in the current campaign. It is up to them to put Hastings "over the top."

* * *

The men and women of the armed forces here in Hastings county, in the Dominion, and also overseas, have responded nobly to the call of their country. They are offering their lives for freedom's cause and have subscribed their money to the Victory Loan. They know that Canada must have the money and have responded to the limit.

All four R.C.A.F. stations in the county are already away over their respective objectives. No. 5 I.T.S. at Belleville has subscribed 231 per cent of their quota while Trenton Air Station during the first two weeks of the campaign subscribed $193,000.

Civilians must meet these men and women of the armed forces, or must meet those fortunate enough to return, after the war has ended. Residents of Hastings county cannot afford to let them think they failed to "Back Their Attack." Civilians cannot afford to let them think that because of selfish interests they were not well-equipped to face a ruthless foe.

There is no safer investment than Dominion of Canada Victory Bonds and there is no surer way for civilians to protect those securities than by backing Canada's war effort to the limit.

Every man and woman in Hastings must get behind this effort during the final week of the Victory Loan campaign. If all do their share Canada's men and women of the fighting services will be brought home victorious.

HITLER FACING A DOUBLE TASK BY TUNISIA'S FALL

Must Cushion Axis Defeat and Bolster Nazi Invasion Defences

STUNNED AT NEWS

London, May 11—(CP) — Hitler faced the double task today of speeding the defence of Axis-dominated Europe against the next Allied blow while cushioning the impact of the Tunisian defeat on German morale at home.

Indicating that Hitler considers Italy the weak link in his chain of fortifications across Southern Europe, the Moscow radio quoted dispatches from Switzerland saying he had entrusted Italy's defence to two of his most trusted lieutenants Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Henrich Himmler, head of the Nazi secret police. Goering will take over the re-organization of the Italian army, the broadcast said, while Himmler, through purges among various groups, will attempt a "stabilization of the internal front."

A Berlin dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Tribune De Geneve last night described the bulk of Germans at home as "walking around as though hit on the head" at news of the Allied triumph in North Africa.

Germans Stunned by News

People everywhere grasp at official information on reports, the correspondent wrote, but said that at the moment official information was difficult to obtain. He added that to understand the astonishment of the German people, it must be realized that, during the long retreat across Africa by Axis forces, it was never intimated that the German withdrawal was "anything but voluntary."

ALLIED BOMBERS RAIN EXPLOSIVES ON BASE AT BABO

20 Separate Fires Seen and All Believed to be Burning Planes

VISIBLE 80 MILES

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 11 (CP)— Allied bombers rained explosives on the Japanese airdrome and wharf area at Babo, Dutch New Guinea, in a Monday night attack, inflicting heavy damage.

Returning fliers reported explosions set off by their bombs were so violent that the upthrust of air lifted their bombers several thousand feet.

At least three grounded enemy aircraft, and probably many more were destroyed. The noon communique from Allied Headquarters said 20 separate fires, believed to be burning planes, "indicated widespread destruction and damage."

Hits also were scored in the oil tank area and along the waterfront. The ensuing conflagration was still visible to the airmen when they were 80 miles away on their homeward flight.

As the raiding Catalinas raced away through heavy anti-aircraft fire from this enemy air and shipping stronghold on McCluer Gulf 1,500 miles northwest of the Allied base at Port Moresby, they strafed the town and then dipped down to machine-gun a coastal vessel of Kaimana.

The Japanese struck at three Allied points Monday. Nine fighter planes attacked the aerial outpost at Millingimbi, 300 miles east of Darwin. Two and probably three of the Zeros were destroyed but one of the five intercepting Spitfires was lost.

ATLEE PRAISES CO-OPERATION OF THREE NATIONS

Informs Parliament British Suffered 10,800 Casualties Since April 17th

GENERAL STATEMENT

London, May 11—(CP)—Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, told the House of Commons today that Britain's 1st Army had suffered 1,200 casualties in the final stage of the advance on Tunis and Bizerte, and a total of 8,400 since April 17.

The 8th Army's casualties from April 20 to May 3 were just over 2,400, including wounded and missing, he said.

These losses, he said, compared with 50,000 Axis prisoners—mostly Germans—taken since May 5, and the number of Axis prisoners is "continually increasing."

The Deputy Prime Minister gave the government's appraisal of the "crushing defeat" inflicted on the Axis in the first general war statement given in the House since the review Feb. 11 of the Casablanca and Adana conferences, and it followed a brief secret session of the House.

Mr. Attlee opened the statement with praise for the "very practical example of Allied co-operation "between the armies of the three nations, and ground, air and sea forces obtained under the direction of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander.

It was on the central front, Mr. Attlee stated, that British troops achieved the break-through that led to the fall of Tunisia's two principal port cities. Preliminary preparations included strengthening of the 1st Army with formations from the 8th, he said.

Cover 30 Miles in 36 Hours

The 1st Army covered the final 30 miles in 36 hours, demoralizing Axis forces. "It was a real thunderbolt," he quoted Gen. Alexander as describing the final thrust.

At almost the same time American tanks entered Bizerte after a thrust "across extremely difficult country," he said.

On Sunday morning all that was left of the German 15th Armored Division surrendered to the British 7th Armored Division, he said, adding: "These two veterans of the desert had been at each other's throats for the best part of two years."

Praising the results of combined actions by the R.A.F. and American air forces, Mr. Attlee said that "the number of sorties by our air forces compared with those of the enemy was generally something like four to one," and added that the combined Allied air forces gained complete domination of the air. Understanding between ground and air forces reached a "pitch of perfection that we never hitherto attained," he added.

Germans Lose 43 Planes Answering Red Air Sweep

Soviet Troops Crawl Forward Yard by Yard in Bloodiest Fighting of War

INSIDE DEFENCES

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 11 — (AP) — Red Army troops crawling forward yard by yard in some of the bloodiest fighting of the Russian-German war since the days of Stalingrad, battled furiously today within the German defence lines at Novorossisk, but it was reported they were meeting stiffening Axis resistance.

The Red Air Force meanwhile kept up a major scale series of attacks against the German supply lines all along the front but apparently was not successful in halting the flow of supplies and reinforcements the Germans pushed into sectors of the Kuban to feed their numerous counter-attacks.

Tanks, armored cars, motorized artillery and heavy field pieces were reported to have been brought in by the Germans.

A dispatch from the Black Sea fleet said that its air force was continuing attacks upon enemy supply ships and land positions.

(The German radio claimed today that 474 Soviet planes had been destroyed in the week ending last Saturday against a loss of only 36 German planes, and that the Russians had lost 168 tanks in the Kuban bridgehead fighting since April 19.)

Noon Communique

The noon communique told how a Red Army detachment stormed into the German trenches in their Novorossisk defence lines, killing 80 of the enemy to hold the position. In repulsing an enemy counter-attack in another sector of the battle zone, 200 Germans were killed, a large quantity of guns captured and enemy equipment was destroyed, it said.

A German attempt to answer the Red Air Force sweep against their rail lines and supply centres by sending 200 planes in an attack on the Rostov-Bataisk area, gateway to the Caucasus, was met by withering anti-aircraft fire which brought down 43 of the raiders, it was reported.

On the ground, in the narrowing strip of the German-held Kuban, large forces grappled in trenches, in the valleys and on the mountain sides, with the Russians aiming at the systematic extermination of the Germans and Rumanians.

Many Killed In Nazi Raid On East Anglia

London, May 11. (CP) — The sky over the English Channel was filled today with two-way traffic during a day of sharp activity in which Allied bombers and fighters battered the continent anew and the Germans raided an East Anglian town where many persons were killed when an inn was hit.

The bodies of 18 persons were found, 11 girls, members of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, five civilians and two soldiers.

Allied formations swung across the Channel soon after noon and for some time many more squadrons headed toward France.

Accompanying the air activity was a short burst of shelling by German big guns on the Channel between Boulogne and Calais.

The raiders began streaming back across the Channel from the direction of Boulogne shortly after noon. It was a fine sunny morning for bombing, but the sky was overcast in the afternoon.

Fifteen German Focke-Wulf fighter-bombers swooped down on an East Anglian town early today, dropping explosives, machine-gunning buses and dropping a bomb on a building housing a number of Auxiliary Territorial Service girls, where 11 bodies were later recovered.

Casualties were also believed to have resulted in a building where a number of men were working.

The raid was of the usual recent hit-run type, with the Nazi planes scooting quickly back out to sea following the foray.

R.A.F. Mustangs shot an enemy fighter down in flames from a German formation staging an attack in East Anglia, and damaged several more of the intruders, it was learned.

The following dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph from its North African War Correspondent shows the difficulties of reporting operational news from invaded territory. It underlines the problems facing Canadian war correspondents when Dominion forces go on the offensive.

(By CHRISTOPHER BUCKLEY)
(Of The London Daily Telegraph)

With the 1st Army in North Africa, —No matter which sector one visits on the 1st Army front one hears the same complaint and the same question—"Why don't war correspondents tell the people at home about our fighting here?"

Sometimes this complaint is not altogether justified, particularly when an action is taking place on several parts of the front. Each unit then feels that it is engaged in a distinct major battle. But today it is justified.

Radio Not Always Accurate.

The only way troops can get the news is over the radio, and the picture which the BBC gives them is something largely remote from the facts. There are two reasons for this:

1.—Facilities for the transmission of news from the front have broken down, as correspondents feared they would, under the stress of battle. Despatches written from the front by men who have for months followed the development of the campaign are not getting through quickly enough.

2.—A detailed but far from accurate account of the fighting is given daily in Algiers, and this account is heard on the wireless by troops in forward positions. Many of them know the important part their own units have played in recent activities, and that the account given by the BBC is inaccurate and out of proportion.

Bungling Discourage Troops.

Such bungling of publicity does no good. Front-line troops have been discouraged by the inept handling of news from Algiers. They feel that their efforts have not been appreciated at home.

I have found the same feeling among officers, particularly in the Intelligence Operational branches. As there is a danger of this lack of

Christian Principles Must Guide Post-War Leaders, Rotary Is Told

That any new social order following the present war will be predestined to failure without its leaders being permeat with Christian principles and full belief in a higher and Supreme Being was expressed here Monday by Rev. Ralph E. Spencer, of Tabernacle United Church.

Speaking at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club, Mr. Spencer forwarded the opinion that while the people of the world were fundamentally good, unless its leaders had confidence in God and shared His plan for the world, no new order could be a success.

The four principles of great living as expressed by Henry Vandyke were quoted by Mr. Spencer as an example for men to follow. The four points were, "To think without confusion clearly; To love one's brother man sincerely; To act from honest motives purely, and To trust God and Heaven securely."

In illustrating the initial point Mr. Spencer stated that to view the war as a single incident would be thinking with confusion. Rather, he said, the war should be viewed as a world revolution that began at the turn of the century and which would continue until the urge for extreme individualism and, conversely, extreme nationalism, had struck happy balance.

More Good Will Now

Despite that fact the world is torn by international and world-wide strife, Mr. Spencer voiced the opinion that there is more good will toward brother men than ever before. "The difficulty however," he said, "is to get this good feeling transferred into terms of action. More action and less words are needed."

Freedom from selfishness and the desire to do good in the world illustrated the aim of the third point, according to the speaker, who declared that the Rotarian motive of "Service Above Self" was the highest to be attained by man.

To trust in God securely means to have confidence in the Supreme Being, he concluded. No philosophy of life can be permanent unless there is confidence in God. The Christian conception that life is fundamentally good is correct but leaders must be permeated with Christian principles and in the belief of a higher and Supreme Being.

Rotarian president Lloyd Hicks introduced the guest speaker with club appreciation being expressed by Dr. James Semple. Alec Gordon acted as pianist and "Sandy" Burrows as songleader.

Water Level in Bay of Quinte Reported Highest in Many Years

Boat captains of cargo carriers traversing the Bay of Quinte are wearing satisfied smiles these days and all because the depth of water over the many shoals up and down the bay is the greatest recorded in many years. At the present time the water level in the bay is approximately two feet higher than normal.

"With the present depth of water, I guess boats plying the Bay of Quinte can carry almost up to their capacities in cargo," Mr. Joseph Waddell, local harbor master, stated this morning. "The water today is the highest I have ever recorded in all my years' experience on the Belleville waterfront."

22½ in. Higher Than Normal

Mr. Waddell indicated that on May 3rd. the water level in the bay was 22½ inches higher than normal and has been steadily rising ever since. Today with a stiff wind blowing up the bay the water reached its highest level.

Activity in the Belleville harbor so far this season has been confined to the arrival of eight or nine oil tankers with cargos of gasoline while there has been one coal carrier in. The "Bayfax" which wintered in Belleville pending the installation of unloading machinery is still at her berth as is the Glen Allan, the only packet freighter to ply Bay of Quinte waters. It is not known when either of these boats will make their first trips down the bay.

Interest in conservation of existing timberlands and reforestation of denuded areas in the northern part of the county as a program to assist in retaining an adequate water supply was expressed by members of the Belleville Rotary Club at their regular luncheon meeting on Monday.

O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Public Utilities, started the ball rolling when at the conclusion of the meeting he read a press publication noting the reforestation program entered into by the village of Beeton in Simcoe county. With the village's water supply rapidly diminishing the article indicated how reforestation had resulted in the water supply being increased and improved.

In open discussion following the reading of the Beeton article it was intimated by several Rotarians that something in the way of reforestation should be done in Hastings county. The program should embrace both conserving of present timber and reforestation it was held.

No Thought of Future

"Residents in the northern parts of the county cut timber with an abandon which disregards any thought of the future", stated Mackenzie Robertson. "Even small trees are cut with regard for nothing but their immediate value as firewood or lumber."

"It's the same all over the province", agreed Jamieson Bone. "If you want to see really big trees, you must go to England, Scotland or to British Columbia."

Rev. Dr. Bert Howard told what had been accomplished about the Albert College campus during the past seven years. Approximately 700 trees had been planted each year with the livability averaging approximately 75 per cent, he stated.

Says Lumbermen Not Co-operative

No decision on any program was reached by the brief discussion but a suggestion by Dr. Semple that the matter be broached to the county council was answered by Mr. James Haggerty who stated conservation of existing trees and reforestation had been frowned upon by county lumbermen.

"They do not just seem to want to co-operate in the matter," he stated.

Dr. Van Blakslee intimated that the local Anglers' Club had taken the matter of reforestation up and stated that government surveyors were working on such a problem in the district north of Port Hope. When this survey was completed, it was promised something would be done in Hastings.

Turkey Impressed By Allied Victory In North Africa

By FRANK O'BRIEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Ankara, May 10 —(AP)— The smashing Allied assault which toppled Axis defences at Tunis and Bizerte has left a deep impression in Turkey. The Turks fully expected the Allies to take both towns, but anticipated a long struggle at the gates.

The fact that the Allies took the entire area by storm has lifted Allied military prestige high among Turks and has correspondingly lowered German prestige.

The Turks expect to see an Anglo-American invasion of Europe at least partly through the Mediterranean area, and the chief question here is whether the blow will fall in the eastern Mediterrean — on Turkey's doorstep — or in the central area.

The power and generalship of the Allied military machine undoubtedly will strengthen Turkish confidence and influence her reaction to the coming Mediterranean events, especially should they fall in the Aegean approaches to Europe.

The recent concentrated Axis propaganda program aimed at begging, cajoling or threatening Turkey into remaining non-belligerent shows the Axis believes there is a strong possibility Turkey might collaborate in the liberation of the Balkans.

Turkey has never failed to make it plain she opposed Germany's domination of her Balkan neighbors.

Franco's Appeal For World Peace Causes No Stir

Madrid, May 11 (AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco made a clear appeal for world peace Sunday night in Almeria, declaring neither the Axis nor the Allies could destroy the other and "it is senseless to delay the peace."

It was the second Spanish peace feeler in less than a month. On April 16, Foreign Minister Jordana appealed for peace in an address at Barcelona.

(Franco is indebted to both Italy and Germany for help in the Spanish civil war and had proclaimed his friendship for the Axis.

(The speech was made as Axis resistance in Tunisia appeared near an end and Hitler and Mussolini were preparing to withstand Allied assaults on the European continent.

(London's reaction to Franco's peace feeler was a polite yawn. Newspapers gave it little space, since their headlines were too thick with victories to leave much room for talk of quitting. No British official would suggest an alteration of the Allied policy of "unconditional surrender," pronounced at Casablanca.)

Don't Let This Be On YOUR CONSCIENCE

MANY TIMES in the early days of this war, battles were lost and lives were sacrificed because there was "Too Little Too Late". No words could be more tragic. They must not be heard now!

Canada's armed forces are fighting our battles. Shall we at home fail to give them every possible support? They left their jobs, their homes, their friends for the discomforts and dangers which are ever present, prepared if need be to make the supreme sacrifice. Are we going to let them down? Are we going to increase the dangers . . . multiply the hazards . . . prolong the struggle because of "Too Little Too Late"?

Our big job right now is to put over this fourth Victory Loan. The need is greater than ever. It's unthinkable that we should falter or fail.

A lot of money to raise? Sure it is. But it can be done. It must be done. Have you gone the limit? Or, could you stretch the budget by a greater effort; by real self denial, by postponing the purchase of something you would like now but could wait until the time when you can buy with a clear conscience?

Canada needs every dollar you can lend.

There is still time for you to do your full part. Maybe it's your own son, or your neighbor's son, brother or husband who is depending on you. Don't let them down at this critical time.

Heroic Netherlands

After three years, Hun oppression has not succeeded in daunting the people of the Netherlands. People of that country have in every way defied the tyranny of Hitler, they have mocked the German Nazis, ridiculed them, committed sabotage. They have held together to a remarkable degree and in the dark period which came upon their land three years ago they have thought and worked for the day which they know will come when victory will crown the efforts of the United Nations and they will reap their reward in a liberated country which will see the aggressor's power crushed at their feet.

The loyalty and devotion of the Netherlands people have been praised by their good Queen who is in England with the Netherlands Government-in-exile. Her Majesty sees the time approach when the people will be liberated from the inhuman oppression of Hitler's conquest.

Her soldiers who have trained abroad, her fleets of ships of war and of the merchant marine, and her airmen have written a glorious saga in these years of German tyranny and have co-operated with the rest of the United Nations in a most effective manner.

Holland has always been a united nation. Her people in the homeland and those abroad are one in their aim. Those in the Far East struggle against the Nipponese tyranny, her airmen battle against the Japanese. Holland gives of her West Indies resources to the war effort of the Allies.

These people have lived up to the highest traditions of the Dutch race, they are suffering and enduring for liberty and democracy and have fought for their restoration which will come in due time. Holland never lost hope even in the grim days of the Hun blitz in such cities as Rotterdam. Beyond the smoke of battle and the bursting of bombs she has seen democracy triumphant. Events of today prove how accurately these lovers of liberty have envisioned the liberation of the world and the free reign of democracy.

Character in Letters

Recent references in the press and magazines to the character of letters to the soldiers, airmen and sailors are worthy of note. A writer in the Atlantic Monthly pleads for simplicity and naturalness in letters written to the men overseas because the most important thing in a letter is "the authentic tone of the sender's voice." The writer said "If a man's letters are not like him, or a woman's letters are not like her, it is more of a tragedy than the separation between them." The Halifax Herald editor comments, "Better a rambling letter—'a poor thing yet one's own'—devoid of literary form and nicety of construction than the stilted artificiality of a 'model letter.' Write to the absent loved one as you would talk to him if he were present with you," is a sane and sound advice to follow.

The Canadian Chaplain Service, whose members know men and their needs intimately in their welfare work in the moral and physical and mental realms has stressed the need of writing letters to the men who are away and offers some suggestions to make letters most welcome and helpful. Letters cheer those who are away from their families. As the Stratford Beacon-Herald puts it, many relatives of soldiers overseas shirk their duty to write frequently, telling of what is happening at home and every man in the service has interests outside of his family who could tell him what is occurring at his former place of employment, his club, sports organization, church, school and farm. His friends as well as his relatives should write him frequently.

The Guelph Mercury, stating that character in letters is as important as volume, says that difficulties at home should not be overstressed. Letters should contain a note of optimism which should tend to a minimum the soldier's worry concerning home affairs. The family letters should cheeringly indicate that the folks at home are handling problems in the right spirit. Letters from children should also be encouraged because of the cheer they usually contain. There should be avoidance of complaints of loneliness and gossip which is always harmful. Overemphasis on good jobs held by some at home may prove discouraging.

The Chaplain Service encourages churches, clubs and other community organizations to appoint committees which will contain lists of men from whom proper addresses can be obtained. One church maintains stamped and addressed envelopes for the use of those desiring to send letters to men who are in the services away from home.

Every letter from the men and boys abroad indicates how closely they treasure the bonds of home and country and how delighted they are to receive mail from everyone they know. Men in the different services also write to one another and keep afresh the ties of their earlier years.

The Useful Helicopter

(Montreal Star)

It has taken the supporters of helicopters a long time to persuade authority of their usefulness, but the ingenious invention that permits a plane to hover like a bird is at last coming into its own. The Royal Canadian Air Force has ordered six for use in submarine patrols and rescue work.

Many Canadian airmen in training have been forced to land in inaccessible places. Rescue parties may take days to reach them if other military aircraft find it impossible to land nearby; but a helicopter can fly in, land beside the stranded men or, if landing is impossible and they are not too seriously hurt to help themselves, hover a few feet off the ground and let down a ladder up which the men may climb.

For use in anti-submarine patrols, the helicopter's ability to hover is again effective. One disadvantage the fast military plane has to face in attacking a submarine is its own speed. It must let loose its depth charges at high speed, and it is easy in the circumstances to miss the mark. A helicopter could hover directly over its target, drop its charges with reasonable assurance of accuracy and yet get far enough away to escape the blast from the underwater explosion. Shore-based helicopter patrols must of necessity operate over short ranges, but what is to prevent the use of helicopters rising from the decks of ships in convoy?

Man and Animals

(From "Pleasures of Publishing")

"Man," says the Columbia Encyclopaedia, "is distinguished from other animals by his brain and his hands." But here the difference ends, because:

He is chicken-livered, lion-hearted, pigeon-toed, treacherous as a snake, sly as a fox, busy as a bee, slippery as an eel, industrious as an ant, blind as a bat, faithful as a dog, gentle as a lamb, drunk as an owl, still as a mouse, nervous as a cat, stubborn as a mule, thirsty as a camel, strong as an ox, vain as a peacock, happy as a lark, slow as a tortoise, fresh as a daisy, red as a beet, coltish, kittenish, a worm, a rat, easily cowed, and led like a sheep.

He has the memory of an elephant, a beak for a nose, the arms of an ape, the eyes of a hawk, the neck of a bull, a whale of an appetite, raven hair, the shoulders of a buffalo, a catlike walk and a mousey manner.

He roars like a lion, cooes like a dove, hops like a sparrow, works like a horse, flies like a bird, runs like a deer, drinks like a fish, swims like a duck, sticks his head in the sand like an ostrich, acts like a dog in a manger, plays possum, gets hungry as a bear, wolfs his food, parrots everything, acts like a puppy, struts like a rooster and chatters like a magpie.

GUADALCANAL

All down the years when peace is made
And families are no more afraid,
When youth is done with deadly strife
And mirth and song return to life
Guadalcanal a place will hold
Wherever epic tales are told.

In years to come some brave Marine
Relating sights that he has seen
Will live again those battles grim
Guadalcanal will mean for him,
And tell to bright-eyed boy and maid
The courage which was there displayed.

The empty sleeve and sightless eye,
And bodies just too strong to die,
Will give their testimony mute
To free men's struggles 'gainst the brute.
Of heroes' ribbon, frayed and frail,
Guadalcanal will tell the tale.

Guadalcanal! Another name
To grace the book of deathless fame!
Another spot for ages long
To live in poetry and song,
And in the hearts of all mankind
Forevermore to be enshrined!

Enemy Shipping In Aegean Sea Heavily Hit

Cairo, May 11 —(AP)— R. A. F. heavy bombers attacked defence installations at Messina, Sicily, on Sunday night and ollowed up with raids on enemy shipping in the Aegean Sea yesterday, a Middle East air communique announced today.

No details were given on the Messina assault, but the shipping attacks were said to have left two small sailing vessels in sinking condition.

All planes were reported to have returned safely.

The R.A.F. attack on Messina was the second Allied air blow at that important communications centre within 24 hours. A Cairo communique yesterday announced that United States heavy bombers had raided the town in daylight Sunday.

PAPER ROPES NEW

Clothes lines have now been tossed into the war arena. A shortage not only of steel but of rope has resulted in the development of clothes line made of paper. It is said to have the same tensile strength as manila and jute rope.

CANNON AND ARTILLERY

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them,
Volleyed and thundered.

When Alfred Lord Tennyson wrote those lines in commemoration of "The Charge of the Light Bridage," in the Crimean War, the word "cannon" was in much more common use than it is today.

Modern military men speak of mortars, howitzers, pieces and guns, but seldom of cannon.

"Cannon" comes to us through the French from Latin "canna," meaning a reed.

Originally a cannon, also spelled "canon," was simply a large tube.

In the military sense, a cannon is a gun of such size that it requires to be mounted for firing.

Gunpowder was used to project missiles in cannon before it was so used in small arms.

The original cannon was a large metal tube that threw, first balls of stone and then shots of lead or other metal

Cannon were smooth-bore mounted guns that threw balls; modern large guns are rifled and fire "shells."

The term "artillery" was also borrowed from the French.

At first it was applied to any military engine for discharging missiles, whether catapults, bows, arbalists, slings or cannon.

The "Honorable Artillery Company of London," when first organized, was a company of archers, and the London artillery ground was a place where the archers shot arrows for practice.

Artillery, in the sense of engines for discharging missiles, was also called "ordnance." In process of time "ordnance" came to be applied particularly to cannon or large guns mounted on carriages or in place.

"Caisson" is a French term meaning literally a large chest. Before it was applied to an ammunition wagon to serve mobile artillery it signified a chest filled with explosive material to be laid in the path of an enemy and exploded upon his approach like a mine.

The Human Side Of the Grand Fleet

By George Blake

(BBC Press Service)

I have recently returned from a prolonged visit to the Home Fleet of the British Navy at one of its northern bases. That the experience was fascinating in the extreme goes without saying. To see a great and powerful fleet assembled at one anchorage is a noble sight at any time, and to study at close quarters the intricate, highly mechanized and largely secret workings of a battleship or a cruiser is an experience that no man, whatever his age, would miss.

But I would rather say something of my more general impressions of the visit—something about the human issues involved in the maintenance of a battle fleet at sea and something about those qualities without which a navy, any navy, cannot do its job—the qualities of tradition, of discipline and of service.

Where this northern base of the British Home Fleet is situated I am not, of course, allowed to say, but you can take it that it is far from the main centres of population in this country. And that single geographical fact creates its own group of special problems. It means, for instance, that men going on leave have a very long way to travel to their homes and therefore have upon them the feeling of remoteness from ordinary life. This is reflected in the regularity and copiousness with which the sailor writes home and in the huge mail that arrives daily from the womenfolk in the South. I have no figures about outgoing mail, but I do know that one battleship alone receives every day five large mailbags full of letters and many more containing parcels. The arrival of the mail is the big moment in the daily life of any ship's company. And let me add that the Home Fleet having a highly important and variegated job to do—moving out to sea in emergency and at short notice, or going in convoy across the Arctic Circle—leave for the sailor afloat is apt to be less frequent that it is in other Services.

It is circumstances like these that largely account for the boyish, happy-go-lucky, rather naif quality of the average Jack Tar, and to the old hands in the Fleet—used to long peace-time commissions on, say, the China Station or in the Mediterranean—there's nothing strange about this segregation in northern waters. But the Navy of 1943 contains a lot of young men not long away from their homes, even from their schools, so that you get at once the problem of maintaining morale, of merely keeping the boys happy, in a region where, ashore, and until the Fleet came, there were no shops and no movies and hardly one personable female to be seen for miles.

I wish to say at once that, in my quite detached opinion, the problem has been satisfactorily solved. I hope I shall be allowed in another talk to describe in detail how the Navy has created on barren soil its own entertainment areas, with its own cinemas, its own orchestras and concert parties, its own canteens, and its own facilities for games and exercises. Why, one area includes even soft-ball diamonds, specially laid out for the benefit of the men of the U. S. Navy. They have been much used by American sailors.

I simply must not, however, let this picture get out of proportion. I mustn't create the impression of a lot of ships and a lot of men lying idle. (After all, I wrote up my notes for this in the battleship that put the last deadly salvos from her 14-inch guns into the Bismarck.) Amusement is only a part of life, and the fleet's entertainment area is only a small part of the great metropolis, so to speak—a city mainly afloat but partly on land—that the Navy has created in this emergency.

When you think of a northern base, don't think of one compact harbour crowded with shipping. Think rather of a great inland sea with many areas and long vistas of rolling water. The fighting ships—the great battleships, the cruisers, the destroyers—are spread out over many square miles of sea, and the whole area is alive with the constant movements of auxiliary vessels—the drifters that carry the mails and supplies, the oilers, and the fast motor launches that dash all over the place, throwing the spray off their bows. Look out from the quarterdeck or thru' your cabin scuttle any moment of the day, and you see something like an outsized regatta going on.

That's the Fleet alive, getting on briskly with its daily routine. Then there are the establishments ashore—oiling jetties, radio stations, repair shops, stores, hospitals and all the rest of it; all working for the ships and with the ships. So that, although this large community is widely spread in the geographical sense, it is very compact in its spirit and, all its parts working to one common and well-understood end, it has developed its own strong communal spirit.

Again I must be careful not to convey a wrong impression; this time of something static. The Home Fleet's base is static indeed, but the ships of the Fleet are continually moving out and in. Jerry won't come out and fight on the surface, but all his other goings-on have to be watched and fought continually. It seems very quiet at the base sometimes, but the battle never lets up, and if you see a brace of destroyers slipping out to sea one evening—well, you'd perhaps better not ask where they are going. And if the larger ships get only occasional glimpses of the Real Thing—Jerry being a downy bird and very careful of his battle fleet—the job of fighting still goes on, even in harbor. Just watch those ships and you will see the snouts of anti-aircraft guns swinging slowly round the skies. Some of them are always loaded. Every ship is continually twinkling with the livid, nervous flashes from signal lamps or running up hoists of flag signals, for all the world like bright birds in flight. There are always watchful eyes on the skies and on the barometer and on the instruments; always many pairs of listening ears clamped between head phones.

• •

Not a day passes but several ships go out to sea for practice. Not just casual practice of familiar routine, but the most exquisitely careful rehearsal in battle conditions of an elaborate and highly-mechanized drill that must not slacken for a moment; that must, indeed, become keener and more accurate every day. It might be a night exercise, with two cruisers groping for each other across a hundred square miles of open sea in darkness and ready to bang at each other with star shells; or it may be a novelty such as I saw the other day—the oiling of a destroyer from a battleship at sea and both under way—an extremely tricky and hair-raising operation.

• •

So the sailor is kept busy, and he takes a real delight in the importance of his allotted task within the complex working of a warship and in the rare delicacy of the instruments he is given to handle. And thus, over and above his interest in the life of the Fleet in general, he has his place (and his pride) in the life of his own ship; and a very rich, warm cheerful life that can be in a happy ship. They've lots of fun, these boys. They have their regular tombolas—that very mild and inexpensive form of lottery permitted by authority—and this brings a lot of them together in a cheerful atmosphere. They have whist drives, lectures on the ship's internal radio system, darts competitions, and all the other amusements that enlightened welfare officers can arrange. Most ships of size have their own dance bands and concert parties. In one ship I know a really keen discussion group has been formed. And in fair weather there's always the fun of boat sailing, with the most enthusiastic rivalry among the crews.

• •

The intensity of life within any warship is an eye-opener to the landlubber. After all, a battleship is a large village, with a population of a good deal more than a thousand men. There are no railways or motor lorries to bring it its surprises of food and general stores, and if something goes wrong mechanically, you can't send along the road for an electrician or plumber to put it right. If the trouble is really serious the warship goes into dockyard, but from practical purposes, the ship is completely self-contained, with its own plumbers and electricians and cooks and bottle-washers.

In the flagship of the Home Fleet I had my own watch expertly repaired within a few hours, which is something I couldn't have got done ashore. Our BBC recording unit had no trouble in getting batteries charged, cables run out, and the wear repaired after being in a rough sea. My own cabin in the flag ship was away down in the bowels of the ship, well below the water line, and it used to be very pleasant to go down there in the afternoon and have a yarn with two men of the Royal Marines who spent the dog watch laundering linen for a number of officers. They had an electric iron and great piles of shirts and pyjamas beside them, and it was for all the world like a pleasant domestic scene from a rather good pantomime.

I am quite sure that it is this richness of domestic life which largely makes the Royal Navy contented with its lot, even in remote waters. Something's always happening—there's always this continuity of living. The big guns up above may be doing practise shots, making the ship shudder with their blast, but you will still see a couple of electricians repairing a telephone circuit down below and hear them chatting about it as if they were dealing with a minor flaw in a remote telephone booth on a country road. While the guns boom and thunder, a few men have to go on cleaning floors or cutting up meat or hammering out routine orders on typewriters. Even when the flag ship of the Home Fleet was in action against the Bismarck there was somebody somewhere making soup or taking the temperature of a man with a bad cold in the sick bay.

I suppose that any of us would at any time question the ultimate values involved in keeping a large number of men employed in this business of destruction on scientific lines. But the answer to that is quite easy. This war was not of our own seeking, however dumbly we are defending an idea, an inheritance, a way of living. Therefore we have an organization in its most complex form, therefore we have the discipline that asks a man to do a job as quickly and as well as he can, without asking questions, however irrelevant the issue may seem to the individual concerned.

Sailors don't talk about their duty or their responsibility to the nation to which they belong. They dodge the issue with a laugh or cynical jest, but when he steps on to the quarter deck of a British warship, every British sailor automatically salutes. That is because it was in this part of the ship that in Catholic times the Crucifix was housed. Britain has been Protestant for 400 years, but the ceremony is still observed many thousands of times a day. Then at nine o'clock in the morning, you hear a bugle call, and you see every man on deck stiffen to attention until the call is finished. This is the ceremony called Colours, the hoisting and saluting of the White Ensign, which is the symbol of the King's Sovereignty and the Navy's responsibility for its maintenance.

And does the average sailor see beyond the mere ceremonial a reminder of his historic function? I don't know for certain that he does, but I am tolerably certain that he doesn't come to the salute without remembering his home and his native country and his own privilege to defend these things against the thugs of the modern world.

For the rest, I would assert that this organization called the British Navy is something that works, something that does the job it was created to perform, and that if there are any problems set up by its remoteness, these will disappear if only the Germans would come out and fight. So, I am quite sure, would the German Fleet.

CANADA'S DAGGER IS READY TO STRIKE!

LIEUT. GENERAL A. G. L. McNAUGHTON

who called the highly-trained and well-equipped Canadian Army, "A Dagger pointed at the heart of Berlin."

• Through rough country and rough weather, Canadian-built mechanized units of the Canadian Army prove under punishing active service conditions that "they have what it takes"!

• Attacking party negotiating barbed wire entanglements upon coming ashore.

by L. S. B. SHAPIRO

Canadian Army on Manoeuvres, Somewhere in England—You probably never heard of the Battle of Long Crendon. It will not go down in the history of this war. No Axis troops have been defeated in the hills overlooking the picturesque English town called Long Crendon. Yet it was an important battle to the men in the war office, poring over maps and blueprints, who are responsible for the strategy of our coming offensive. These men will remember Long Crendon because it tested the efficiency of Canadian transport. "The dagger pointed at the heart of Berlin" is the Canadian army that must be thrust forward on wheels. Long Crendon proved that Canadians have the wheels and the men to drive them. The "battle" occurred during the great Canadian-British manoeuvres just completed. I was with the Canadians spearheading the attack at the fringe of the "enemy" line. A break-through at this point was important to the whole campaign. Time was short. The zero hour for the battle of Long Crendon was set for six-thirty under lengthening shadows of a setting sun. Transport had to be brought up fast—carriers, artillery, anti-aircraft, ammunition supplies, tanks. Hundreds of vehicles roared through the English countryside. They sped over asphalt highways and struggled across water-logged meadows and rutted country roads. This was a test of speed and mechanical efficiency. Then six-thirty—the zero hour. Our troops moved across a wide valley to attack on high ground overlooking Long Crendon. War Office referees examined our dispositions. The transport was there—all of it. Every supply truck, every carrier, every motor-drawn field piece was in its proper place, mudsplattered but triumphant. Referees gave us the nod. Our men and supplies had arrived in time and in sufficient superiority to overwhelm the "enemy". That's the brief story of the battle of Long Crendon. You won't read it in history books. But our High Command knows as a result of Long Crendon that when the great offensive starts the Canadian dagger will be thrust forward on wheels, with a hundred per cent. efficiency. There was no more significant feature of this gruelling 10 days' work-out than the magnificent performance of the Canadian Army's Canadian-built mechanized equipment. I know from personal experience because I moved to the battle line in a General Motors Heavy Duty Personnel Carrier. War correspondents, like armies, move on wheels. And war correspondents, like armies, cannot brook delay. That's why I'm glad I'll have that Chev. at my disposal when we move against the real and deadly enemy.

● In this direct cable, datelined "Canadian Army on Manoeuvres, Somewhere in England," L. S. B. Shapiro, famous war correspondent, pays tribute to the stamina and dependability of the mechanized equipment which Canadian factories are supplying for Canadian fighting men. Throughout the world, in every theatre of war, vehicles built in Canada are wheeling into action. We of General Motors are proud to say that thousands of these vehicles are built in the plants and shops of General Motors of Canada—where, at bench, machine and assembly line, determined men and women stand pledged to the task of keeping them rolling—for Victory!

Victory Recipes Planned For Canadians' Health

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section,
Department of Agriculture

This year—more perhaps than usual, we welcome the coming of spring and the appearance of the early spring foods on our markets and in our gardens.

It has been a long winter and the war has come right into our kitchens restricting, to a considerable extent, the variety of foods to which we had become, so accustomed in pre-war years. In those piping days of peace, the miracle of modern transportation brought the products of the world to our kitchens and we had almost forgotten that nature had appointed 'to each fruit its season.'

This year, in all probability we'll be saying,—"I never remember tasting such marvellous strawberries" and "Isn't the asparagus simply wonderful this year." As the various vegetables and fruits appear they will find us with appetites unspoiled and appreciation keen.

The season for asparagus is short at best and we'll want to make the most of it this year. Here are suggestions and recipes for this most delicious of vegetables from the testing kitchens of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

When asparagus is to be served cut up or creamed, cut the tips off and reserve them. Cook the lower ends of the stalks 10 minutes, then add the tips and cook 5 minutes longer.

Have you tried thinly sliced raw asparagus in your spring salads?? If you prefer it cooked for salads, halt the cooking while the asparagus is still crisp.

Asparagus like all vegetables, to be at its best, should be cooked and eaten as soon as possible after picking. If keeping it in the crisper, wash and dry the stalks, for if moisture clings to the tips they will very quickly become slimy.

One pound of asparagus will serve four people, allowing about seven stalks each.

Hollandaise sauce so extravagant,—to the ration conscious—in its use of butter, has a very satisfactory relative:—

Mock Hollandaise Sauce

2 tablespoons mild-flavored fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1-3 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter

Melt fat and blend in flour. Add milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Season with salt and pepper. Pour some of the hot sauce over the beaten egg yolk, add to rest of the sauce and cook 2 minutes longer. Remove from heat, add lemon juice and butter.

Cook one pound asparagus, tips and stalks separately. Mash stalks, mix with part of the sauce and spread on toast. Arrange asparagus tips on top. Serve with additional sauce. Serves 4.

Asparagus Timbales

2 eggs
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 cup milk
1 cup cold, cooked asparagus

Beat eggs slightly, add seasonings and milk and stir well. Grease six timbale moulds and divide the asparagus, having the mould about half full. Cover with the egg mixture. Place moulds in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 360F, for 30 minutes or until firm. Turn out of moulds and serve with Mock Hollandaise or cheese sauce. Serves 6.

Asparagus Muffin Ring With Cheese Sauce

2 cups pastry flour or
1 3-4 cups all purpose flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
2-3 cups grated cheese
1 cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons fat, melted
2 teaspoons onion juice (optional)
2 cups cooked asparagus cut in 1 inch pieces

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add grated cheese. Beat egg, add milk and stir into the mixed dry ingredients. Add fat stirring as little as possible during mixing. Arrange asparagus in the bottom of a greased ring mould.

Council Decides Mayor Rollins And Two Aldermen, Butler, Pringle, Attend Convention

Motions and Counter-Motions Submitted Before Decision Reached

LENGTHY SESSION

A motion, amendments to the amendment and amendments to the amendment to the amendment, flew across the council chamber on Monday evening as members of the civic body discussed at length as to the number that should attend the Mayor's convention at Ottawa on May 25, and continuing for 3 days. The discussion was brought about when a motion was made "that two double rooms be reserved to house the members from Belleville to the convention". After all the discussion it was finally decided that Mayor Rollins and Aldermen Pringle and Butler be the representatives from the Corporation. On practically every amendment a member would request the Yeas and Nays and it took some time to record all the votes on the question. The session was a lengthy one, the council moving adjournment just before the deadline hour of eleven o'clock.

On the amendment to amendment to the amendment "that the Mayor and five Aldermen be sent" the vote was Yeas:—Butler, Follwell, Potter, Pringle and Woodley and Nays:—Armstrong, Chamberlain, Clarke, Clapp, Hyde and Wotten. On the amendment to the amendment "that the Mayor only attend the convention the vote was Yeas:—Clarke, Hyde and Wotten and Nays:—Armstrong, Butler, Chamberlain, Clapp, Follwell, Potter, Pringle and Woodley. The amendment, "That Mayor Rollins and Ald. Pringle attend", was lost on division and the regular motion "that the Mayor and two Aldermen attend", was carried by Yeas:—Armstrong, Butler, Chamberlain, Clapp, Follwell, Pringle and Woodley and Nays:—Clarke, Hyde, Potter and Wotten.

Discussion Opened

Alderman Hyde opened the discussion on question when he stated "We are living in abnormal times and I don't think we should spend good money to go to this convention, when we have more pressing needs at home. It looks to me as if no good has come out of the conventions and probably they are held for the fine party and good-fellowship".

Ald. Butler: "I wish to disagree with the Alderman. The convention supplied very useful information and the Air Raid Precaution information was most beneficial. It was no picnic but real hard work".

Ald. Follwell: "I was one of the delegates last year and I think by our attendance, we received some equipment that was badly needed in this city. We were given a pumper and a number of stirrup pumps and I would like to see a big representation from this city at the convention".

Ald. Wotten: "I understood there were three to go and five went and the expense sheet presented was for $78. We did not see any report of the convention and I think it was money foolishly spent.

Ald. Clarke: "I would be in favor of sending the Mayor only to the convention and I am of the same opinion as Ald. Wotten "What did we get for our money?"

Mayor Rollins: "It was well worth the time spent and the convention has a secretary that gives a most comprehensive report and it is available and was available to every member of the Council and I think that report was better than any that could have been made by the members who attended".

Ald. Clapp: "I would be in favor of granting so much money for the convention but I cannot see my way clear to vote money for a whole battalion to go down to Ottawa".

Able to Learn Says Alderman

Ald. Woodley: "From the information I can gather from those who attended that information was garnered that would make for better legislators in this council and I am heartily in favor of a good representation. We are all here to learn something".

Ald. Wotten: "We are asked to save on gas and not ride on the railways, yet this council seems in favor of sending at least five to this convention and I for one am strictly opposed." The discussion ended and the original motion was passed. The council will have excellent representation to speak on Resolutions being presented by this city.

Another lengthy argument resulted, when the question of increasing the City Engineer's salary came up in the form of a recommendation, "That it be increased $200 per annum, the same to take effect on May 1st. Finally the matter was referred back to committee for further consideration and decision.

This question was opened by Ald. Clapp, who was definitely opposed to any increase to the City Engineer. "I don't think it is fair", said Ald. Clapp, as this is total war and that would not be helping very much when that money could be used elsewhere. We are giving this increase for what? A voice from the chamber "For being City Engineer". Ald. Chamberlain, who was chairman of the committee of the whole, asked to be heard and was granted permission.

Favors Forming Committee.

"At the first of the year", said Ald. Chamberlain, "we received a request for an increase in the grant for the W.C.A. and that body was told that the estimates were set and the increase could not be considered yet in the middle of the term a motion comes in to increase salaries. Where are we going to find the money? I think a committee should be formed to investigate the whole scale of wages and report back. This should be done at the first of the year and not now".

Ald. Potter: "I am not in favor of giving an increase and also a living bonus. What we are proposing is a jump of nine per cent and that is too much at one time".

Ald. Woodley: "Each position should be judged on its own merits and if you had to hire a City Engineer at the present time I don't think you could get one and if you did, he would cost this city $3,500 a year yet this man is only asking $2,600."

Mayor Rollins: "This is a changing world and the City Engineer has asked before for an increase and was turned down. I think he is qualified and he should be paid more money. We dealt with the firemen and the employees of the Public Works Department and now we have to deal with this request".

Ald. Pringle: "If a man is qualified to earn $2,600 ,then he should be paid that amount. Mr. Mott has given satisfactory employment. He has educated himself to do the work for the city and a man is worthy of his hire."

Ald. Clarke expressed his opinion, that he did not think the living bonus was the correct solution to the question and was in favor of giving the increase providing the living bonus was discontinued the same as in the case of the firemen, when their increase was given.

Not Personal Matter

Ald. Clapp: "This is not a personal matter but what can Mr. Mott do that the assistant could not do at the present time. There is no practical work to be done".

Ald. Wotten: "I am against this increase. Mr. Mott is now receiving $2,400, plus $120 for living bonus and $150 for his car and I think that is enough. I will move to refer the matter back and the motion carried".

In the reference to the increase of pay to the Public Works' employees, Ald. Armstrong tabled a letter in Council stating his views and the letter is herewith given—

May 5, 1943.

His Worship Mayor Rollins and Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville, Ontario.

Gentlemen:

I desire to bring to your attention circumstances surrounding the hourly rated employees of the Public Works Department.

On January 1, 1942, Council by recommendation authorized the payment of $10.00 per month to all monthly rated employees as portion or partial cost of living bonus as established by the Dominion Government Labour Department to offset increase in living costs.

Recently other Departments of the Corporation directly controlled by Council and other municipal services controlled by other elected representatives have been more or less obliged to consider cost of living bonuses for employees either as increases or designated cost of living allowance due to competition and the problem of obtaining labour to perform necessary works required in these various Departments.

The hourly rated employees of the Public Works Department have received no consideration regarding additional cost of living expense and while I feel it is very apparent to the Council that the many services maintained by the employees of the said Department must be given proper attention and the ever increasing difficulty of obtaining men to perform work of this nature, which in many cases is not of a desirable calibre, it is, therefore, in the interest of holding our employees who are familiar with the duties and services of the City, and in fairness to those who are receiving smaller compensation for services than others now receiving cost of living bonuses that I am presenting the attached recommendation.

Yours truly,
Harold J. Armstrong,
Chairman of Public Works.

Two Delegations Heard

Two delegations appeared before the council, one consisting of three owners of bus companies, Frank "Duke" Smith, Mr. Rathbun and Walter Aselstine and the other, Mr. John Hunter, respecting the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and kindred unions of the railway. The bus owners requested that the city make some provision to establish a bus terminal in the city, where passengers would have a place to go out of the elements and also a rest room for ladies. The Council agreed with their suggestion but the approach to the question was another matter and a committee of Aldermen Butler, Follwell, Chamberlain, Hyde and Clapp was appointed to meet with the owners and report back to council. Mr. Hunter was interested in the closing of a number of railway crossings in the city to prevent accidents and stop unnecessary whistle blowing. He showed that his union had the government set aside $200,000 per year for grade crossings and he hoped that the Council would take advantage of this sum and use some of it in the city to close some dangerous crossings.

Request Not Granted

It was recommended by a special committee, that the request of the C.P.R. to build a cattle pen near Newbury Street be not allowed owing to the close proximity to houses in that neighborhood. Mrs. J. W. Kinnear and John A. Kerr were appointed to the Old Age Pensions Board to replace W. A. Woodley and Mrs. W. C. Mikel, who have resigned. The Board of Health recommended to the Council that the members pass a by-law prohibiting the keeping of mink and foxes within the City Limits. The matter was referred to the City Solicitor for an opinion. The same Board also recommended that the council pass a by-law appointing H. Belsey as Acting Sanitay Inspector, and the motion was carried.

At an executive meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, it was recommended, that May 24, be celebrated as a legal Civic Holiday in order to sanction 100 years of unbroken practice. Mr. J. G. Galloway, chairman of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed the opinion to the executive that the feeling was general that the day be observed. With this information the Council recommended that May 24 be a legal Civic holiday and that the Mayor proclaim the same. Stanley M. Carter was granted permission to extend the time to build his house on a lot purchased from the city due to the scarcity of labor and materials. Mr. Joe E. Shortt was appointed as a representative from the Y.M.C.A. on the Post-War Planning Commission recently formed by by-law. Repairs to the Fire Hall will be made and they will not exceed $1,262. The work will be under the direction of Ald. Potter and the City Engineer.

Many Inquiries Made.

Under the head of inquiries Ald. Follwell was informed that the cost of the legal fees for the Utilities Commission in the recent action with the city was $1,800 and that the Mayor had asked for the bill to be taxed before presentation to the Commission. The City's share was $322. It was decided that a picture of the Council be secured to put in the publication now being prepared by W. C. Mikel. Members of the Council were gratified with the announcement made by Ald. H. J. Clarke, that $243,318.10 of the tax roll had been collected, which is 51.6 per cent of the total. Ald. Clarke also announced that this amount was $9,849.53 more than was collected for the same period last year.

Ald. Follwell under general business asked the Mayor what constituted a quorum of the Council and being advised it was seven stated that at the last regular meeting there were seven members present, when he was advocating for a higher wage scale for the lower paid men of the Public Works Department and yet the Council was adjourned while he was speaking. The Mayor stated, that when he moved the adjournment the members were leaving the chamber and he did not think there was a quorum. "I was trying to get more money for the men", said Ald. Follwell and you gentlemen, who are getting $5 a meeting were not willing to stay and listen."

Ald. Butler: "I was not there".

Mayor Rollins: "It was not in disrespect to you".

Ald. Clapp: "I don't think it is fair to leave without the Mayor's permission".

Ald. Pringle: "I got permission to leave".

Ald. Wotten: "This is all propaganda. I advocated the same thing nearly two years ago, that Ald. Follwell is talking about".

In a confusion of voices the Council adjourned.

Recommendations Ratified.

At the committee meeting held on Thursday evening it was recommended that Alderman Potter be authorized to purchase the fire doors previously used at No. 1 Fire Hall at $150 as per offer of Ivan E. Scott. William Styles was employed as caretaker at the Tourist Camp for the Summer of 1943, his duties to commence on May 1st and his salary to be $63.75 per month payable half monthly. In future a number of men in the Public Works Department, other than the City Engineer, will be paid weekly by a single voucher by the City Treasurer. By being paid by voucher instead of cheque the men will not have to go to the bank to cash their cheques and lose the time. All employees of the city not now receiving cost-of-living bonus will be paid an additional five cents an hour effective from May 1, over the present prevailing rate.

A special committee consisting of the Chairman of Finance, Alderman Armstrong and Woodley and the Comptroller was appointed to examine the accounts for indigent patients at the General Hospital in 1942 and to make such recommendations to this council as they consider warranted after such examinations. The Council's representatives on the Post-War Committee will be Mayor Rollins, Aldermen Clapp, Woodley and Pringle. A number of lots sold to residents were ordered repossessed due to some not paying the taxes and others not wanting the property.

Mr. C. B. Matthews was granted an increase in salary of $2 per week in lieu of the living bonus he is now receiving. A lot on the east side of Ridley Avenue was ordered sold to H. B. Regensburg for the sum of $25, the buyer to complete a residence on the lot within the required time at a stipulated figure.

'Unconditional Surrender' Only Terms Says Eden

London, May 11—(CP)—In response to Gen. Francisco Franco's latest peace appeal, Foreign Secretary Eden today reiterated the declaration that the Allies' terms are "unconditional surrender."

When his attention was called to Franco's Sunday night speech at Almeria, Mr. Eden said:

"I can only repeat what President Roosevelt said some time ago that we are not really interested in any attempt at mediation and that our terms are unconditional surrender."

Franco had asserted that the present world-wide conflict had reached a "dead point" and that neither side now has the power to destroy the other."

"Therefore," Franco said, "it is senseless to delay the peace."

Rudolf Hess Still Confined

London, May 11 (CP)—Rudolf Hess is still confined under the same conditions imposed on his arrival in this country following his mysterious flight from Germany in 1941, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today.

Answering the latest of a series of questions concerning Britain's most intriguing prisoner, Mr. Eden denied that Hitler's deputy had brought £15,000 worth of British securities to Britain or that any member of his family is here.

The question was asked last week by William J. Thorne, Labor, who said he understood the securities were "being used to pay for the keep of Hess and his family in this country."

Mr. Eden said Hess brought with him only a few mark notes, worth nothing in Britain, and that even if Hess had in earlier years made any investments in Britain, as an enemy prisoner he would not have been able to touch them.

Japanese Troops Heavily Shelled

New Delhi, India, May 11 (CP)—British artillery shelled Japanese troops on the Buthedaung—Maungdaw Road in western Burma and R.A.F. fighter planes machine-gunned enemy positions in the area yesterday, a British communique said today.

(The Tokyo radio claimed thut Japanese troops have advanced to a point 12 miles from the India border and were "mopping up" enemy remains. The broadcast was recorded by Reuters.)

R.A.F. bombers, without any loss, struck the railway station and ammunition dumps at Wuntho, objectives at Allanmyo and at Minbya and the railroad yards at Prome. Three fires, one of them visible for 50 miles, were set in the Prome railway area, the communique said.

9 PERSONS SUFFER MINOR INJURIES

Eastbound C.N.R. Passenger Train Collides With Engine and Caboose Near Pte. St. Charles

Montreal, May 11—(CP)—Nine persons suffered minor injuries early today when an eastbound Canadian National Railways passenger train collided with an engine and caboose at Point St. Charles, near here.

The injured, including five railroad employees and four passengers, were treated by C.N.R. doctors and only Mrs. Bella Brown, Otterburn Park, Que., required hospital treatment. She suffered minor head and shoulder injuries.

Railroad officials said a section of a westbound freight train parted as it entered the St. Henri yards, causing a stoppage to a following freight and the diversion of the eastbound passenger train from St. Rosalie, Que.

As the passenger train proceeded toward the station, it collided with the engine and caboose that had moved into its path on the eastbound track. The engine of the passenger train was derailed but most of the 64 passengers escaped with minor bruises and a slight shaking up.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Axis debacle in Tunisia with all its implications has given Hitler and his followers a bad case of mental williwaws.

A williwaw, you know, is that notorious Aleutian ill-wind which twists itself into knots at hurricane velocity and blows no man good. If that figure is too fanciful we can fall back on the crude but precise remark that the Nazis have the wind up. A dispatch from Berne says the Germans are "walking around as though hit on the head."

The fuehrer is moaning gutturally about the "superhuman hardships" of his troops in Russia, and about the damnable Allied bombing of western Europe. If he knew anybody better than himself to whom he could pray, he would be doing it. Therefore we may be sure that he eagerly approves Gen. Franco's appeal for peace.

Franco's Appeal

Franco says that neither the Axis nor the Allies can destroy the other and "it is senseless to delay the peace." That wraps up in a tidy package the idea which is the Nazi hope—that Germany can defend itself stoutly enough to produce a stalemate which will leave most of the occupied countries in its possession.

Gone are the days when Hitler dreamed of overrunning the world." All he asks of fortune now is that he be premitted to retain some part of the territories which he has stolen.

So weak has his position become that he no longer wants to fight for his loot. He desires peace on stalemate terms, and it's safe to bet two bits he would accept a lot less if it were offered him.

'Surrender' Stunning Berlin'

Of course we aren't entitled to try to read Franco's mind. However, it's reasonable to suppose that in advocating peace he is considering, among the many issues, the effect of a continuation of the war on his own country. Neutral Spain is like a ripe peach on a limb which hangs low over the school-yard fence. It might put ideas into the heads of passers by.

The air constantly vibrates with reports that Hitler is going to strike at the Allies through Spain. Or that the Allies are preparing to invade the Spanish Mainland Via Gibraltar in order to compel the Nazis to maintain large forces on the Spanish frontier while United Nations invasion operations are proceeding elsewhere. Franco wouldn't relish either of these developments.

Fierce Pressure at Vital Points

Naturally the Allies aren't going to alter their demand for "unconditional surrender." It's clear that Hitler recognized this, too, for the Nazi High Command is feverishly trying to strengthen its defences on all fronts, from the Balkans right round to Norway. The Boche, who are first class soldiers, appear to be up against one of their own smart schemes—the application of fierce pressure at numerous vital points simultaneously until opportunity permits of the sudden development of one or more of the drives.

That's the strategy which the Allies used to crack Tunisia. And the signs are that a similar line is to be employed against Hitler on the continent. Certainly there are in the offing some mighty interesting developments about which I wouldn't want to speculate.

It may be that the Tunisia cleanup is moving a bit more rapidly than the Allied command anticipated and that there may be lag in development of some of the promising adventures. However, it will be surprising if we don't get some sort of fresh offensive in the immediate future. Meantime the Russians are supporting the constant pressure strategy in their terrific drive in the vital Novorossisk sector of the western Caucasus.

27 Per Cent of Loan Objective In County Remains To Be Raised

With five days of the current campaign remaining, twenty-seven per cent of Hastings' County Victory Loan objective of $3,300,000 is still to be raised, it was announced this morning by county committee headquarters.

Overall subscriptions in the county now stand at 73 per cent with the general canvass objective percentage resting at 72.6 at noon on Monday. The special names committee have raised $400,000 of their $500,000 objective.

Civilian Subscriptions Lag.

Civilian subscriptions still lag behind when compared to the showing made by county R.C.A.F. personnel, it is revealed by Victory Loan officials with the village of Deloro being the only district outside air stations to have gone over the top.

Stirling and Rawdon district has made the best showing of the larger divisions but still lack 22 per cent of their objective of $145,000. Subscriptions in Belleville total 77.7 per cent, while Deseronto rests at 699.2. Sidney and Thurlow district with Tweed and Bancroft districts are closely bunched with subscriptions received amounting to approximately 64 per cent of their respective objectives.

County progress charts placed in various centres throughout the county this morning showed for the first time that Trenton and Madoc district here passed the half-way mark in subscriptions. Madoc has just achieved the 50 per cent mark while yesterday Trenton went up to 51 per cent.

LOAN RECEIPTS MONDAY LOWEST OF CAMPAIGN

NEED $300,000,000

Ottawa, May 11—(CP)—Monday sales of Fourth Victory Loan Bonds totalled $49,882,800 to raise the cumulative total for the first 13 business days of the three-week campaign to $820,902,400—about $300,000,000 short of the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000 — the National War Finance Committee announced today.

The cumulative total for the corresponding period of last autumn's Third Victory Loan drive was $661,281,700 but the objective then was only $750,000,000.

12 Rumor-Spreaders Sent to Jail, Prison

Los Angeles, May 11 — (AP) — Labelled by the court as vindictive and merciless rumor-spreaders, Arthur L. Bell of San Francisco, wealthy leader of Mankind United, and 11 of his executive assistants, were given prison or jail sentences or fined by Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich. Bell received a five-year sentence.

They were charged with violating the Wartime Sedition Act.

"In my entire experience as a judge I've never seen such vindictive hate and mercilessness as you practised," the court told the defendants yesterday in pronouncing sentence.

"It is sedition, not free speech, to repeat unfounded rumors about rotting bodies of soldiers in holds of American ships and insane soldiers being shipped to secret concentration camps."

The indictments charged that Bell and his assistants conspired to obstruct the draft, sought to promote a totalitarian government in the United States and conspired to effect an armed revolution.

Judge Coatsworth Dies in Toronto

Toronto, May 11—(CP)—Judge Emerson Coatsworth, 89, dean of Toronto jurists, died at his home here today. His wife had died less than two months earlier.

A native of Toronto, Judge Coatsworth had served two terms as Mayor of Toronto and one term as member of parliament.

Judge Coatsworth had an active career and when he reached the age of 75 and was retired from the York County Court he took a place on the bench of the Toronto Police Court, where as senior police magistrate, he became a member of the Board of Police Commissioners.

He made his first venture into politics in 1890 when he was elected member of parliament for East Toronto and held the seat for six years after which he retired to private life for a period of eight years. In 1904 he was elected to the Toronto City Council as alderman and in 1906 became mayor of the city. While in the mayor's chair he was first vice-president and later president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities.

In 1914 he was appointed junior county court judge and 15 years later took over the post of senior judge.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters: Emerson T. and Maj. Cuthbert P. Coatsworth of Toronto and Mrs. William E. Sibley of Ancaster, Ont., and Miss Helen R. Coatsworth, of Toronto.

Injured Boys Admit They Were Playing With Bullet

Bowmanville, Ont., May 11—(CP)—Police Chief S. Venton, of Bowmanville yesterday solved the riddle of the "mystery" bullet which injured three boys Sunday afternoon when he drew a confession from the youngsters that they had been "playing with a bullet."

Victor Moore, 11 and Arthur Rowe, 8, had pieces of metal imbedded in their legs when the bullet exploded, while Howard Potter, 12, suffered a gash on his index finger.

Sunday the boys told how they were giving first aid to a wounded bird when the bullet struck a rock on which they were standing, but yesterday they admitted they had been playing with a bullet.

King Says Tunis Triumph May Mark Turn of Tide

Ottawa, May 11 — (CP) —Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the House of Commons Monday described the United Nations' defeat of the Axis forces in North Africa as "a decisive victory" and added "It may well come to mark the definite turn of the tide of the war in the whole struggle against Germany and Italy."

He said the North African campaign — climaxed by the capture of Bizerte and Tunis last Friday and the subsequent bottling up of remaining Axis soldiers in Cap Bon peninsula — "marks the end of the first stage of the offensive from the west against the Axis European partners."

The Prime Minister moved a resolution expressing "great satisfaction" at the victory, paying tribute to all the forces engaged in the campaign, and also congratulating Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Commander-in-Chief and the Allied Commanders under him.

The resolution, seconded by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, and supported by C.C.F. and New Democracy groups, was unanimously adopted.

Mr. King said "North Africa... becomes a base for much greater offensives which will gain in striking force because of the concentration of sea and air power in conjunction with land forces now available in that area."

Praises Canadian Airmen

The Prime Minister expressed pride in the achievements of Canadian airmen in two years' fighting in the Western Desert and recalled that warships of the Royal Canadian Navy had helped escort the great armada which took Allied forces to North Africa. Officers and non-commissioned officers of the Canadian Army had been gaining battle experience with the British 1st Army.

He also reminded his listeners that Canadian workers and Canadian industry provided "a large part of the transport and armored vehicles which carried the British 8th Army from Egypt to Tunisia."

All of Africa, except the Colonial possessions of Portugal and Spain, now was united in the Allied cause.

"The liberation of the French empire in Africa," said Mr. King, "brings closer the union under one authority and one battleflag of all Frenchmen fighting with the United Nations....

"French forces in North Africa — at least 11 divisions strong, according to the latest announcement — have now been consolidated, and are being equipped with weapons supplied by the United Nations."

Will Elevate Morale

Mr. Graydon said the North African victory would elevate the morale of the people throughout the United Nations and re-establish in the mind of many other peoples confidence in the strength of the United Nations' armed forces.

Mr. Coldwell said it should not be forgotten that while "we are moving forward in North Africa our troops are retreating in Burma." That illustrated the difficulties facing the United Nations and the fact "this war will be a long one."

Mr. Blackmore said his social credit group would do its utmost to see that freedom was defended: that "active causes of commercial rivalry which provoked and precipitated the war shall be eliminated from our way of life, that never again shall freedom-loving peoples be left inadequately protected."

Sixteen Killed By Floating Mine

Dublin, May 11 (CP Cable)—At least 16 young men were killed and five seriously injured last night, it was announced today, when a mine which floated in from the Atlantic exploded at Ballymanus, a little Eire seaside village in county Donegal.

Some men were blown into the sea and others were so badly shattered that identification was difficult.

A large crowd had gathered near the mine and several men were trying to loosen nuts of the explosive with monkey wrenches. Others were prodding it with sticks. The explosion shattered windows in village houses and was heard for 50 miles.

Gen. H. McDonald Addresses Victory Rally at Trenton

Trenton —(Special)— Brigadier General Harold F. McDonald, C.M.E., D.S.O., of Ottawa, Chief Executive Assistant to Air Minister Power, addressed a Victory Loan rally in the Trent Theatre on Sunday evening. Though the weather was ideal and the committee in charge had gone to great pains to arrange an interesting program it was regrettable that only a small crowd was in attendance.

Mr. W. H. Ireland, chairman of the Victory Loan Committee, acted as chairman of the evening while the speaker was introduced by Mr. W. A. Fraser, M.P., who paid tribute to Brigadier General McDonald as a "gallant gentleman," not only a veteran of the Great War, but at present chairman of the Pension Board and chief executive to the Minister of the Empire Air Training Plan.

In opening his address, Brig. Gen. McDonald paid special tribute to his Chief, Air Minister Power, and told of the magnitude of his work. He praised the various branches of the service, Navy, Army and Air Force and said how remarkable it was the way volunteers came forward for these branches from the very beginning of the war. He said their "deeds of gallantry" and "devotion to duty" had played no small part in the conflict.

Pile Up Great Air Mileage

In speaking of the Empire Training Plan he said when, during the first part of its being organised, the need had been made known, the thought was definitely that it could not be done. He said the idea was not if and when could these planes be secured but "how." He told of the rapid production of planes and equipment and of the many thousands of young Canadians who came forward to join both the air and ground crews. In the course of the growth of this scheme he said over 8,184,000 hours had been spent in flying, signifying over 60 billion flying miles, an average of two million miles per day.

Put Idle Money to Work

Dwelling on the Fourth Victory Loan he said the response from the current payrolls was good but that it was definitely necessary for the accumulated, dormant money to come out now and perform a military duty. Said Brig. Gen. McDonald "There must be no black market in Canadian money, and that dormant money which lies unused is definitely a black market."

Mr. Ireland thanked the speaker on behalf of the gathering for his most interesting address, also thanking the representatives of the clergy, council and loan committee for their support at the meeting. He specially thanked LAC. Stitch of the R.C.A.F. and Mr. W. Wickett organist and choir leader of King St. United Church for help in the program. LAC. Stitch sang "Land of Hope and Glory" and "I Dream of Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," and was accompanied by Mr. Wickett.

CUBS WANT GOOD OUTFIELDER FOR 'MAD RUSSIAN'

Wilson Ready to Make Deal but Club Not in Need of Cash

NOVIKOFF A HOLDOUT

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The major leagues are using the intermission before their first intersectional strife of the season to feel out trade possibilities and the foremost figure in their discussions of deals apparently is Lou Novikoff, the Chicago Cubs' holdout outfielder.

Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Bruins disclosed last night that three other National League clubs —Cincinnati Reds, New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies — have made propositions for the mad Russian.

The hitch thus far is that the prospective buyers want to spend money instead of talent and Wilson is insisting on a righthanded hitting outfielder. In exchange for the colorful clouter who batted an even .300 last year.

Just what rival clubs might be willing to give, or the Cubs take, for Novikoff, is a matter for guesswork. Phillies, who perhaps need him most, have the least to offer. Besides there is a feeling on the Cubs that if he were traded to Philadelphia he probably would turn up shortly afterward with Brooklyn Dodgers.

This is because Branch Rickey of the Dodgers and Bill Cox, the Phillies' new owner, are intimate traders. Recently the Cubs sold pitcher George Washburn to the Phillies and within a week he had been dealt to the Dodgers and turned over to Brooklyn's Montreal farm in the International League.

Giants have offered nothing but cash and the Cubs probably are covetous of Buster Maynard, whom they have little chance of getting. If a player deal should be made with the Reds, Gerald Walker might go to the Cubs.

The lineup for the first intersectional games is:

This year each club will make only three east-west jaunts instead of four because of travel difficulties and the first round will take 12 days. Also because of the travel situation two off days have been allowed for travel between intersectional series instead of one as in the past.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, May 11—(CP)—Here's a tip for big-league hockey scouts:

Delegate someone to keep an eye on Cpl. Frenchy Alain, rushing defenceman from Three Rivers, Que., who is serving with a Canadian squadron over here. He's a definite post-war possibility for monied ranks. Frenchy played in a game that wound up overseas hockey for the season and scored four goals as his team of Maple Leafs whipped a bunch of Boston boys 8-5 before a packed house in the west of England. One of Frenchy's opponents was Milt Schmidt while ranged on Frenchy's side was another member of the Boston Kraut Line, Porky Dumart. The former Bruins each picked up a pair of goals.

Sqdn. Ldr. Norm Bretz, D.F.C., of Toronto, back home on a visit can probably still show a red, puffed hand from catching the slants of Flt. Lt. Chuck Semple, also of Toronto. Bretz was the reception end of his Spitfire squadron's softball team while Semple showed plenty of speed in the box. Chuck also is a brilliant hockeyist. He recently was promoted to Flight-Lieutenant and placed in charge of a flight.

Sporting the kind of sun-tan not acquired around Britain at this time of year, Flt. Sgt. Johnny Thornber of Westmount, Que., has been operating around the Piccadilly Circus entertainment sector by way of a change. He's on leave from another theatre of war.

Big Johnny is a navigator in an R.A.F. Catalina flying boat squadron and time was when he could navigate quite expertly on a football gridiron. A lot of the opposition in the Senior O. R. F. U. found that out in 1939 when he played on the line for Westmount. For three years previous to that he was a pillar of the strong Westmount junior teams.

Westmount High gave Johnny his sport grooming but he forgot about rugby in 1940 when he joined the R.C.A.F. after turning out with the Montreal Big Four entry. "I sure would like to toss a football around again," said 190-pound Johnny sadly. "The only sport we have down our way is a bit of tennis." He has more than 800 operational hours back of him and his aircraft has weathered three separate attacks by German fighters.

Two old baseball rivals from the mid-west found themselves together at a light bomber operational training unit here. Opponents in Winnipeg fields, they are Sgt. Pilots Ernie Pitt and Tom Sykes. Pitt played for Norwood while Sykes was with St. Boniface.

Formerly a well-known Western Canada jockey, Johnny Lake gets more kick these days riding in the mid-upper turret of a Lancaster than booting home winners in peace-time. Johnny used to race at 92 pounds but flies at 132 and says his sky steed doesn't mind a bit.

"And another thing," says Johnny. "You don't need a whip to urge this baby on."

Canadian Athletes at War

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, May 11 (CP)—So Flt. Lt. Eddie Thompson is "missing in action at Sea." That's tough! Maybe Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail put it best when he wrote: "It is invidious to refer to individuals in these days when the finest flower of our manhood is being cut down on foreign fields, but Eddie exemplified all the finest things in a young man, and he was the kind of fellow whom any parents would have been proud to call their 'son', and any man would have been proud to call him 'brother'."

Eddie was a Toronto boy. But he belonged to all Canada because he was one of those athletically gifted young men whose names appear prominently on the sports pages. Eddie ranked with Canada's greatest football payers. He was a captain of champions, captain of the mighty Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes who won the Canadian championship and the Grey Cup last autumn. Above all he was a sportsman; he was, in the words of his coach, Lew Hayman, a "gentleman competitor."

"Eddie had a tremendous amount of playing ability and he was a natural leader," said Lew. "He had courage; he had speed; he had intent. What else could you ask of a man?"

Yes, Eddie was an all-star. At 26, he had been recognized for five years as one of Canada's greatest running halfbacks. A track star, he had speed to burn. He was an opportunist who could spot a defensive hole and cut through it, all in an instant. He was shifty—a phantom likely to break loose for long gains in any kind of going; witness his 67-yard run from his own goal-line in the slop of last December's national final with Winnipeg.

Eddie had a marvellous pair of hands, could snatch a punt at full gallop. He was a better than average placement kicker. Last year he was second in Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring with 51 points.

A product of Toronto's Oakwood Collegiate, Eddie starred at football at University of Toronto. In 1938 with Toronto Balmy Beach he was chosen for The Canadian Press all-star O.R.F.U. team. He repeated in 1939 and that year was the only O.R.F.U. player selected for CP's all-eastern team.

With Camp Borden in 1940, Eddie again was chosen O.R.F.U. all-star and was named to the all-eastern second team. There was no all-eastern last year but Eddie was an Ontario Union all-star.

J. P. Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram writes of Eddie:: "Neither Canada nor any other country can lose boys like this without a real feeling of sacrifice."

Brief 'Sit-Down' Strike of Exchange Floor Employees

New York, May 11—(AP)—A brief "sit-down" of 300 floor employees of the New York Stock exchange, first in the market's history, failed to stem dealings to any appreciable extent Monday. The interruption lasted only 10 minutes after the opening gong, then workers resumed their posts. The demonstrations, it was understood, was for the purpose of stressing the fact the War Labor Board had as yet failed to complete its finding on a wage boost which had been agreed to by exchange officials.

Canada Packers Ltd Wins Appeal Against Conviction

Quebec, May 11 (CP)—Mr. Justice Lucien Cannon on Monday upheld the appeal of Canada Packers Limited against their conviction on a charge of selling low-grade beef at high-grade prices.

The company had been fined $7,000 and court costs for the alleged offence several months ago.

Mr. Justice Cannon said in his judgment, delivered in Appeal Court, that at the time the offence was allegedly committed in June, 1941, the meat situation was so confused that if there was a lack of first-grade meat "lower-grade meat have been sold at first-grade prices."

He added that "Prices Board regulations allowed the meat dealers at the time to set prices themselves and, at the time the offence was committed, it was difficult to set prices adequately."

Jean Paul Galipeault and Lionel Forsyth represented Canada Packers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, May 11 — (AP)—According to the table of performances for the A.A.U. primary physical fitness test, a guy over 35 should be able to run 100 yards in 14.5 seconds and a mile in seven minutes or run and walk a mile in 10 minutes...what, on an "A" card? ...Back-tracking the rumor that the army has been negotiating to take over Madison Square Garden, we learn that the source probably was a recent visit by a couple of government men who were asking about hiring the joint for some sort of show next fall.

BIG RIGHTHANDER EARNS SHUTOUT

Hugh East of Jersey City Blanks Montreal Royals 1 to 0

By The Associated Press

Hugh East, big righthander with Jersey City Giants, is back in shape and manager Gabby Hartnett has issued warnings that the Little Giants are out to improve their sixth-place position in the International League.

East, who towers 6 feet 2 inches above the pitching mound, blanked Montreal Royals, 1-0, in the only game played in the Shaughnessy circuit yesterday.

The triumph was his second of the young campaign although the first shutout. Holding the opposition runless is no unusual task for East, who accomplished it four times last season with the Jerseys and who in 1941 hurled four successive games without an earned tally.

The game's only run came in the second when Wes Flowers, who also gave up only five hits, walked Murray Howell in the second inning. The runner was convoyed to third on Steve Sheno's single and scored a moment later on a fielder's choice.

"Y" Boys Show Speed In Athletic Event

Last week the Employed and Junior Boys' groups of the Y.M.C.A. ran off the first of the spring athletic competitions, with the event being the 100 yard dash. Vincent Massey flashed across the mark with the fine time of 13 seconds flat, on the oval indoor track at the Y to win the Employed Boys' competition, while Colin Cameron ran the distance in 14 and 2-5 to win the Junior Boys. Don Claus also ran the 100 in 14 2-5 in the Junior Group, but his additional weight puts him in a tougher classification than Cameron.

John Rollins, Stan Carefoot, and Bill Gilbert all covered the distance in 12 2-5 seconds, and Campbell Cameron made 13 4-5, all very good times for boys their age, in the Employed Boys, while Pat Corcoran with 14 3-5, Roger Cornell with 15.0, Bill Anderson with 15 1-5, and Ron Sullivan and John O'Flynn with 15 2-5 were outstanding for Juniors.

Most of the boys made very good times, their point scoring averaging well above 80, compared with a normal of 70. Of course, these boys should be better than average, for they have had the advantage of regular work on the gym floor all winter.

This week's event will be the standing broad jump.

MARITIME KIDS BEATEN

Ottawa, May 11—(CP)—Ray Lefebvre's University of Ottawa cagers uncorked a burst of power last night to take the first game of a two-game, total-point series for the Canadian Junior Basketball Title from the Saint John team 47-15.

Coach Doug Costello of the Maritimes saw fit to ask the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association to throw the game out, however, and Ottawa officials are awaiting word from A. L. Irvin of Toronto, vice-president of the Association.

Toronto, May 10. (CP)— City, suburban and provincial police continued a search today for two men who attacked Constable Neil Burns of the Ontario Provincial Police while he stood guard at the Ontario Hydro-Electric power plant at nearby Leaside. Constable Burns was struck with an iron bar and suffered severe head injuries but is recovering in a Toronto hospital.

Constable Patrick Lonaghan took up the chase of the men but tripped on a tree stump in a ravine and sprained an ankle. He fired several revolver shots after the fugitives.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Eugene Field was sometimes a little forgetful of his debts. During his columnist days in Chicago, he was sought out by a visiting New York friend from whom he borrowed $25 some months before. "Gene," the friend said, "I think you ought to clear up that old debt." And Field replied, "You're absolutely right; I'll do something about it tomorrow."

The next day, Field's column included mention of his friend's visit to Chicago. Then it revealed:

"He is in town to look after one of his permanent investments."

Kingston Speaks.

Today's mail brought an interesting booklet from Kingston entitled — "Kingston's Record in Organized Hockey". The booklet was compiled from the recent radio broadcasts of Capt. James T. Sutherland, these long years champion of Canada's winter pastime in the Limestone City.

The publication was presumably issued by the City of Kingston in the interests of obtaining Canada's proposed "Hockey Hall of Fame" site in Kingston and carries interesting hockey data of the Limestone City for over 60 years. All great Kingston hockey clubs of the past are referred to in this historical review, as well as pictures, including one of a Queens University team three generations ago.

Captain "Jim" Sutherland is the guiding light behind Kingston's efforts to have Canada's "Hockey Hall of Fame" located in Kingston. At present Halifax is claiming such honors, but this department feels that if and when such a memorial is erected Kingston should be considered first. Halifax is situated on the Dominion's farthest eastern shoreline, while Kingston is close to the capital city of our fair Dominion and also in close proximity to the most densely populated areas of the United States. Kingston hockey background has been proven sufficiently as to warrant such a memorial to hockey and it is the sincere hope of the sport lovers of this beautiful Bay of Quinte area that Captain Sutherland's fond wishes are realized when this war is over and the matter of a "Hockey Hall of Fame" becomes an actuality.

Statistics Interesting.

Of interest to older hockey lovers, Captain Sutherland's research endeavors are interesting, to say the least. Scores, the names and such hockey immortals as George Richardson, Scotty Davison, Col. Art Cunningham, Marty Walsh, Chaucer Elliott, the Milans, Stewarts, George Van Horne and others too numerous to mention are all recalled in Mr. Sutherland's reminiscing. These statistics show that Kingston has won or been in the senior finals 15 times, has won or been in the intermediate finals six times and has won or reached the junior finals 20 times. In brief Kingston teams have reached the last round 53 times which must be some kind of a record for one of the country's smaller cities. And speaking of records Capt. Sutherland has dug up some figures about a famous Kingston junior team, the Frontenacs of 1911 who are still well remembered here by older fans for a trouncing they gave Belleville junior team. That power-packed Frontenac squad scored 190 goals that season against 57 by their opponents and in one game against Picton won by a score of 32 to 2, with Bert Hunt firing 10 goals, Bouncer Brouse eight and Ruby Millan seven.

Maybe Good Logic.

There's no doubting the fact John Katan, the Palermo mat badman, has created a fine ring background of customer hatred. However, this doesn't seem to bother the former Calgary "eye-opener", who comes out flatly to say—"Those Bronx cheers are just sweet nectar of applause to me."

Actually this fellow Katan, is a straight business man, be he in or out of the rasslin' ring, and he plies his truck and trade for one express purpose—to win. Seems last winter Skipper Tunney paired McCready and Watson against Katan and Dunlop for a "couples bout" in Toronto and the Katan-Dunlop pair took a pugnacious pelmelling. "Palmero John" has never forgotten that bout and promised if he ever got McCready alone he would annihilate the Aurora farmer. Well, Big John has his chance to make good his boast at the Hume Arena Wednesday night when this pair meet for the first time since the twin bill.

For added interest Promoter Tunney is bringing "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the sensational colored rassler to Belleville on the same card.

Remember When—

Lefty Grove, then with the Baltimore Orioles in the International Baseball League, set the Toronto Maple Leafs down with three hits and blanked them 1-0 at Toronto twenty one years ago today. Three years later (1925) Grove was sold to the Philadelphia Athletics for a reported price of $109,000, and in 1934 was traded to the Boston Red Sox. He retired from baseball last season.

Babe Ruth a Grandpa.

Babe Ruth, the home run king, became a grandfather for the second time when his daughter, Mrs. Daniel J. Sullivan, gave birth to a seven-pound-14-ounce baby last week at a Hollis, L. I., N. Y., hospital. Mrs. Sullivan, who is the Babe's 21-year-old daughter by his first wife, and the baby were reported doing nicely. Mrs. Sullivan also is the mother of another daughter, born in 1941.

Shipments of Spuds To be Channelled To Scarce Areas

Ottawa, May 11 (CP)—Action has been taken to ensure that all shipments of potatoes from Prince Edward Island are channelled through one distributing agency in Montreal and from there are directed to areas where acute shortages exist, it was learned at the Price Board Monday.

A Board spokesman said stocks of potatoes in the island have not been "frozen" but that action to direct shipments to areas of shortage had been taken by R. F. Chisholm, co-ordinator of distributive trades whose office is in Toronto.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 52

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Let nature take its course. The words in the bidding language were always intended to have natural meanings. So, when you use bids, let them mean what they were intended to mean.

If you use a numeral, let it mean a number of tricks in excess of average. If you name a suit, let it mean a suit holding that is better than average. Let the word no-trump mean not any trump suit.

An opening bid of one promises five tricks, two of which are sure tricks. If the opening bid is one in a suit, the hand should contain a biddable (better than average) suit.

If, however, the opening bid is one-no-trump, it means the hand contains no biddable suit. And the way to count tricks at no-trump is to add up all your high cards (aces, kings, queens.)

So, if you have five high cards, you have five no-trump tricks. If you have two sure tricks among them and no biddable suit, you have an opening bid of one no-trump.

Which brings us to lesson number 19 in Horse Sense Bridge. It reads: An opening bid of one no-trump promises (1) five high cards, of which (2) two are sure tricks; and (3) no biddable suit.

You have this hand:

♠Q 8 6 2
♥A 10 5
♦A K 3
♣K J 4

You have all the needed items for an opening bid of one. There are five tricks. At least two of them are sure tricks. There is no biddable suit. So it is not an opening bid of one in a suit.

If it is an opening bid of any kind, it is an opening bid of one no-trump. Provided, however, the five tricks are all no-trump (high card) tricks. And that is the case in this hand.

Any synthetic meaning of bids are just the private opinions of certain experts. Such unnatural meanings are subject to change from year to year. And that has been happening.

We have had enough of that in the past. Quite enough to last us all for awhile. Let's enjoy our bridge for a change.

"Pride of the Yankees"

Idol of America's roaring crowds, he knew a romance that comes to few men...and that few women will ever forget!

The intimate exciting behind-the-screen drama of a public hero ...his triumphs...his shy courtship ...the great love he won...and the secret he kept even from the one who could understand. Destined to rank with Goldwyn's other "Greats"! Samuel Goldwyn presents Gary Cooper in "The Pride of the Yankees" now showing at the Capitol theatre with Teresa Wright, Babe Ruth and Walter Brennan.

"My Heart Belongs to Daddy"

(First Belleville Showing)

As charming and delightful a motion picture entertainment as you're likely to find in a month's movie shopping is Paramount's new comedy-drama, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" the added hit which is now at the Capitol theatre.

Performed by an able cast of players headed by Richard Carlson, Martha O'Driscoll and Cecil Kellaway, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" tells the story of a high-born family which is determined to seize the infant child of their dead son to prevent her from becoming a bubble dancer like its mother; of an equally determined daughter-in-law to keep the child for herself; of a handsome young college professor who wants the bubble dancer for his wife and of a philosophical old taxi driver who turns out to be a Mr. Fixit par excellence.

AT THE BELLE

"HAPPY GO LUCKY"

When you buy a ticket to the Belle Theatre to see Paramount's gay musical in Technicolor, "Happy Go Lucky," you buy yourself transportation to a playground paradise in the Caribbean where life is carefree and laughter infectious. "Happy Go Lucky" which stars Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee, is undoubtedly one of the most invigorating tuneful treats to come out of Hollywood in a long time and if ever a movie was made so we could "get-away-from-it-all," this is it!

In beautiful Technicolor, it tells of Mary Martin's arrival at a resort island in the tropics on board a luxury cruiser (in the days when luxury cruisers were still sailing the seven seas). A diamond bracelet which she has been wearing, flies overboard and Mary nonchalantly announces that her father will buy her another one. Everyone is impressed by Mary's apparent wealth except Betty Hutton, an entertainer, who remembers Mary from New York and knows Mary's as much a money-maid as she is.

Unfortunately for Mary, the bracelet is retrieved by beach boys Dick Powell and Eddie Bracken who saw the bauble fly and dived in after it. They have it appraised and learn it is paste. When they confront her with it, she admits she has no money but is trying to put on a show so she can hook a rich husband. The boys and Betty pitch in to help her — with millionaire Rudy Vallee their goal.

How they go about ensnaring Vallee makes a riotously funny film. Of course it isn't Vallee who finally wins Mary, but Powell; but thereby hangs the amusing tale and we won't spoil it for you by telling any more.

Mary Martin was never lovelier. Technicolor shows her and all her lovely clothes off to superb advantage and women patrons might be interested to know that her wardrobe is magnificent. She and Dick Powell make a swell team. Everyone already knows that Betty Hutton and Eddie Bracken go together like the proverbial ham-and-eggs. Rudy Vallee once again portrays the shy, eccentric millionaire he was in "The Palm Beach Story," pince-nez and all.

There are five hit tunes, plus Sir Lancelot singing Calypso songs on the screen for the first time. For your information, Calypso songs are a Trinidad specialty which Canadians have gone for, hook, line and sinker.

The Belle News of the World, described by Lowell Thomas, a Technicolor Madcap Models film "Jasper and the Choo, Choo," a clever and amusing novelette "Animals and Families," and Unusual Occupations in color, precede the feature attraction.

CORRESPONDENT

information affecting the morale of the army, the reasons for it ought to be widely known.

Despatches from correspondents with the 1st Army are sent back either through an army teleprinter or by a plane which leaves a forward airfield each morning.

The teleprinter method is speedier but, unfortunately, there are many other demands on it and press copy is liable to be elbowed aside as something of minor importance. Although the campaign has lasted more than five months, the Public Relations authorities have failed to provide the press with a teleprinter for their exclusive use.

The Military Spokesman

Here we are up against our old friend of Cairo days the Military Spokesman. It is not fair to blame him entirely. He is confronted by serried ranks of newspapermen eager for news and naturally he is anxious to gratify their wishes.

Unfortunately he is liable to do so not only at the expense of correspondents at the front, which matters little, but also at the expense of actual facts, which matters a good deal.

Thus there are two accounts of operations going out from North Africa.

One comes from correspondents who have seen the fighting and have discussed it with intelligence and operational officers.

The other comes from the Military Spokesman at Algiers. This gets out more quickly but it is not the accurate account.

Two circumstances have aggravated this situation. The first is the failure of the public relations authorities to provide a field censorship, which would have prevented considerable delays.

The second is, since February, the sending through Algiers of all 8th Army despatches previously sent through Cairo, where transmission facilities have normally been good.

HE CONQUERED

Here is the latest photo of British General Montgomery whose Eighth Army has chased Rommel's Afrika Korps across the Egyptian, Libyan and Tunisian desert in North Africa.

HITLER FACING

Yesterday, the dispatch said, all of Berlin's newspapers were full of the Tunisian situation and spoke of a fight to the last cartridge, adding that the press and propaganda agencies were "now having difficulty to explain the affair."

Ability Came as a Shock

Der Bund said that the American fighting ability, which had not "held highly" by Berlin, came as a shock to all Axis military leaders and Europe's neutral press praised the Allied leadership and men.

Hitler's Axis partners seemed convinced that a new Allied blow was in the making.

Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale D'Italia, was quoted by the Berlin radio last night as professing to see in the Tunisian defeat an improvement in Italy's position, for, he said, "The Italians can now concentrate all their means of defence within their own country while the enemy has to risk a jump across the sea."

Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu was quoted as saying in a Budapest dispatch that his country already has lost 500,000 men in Russia, including prisoners, but faces still greater sacrifices.

The present disposition of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army was seen here as probably one of the Axis leader's chief worries. It is known that some of the best units were pulled from the Ain Hallouf area in Tunisia and sent to join the 1st Army in the attack on Tunis. If Hitler knew whether the remainder of the 8th was still in the Ain Hallouf area or had been withdrawn to the rear for regrouping and preparation for a new stroke, he might know the answer to the riddle of where the United Nations will strike next.

Cottages Wanted As Holiday Homes For Women on Leave

Toronto — An appeal is being made by the Committee on Camp and War Production Communities of the United Church of Canada for the use of summer cottages to be operated as holiday homes for women of the Armed Forces on leave, according to Rev. Wm. Fingland, Director in charge of this work.

"Due to the curtailment of gasoline this summer," said Mr. Fingland, "there will no doubt be a number of owners who will not be opening up their cottages, and the Committee would be glad to hear from any who are prepared to offer their summer homes for holiday leave centres for girls in war industries." The Committee will provide the staff and arrange the camp on a homelike basis, accommodation will be provided at minimum cost.

Here is an opportunity to perform a practical war service and the Committee is hoping for a generous response from the citizens of Canada who are in a position to offer their cottages for this worthwhile project.

The appeal is nation-wide and offers coming in from the provinces will be referred to a church officer in each province.

All communications should be addressed to: Mrs. C. M. Loveys, Secretary, The United Church of Canada Committee on Camp and War Production Communities, 506 Wesley Buildings, Toronto.

Bancroft and District

Flood Caused By York River

Bancroft — The York River at Bancroft is still on the rampage and there seems to be no immediate diversion of the high flood level in sight. For the past three days the river has been very high with the flood water covering the whole of the flats in the village backing up in the creeks and even forcing itself out the street drainage outlets, flooding along the sides of the curbs and over the sidewalks in places. The sidewalk from Kellar's garage to the Canadian National Station is inundated, some residents have been compelled to sell their stock as they are unable to get to the adjacent buildings to attend same. Water is said to be flowing over High Falls Dam west of Bancroft to a depth of three feet over its entire length, regardless of the fact that the stop logs have been previously removed as is the case in the dam at Bancroft. Boats are the order of the day off the main street for inter-communication travel.

A very nice representation of men of the Reserve Army attended the opening parade of the 1943-44 training period at the Armories in Bancroft on Friday evening. The evening was taken up in checking over personal equipment, paying the boys for the remainder of the previous year's training, followed by two war reels of pictures shown in the auditorium which proved both interesting and educational.

On Sunday morning "A" Company 2nd (R) of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under command of Lieutenant A. Scott left by buses for Trenton to take part in the Victory Loan parade. Following the Trenton parade the boys left again by buses for Picton where they took part in a second Victory Loan parade staged later in the afternoon.

Australian Letter

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

Sydney, May 11 — (CP) — Australia had probably its most extraordinary Easter for many years. In one respect it was unique because never before had Anzac Day coincided with Easter Sunday.

There have been previous Anzac Days on Sundays but never has Easter been so late since the last war as to fall on Anzac Day, April 25. One result was that church Anzac services which have continued ever since the Anzacs landed on Gallipoli in 1915 were almost all held this year on Palm Sunday so as not to clash with Easter.

Ordinarily Anzac Day is observed as a public holiday when it falls on a week day. Hotel bars on those occasions do not open until noon at the end of commemoration marches and services.

This year a number of commemorative marches and services were held in the early afternoon of Easter Sunday after normal church services had taken place.

Veterans Parade

It being Sunday, and travel being difficult, record crowds of people who stayed in the cities during the weekend saw marching troops who this year included not only "diggers" of the First great War in mufti, wearing their medals, but also discharged and serving troops of the Second Australian Imperial Force — veterans of this war.

Here in Sydney Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Commander of all ground forces in the Southwest Pacific, marched with last war veterans of his own old battalion.

Anzac Day ceremonies were carried out with befitting solemnity throughout the Dominion but, it being Sunday, the veterans missed the convivialities of meeting with fellow soldiers in hotel bars and clubs.

The usual public holidays were observed for everyone except munitions workers. A year ago the outlook for Australia was so serious under the Japanese menace that there were no marches anywhere and no public holiday for anyone on Anzac Day. Moreover the Easter holiday, by government order, was hardly observed anywhere. Banks and civil services carried on because of the gravity of the situation.

But it must be admitted that though the improved war outlook was the chief reason for permitting holidays this year for everyone but munitions workers, another important reason was that extra wages for holiday workers last year cost the Federal and State governments, banks and insurance companies and so forth many additional pounds in wages and salaries.

The worst feature this year was the ignoring of appeals against trying to go to holiday resorts.

Protest Methods

Another feature was a development arising from Australia's shortage of men and women for the services and essential war industry, which has given rise to many protests concerning the methods of the manpower authorities who raided hotels and restaurant lounges in the afternoons, demanding identity cards and calling men and women not engaged on useful, essential work for interviews with the aim of obtaining their services in vital industries.

This method is being attacked as unnecessary interference with people's lives seeing that the authorities have full knowledge of all citizens, but the manpower officials claim that the action has helped to trace many service dodgers who are continually changing addresses, and has also resulted in inducing many women now unemployed to do useful work.

Eight Million Polish Men, Women Suffer 'Barbarous Punishment Or Death', Charges Lord Halifax

Chicago, May 11—(AP)—The British Ambassador to the United States, Lord Halifax, charged that more than 8,000,000 Polish men and women had suffered "barbarous punishment or death" at the hands of the Nazis.

"The latest estimates I have had show that whereas 150,000 Poles fell in the actual fighting, probably about 400,000 Poles and 1,500,000 Polish Jews have since died by execution or maltreatment," he said.

"The estimates further show that 2,000,000 Poles have been sent to forced labor in Germany, that 3,000,000 more have been driven from their homes and that 1,000,000 are in concentration camps or prisons. That is to say, out of a peacetime population of 35,000,000, more than 8,000,000 men and women have suffered barbarous punishment or death."

Lord Halifax's report was contained in an address prepared for his delivery here. He told his audience that the time would surely come when Poland would again take her place among the free nations of the world.

"For these reasons we shall all deplore the recent rift between Poland and Russia," he said. "You will not, I am sure, expect me to speak of that now in detail, when earnest efforts are being made, with the full support of the British government and the government of the United States, to restore friendly relations between these two great Allies.

"But this I can say. We all know with what timely regularity the Nazi propaganda machine has always produced the evidence that it needs at the moment that it needs it most."

"We owe it to the gallantry of your men and ours, fighting through mountainous country, in which the advantage always lay with the defence," he said. "I believe that it marks a turning point in the war."

Trenton and District

Burglar Surprised By Constable

Trenton (Special)—While checking doors on Sunday evening Constable James Nancarrow of the local police came upon a man breaking in at the rear of Pattenick's Dry Goods Store on Dundas Street. The constable tried to prevent the marauder from escaping but was unsuccessful. He took to his heels and was followed quickly by the constable while an alarm was given and the police cruiser arrived. He was last seen at the east side of the river around the Squires coal buildings. A search was made by constables Lozo and a member of the R.C.A. F. Service police but without success. Sergeant Taylor examined the premises and found the rear window had been smashed and that the would-be shop-breaker had been on the top of the roof but had failed to gain entrance.

Suffers Heart Attack

While carrying the Victory Flag in the parade on Sunday, Mr. Geo. Jordan, local taxi owner, and veteran of the Great War, was suddenly stricken with a heart attack. He left the parade and went into Haffey's drug store where he collapsed. Doctors Farley and Johnson were called and he was removed to his home by ambulance. It is learned that he is resting comfortably although not entirely out of danger.

PASSING DREAM

CHAPTER 12

At times they were light-hearted and happy, making their little jokes between them that they would remember for the rest of their lives. At other times there was a desperation between them that made them quiet and tense. Often she wondered whether it had been like that with her mother and father or whether it was only for those born between wars.

But she had little leisure for analysis or contemplation. Almost every evening she was with Jud and the evenings she was not were given to the care of her clothes or writing home or having dinner with Paula or going to the library with Abby. She was living on strong young nerves and high spirits and a heart that had never been tested. If her mother had known, she would have said that Temple at last "had her teeth into living" and would have feared greatly for her. Her grandmother would have prayed for her, and Allison's curiosity probably would overcome her appetite. Ron would be mildly protective and Fran would want to know about Jud's family.

So the spring days went on. And Washington seethed with people and sprang to brilliant illumination at night, seeming somehow to know that its brilliance had to encompass a dark world.

They met in the lobby of the Mayflower one evening in May. Temple arrived first, wearing new clothes—a navy suit with a frilly white blouse and a ridiculous little navy hat top-heavy with flowers and veil, but very becoming. The feeling of new clothes heightened her already heightened feelings.

"Hi!" he said, smiling. "You look nice. But you should have an orchid or two. Come on, I'll get them for you."

"Oh, but I don't—"

"But you do."

"You're terribly extravagant. You sent them to me at Easter." But she was happy, exquisitely happy.

He laughed. "Don't tell me I'm spoiling you. You've spoiled me. No Manhattans today, darling. We are having champagne cocktails."

"You weren't paid today."

"You're right. But . . but it's spring and my girl is beautiful and I want to be extravagant. So orchids and champagne cocktails. I don't have to balance a budget any more. It's wonderful!" He leaned forward, his eyes holding hers on him; his voice was gentle when he asked, "Temple, would a girl wearing orchids and about to drink a champagne cocktail care to dance with a private in the Air Corps of the United States Army?"

He took her hands and lifted her up and she knew that he was guiding her to the floor. When they were there, he took her so firmly that she had no alternative other than to follow him, knowing so well how he danced. The faces about her, many of them interesting, were blurred. The room seemed to be moving and she seemed to be standing still.

They danced their last dance together and they said nothing while they danced. When they returned to the table, the cocktails were waiting. She wondered whether she trusted her hand to lift the glass. It was as though she were drinking champagne at a funeral.

"I'm glad, Jud. When?"

"Well, it was settled today. I'm going to do base work. I'm not going to fly. There's something wrong with my breathing which prohibits my flying at high altitude. Otherwise I'm okay. Why are you so glad about it?"

"I don't mean that exactly. I mean that I'm glad the suspense is over and I . . I know. Do you know where you'll be sent?" Not far, please . . please, not far."

"To Florida."

Drinking champagne at a funeral, she thought. "Florida," she said flatly. The muscles in his face were working. "It's terribly far away," she said. You can't cry into champagne. Whoever heard of crying into the gayest beverage in the world?

"The climate is swell," Jud said. His voice was flat, too.

"When are you leaving?"

"In ten days."

"Ten days? I see . ."

"I wired my mother to come down. It's easier for her to come down than for me to go home." His mouth pulled at one corner. "It's — it's sort of like getting all your affairs neatly in order before you die."

"Don't say that . . ."

"Another of my bad jokes, sorry."

"I'll come down to see you." By juggling money she could . . she would.

He smiled. "I knew you'd say that."

"I want to say this, too, before I change my mind . . . about seeing other girls. I expect you to."

"That goes for you, too, and the men here."

"I think it's easier for a girl to be faithful. I think that girls like someone to wait for more than does a man."

"You're judging all of them by yourself and Abby. They're not all like you. I want you to meet my mother. I don't know how she'll take this so I can't prepare you for her. I enlisted . . or did I mention that before?"

"No, you didn't." She put her hand over his. "Jud, the other thing in my life that I wanted so much I gave up kicking and screaming. I won't give you up like that. We are no better than the others who are doing the same thing."

"You're too noble, darling."

"I'm not noble. I'm trying to take the broad view."

He lifted his glass. "Well, here's to you and memories. But in spite of your great nobility, don't kid yourself. Memories can't make you laugh or talk to you or kiss you or touch you. You can't sit across a table from a memory and have a good time. But for ten more days I won't be a memory. What are you going to do about it, Temple?" Then he said, "Skip it, darling, and let's get out of here after we've had dinner. Yes, dinner here, too. The best they have."

They even managed to be rather light-hearted for a while as though they could anticipate many evenings like this.

"I'll be with you every minute I can," he said.

The next day Jud called to tell her that his mother had arrived and that he was spending the evening alone with her. He asked Temple to meet him and his mother the following evening for dinner.

Purposely Temple was late and as she walked to the restaurant she hoped that she would like Mrs. Amory and that Mrs. Amory would not resent her. She found herself hoping fervently, too, that Jud's mother would also see him go with sadness and pride and that she would not embarrass him either with sentimentality or hysteria.

She could not imagine what Jud's mother would be like. If they liked each other, they had Jud to share. If they did not, then hours precious to both would be wasted. And Temple, shy with strangers, her shyness often mistaken for coolness, tried to think of friendly things to say to Jud's mother. She was nervous when she reached the restaurant and pressed her hands against the revolving doors.

Walking toward them, Temple thought achingly, "I'm not going to like her. She's beautifully dressed in a smart dark suit and silver foxes and the black straw sailor over her short gray hair, but—but she has on too much rouge. There is something cheap about her."

Jud smiled his warm, intimate smile. He introduced them and before Temple could say anything, his mother said in a high voice, "How do you do, my dear? It was so sweet of you to want to meet me. I haven't been in Washington for years and it's changed so much."

"Yes, I'm told it has." Temple said pleasantly. Mrs. Amory was pretty. Jud had her eyes, but his eyes had depth and purity. "But I know it only in the changed state."

"Really?"

"Shall we find a table?" Jud asked.

When Mrs. Amory removed her gloves, Temple saw several old brilliant diamonds in gold settings on her plump, well-cared for hands. Her nail polish was deep crimson, expertly applied. She looked as a woman does who spends much time under hair dryers and at a manicurist's table in so-called beauty salons gaudy with chromium and red leather. She looked, too, as though she had had no real exercise in years and that it had been years also since the wind or sun had touched her. She made Temple think of cold cream and chin straps and afternoons of bridge and big boxes of chocolate candy.

She turned to Temple and made a sad face. "Isn't it terrible about Jud? My poor boy. I dropped everything and came down the moment I received his telegram. Losing his father and now losing him."

"I'm not dead yet," Jud said. "Mother, let's not go into all that again, please."

"But, darling, I don't see why with so many people unemployed and so many worthless people they have to take young men who are doing well in business. Why don't they send the men in prisons? Now don't you agree with me Miss Graves?"

Jud said, "Convicts might run the wrong way. Oh, cheer up, Mother."

Mrs. Amory took a gaily printed handkerchief from her bag and daintily touched her eyes with it. But she wasn't crying.

"Jud doesn't understand how a mother feels. Oh! A cocktail! I didn't hear you order, dear." She drank as though she were very thirsty indeed, meanwhile taking short, quick puffs on a cigarette. "But I told Jud, Miss Graves, that he need not worry about his poor mother I promised him I wouldn't make a scene as I did yesterday in the station. Everyone knew I had a boy who had just enlisted."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines at breakfast and ma said, Really William, I mean really, when I see those crowds of women besieging the dress shops with that grasping look in their hoarding eyes, it makes me see red.

Oh, are you thinking of getting a red outfit? pop said, and ma said, Certainly not, red never does anything for me that wouldn't be better left undone, and besides, nobody should buy clothes they dont actually need if they really want to help the war effort in this climax of the world's crisis. If I was planning to buy anything at all it would be a nice figured print, but I cant honestly say I'm suffering from any crying need of a print dress, so it would be unpatriotic to even dream of it, she said.

Oh well, you might venture so far as to dream of a dress with the flags of the United Nations printed all over it that wouldn't be an unpatriotic dream, pop said, and ma said, Of course naturally I wouldn't have to wear it right away, I mean Hookbinders are offering some very good bargains in prints and I could get one and put it away for a rainy day of actual need, and then at least I'd know I had it.

That's right, and you could tell a few chosen friends and they'd know too, pop said, and ma said, But on the other hand there might be enforced changes in stile by the time I got ready to wear it. For instance puff sleeves might be unheard of by that time, so my dress would be just impossibly dated.

By gollies it would be like yesterday's paper on Noah's ark, pop said, and ma said, Yes, I suppose you're right, William, the only thing to do is wear it while it's still in fashion, because nothing is so unpatriotic these days as outright waste. I'm going to take your advice and drop in at Hookbinders this afternoon, she said.

Which she probably did.

26 Netherlands Patriots Executed For Sabotage

London, May 11. (CP)—Aneta, Netherlands News Agency, said today that German occupation authorities had executed 26 additional patriots in The Netherlands for "fomenting strikes and sabotage".

Aneta said the executions had taken place May 2 and that, according to word it had received from Stockholm, 10 other Netherlanders had been sentenced to death.

The Agency said the executions had arisen from the German decree ordering all former members of The Netherlands army to report to the authorities for reinternment as prisoners of war.

Disorders had extended over the entire occupied country and apparently involved an attempt to stage a general strike, Aneta said.

It also said that serious interruptions of the food supply of The Netherlands had resulted from strikes. The German-controlled press was quoted as acknowledging the gravity of the situation, The Haagshe Courant declaring editorially that "expected and accountable agitation has changed into unreasonable unrest, which has assumed a dangerous and intolerable form".

TORONTO STOCKS

London, May 11 — (CP)—Golds were the only index group to maintain strength during the session on Toronto exchange today in which trading was quieter than yesterday. Volume of 183,000 shares at 1 p. m. was 12,000 below Monday's similar period.

But even the gold lift was spotty, although the index was up slightly. Powell Rouyn picked up seven cents while Pickle Crow, and Bidgood were fractionally off and Chesterville down 5 cents.

Fractional set-backs were prominent in the industrial list with Abitibi, Bell Telephone, Brazilian, Canadian Breweries Pfd, Bank of Commerce, Dominion Tar, Winnipeg Electric and Maple Leaf all softer.

Among western oils, Calgary and Edmonton was off 3 cents, East Crest down 1-2 and Homestead up 3-8.

WALL STREET
(By VICTOR EUBANK)
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, May 11. (AP)— The stock market slipped its moorings today on the backwash of further relatively light profit taking.

Generally a trifle higher at the start, quotations began to give way in most departments before midday and, while exceptions were in evidence here and there, recessions of fractions to more than a point predominated near the fourth hour.

There was talk of the good African war news having been discounted to some extent by the recent average push to new 3-year peaks. Many customers, consequently, inclined to trim commitments and stand aside pending indications as to the next Allied move.

Bonds and commodities were fairly steady.

Stock dealings, even in yesterday's bounding Utilities, tended to slacken after the opening and volume in the first period was only about half that of Monday despite a few 10,000 and 15,000-share blocks in the low-priced power group.

Canadian issues were easier, Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific, Distillers Seagram and Lake Shore losing from 1-8 to 1-2.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, May 11 — (CP)—Prices 75 cents or more lower on bulls, 50 cents down on cows; 25 cents lower on steers. Other classes about steady. Receipts: cattle 53; lambs 8; hogs 806; calves 892.

Butcher cows 7-9.30. Good quality cows 9.25-9.50, medium 8.50-9.25. Canners and cutters 5.50-7. Good bulls 10.50-11;; bologna bulls 8.25 up.

Veal calves 11-15. Good veals 14.50. Bulk of calves 12.75-13.50.

Hogs 16.85-16.90 for B-1 dressed. Sows 11.50-11.75 live weight. Grade A1 per hog premium, with discounts on off grades.

Proposes Security Against Tooth Disease

Ottawa, May 11 — (CP) — Representatives of the Canadian Dental Association today proposed to the Commons Committee on Social Security that in any health insurance undertaking protection against dental diseases should be included.

Dr. D. W. Gullett of Toronto, Association secretary, read a brief urging that the best way to combat dental disease was among the children.

It proposed that in any health insurance scheme there be compulsory dental treatment for every child up to the age of around 16 years.

Each child would be treated once every six months and the dentists be paid by the provinces at a fixed scale. As this cost might be too heavy for some provinces, the age limit might vary from province to province.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost. If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

Are you in your YOUTHFUL 40's?

Everyone knows people who look far younger than their years—who radiate health, pep and good humor. Yet most people, especially over 40, allow a very small thing to slow them up, rob them of that glad-to-be-alive feeling which is the basis of youth and personality.

Yes, your system is like an engine—it must be kept clean and smooth-running or it backfires and makes you feel and LOOK half-sick! A sluggish system clogged with poisonous food waste can be quickly and gently cleansed with a purely vegetable remedy — Bile Beans. These small laxative pills contain 10 concentrated vegetable extracts that have an amazingly gentle 4-way action on liver bile, stomach, upper and lower bowels.

For brighter, peppier days, let Bile Beans coax the system into healthy regularity, pleasantly, ever so gently—not harshly like cheap laxatives. Be convinced —get Bile Beans at any druggist, only 50c. Made in England. Over 7 million boxes sold last year, proof of amazing popularity. You'll be glad you tried them. 3

Mutual Aid Bill Given Second Reading in House

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 11—(CP)—Following the most optimistic statement yet made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the outlook of the war the House of Commons yesterday moved towards speeding more aid to the United Nations during the present year.

The $1,000,000,000 Mutual Aid Bill received second reading after the defeat of two hostile amendments and comes under examination clause by clause in committee of the whole today.

Mr. King's statement was made on the weekend triumph of United Nations forces in North Africa. Where last autumn he warned that there was no sign of a turning in the tide of war, till then running against the United Nations, yesterday he said the final triumph in North Africa might well mark the turn of the tide.

The Prime Minister moved a resolution expressing satisfaction with the United Nations' victory and extending congratulations to Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt, and the officers and men of the Allied forces in Africa. Supported by the leaders of other groups in the House, the resolution was approved unanimously.

The amendments on the Mutual Aid Bill were proposed by J. S. Roy (Ind. Gaspe), who urged that the bill be not read and declared parliament had no mandate to make gifts to other nations, and by Liguori Lacombe (CDN. Laval-Two Mountains) who moved that the bill be given the six-months hoist.

Ilsley Challenges Statement

The first was defeated 135 to 10 and the second 127 to 10. The 10 dissenters, besides Mr. Roy and Mr. Lacombe, in each case were Quebec Liberals and Independents.

Finance Minister Ilsley challenged an earlier statement by P. J. A. Cardin (Lib. Richelieu-Vercheres) that mutual aid was "Colonial tribute," terming it "fantastic, ridiculous and entirely unwarranted."

Mr. Cardin, the former minister who resigned from the cabinet last year in protest against the extension of the National Resources Mobilization Act, also came in for a sharp attack from Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity North Battleford).

She said his speech made on the resolution preliminary to introduction of the bill was "subversive." She said she would not quarrel with the contention that Canada should be an independent country but objected to raising such issues at the present time.

Mrs. Nielsen Critical

It was Canada's war and if the war were not won Canada had no future but as a colony of Germany. The importance of giving unreservedly of all that contributed to victory should be obvious to those who wished to see Canada independent.

Mrs. Nielsen said Mr. Cardin was not anxious to see the spearhead in Europe made by Canadians, and had said if it were delayed it would be better.

"Three cheers for Goebbels and company," she continued. "The very thing they themselves will advocate and try to gain if at all possible.

"My friend, I speak to you very honestly. I say it would be too good to be true that we in Canada do not have Quislings. Seldom have I heard anyone voice anything more in favor of the Axis than the opinions that have been declared by the Honorable member for Richelieu-Vercheres in that most infamous speech."

Not Tribute or Charity

"Mutual aid is not a tribute nor is it charity," said Mr. Ilsley. "It is sound common sense. I shall not stress the business aspect but it is simply doing one's duty."

There was no way in which any one could prove that Canada's taxation was higher or lower than Britain's. Personally he believed it to be substantially lower.

The real test was what the people had left to enjoy and on this score it was impossible to argue that the Canadian people were worse off than the British.

Speeches in opposition to the bill and in favor of it were brief in the main. H. R. Jackman (Prog Con. Toronto Rosedale) was the only speaker who went the 40-minute limit and he thought Canada was going too far in repatriating Canadian securities held in the United Kingdom. He thought the British people, making the sacrifices they were, should not be required to dispose of their holdings in these securities.

Frederic Dorion (Ind. Charlevoix-Saguenay) said he was not afraid of being called an isolationist because he opposed gifts to countries more wealthy than Canada and Mr. Lacombe predicted disastrous inflation was in store for Canada if it continued making huge gifts.

After the House went into committee on the bill Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader asked Mr. Ilsley for a statement of how last year's $1,000,000,000 gift to Britain was expended and how it was proposed to expend the money provided in the mutual aid bill.

Statement Promised

Mr. Ilsley promised a statement today but said he wished first to find out how far he should go in view of censorship policies.

A protest against censorship limitations was voiced by J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) who also said those who voted for the gift last year and again this year had no right to ask how it was spent. It was bad manners to ask what a recipient did with a gift. On their behalf, however, he would ask the questions himself.

In his speech on North Africa, Mr. King said he saw three important results from the victorious end of the campaign:: It put the whole of the south shore of the Mediterranean in United Nations control; it opened the way for new and powerful offensives on the Axis powers in Europe; it brought closer the union of all French forces under a single battle flag. He spoke with satisfaction of the fact that a French army of not less than 11 divisions now is being equipped and said it would not only stand guard in Africa but share in the offensives now in prospect.

THE STORY BEHIND MEAT RATIONING

Food is a weapon of war, and we must share our supplies with those who are fighting to keep the war from our shores. After all special wartime demands are taken care of, only one half of the meat produced in Canada will be available for ordinary domestic consumption at home.

Meat supplies for our Armed Forces must be maintained at all costs.

Great Britain has to depend more and more on Canada for supplies to maintain even its present low ration rate of 28 cents worth of meat per person, per week.

Since the war started the consumption of meat by civilians has increased in Canada. Great defense projects such as the Alcan Highway and the Shipshaw Power Development have created new and large demands for meat in areas where practically no demand existed before.

Canned meat is required in large quantities by the Red Cross to send to our boys who are prisoners of war.

Places like Newfoundland and the West Indies, which previously secured their meat from other sources—must now depend to a great extent on Canada.

RATIONING IS INTELLIGENT FORESIGHT — INTELLIGENT PLANNING

Coupon rationing is the only way of ensuring equal sharing of the meat available for civilian consumption in Canada. Those with lots of money will not get more than their share—and those with less money will be assured of getting their fair share.

Rationing will help prevent local meat shortages such as occurred last year from becoming widespread and continuous throughout the whole Dominion. The incentive for panic-buying which empties butcher shops early in the day, will be eliminated.

THE MEAT RATION WILL BE AMPLE FOR HEALTH AND NUTRITION

Fortunately, our meat production in Canada has increased. So, although only half our production will be available for civilian use, it wil mean a reduction of only about 15% to 20% in the average household consumption.

The proposed ration of 2 lbs. (carcass weight) per person, per week, has been approved by the country's leading food and nutrition authorities, as ample for the health and nutrition standards of everyone—regardless of age or occupation.

BRITISH ARMOR COMPLETELY ENCIRCLES CAP BON CHURCHILL, ROOSEVELT CONFER IN WASHINGTON

Hammering Last Remaining Pocket Of Resistance

Allied Bombing Of Riddled Area Is Called Off Because Of Troop Infiltration

MANY SURRENDERING

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa May 12 (AP)—British armor has made a complete circuit of Cap Bon, has needled inward to round up the isolated enemy forces who are surrendering freely, and is fiercely hammering from all sides at the last remaining pocket of Tunisian resistance southwest of the peninsula, headquarters announced today.

So thoroughly have the patrols of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's 1st Army infiltrated into Cap Bon peninsula that Allied bombing of the riddled area was called off late yesterday because of the danger of hitting friendly troops.

The Germans and Italians southwest of the peninsula were hemmed in a circular area about 15 miles across, and this was being given severe punishment by the air forces as well as by the troops, but the communique said "the lack of suitable targets indicated the approaching end of the air battle over Tunisia."

While many Germans were still at large on Cap Bon's inland mountains, they were mostly service personnel not much interested in fighting.

Expected to Pass 100,000 Mark

The total of prisoners was expected to pass the 100,000 mark. The completed count in the area of the 2nd U.S. army corps showed the Americans, French Free Corps and Moroccan Goumiers had taken 37,998 prisoners, of whom 33,498 were Germans.

(The Italian communique said Gen. Giovanni Messe, commander of the 1st Italian army in Cap Bon who is reported to have been left as commander of all Axis forces in Tunisia as well, had rejected a demand for surrender by Lt.-Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg V.C., commander of the New Zealand 2nd division attached to the 8th army.)

Germans and Italians were offering considerable resistance in the mountains west of Bou Ficha and north of Enfidaville.

They had been wedged off from Cap Bon by British armor driving south from Tunis which had reached Bou Ficha on the coastal road, 11 miles southwest of Hammamet on the peninsula and 15 miles north of Enfidaville.

Circle Being Hammered

This circle was being hammered on the north as well by British troops at Ste. Marie Du Zit, 12 miles northwest of Bou Ficha; on the west by Oran, Algiers and Moroccan divisions of Gen. Henri Giraud's French North African army in the region east of Zaghouan, and on the south by a British 8th army and French force north of Enfidaville.

The British 1st army column in reaching Bou Ficha from the north was within five miles of a junction along the coast with the 8th army coming up from the south.

At Bou Ficha

Just south of Bou Ficha, however, the 1st Army ran into lively resistance from a formation of German tanks and a screen of anti-tank guns which temporarily held it up.

East of Zaghouan, the French also met resistance after accepting the unconditional surrender of a large enemy force in the Zaghouan mountains.

The tactical Air Force, which devotes its attention to enemy troops, was confining its operations almost entirely to this one pocket, and a military spokesman said the enemy "has little possibility left of organized resistance in Africa and seems to be accepting that situation."

Various Remnants Surrender

The enemy elements which surrendered to the French in the Zaghouan area were various remnants, the biggest one being a large part of the Italian supergas division, which were grouped together in the current battle under German command and given the name of the Pfeifer group.

They were largely entrenched on the Zaghouan Massif, highest ridge in Tunisia. After the French isolated them, the German commander asked Gen. Mathinet, Commander of the Moroccan Division, for an armistice. Gen. Mathinet's terms were unconditional surrender. The German commander became the first to accept such terms from the French since the First Great War.

American bombers and fighters of Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic air force vigorously pursued their softening-up attacks on Sicily and Pantelleria, 40 miles off Cap Bon.

Marsala Almost Erased

The raid on Marsala in Sicily yesterday by 200 bombers and 100 fighters virtually rubbed that port off the map, returning airmen said.

The supplies will be carried by pack animals over long arduous routes at an average altitude of 12,000 feet. The volume of material transported therefore, will necessarily be small.

Lord Beaverbrook In Washington

Washington, May 12—(AP)—This should be a big day in the life of Max Aitken, the Canadian-born newsboy who became Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of one of the world's largest newspapers and, who has played a major part in the Allied war program.

For it's a safe bet that Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt—meeting here for the fifth time in less than two years—are discussing the impending invasion of Europe.

And that's what Lord Beaverbrook has been urging, pleading and demanding for many, many months.

Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of the London Daily Express, former cabinet member, British industrial and supply expert, lease-lend administrator, has been a long-time advocate of a second front.

Although not a part of the Prime Minister's party, Lord Beaverbrook was said to have arrived in the capital almost at the same time as Mr. Churchill. Close collaborator of the latter on industrial problems, the publisher was expected to participate in the joint talks.

Canadian Money Follows Airmen Around World Wherever They Are

Ottawa, May 12 — Wherever Canadian armies are, they find that Canadian money follows them. They do not always handle it in dollars and cents but they know exactly what they get in dollars and cents and what additional amounts stand to their credit against the day of discharge.

This is accomplished under the new arrangement in which Canada has undertaken to pay officers and airmen enlisted in the R.C.A.F. but serving overseas with the R.A.F.

Where formerly, for instance, a Canadian airman serving in North Africa drew his pay from the British treasury, he now gets it from the Canadian treasury—not directly, of course, but in a way which authorities believe will leave him better satisfied.

Formerly he was on R.A.F. rates of pay, while back in Canada a fund piled up for him of the difference between R.A.F. rates and R.C.A.F. rates. The Canadian government saw to it that men serving with the R.A.F. eventually received as much as airmen serving with the R.C.A.F. in Canada.

Now all ranks of the R.C.A.F. will draw the equivalent, in the currency in which they are paid, of their Canadian rates of pay, less any deductions for deferred pay or assignments.

This Canadian airman in North Africa now will carry a Canadian pay book instead of an R.A.F. pay book. The book will tell the R.A.F. paying officer in the squadron how much the airman is entitled to in the local currency or in sterling, and it will tell the holder of the book how much that equals in Canadian money and how much more stands to his credit as deferred pay.

To keep the pay accounts of all the Canadian airmen scattered wherever the R.A.F. fights, base accounts offices have been established in London, Cairo and Bombay. Under the Cairo office will be accountant liaison officers for West Africa at Freetown, Sierra Leone, and for Northwest Africa at Algiers.

The Cairo office at present has a staff of about 20 and the Bombay office one of 15. Staffs of about five men each are, stationed at Freetown and Algiers. The London office will be larger than any and will be responsible for the largest territory, including the United Kingdom, Iceland, the Faroe Islands, Gibraltar, Australia and New Zealand.

Appeal Made to Speed-Up Subscriptions to Loan

G. W. Spinney, Chairman, Says $25,000,000 Daily Must be Obtained in Next Four Days From General Canvass of Public and Payroll Employees

CHALLENGE TO EVERY MAN AND WOMAN

Ottawa, May 12—(CP)—Announcement by Fourth Victory Loan headquarters that total subscriptions have reached $885,302,350 in the three-week drive for $1,100,000,000 which ends next Saturday was accompanied today by an official appeal for a speed-up in subscriptions from the general public.

G. W. Spinney, Chairman of the National War Finance Committee, said that "we require at least $100,000,000 more over the next four days" from the general canvass if the $500,000,000 objective from the field is to be attained.

General Canvass

"It means that for four days in a row we must average from general canvass some $25,000,000 a day," he said.

"Twenty-five million dollars a day is not beyond the capacity of Canadians in all walks of life once they set themselves sternly to the task.

"I am satisfied that when they really know the need—as they will know it from these words—they will rally just as they have done in every loan before and fully subscribe this $500,000,000 aim.

"I am confident that the people of this nation will never permit it to be said that they failed their fighting men in the face of offen-

HITLER GIRDING FOR THE "BATTLE OF GERMANY"

Axis Propaganda Agencies Attempting to Present Front of Confidence

London, May 12 — (CP) — The impending "Battle for Germany," sharply focused by Prime Minister Churchill's conferences in Washington with President Roosevelt, found Axis propaganda agencies attempting to present an outward front of calm confidence today.

After fishing all yesterday for news on the whereabouts of the British Prime Minister, the Berlin radio in its early morning domestic news broadcast pointedly ignored official Allied announcements that

LENINGRAD FRONT SURGING WITH NEW ACTIVITY

More Than Thousand Germans Killed in That Sector in Last 24 Hours

REDS HOLD INITIATIVE

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 12 — (AP) — More than 1,000 German troops have been killed on the Leningrad front in the last 24 hours, Russian dispatches said today, as the entire battle line surged with new activity from that northern sector to the continuing struggle around Novorossisk, on the Black Sea.

The action before Leningrad, whose 515-day siege was broken in mid-January, appeared to be only a scouting operation in force, intended to establish a new German sector line and not the beginning of an out-and-out offensive. The German attempts failed after two attacks.

Russian guns opened up after the assaults and have pounded, damaged the German positions since, it was said.

The Red Army generally held the initiative everywhere along the line, and the government newspaper Izvestia said editorially "the war with Hitlerite Germany has entered its decisive phase."

The battle for Novorossisk apparently had resolved itself into a Russian attempt to pulverize the German positions with air attacks, sustained artillery fire and infantry sorties.

The midnight communique said 56 enemy planes were destroyed in the area yesterday against a loss of 11 Soviet planes.

Red Artillery Active

In the lower Kuban Valley, apparently northwest of Novorossisk, a German fortified key position was reported captured and a company of German troops killed in yesterday's fighting. Red army artillery kept up its heavy firing during the night, the noon communique said.

Resumption of German attacks on the Russian Donets river positions near Lisichansk, gateway to Voroshilov Rad, was reported. Three waves of Nazi tank and infantry assaults were beaten off, 13 enemy tanks knocked out and about 800 Germans killed in the last 24 hours, it was said.

South of Leningrad, on the Volkhov front, Red army artillery thundered in an apparent attempt to prevent any big movement of Germans into front line position, while southwest of this sector Soviet scouts were carrying their attacks beyond the German lines.

Red army fliers pounded German supply and communication centres at Bryansk and Orel, and bombers ranged as far west as Kiev.

Corvette Blows U-Boat to Surface Rakes, Rams and Sinks It

Ottawa, May 12—(CP)—The full story of the nine-minute action in which the Canadian corvette Ville de Quebec sank a German submarine in the western Mediterranean by depth charges, gunfire and ramming has just been told by the navy.

Naval service headquarters told last night how the Canadian warship caught the U-boat in a position to attack a convoy and sent it to the bottom before it could even defend itself. The sinking itself was announced by Allied headquarters in North Africa early this year.

A perfectly-placed pattern of depthy charges blew the submarine's nose 36 feet out of the water. As the submersible flopped on the surface every gun on the starboard side of the Ville de Quebec concentrated fire on the conning tower—to prevent the Germans from manning their guns.

"Then came the order "stand by to ram!"

A moment or so later the corvette struck. Her bow smashed into the sub's upper deck, tearing the forward gun from its mounting. The U-boat, was forced under water to one side of the Ville de Quebec. Then its stern rose sharply out of the water, hung visible for a few seconds and finally slipped under and to the bottom.

As the corvette passed over the hull the coning tower was seen to be full of dead and wounded men.

Ships in the convoy had a grandstand view of the swift, deadly action and Lieut. Raymond Hatrick, R. C. N. V. R., of Montreal, the Ville de Quebec's gunnery officer, said "I've never seen such a demonstration of joy."

"The sailors were hanging from the yardarms, cheering and shouting as if we had won the war," he added". . .Those boys usually see their chums take it instead of handing it out."

Hinted Conference May Deal With Invasion Plans

Third Wartime Trip Made With Large Staff of Naval, Military Experts

JOURNEY UNEXPECTED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 12 — (AP) — A White House disclosure today that Prime Minister Churchill had brought with him three important leaders from the India theatre of operations provided indications that the Prime Minister and President Roosevelt might place much emphasis in their conferences on strategy against Japan.

Their presence here for important war talks lent weight to the possibility that Britain and the United States might be charting new moves to assist China, perhaps by attempting to pry open the Burma Road again for a vital supply artery. President Roosevelt has promised that China will be used as a base for attacks on Japan itself.

No American Officers on Hand

White House officials said that no American officers from the Indian area, insofar as they know, have been brought to Washington for the parleys.

However, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, Commanding American forces in India, came to the capital some time ago for conferences, as did Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commanding American air forces in China. They are here now.

The possibility could not be discounted that some sort of joint sea, land and air offensive might be opened against the Japanese, but there was nothing to indicate whether that step might be the dominant major move now contemplated by the Allies.

With the trumpets of the Tunisian victory still sounding and the Allies poised to pound Europe, the Prime Minister and the President are expected to design the next step of the attack against Germany and Italy.

Five Meetings in 2 Years May Serve History As Milestone Of Second Gt. War

STARTED IN 1941

By KENNETH L. DIXON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 12—(AP)—The five meetings of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt in less than two years might well serve history as milestones of the Second Great War.

When they shook hands aboard the United States cruiser Atlanta off the Newfoundland coast on Aug. 9, 1941, Britain had survived the blackest days of the Nazi all-out bombing raids and the immediate threat of German invasion seemed somewhat allayed.

The United States was arming, but not at war. The Japanese attack was four months away—almost to the day. Out of that meeting came the Atlantic Charter.

Twenty-four hours after the United States exchanged declarations of war with Germany and Italy in the week that followed Dec. 7, 1941, Mr. Churchill left London for 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, arriving Dec. 22.

Britain, also attacked by Japan in the Pacific, had declared war on her, even as America had met the other Axis declarations. Mr. Churchill as he spoke to Congress gave a Victory salute and the statement that the end of 1942 would find the Allies "quite definitely in a better position than now," and that 1943 would find them "able to take the initiative on an ample scale." He also made an address to the Ottawa Parliament at that time.

Then 1943 seemed a long way off.

Mr. Churchill returned six months later, on June 18, 1942 and the talk then was that he was seeking more aid in Libya to battle Rommel.

That may have been the turning point, for it was then that the North African invasion was planned, although it was some five months materializing.

When the two met again in Casablanca, Jan. 14, 1943, North Africa had become the Allies' new stamping grounds.

There, the Prime Minister and the President mapped plans for 1943 offensive, agreed that nothing but "unconditional surrender" of the Axis would end the war and settled some political problems stemming from the invasion.

Good Neighbor 'Gesture' Made in Subscription

Ottawa, May 12—A "good neighbor" gesture came to light here this week, when it became known that the Investment Bankers' Associatoin of America had found a way to subscribe to Canada's Fourth Victory Loan.

The Association, which embraces firms in both countries, decided to allow the dues of its Canadian members to accumulate in Canada until after the war. The accumulation now amounts to $3,000 which was invested in Victory Bonds this week.

Bottleneck In Pussy Willow

How the hand of man can interfere with the well-ordered path of nature was demonstrated at the office of The Ontario Intelligencer today when Mr. Bert Salter, William Street, exhibited a rather unusual freak. He brought in a branch of pussy willow which had grown through the neck of a medium size glass bottle.

From the appearance of the branch, it appeared that some years ago youths had placed the bottle on the twig to be used as a target at which to shoot or to throw stones. Their marksmanship had been good as the bottle had been broken, leaving the neck still encircled around the branch. The passage of time saw the branch continue to grow with the result additional shoots appeared above the bottle neck. The peculiarity was found by Mr. Salter in the Corbyville district.

Arrest Is Made At Bancroft

Bancroft, May 12 —(Special)— Matthew Stone, aged 23 years, of Faraday township, was arrested late Monday at Martin's lumber camp, Baptiste, the day he commenced work, by Provincial Constable Palmateer on charges of breaking and entering and theft.

He was placed in jail here over night and was taken to Belleville to the county jail on Tuesday on remand until June 9th when he will appear in Bancroft police court.

Torrential Rain Storm Sweeps Quinte District

Farmers' low-lying fields today are lying inches deep in water and city sewers were running full and overflowing last night as the result of the torrential rain which descended on the Bay of Quinte district all day Tuesday and which failed to let up until an early hour Wednesday morning.

According to the rain gauge at the Belleville water filtration plant, in a period of approximaely 24 hours 2.35 inches of rain fell in the district. It was the heaviest rainfall recorded for many years.

Farmers viewed flooded low-lying fields with dismay realizing that at best it would be several days before spring cultivation could be resumed. Already spring seeding is approximately three weeks late and yesterday's rainfall will further delay the work.

Reflecting the depth of rain which has fallen during the past 24 hours, the Moira River this morning had risen several inches with the current running brown and murky, evident that much surface soil had found its way to the river as the result of the deluge.

City residents did not escape without experiencing inconvenience as a result of the heavy rain and with sewers running full many cellars in all parts of the city were reported flooded. The city engineer's department was besieged with calls for assistance in remedying flooded basement conditions. Coleman Flats took on an appearance suggestive of the early spring break-up with water lapping at the basement walls of one or two isolated dwellings.

Need $100,000,000 More From General Public

In his statement, Mr. Spinney said that applications for bonds from the general public and payroll employees, reported to National Loan headquarters up to close of business Tuesday night, totalled $292,761,750.

That figure was for the first 14 days of the 18-day campaign. It could be said 'with reasonable sureness" that another $60,000,000 would be subscribed by the end of the loan. This would raise the total to $352,761,750.

There was probably about $25,000,000 not yet reported because of delays of one kind and another—making the total probably $377,761,750. About $23,000,000 additional might be expected to come in after the close of the campaign.

"Thus," said Mr. Spinney, "our best total would appear to be around $400,000,000. This means that we require at least $100,000,000 more over the next four days if we are to obtain the full $500,000,000.

Be Ready When Canvasser Calls

This was Mr. Spinney's advice to Canadians:

"Be ready to sign your application when the (loan) canvasser calls. A lot of territory has to be covered by a canvasser in a little time.

"If you feel that he may miss you, telephone your nearest Victory Loan office and the canvasser will be sent out to take your order. Or go to your bank on trust company, wherever you keep your deposits, and make your application there.

"But—and this is most important of all—do not delay. Buy bonds of the Fourth Victory Loan now. Put your intentions into immediate action."

National Loan headquarters said today that loan support from workers in plants, offices and stores "continues to grow."

The principal worry in the loan campaign was the total subscribed by the average citizens as individuals. He said it 'looks quite definitely' as if the total of corporate and special names' subscriptions would "probably exceed its $600,000,000 goal."

$64,399,950 on Tuesday

Today's statement from loan headquarters set Tuesday's subscriptions to the loan campaign at $64,399,950, showing a stronger tendency than on Monday.

The cumulative total of $885,302,350 for the first 14 business days of the three-week drive compared with $661,281,700 at the same point in the third Victory Loan last autumn, but the objective then was only $750,000,000.

Among corporate subscriptions announced today were: Dominion Life Assurance Co., Waterloo, Ont., $3,000,000; Crown Life Insurance Co., Toronto, $2,500,000; Excelsior Life Insurance Co., Toronto, $1,700,000; National Life Assurance Co., Toronto, $600,000; Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., $1,000,000; Pacific Mills Ltd., Ocean Falls, B. C., $625,000.

The North American Companies, Toronto, subscribed $25,000 additional, making a total subscription of $525,000.

64 P. E. of Loan Subscribed

Picton, May 12—Municipalities in Princes Edward County are being paced in the Victory Loan campaign by the R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. stations. The R. A. F. here has reached 63933 per cent of it quota. Mountain View air station yesterday turned in $10,800, to obtain 90 percent of its $50,000, quota.

Returns during the first two days of the week have proved disappointing and a great rush is anticipated at the end of the week. The village of Wellington and Hillier township are leading the civilian district, but are just a fraction of a percentage of their quota ahead of North Marysburgh township which has led to date.

The County returns total $672,300 or 64 percent of its quota. The town has accounted for $249,450 or 67 percent of its quota. This district has no industries to boost the payroll savings plan but 1,003 employees of stores have subscribed the fine amount of $83,700 with four firms reporting all employees as subscribers.

Few Men in Non-Essential Work Register Under Compulsory Order

Only twelve persons so far have registered at the Belleville office under the first compulsory employment transfer order as of May 5th, it was stated here today by Mr. H. H. Reed, local National Selective Service officer.

The order which provides for the switching of workers from specified non-essential jobs to work of a higher priority affects all men coming under the National Mobilization order. Single men in the age groups 19-40 and married men 19-25 working in low priority or non-essential jobs are required to register at their nearest National Selective Service office before May 19th.

When workers in the specified non-essential industries register they are given an extension permit which permits them to continue in their present employment until their transfer into more essential work.

Local National Selective Service officials are not taking from the comparatively small number of men registering so far that workers are endeavoring to evade the order but expect they are merely waiting until the last moment. The usual last-moment rush prior to the May 19th deadline will be evident, it was expected.

Neither workers nor employers in non-essential industry will receive any individual notification regarding registration other than the proclamation which has already appeared in the press. The onus, therefore, stated Mr. Reed, rests first of all with the employee, but after May 19th, employers having employees working in non-essential industry who are not in possession of an extension permit will be held responsible for their workers' failure to register.

"We don't want to have to get tough with employees of the district working in non-essential industry but the order must be observed," stated Mr. Reed, adding that following May 19th official steps will be made to see how the order had been observed.

Mead Johnson and Co. Subscribes $175,000 for Victory Loan Bonds

Hastings county received another sizeable boost toward its objective of $3,300,000 in the Fourth Victory Loan campaign today with the receipt of a subscription from the Belleville plant of Mead Johnson and Company for a total of $175,000.

This is the fourth large subscription taken out by the above Belleville firm which has shown every co-operation to county loan committeemen during the three previous Victory Loans. In the first Victory Loan Mead Johnson and Company subscribed for $75,000 in bonds and in the last two loans $100,000 and $150,000 respectively.

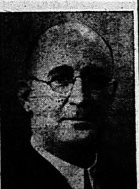
After much discussion and with feelings of regrets at the thought of losing Rev. Morrison, the members of the board felt that they could do nothing more than grant him his wishes. The transfer will take Rev. Morrison back to the area where he spent a great deal of his ministry.



Rev. H. L. Morrison, Minister of Tweed United Church, who has accepted a call to Almonte.

He came to Tweed from Kemptville through a transfer with Rev. Nicolson, pastor in Tweed at that time. General regret has been expressed on all sides since the announcement has been made as Mr. Morrison has been decidedly popular, not only with members of the United Church, but with all citizens of the village.

Mr. Morrison has been deeply interested in Young People's work and has taken an active interest in all community affairs. He has also been a member of the high school board for the past year.

Rev. McQuade

His successor in Tweed, Rev. McQuade, graduated from Victoria College, Toronto, and began his ministry at West Huntingdon. He served in the pulpit at Oshawa for eight years. He was president of the Bay of Quinte conference and was three times chairman of the presbyteries in which he was stationed.

Mr. McQuade is a well known and highly qualified minister and while Mr. Morrison's departure is much regretted the United Church congregation is fortunate in securing a man of Mr. McQuade's calibre.

BAILEY—In loving memory of Nettie Bailey, who quietly slipped away May 12th., 1942, at Saranac Lake, N.Y., and her husband, who passed away August 16th., 1940.

Dear is the grave where dear Nettie was laid,
Dear is the memory that never shall fade.
God called her Home, it was His will,
But in my heart I love her still.
Tears in silence often flow,
Though you died one year ago.
Your last parting wish we would like to have heard,
And breathed in your ear one last parting word.
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain in your heart at not saying farewell.

Dear Jim:
Only a memory of bygone days,
And a sigh for a face unseen,
But a constant feeling that God alone
Knows just what should have been.

Interesting Companions Found On Train From London to Glasgow

(By SCOTT YOUNG)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 12. (CP)—A train trip in Britain is nothing like it is in Canada, even apart from the obvious differences such as the lack there of little pubs within sprinting distance (for a fast man) on every large town's station platform.

The degrees of comfort vary, too, the berths here are not quite as good, but the ordinary first-class accommodation is better than our chair-cars, except when you have to stand. The third-class accommodation is not bad, but usually crowded.

My longest trip so far has been from London to Glasgow, and back, up by night and down by afternoon and evening. And apart from all the differences in train styles the thing most striking was the friendliness of the people, their willingness to talk, and their interest in Canada. There is one Scottish consulting engineer and one Northern Ireland exporters who know now the story of Louis Riel.

The Irishman was in my carriage on the way up. He had a light and charming brogue, talked at length about the problems of the six counties of Northern Ireland, and surprisingly enough expressed considerable sympathy for De Valera.

"He's pro-allied enough, of that I'm sure", he said "It's his people that keep him from following his own beliefs. The I.R.A. is very formidable. It is so anti-British and with such a following that he wouldn't dare to do anything but remain neutral. Eire is having its troubles, mainly brought on by herself, of course, but the country is facing up to them.

"In Northern Ireland (where there is no conscription) all the fit young men of Loyalist families have joined the army and their record is rather good. But there is a lot of I.R.A. sympathy there too, and the influence of Eire is strong among many families".

Interestingly enough, he compared Northern Ireland to Quebec, thinking there was no conscription in Quebec. He knows better now, and knows about the Alouette squadron, and the names of some of the Quebec regiments like Fusiliers Mont Royal.

We were in third-class berths, because first-class sleeping accommodation, which corresponds to a Canadian sleeping car bedroom is almost impossible to obtain.

There are four bunks in each third-class sleeping carriage, and you sleep on the bunk with one pillow and a gray blanket. The practice is to sleep with your clothes on, which is hard on clothes. A few hardy characters, like S. Young, used pyjamas, much to the amusement of the other passengers.

Then came the gloomy Scottish port, a jaunt into the country for a day to see survivors of the Canadian Corvette Weyburn, a return to the city for a good lunch of haggis and mashed potatoes (24 cents) in a pub, changing my ticket to first class for the return journey, and a wait for the train to come in.

Our carriage was full, but there was no talking until about tea-time, when Andrew MacLean, an engineer whose job is to inspect war-damaged ships and list repairs, offered me part of his lunch. There are no diners on most trains. I accepted a sandwich of the tasteless chopped meat that is one of the major horrors of war in this country, and a thermos cup of real milk. He must know somebody in the war cabinet to get that milk.

He talked social reform for a while, and told me that he had a big house in what had been a good district, but was now a slum. He and his wife are shelter wardens in their district in London, and were all through the blitz. He told they had been bombed out of their home a couple of times by near misses, but had managed to move back in.

He said the numbers of people who used his shelter fluctuated through the blitz until there were 50 a night. The bad raids lasted right up until Christmas that year, 1940.

"We decided that we'd have a Christmas dinner, raids or no raids", he said. "We worked all Christmas afternoon to get things ready.

"It was a lovely dinner. We prayed, and sang carols, and had a fine time. And just before the raids usually started, the other women helped my wife clear up and we got all ready. But there were no raids that night. We all slept well, and I remember thinking that this was a kind of peace on earth that couldn't have been foreseen in the Bible. It made that Christmas something very holy for us, that peace".

We automatically started to adjust the blackout on the train windows, and when we sat down again he looked at me and smiled.

"It is a strange thing", he said, "but after this war is over, when I try to remember the blitz raids, I think I'll eventulally forget the people who were killed, and the bad nights we had, and think of that Christmas in 1940. That hymn 'Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men' has meant something extremely personal to me since that night".

Kinsmen Club Increases "Fag" Shipment to Boys

Increasing the shipment of cigarettes to Belleville boys overseas by exactly fifty percent, the Kinsmen "Fag Fund" commenced its tenth circle of the complete list of names this week, Chairman Matt Currie announced today. "In the past the Fund has been sending 12,000 cigarettes weekly to 40 Belleville lads overseas. However, with the daily increasing in numbers the Fund commenced the shipment of 18,000 cigarettes weekly, which means that 60 of our local boys are sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes each week. With an increase of fifty percent in our shipments it naturally means we will require an equivalent increase in our finances,' pointed out Chairman Currie in explanation.

Thirty-six letters were received from overseas last week each reply expressing thanks for the continued flow of Canadian cigarettes and stressing hopes for the continuance of the Kinsmen "Fag Fund." One was from Ted Doyle, dated December 12th, 1942, and mailed in Africa.

Lieut. George Laughlin wrote to say his Kinsmen fags were able to relieve a serious shortage, as Eddie Lee, also of Belleville, was without smokes at the time and Lieut. Laughlin shared his parcel. Lieut. Fred Symons sent regards to his fellow Kinsmen and thanks for fags, as did P. R. Thorn. Tpr. Bob Boomhour wrote to have included five additional names of Belleville boys needing fags. They were Johnny O'Neil, Eric Hatfield, Vic Mason and the two Chumbly boys. Chairman Currie immediately added names not already on the Kinsmen list. After writing to express thanks for the regularity in which he receives smokes from the Kinsmen, Bert Rushworth added in his letter that Don Thomas, Tom Sherry, Bud Lickfold, Bill Holway and other Belleville boys in his unit were all enjoying good health. "A good Canadian cigarette is worth its weight in gold over here" wrote Gnr. J. R. Miller, while the entire 36 replies all carried similar messages to the Kinsmen and people of Belleville urging the continuance of sending Canadian fags overseas.

The sixty Belleville lads sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes this week included: Jack LeRoy Adams, Owen Atkins, Gerald Atyeo, W. H. Bedford, Grant Blakely, M. I. Browning, Lloyd J. The Thunderbolt

Historians will write many a time the story of the Battle of Tunisia. Ages hence will be told how the three United Nations, British, Americans and Frenchmen dealt the most crushing defeat upon the Axis in the last phases of this struggle. Like the thunderbolt of Mars with matchless power, Briton, Yankee and Frenchman sent the haughty Hun and the Italian as if they have been knocked off their feet, reeling before the fury of lightning war. Poet's pens will have ample subject matter and an unfailing well of heroism, inspiration and glory to draw upon to depict the deeds of the Eighth and First British armies, the American army and the gallant Gallic allies, the airmen, the seamen and the soldiers. Fused into one powerful tool of war, the three nations' forces hit irresistible blows, which they knew the enemy could not survive.

The sky, lurid with smoke and flame, filled in the picture of this lightning storm which struck the Axis armies. No wonder General Alexander called his First Army drive forward through the enemy for thirty miles in 36 hours "a real thunderbolt."

The United Nations had forged a weapon which has baffled and surprised the enemy because no power could endure it.

When the democratic peoples go to war to thrash scoundrels like Hitler and Mussolini let no German or Italian or Jap ever claim that the free nations are effete and soft. The Axis knew before what democratic freedom can produce in a people but they allowed their frenzied Fuehrer and his sycophants and the German forces and even the people to believe democratic peoples were weak. Hitler exalted his Germanic deities of wood and stone but these crude conceptions of Nazism never had life and so they blinded the Hun in his folly.

The free nations have shown that there is in democracy and the ordinary way of life of plain citizens something that breeds heroes who can turn from civilian life to that of soldier and perform great deeds because their hearts are set on the right things. The German, feeding on envy, malice, hatred, brutality and calculated butchery, lacks the comfort of the right things. His false gods and idols of aggression and tyrannical power like witches beguile the mad fool Hitler and his Nazis to the supreme criminal folly of warring on the peaceful nations of the earth.

Shattering Blows

Never in history was so swift and so mighty and so shattering a blow dealt against an enemy as that against the Germans and Italians in Tunisia. Day by day knowledge of the full measure of the United Nations' victory in which Allied forces swept into the ports of Tunis and Bizerte to drive the remnants of the powerful Axis into the hills or Cap Bon peninsula, is growing with thousands upon thousands of Axis prisoners surrendering to the Allies and with the broken enemy caught in the very narrow space between the United Nations forces and the sea. Collapse of the enemy forces is everywhere expected so deadly a blow has been levelled with a strategy which has outdone the Hun and his associates at every turn. German blitzkrieg, effective early in the war is a secondhand method today compared with the United Nations' lightning attack.

The past few months have seen large enemy armies in North Africa retreating and now broken up. In the disaster at Stalingrad, Germany lost hundreds of thousands before Russian strategy and now in North Africa there are weakening remnants of Axis power, trapped between the victorious Britons, Americans and French and the sea. So pass the von Arnim and Rommel armies, following on the greatest chase in history, the pursuit after the Germans and Italians across about two thousand miles of African north coast by General Montgomery and his gallant Eighth Army.

Staggering blows have been struck at Axis prestige and sense of security.

The enemy world waits in deep concern the next blow. Whence will it come and where will it fall?

Blows that have shaken Hitlerism have reverberated through Germany and Italy. How is the Axis going to stand still heavier blows? For they will fall freighted with still greater destruction than has been experienced by the enemy in Tunisia.

The Axis now knows what superior Allied air power means. The Germans and Italians have tottered before it, stunned by something, which however much they feared it, they could not fully understand until it gave them the knockout blow in North Africa.

Those Old-Age Claims

(Kitchener Record)

Perhaps, as one columnist says, the world would get along much better if it forgot some of its history. Much of the trouble which arose between many small nations after the last war was caused by what he calls "too long memories." Just because a Rumanian king in the 12th century conquered such-and-such city, the country claimed right to the same place seven centuries later. There would be a tremendous upheaval in the world if such claims were recognized generally.

What would happen on this continent if similar issues were revived? Britain could lay claim to the United States because they once were British colonies. France would come along and prove her right to own Canada only to have the Indians take over because they were here before anyone else.

Imagine what a scramble there would be if the whole globe were unscrambled and reestablished on such a priority basis!

Color of the Ocean

(Guelph Mercury)

Canadian troops stationed as observers in Tunisia have commented frequently on the blue water of the Mediterranean.

Pure ocean water has a clear blue color because salt water does not absorb the blue rays of sunlight as it does the red rays. The proverbial blue of the Mediterranean is due to the fact that there are few large streams carrying impurities into it, and there is a constant stream of salt water pouring into it from the Atlantic.

The blueness of sea water depends largely upon its saltiness. The Arctic and Antarctic Oceans, which are cold and not very salty, are vivid green in color. The Yellow Sea is golden because of the sediment brought to it by large streams arising in the desert of Western China, and the dull red tint of the Red Sea arises from millions of microscopic plants called algae. The Gulf Stream is marked by a clear blue ribbon of warm water in the Atlantic.

Fish Story

(Australian Press Union)

The man lived at a boatshed built over the water in one of the arms of Sydney Harbor. One night he wanted both to fish and to sleep, so he baited a hook and threw it out of his bedroom window and tied one end of the line round his waist. A mighty jerk during the night nearly dragged him through the window and he won the subsequent fight. He produced a nine-foot black whaler shark and marks round his waist to prove his story.

Whale Steak

(Time)

Whale tenderloin looks and tastes a great deal like beef. Usually used for animal food, for human consumption it can be corned and canned or broiled as fresh steaks. A full whale steak is 15 feet long, weighs five to seven tons; a single whale has as much meat as 125 steers.

HOSPITAL

This is the house of man's nobler side,
The roof of his tenderest care,
This is what gives him the right to pride.
Here is his will to share.

In one pure, unselfish plan.
The finest use man has made of ground
Since ever the race began.

Nothing is here in the name of gain
Or advantage for self entire.
All is to lessen the sting of pain
And the burning of fever's fire.

This is a hospital, large or small,
Where mercy and skill abide;
Perhaps of man's works, the best of all
By which he is justified.

Let him that would move the world, first move himself.—Socrates.

Some Thoughts on the Future of Europe

New York, May 12 — The failure of the United Nations to project a constructive vision of the future of Europe may prolong this war unnecessarily. It plays into the hands of the European Axis and gives them their most effective propaganda material. It gives rise to dissension among the Allies over questions of influence, frontiers and power.

We are, I think, wasting our intellectual energies trying to find the answers to the wrong questions. Such questions are: What shall we do with defeated Germany? Or: What concessions shall we make to the Poles or to Russia? Or: Does Austria belong to the Danubian Basin

None of these questions is soluble except in the framework of a European solution. Therefore we must ask ourselves the leading question: What do we wish for Europe?

We are avoiding that question. We are saying: Europe will have to decide that when she is liberated. That is intellectual cowardice. For what will be the status of Europe after liberation? The whole economic and political structure of Europe has been changed by the Nazis. And all the king's horses and all the king's men will not be able to put Humpty-Dumpty together again, on the pattern of 1939.

Pertinent Questions.

The questions we must ask ourselves about Europe are: Do we want a strong, prosperous Europe or a poor, weak Europe? Do we want a modern Europe or a medieval Europe? Do we want a Europe which, in the future, as in the past, will be a source of new wars?

If our answer to these questions is that we want a prosperous, modern, peaceful Europe, then we must create a new Europe, recognizing certain principles that we ourselves have long since accepted.

A prosperous, modern and peaceful Europe is incompatible with the re-establishment of 20-odd sovereign States, each with its own army, customs, currency and diplomacy. It was such a Europe that disintegrated in this war, and such a Europe will disintegrate again before the first push of a strong power.

The strongest political weapon that Hitler has in his armory is his program for the unification of Europe. Hitler started this war for Germanic lebensraum and the hegemony of a master nation and by his brutality toward conquered peoples has alienated them. But Hitler will use any slogans for his own end. Today he is using progressive ideas preached by modern Liberals for the past quarter of a century.

We, on the other hand, have let the concepts of Mazzini, Romaine Rolland, Kleist, Briand, and even of the Christian Church, gather dust.

Support Outworn Concept.

We are supporting an eighteenth century concept for Europe, not a twentieth century one. The United States of Europe must be created if Europe is to survive. The historic tendencies, everywhere, are toward the creation of larger units. But, the great democracies choose reactionary policies, timid, unimaginative, uncreative.

Hitler is unifying Europe by sword and fire for the sake of Germanic power. Why should we not project the unification of Europe for the sake of Europe, and the world?

There is nothing new in this idea. The most illumined spirits of Europe have preached it for half a century. It has been forwarded by examples outside Europe — the United States of America, the emergence of the British Commonwealth out of Empire, and lastly, as the most modern example of federation, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Europe is a cultural, economic and historic entity. Its characteristic is that of unity with diversity. Its most truly representative State and its most stable one is the little Confederation of Switzerland. And the greater honor you can do a Frenchman, Italian, German, Dutchman, Czech or Pole is to call him a good European.

The division of Europe into a score of sovereign States has resulted in two Europes—the highly industrialized and modern Western and Central States that have lived by exporting goods, and the backward agricultural Southern, Southwestern and Eastern States that have, for generations, exported people. The world has not wanted to accept either the goods or the people, and the disunity of Europe has made it impossible for them to feed and serve each other.

The tyranny of Hitler has broken this spell. Hitler has been forced, by the logic of his own war, to accomplish a historic act. It is foolish to underrate it. It is necessary to break the tyranny, but not again to disintegrate Europe. We must Europeanize every nation, re-establish Europe's historic yearnings for freedom and equality; free Europe fom the hegemony of a dominant power; and emerge from this war not only as the liberator of the nations, but as the unifier of a Free Europe.

If we do we shall be beloved for all time. If we do not we shall, I fear, have all Europe against us, the day after tomorrow.

To Be Continued.

Petticoats Rule Range Country

Grants, N.M., May 12 —(AP)— Petticoats — literally — are ruling the range country. Rancher Floyd W. Lee tried hiring 80 Navajo Indian women as sheep herders, and said men herders were never like this. Each squaw wears at least a dozen flaring, gypsy skirts, he explained — doffing them as needed to wrap up chilled, newly-born lambs.

Curfew Puts Camp Dogs In Dog House at 9

Gunter Field, Ala., May 12. (AP) —It's in the dog house each night for the canine pets of this military post. It was great sport the dogs enjoyed, officers said, chasing M.P.'s through the streets, but it's all over —curfews sound at 9 p.m. nightly now. Dogs caught wandering the post streets after curfew will be confined to the dog house, located just behind the guard house.

TENNESSEE JOHNSON

He has been the only man to serve in the Senate after having been President.

He gave us the phrase "swing around the circle" in the sense of a presidential tour of the country for political purposes.

One of the cherished legends of American history is that Andrew Johnson was taught to read and write by his own wife.

The fact is, however, that Johnson, although he had no formal schooling whatever, had taught himself to read and write before he ever went to Tennessee and met Eliza McCardle, whom he married when she was 16 and he was 19. His wife, the daughter of a Scotch shoemaker, had a fair education for a girl of her age in that time and part of the country and was of considerable assistance to her husband in his pursuit of learning.

Johnson was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, in 1808, and was only about nine weeks older than Abraham Lincoln, who he succeeded as President.

When Johnson was ten years old he was apprenticed to a tailor for a term of eight years. After six years of virtual slavery he ran away from the tailor and settled in Greenville, Tennessee, where he became a tailor.

Andrew Johnson did not believe in middle names and none of his five children were given more than one name. Of his three sons and two daughters, only the oldest daughter, Martha, ever married.

He started his political career as alderman and held consecutively the offices of mayor, state representative, state senator, representative in Congress, U. S. senator, governor, military governor, vice-president, president, and finally senator again. He was proud of the fact that he had "swung around the circle from alderman to President," and that was the first application of the famous phrase "swing around the circle."

Originally a tailor by trade, Johnson was always neat in appearance. He was one of the few public men of his day who started out every day with a bath.

He loved children and observed his 60th birthday in the White House by entertaining 400 children. His wife, the youngest bride to become First Lady, was an invalid while Johnson was in the White House and was able to attend only two receptions.

Truk Island: A Jap Fortress

From the British News-Review.

If you were to draw a straight line from the bloodstained beaches of Guadalcanal, up through the hot, blue reaches of the Pacific to Tokyo, it would fall across the tiny island of Truk.

No white man worth the name has visited that strange place for many years. If any white man did, it was with insidious purpose and traitorous intent, for the island of Truk has been closed to all but the friends of Tokyo for 10 years past.

There in the vast Pacific silence, 2,200 miles from Tokyo, 1,300 miles from the Solomons and 2,150 miles from the steaming Philippines, bare-backed little men from Japan sweated for a decade on the coral atoll that is Truk. And there, while the world little cared nor long remembered, they built a vast naval base equalled in the Pacific only by Pearl Harbor, 3,500 miles distant.

With almost comic-opera technique their espionage agents clicked their Leica shutters and their Oriental tongues at Pearl Harbor, but the island of Truk was hidden from the outside world with the same exasperating "So-sorry-but-to-hell-with-you" technique which Japan used so successfully as a substitute for diplomacy.

Japan came by Truk (one of the Caroline Islands) as a post-World War gift. The Carolines had been German property. Defying the League of Nations, the Japs began fortifying the islands in the thirties. By 1934 and the invasion of Manchuria, Tokyo was feeling cocky enough to set to work on Truk.

Down the 2,200 sea-miles from Tokyo came a long procession of convoys carrying guns and equipment, dredges and artillery. The Jap apparently had his plans made in advance.

The dredgers sent their smoke up against the cloudless sky for month after month while the harbor was scooped out—a fantastic place, big enough to hold the entire Japanese Pacific fleet. They built dockyards, carved airdromes out of the land which long ago was just a pile of coral. They planted big 14 and 16-inch guns capable of sending massive shells whining 25 miles out to sea. They built a submarine base and two drydocks.

It was an era of wonderful nonsense, when Britain was spending millions on "impregnable" Singapore, and foreign correspondents were describing it as the Fortress of the Pacific, as though it were some impressive Hollywood spectacle.

With the Jap it was a case of the less publicity the better; publicity could come later. And so the yellow men slaved and sweated, and barred all visitors from fabulous Truk.

Ottawa, May 11 (CP) — The steamship "Northholm," wrecked Jan. 16 on the Pacific coast with a loss of 15 lives was "not in a fit condition to proceed on the contemplated voyage" when it left port Alice for Vancouver, it was found by court of investigation, the report of which was announced today by Transport Minister Michaud.

The court attributed the ship's condition to the way the cargo was loaded and said this was "at least a contributing factor to the disaster that followed."

A Chimp's Premonitions

Monkeys seem intuitively to sense danger from the air. We remember the late Cherry Kearton talking in a BBC studio many years ago about a chimpanzee he had with him in Africa during the last war. The "chimp" was very much a one-man animal, but she became greatly attached to a young airman. She would sit on the roof of Kearton's car, watch her young friend take off, and remain there scanning the sky until he returned. One day when he came to say a jaunty good-bye before going up, she put her arms round his neck and tried to stop him going. When he got in the air she started to cry and instead of watching for him as usual, she covered her eyes with her hands, tears running down her face. The young airman did not come back.—BBC London Letter.

An Eastern Canadian Port—(CP)—Another 10,000 ton cargo ship for Canada's growing merchant navy was launched here yesterday, christened the S. S. Port Norfolk.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal—a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Call up the reserves!

The attack must not fail

Fresh troops, extra support, renewed effort, are needed to clinch the victory.

Such a moment as this has arrived in Canada's 4th Victory Loan Campaign. There are only three more days in which to go "over the top."

The bugle is calling up those "reserve dollars." They are needed to make victory sure.

Are YOU confident you've done ALL you can? Or are you holding something in "reserve"?

The reserves are needed now. The bugle is calling YOU!

If there is some way you can buy a bond . . . or ANOTHER bond . . . by pledging future earnings, by getting your bank to help, by tightening your belt a little more . . . as the boys "over there" must tighten theirs when the bugle sounds . . . do it NOW!

Over there, where failure means death, they're watching us. We mustn't let them down.

Bring up the reserves! If you haven't bought a Bond, buy one NOW. If you have already bought, buy AGAIN.

Legion Conference At Smiths Falls

Zone representative of the auxiliary to the Canadian Legion B. E. S. L., Comrade Mrs. V. M. Camken and Comrade Mrs. W. Styles, President of Belleville Branch, attended the district meeting of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. held on Sunday in Smiths Falls. They were among the guests of honor on the platform at the meeting. Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions and National Health, spoke to the members of the work his department had done in the past and the preparations it is making now for the comfort and security in the years to follow the close of hostilities. "When the boys return," he said, "we as legion members have a duty to perform for them as leaders, to see they do not make the same mistakes that the veterans of the last war did and to lead them into a new and better way of living."

There was about three hundred veterans in attendance, who paraded at noon to the war memorial in Victoria Park, where Tom Magladeny, New Liskeard, Ont., Provincial Command Pres., deposited a wreath in memory of comrades who had given their lives.

Those on the platform were Bert H. Soper, Smiths Falls, Lanark M.P., who extended greetings to the delegates; W. T. Burke, Toronto, Prov. Sec.; J. H. Henvig, Ottawa Dominion Sec.; L. P. Cunningham, St. Catharines, Prov. Chairman; Sgt. Pilot Bob Fraser, R.C.A.F., Smiths Falls and Prov. Pres., Tom Magladeny

Much business was carried out and many resolutions passed for the welfare of all those who have been in service. It was resolved to give the legion work more publicity and also to endeavor to amalgamate all veterans and service clubs under one banner. It is also being arranged in the very near future to hold a meeting in Belleville for the purpose of reforming a branch of the Legion, which is missed in this city.

Chinese Missionary Addresses W.M.S.

The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held in the church parlors on May 7, with Miss Brown presiding.

The business consisted of reports from the following secretaries: Correspondence, flower, Christian-citizenship and temperance and the treasurer.

Mrs. Truesdale gave an excellent synopsis of the Belleville Presbyterial, recently held in Bridge St. Church.

Mrs. Longley's addresses at both afternoon and evening sessions were outstanding in the information given and in the enthusiasm of the speaker. Mrs. Longley's years in China from 1907 to 1937 gave her an opportunity to see that great nation in two totally different eras of development. The one, the foot-binding of women and the exclusion of women from social, educational and political life; the other, the freedom and the liberation of the mind so that today Chinese girls and women are taking part in all branches of service as much as those of our own land. Mrs. Longley's sympathy and love for Chinese women and children and her unstinted devotion to them left a profound impression on her audience.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Thomas and her group on the theme: "Canada's Youth in the Forces and the Factories." Mrs. Baker was in charge of the worship service assisted by Mrs. Maguire and Mrs. W. H. Finkle. The church should stand as a great fortress for the youth of the land, physically, morally and spiritually. The effectiveness of the church depends on the spirituality of its members. It is a task to be accomplished through prayer and work.

Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Gerrie, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Osborne, Miss Brown and Miss Reeves presented interesting information on the means being employed by the United Church in different centres to help the young men and women who have enlisted in the service of the country, both in the armed forces and industry; also in reaching out a friendly hand to the wives of the men who have been uprooted from their homes and church fellowships.

Kiwanis Proud Of Blood Clinic

Probably one of the greatest projects ever attempted by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville was the sponsorship of the Blood Donor Clinic under the Red Cross banner. This project has grown to such an extent that the activities of the Club are almost exclusively devoted to this phase of the war effort. The generosity of an honorary member of the club, Lt. Col. P. H. (Phay) Wills, made possible the fine Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East, where the Clinics are held. This building has been thoroughly renovated and decorated at a great expense by the Kiwanis Club and with its beautiful lawns is one of the show places of the city.

Every member of the club has taken an active interest in the welfare of the Clinic and Charles Richardson, chairman of the Blood Donors Committee and his associates on the committee have labored strenuously to see that the Clinic stands high in the province with respect to donations. Since the inception of the Clinic, which took place in June, 1942, 6,066 donations have been given and to all who have made this possible, the donors, doctors, attendants, officials and friends, the thanks of the club are given.

Besides housing the Blood Donors Clinic, other war activities are carried on within its walls and it is probably the most active war centre in the City of Belleville. The Kiwanis Club appreciates the many kindnesses that have been shown by all citizens in the many projects they have undertaken since the club was founded in 1923 with the hope that the club may continue to flourish in order to assist those less fortunate than ourselves.

HINTED

The commuting British leader arrived last night on his third wartime trip to Washington, accompanied by a staff of military and naval experts.

As he and Mr. Roosevelt sat down to bring the enemy still closer to their "unconditional surrender" demands, the Tunisian success swept offensive strategy to a point where the United Nations High Command could start activating plans for the next blow—plans undoubtedly blocked out at previous meetings between the two leaders and now due to be perfected and extended.

With no White House comment forthcoming as to the specific nature of the Washington discussions, speculation ran free. Informed persons here saw no reason to believe, however, that previously-laid strategy would be shifted—for instance, to provide for concentrating against Japan rather than Germany.

The expectation was rather that talks based on the situation surrounding the European invasion would be political rather than military, since the problems of the peace come constantly nearer as Allied armies advance.

Informed London observers, on the other hand, said flatly that war strategy was the prime purpose of the conference although conceding political problems involved in invasion plans undoubtedly were being discussed—as well as co-ordination of Russian and other Allied moves.

Benes Expected at Parley

In connection with the internal European problems expected to attend an invasion, it was noted that President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia was due to arrive in Washington late today, also for conferences with Mr. Roosevelt. Head of the government in London of the republic which Hitler dismembered, Benes was expected to present his plans for a post-war federation of central and eastern Europe, friendly to/Soviet Russia.

Whether he would join the Churchill-Roosevelt discussions was not disclosed. Also on the scene, although not as a member of the official party from England, is Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher and former British cabinet member.

Background Military

In any case, the background for the discussions is certain to be military and the pattern of future operations appears to call (1) for a supreme attempt to crack Hitler's "European fortress" wide open this summer and (2) for an offensive again Japan employing the most powerful forces yet thrown into Pacific fighting.

Military experts emphasized that the clean-up of North Africa was a major contribution to projected operations in the Pacific as well as in Europe. Final conquest of Africa's Mediterranean coast line, it was said, will re-open the Mediterranean to United Nations shipping, cutting the distance from North American east coast ports to the Middle East, Southern Russia and India by about 5,000 miles.

Despite Axis possession of Sardinia and Sicily, it is believed that Allied airpower can control the skies over those enemy air bases and discourage attacks on shipping.

Save Tons of Shipping Space

The time saved on the shorter run equals hundreds of thousands of new tons of shipping space. This applies equally to cruisers and destroyers used in convoy duty and as a result some may be shifted to the Pacific or used to protect North Atlantic convoys.

Since shipping is the key to United Nations power in any single war theatre, experts said the strain of speeding the Pacific campaign will thus be greatly eased.

Informed but unofficial opinion here is that one of the first major Pacific strokes may be a sea-air drive to throw the Japanese off Kiska and Attu Islands at the western tip of the Aleutians.

This would clear the way for air attacks — and possibly naval raids —against Japanese bases in the Kuriles Islands north of Japan, and might furnish the jumping-off point for long-distance air raids on Tokyo by new super-bombers. These are understood to be capable of making the 4,000-mile round-trip or of flying on across Japan to bases in inland China.

However, it seems unlikely that early action directly against Japan will originate from China. Allied forces there are dependent, so far as is known, on supplies flown in from India and the quantity still seems to be relatively small.

Newsman Tells His Impressions Of Acting As Gunner on Large Tank

(By ROSS MUNRO)
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, May 12.—(CP)—A battle practice run as a gunner (temporary and decidedly a novice) in a tank of the Lord Strathcona's horse from Winnipeg and Calgary gives a fellow ideas of dropping this war-reporting business and going in for tank gunnery.

If there is anyone in the army who has a more exciting time than a tank gunner I'd like to find him. There are thousands of these gunners here and more to come from home. He's the killer in the tank. The whole tank is built around him and his gun. The other four in the crew are there to help him get on his target.

During an afternoon with the Straths at a tank-firing range, I rode around with a crew while they were banging away at targets and when it was over an officer said: "If you really want to know about the gunners you better take over the job and see for yourself."

Load With Ammunition

So we loaded up the ram tank with ammunition— two-foot long shells and belt of machine-gun bullets. Tpr. Pat Lafferty of Montreal, the loader-operator, climbed in among his ammunition on the right side of the Canadian-made six-pounder gun in the turret and I gingerly dropped into the gunner's seat. Tpr. Leonard Brown of Wood Mountain, Sask., the driver, got into his bow seat and Tpr. George Brock of Edmonton, the co-driver, climbed in beside him.

Sgt. Bill May of Winnipeg stood up in the turret as crew commander and putting on our earphones we rumbled off. Two other tanks followed us for this battle shoot.

I pressed my eye against the gun sight, grabbed the lever for traversing the turret by the left hand and another lever which moves it up and down by the right hand. The gun was to be fired by foot. I began to feel about as competent for this complicated business as a one-armed typesetter.

Fires Machine-Gun

As the sergeant ordered I moved the turrent around towards the targets he selected and then he said "give them a squirt of machine-gun".

Down went my foot. There was a chattering sound and watching through the sights, with its crossed airlines and graticules marking different ranges, I saw the tracer spraying all over the place. I juggled around with the levers until I got it approximately near the targets and by that time we were past them and down the range for the shoot with the big gun.

Needs Much Skill

I realized even then how skilful a tank gunner has to be—how quick of eye, how rapid in decision and how movement of his arms and legs and eyes all have to be coordinated. It takes a lot of careful training.

I heard the breach click as Tpr. Lafferty loaded the six-pounder gun. I couldn't pick up the target among the hillocks so we traversed the turret to another one—a big black board against a brown slope.

I sweated away with the sighting and finally got the crossed hairs on the target. The sergeant said "fire when ready" and I pressed my foot on the pedal.

The gun roared, the tank jumped. I jumped as if hit by a heavyweight, my eyes, unused to his sort of thing, were nearly blinded by the flash of the gun seen through the sight and I smelled the pungent cordite.

Aim Not So Good

I saw the red-hot tracer shell careen off towards the target like a slightly-sliced brassie shot. I thought to myself "you've still got that slice even in a tank".

Smoke and dirt clouded the target but the other tanks were on it too and nobody knew who hit what.

Tpr. Lafferty kept loading and I kept firing as the sergeant ordered. I could hear the dull boom of the other tanks around me, interspersed with the rattle of their machine-guns.

Real battle wasn't much different to this, I kept thinking, except that we'd probably be jolted around by shells hitting us by now. The range was close.

Then moving targets crossed our sights and I aimed on them. "Fire just a little bit ahead of them", said the sergeant in the din. I ranged away three or four more rounds, getting as excited about the job by this time as a pilot on his first fighter sweep. Tracer bullets and shells seemed to be cluttering up the range as we hammered away.

With ammunition all gone, he withdrew and I climbed out of the tank envying the tank gunner for the job he has.

They generally check the scores but this time they didn't. I felt a great relief at that.

HITLER GIRDING

he is now in Washington.

(The Columbia Broadcasting system, however, recorded a late night broadcast from Berlin to South America which said: "It is reported from London that Churchill is now in Washington.")

Instead, the German people were told that Hitler, whose headquarters had long been described as on the Eastern front, now is at an unspecified point in the West; that Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi Minister of Munitions, reported to Hitler yesterday on the construction of "The Atlantic Wall"; and that "victory without compromise" would remain the goal for which Germany and her partners are striving.

The Axis itself termed the next phase in the global war "The Battle for Germany."

Not Prove So Easy

The Algiers radio said the anti-war slogans are appearing in Italy and the German radio lent its voice to quiet Italian fears. It quoted Il Duce's Popolo D'Italia as saying that "the British and American landing in Italy will not prove so easy as bombing Italian towns..."

Cairo dispatches reiterated previous reports that Field Marshal Rommel, who left Africa in time to avoid the stigma of the Tunisian debacle, has assumed command of the Axis defence of the Balkans.

German civilians in Bulgaria are being forced to leave the country, reports reaching Cairo today said. Nazi authorities, these reports declared, are using pressure to increase the number leaving for the Fatherland, and 600 already have left and another 1,000 may go shortly.

Meanwhile, an indication of what might have touched off the German radio's "fishing trip" report that Prime Minister Churchill, and possibly President Roosevelt, were attending a Cairo conference came from Reuters.

A conference is under way there, the British news service said, attended by R. G. Casey, British Minister of State to the Far East; Vice-Admiral Sir Ralph Leatham, Commander-in-Chief of the Levant; Field Marshal Lord Gort; Gen. Sir Maitland M. Wilson, Middle East Commander-in-Chief; Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry R. Pownall, Commander in Iran and Iraq; and Sir Charles Wooley, Governor of Cyprus.

HAVE YOU A RELATIVE OR FRIEND IN CANADA'S ARMED FORCES?.. WOULD YOU GIVE SOME BLOOD TO HELP SAVE HIS LIFE?

This message is not designed to worry or alarm you if you have a loved one overseas. Its purpose is to emphasize the need for donations of blood. We sincerely hope that your boy will not be wounded or injured in any way. But war is cruel and some soldiers do suffer wounds. There is a possibility that some day your brother or son or sweetheart or friend may need a blood transfusion.

In that emergency you would gladly respond. But in order to be ready if that emergency should occur, you must respond today. We on the home front must support the men in the battle line with everything we have, including our blood. If your relative never needs this help, someone else's relative will.

BE A BLOOD DONOR...

What an honorable service—to back up with your blood those who are fighting to save you!

Our own boys in battle dress manning the front-line defences; those heroic civilians living beneath the shadow of death need not die if your blood can save their lives.

You may not be able to join them, but your blood can blend with theirs in common sacrifice.

Shell-torn, bomb-wrecked, flame-seared bodies will live if they can receive transfusions immediately. Even a pint of blood may mean a life saved—and it costs you only the prick of a needle.

THE KIWANIS CLUB OF BELLEVILLE

Belleville Kiwanians Greet International President, Fred McAlister

Belleville Kiwanis Club Was Sponsored By Kingston Club and Founded in May, 1923

George Griffin, Former Secretary And Past President of the Club, Turns Back The Clock To Give History of Organization

FINE RECORD OF PUBLIC SERVICE

(By GEORGE H. GRIFFIN)

How often we have wished that it was possible to turn back the clock for a few hours or perhaps a day or a year, yes; sometimes we have wished that we could turn back time for many years, so that we could catch up upon the good things we had intended to do, or as a means of erasing from those spent years, some "unimportant" or "unlikeable" things and substituting therefore, some worth while events which we have learned too late in life to be more important.

Such is the usual retrospect of men as they grow older in life. It is often said in Kiwanis that men never grow old because they really never have time. Members are usually busy men in their own line of business and in addition they have to fit in the extra pleasures of serving others, through service club work. What is said in this respect of Kiwanis is equally true of all Service clubs, for they all do a noble piece of work.

First President Reminisces

As an ex-secretary and a past-president, in fact the first president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, I have been asked to write a few reminiscences of the days between 1923 and 1940, as it applies to Kiwanis. What a wide open request that could be, and if I were an able writer it might easily be published in book form and become a classic, for as it is often said, "Truth reads more interesting than fiction" and certainly in so far as the Belleville Kiwanis Club is concerned, their accomplishments do read like fiction at the same time being a fact.

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville was presented with its Charter on the night of May 16th., 1923, at the Hotel Quinte. (History has repeated itself as Kiwanis is again making the Quinte Hotel its headquarters after many happy years at the Queens Hotel, where our late and esteemed former member, Tom Power, so graciously fathered Kiwanis during his lifetime and his able daughter, Mrs. Ryan, kept up his memorable traditions for many years after his death.)

Sponsored by Kingston

The Charter was presented by the then Governor of the District, Mr. J. Ed. Tanguay, of Quebec City, now General Manager of the Quebec Light, Heat and Power Company, and is so far as we know, still in good health and an ardent Kiwanian. He was assisted by Lieutenant-Governor Kenneth McIver of Toronto.

The Belleville Kiwanis Club was sponsored by the Kingston Club and almost all of their members were present for the occasion, among them were Billie Mills, Hughie Nichol, Frank Hoag, Wattie McNee and many others who have thru'-out the years, looked with pride upon the efforts of their protege. It was a gala event and I believe the scribe, who acted as the first President, then later as secretary for eighteen years, was the member to receive the Charter and to take the "Oath of Allegiance" to Kiwanis International, that the Belleville Kiwanis Club, through its officers and directors from year to year, would sustain and maintain that high standard of ethics which still bears the same wording as taken that night.

Dr. G. S. Cronk; Ernie Finkle; Bruce Bottum; P. C. MacLaurin; George H. Griffin; Fred S. Deacon; Jack McIntosh; Russell Wotten; Charlie Hyde.

Many Happy Recollections

Now that we have gotten the Club safely "born", let's see what development the child experienced during the next twenty years, and here is where one's memories might flit back and forth throughout the years, with many happy recollections. Was it all fair sailing? Well I should say not. No worthwhile enterprise ever came out of a flowery bed of ease, nor did the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. In the first year, 1923, we club members seemed to be all thumbs. Awkward in our efforts but willing and we go things done. The first big undertaking was the "Kiwanis Follies," a monster stage show. It was just what the members needed to put them before the Belleville public, not for their own personal aggrandisement but in the interests of Kiwanis and Service Club work as a whole. Putting on this home talent show under the direction of the John P. Rogers Production Co., of Chicago, was an event long to be remembered by the old members who took part, and best of all we raised several hundred dollars to start the good work that has so nobly been carried on up to the present time.

Assisted in Reunion

That same year Belleville was to entertain its "Old Boys" with a reunion. Kiwanis felt that the town should be dolled up and the grass cut as well as the hydrants to be painted. The City Fathers failed to take action until it was too late then said it couldn't be done. Kiwanis members went into a huddle and came out with a plan. Those hydrants could be painted and a gorgeous red at that—and in one evening—and they were. On a given night the work was done. John Public rubbed his eyes as he beheld about the streets, prominent doctors and lawyers, bakers and tradesmen, expressmen and tailors, bank managers and insurance men all carrying paint can and brush and decked out in overalls and straw hat, hurrying in all directions as if the old town was on fire. The result?—well all the fire hydrants bloomed a gorgeous red before sundown. The job was done and well done. It is true that it took many a day to get the red paint off many a hand but what was that compared to the fun of doing the impossible.

Sponsored the V.O.N.

So much for that; and as time and space are at a premium in wartime, we will have to be content with only touching the highlights, briefly in mentioning some of the efforts and accomplishments of the Club in the years following that interesting first year of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

The next year Kiwanis sponsored the V.O.N., purchased a Model T. Ford for Nurse Miss Shand; later arranging suitable clinic quarters and equipping it properly. Kiwanis served as officers of V.O.N., but not to the exclusion of other interested citizens since V.O.N. should be a full community enterprise.

Kiwanis was always interested in boy-life and usually manifested itself accordingly. Boy Scout work and camps, Ki-Y hockey and baseball leagues, boys' and girls' camps, the Sea Cadet Corps, that has given our Canadian Navy some splendid young men, hobby shows, rural agriculture for boys, and many other worth while projects for the youth of Belleville that took time and money in large quantities. Later came the fine playgrounds project when Kiwanis equipped and maintained the East and West Playgrounds at a cost of several thousand dollars, all of which was made possible through the continued generous support of the citizens of Belleville at the Kiwanis Carnivals put on by the club. These Carnivals were always a success and an annual event when the members of the other service clubs turned in to lend a hand to Kiwanis in putting over these big events.

Not All Smooth Sailing

Speaking of the ups and downs of the Club. All was not smooth sailing and with Kiwanis as with other persons and institutions, the depression days during 1931 to 1935 brought problems to the club that had never been anticipated. Obligations had been created in banner years that had to be met, or else; membership dropped off to an alarming low level. In fact I am sorry to say that more than once some of the members suggested closing up Kiwanis shop, as a lost cause during 1933, but due to the sacred trust that had been bestowed upon a few of the originals, it was determined that should our houses and lots or the shirts off our backs have to go first, Kiwanis must continue. What a good thing it did carry on, for what a lot of re-building it would have taken to be ready for the big job that faced the club with the commencement of war days, which proves that all good things in life come out of the great sacrifices of those who believe in a cause to such an extent that even death itself should not deprive the world of worthwhile things they sought to accomplish. Thus the great go on to greatness and success while the weak and the pessimistic fall by the wayside. "He who has no vision must perish."

Better for Being Member

But why should I have to write all this about the Belleville Kiwanis Club, as much as I enjoy the memories while doing so, for has the work of Kiwanis during the past twenty years not spoken louder than any words I can write at the present time, nor can any member say that he is not the better man for having been a member of such a service club, enjoying the friendships, the programs and most of all the opportunity of serving his fellow men. All of which reminds us that this old world of the future will have to rebuild along the lines and under similar ethics to those that are held aloft by some hundred thousand Kiwanians throughout this continent.

I would be remiss if I did not pay tribute to the memory of those late departed and revered past-presidents, Charles Hanna, Bill Lattimer, George Cole and Dr. Dick Flynn, who so faithfully labored for a cause in which they so deeply believed and in every instance when their health was such that extra effort might well have been conserved and would have been, no doubt, by others who had not the interests of Kiwanis at heart. However, members and officers must come and go but the spirit of Kiwanis goes on forever. Each presiding president and his able directors having a part in the building brick by brick in the house of "Kiwanis Endeavour," providing security for those less fortunate or for those who at present are serving their country so nobly and need the added help that Kiwanis is now able to give through their splendid Clinic.

Always Aggressive

Kiwanians were always aggressive and never knew defeat. Many a time throughout the years they were hard pressed and met obstacles that seemed so high they could not be hurdled but the way always seemed to open up at the proper time as if the Divine Hand was guiding the efforts being put forth so faithfully for the benefit of others. But who can say that the Belleville Kiwanis Club did not do more than any other organization in trying to help the under-privileged or in giving the citizens of Belleville an opportunity of keeping abreast of the times. Year after year the public was given the opportunity of seeing and meeting people of fame and prominence. A Lieutenant-Governor of the province, all the famous swimmers, the best of musical and theatrical talent, famous travellers and lecturers and usually at the small cost of fifteen cents admission to the Annual Carnival.

Assisted Sick and Blind

May I conclude by saying that Kiwanis throughout the years has assisted the sick and the blind, the under-privileged boy who needed additional education or one who needed an artificial limb to help him along his way, or a pair of glasses or eye treatment so that he could see better the good things of life. Also the children who needed special medical treatment and who were sent to special hospitals where it could be given them. In all the years that this scribe served as secretary, and they were happy ones for the most part, there was not a deserving case that was ever turned down by the Kiwanis Board of Directors, no matter what the cost and even though Kiwanis had not at hand the ready cash in every instance when the obligation was taken on.

Might I bring to mind that at present Kiwanis is host to several German officers, for did the Club not contribute several hundred dollars toward the building of "Kiwanis Hostel" of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School (Rotary also built one) and which now houses many German officers, prisoners of war, much to our chagrin.

"CLIFF" BARAGAR

Past Lieutenant Governor of District 4, who will introduce the principal speaker of the evening.

GEORGE H. GRIFFIN

A charter member, Past President and former secretary of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, now resident in Toronto, will be on hand to renew old acquaintances. George is responsible for the splendid article on the history of the Belleville Kiwanis Club since its inception.

Kiwanians Proud Of Poultry Project

The Belleville Kiwanis Club is very proud of its Poultry Project, which it has sponsored for the past three or four years. It has made for better relations between the urban and rural residents. The children from the different schools in the immediate district of Belleville have learned at first hand about the care and raising of poultry and hav also received direct remuneration from their efforts. This year the Kiwanis Club will distribute 3,000 chicks to the ten schools under the plan, each child will be given 25 chicks, a brooder house and 25 pounds of growing mash and a watering trough.

Kiwanis International Based Upon Principles of Service And Founded in January, 1915

First Kiwanis Club Formed in Detroit More Than 2,000 Clubs Now Actively Engaged in Assisting The War Effort

ACTIVE IN BELLEVILLE

Towards the close of 1914, Allen S. Browne, a fraternal organizer, and Joseph G. Prance, a business man of Detroit, Michigan, formed a business man's club. Mr. Prance was its first member and his application receipt is dated December 8, 1914. Mr. Donald A. Johnston was the first president of the Detroit club. On that date, Kiwanis was born!

The Name Kiwanis

Considerable thought was given to the selection of a name for the new organization. Mr. C. M. Burton, Historian for the City of Detroit, and the State of Michigan, was consulted, and after some research submitted several Indian names, among which was the word "Kee-wanis." This had been found in an Indian vocabulary compiled by Bishop Fredric Baraga, pioneer of Upper Michigan, and its derived meanings were, "To make one's self known," "To impress one's self."

Mr. Burton changed the original spelling to read "Kiwanis" and this was adopted by the club as its official name in January, 1915. Kiwanis is, therefore, a coined name, but its verbal ancestry suggests "self expression." Its practical significance in each community becomes just what the Kiwanis Club makes the name mean, as, by actual accomplishment, it invests the word with the prestige of worth.

The birthday of Kiwanis is celebrated on January 21, because on that date, in 1915, the Detroit Kiwanis Club received its charter from the State of Michigan.

The Principle of Service

Based upon the principle of service, Kiwanis capitalizes for constructive community service the fellowship of a group of men who eat together once a week. It develops friendships and encourages leadership. It seeks to build better communities through intelligent interest and active, unselfish loyalty. Kiwanis, therefore, is not only an organization by a moving spirit, "a conscious driving force toward newer and higher objectives."

It challenges the leaders of the community to be "a friend to man" and ready servants of the community weal.

The motto of the original group of Kiwanis was "We Trade," indicating that the club was composed of tradesmen and merchants and suggesting possible mutual commercial advantages from membership. But following a reorganization which began at the Providence convention in 1918 and culminated at the Birmingham convention in 1919, the "crass slogan, "We Trade" was summarily dropped and our present watchword, "We Build" substituted." This improved motto, typical of the new spirit of Kiwanis, was adopted at the Portland, Oregon, convention in 1920.

Kiwanis Becomes International

In 1916 of the more than twenty Kiwanis Clubs, which seem to have been in existence then, fifteen sent representatives to a gathering in Cleveland, Ohio, where an organization was formed, a "National Constitution" adopted, the name, "The Kiwanis Club" designated as the official title of the combined clubs, and permission given to Organizer Browne to form clubs in Canada. Mr. Browne, by a proviso of the organization, controlled the extension of Kiwanis in the building of new clubs, but that right was purchased from him at the Birmingham convention in 1919, and ever since the organization has controlled its own extension.

How Organised

The functioning of such an immense group as that of Kiwanis International requires a most carefully constructed organization. Kiwanis International is both efficient and economical.

Its officers are a President, the Immediate Past President, two Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, a Treasurer, twelve Trustees, and a District Governor for each of the 29 districts.

At each annual International convention there are elected: for a term of one year, a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer; and for a term of two years, six Trustees.

The International Board of Trustees consists of the President, Immediate Past President, two Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, and twelve Trustees. It meets regularly four times a year.

The Secretary is appointed by the Board of Trustees, attends the Board meetings, and acts as secretary to the Board.

The Executive Committee of the Board is composed of seven members of the Board, namely, the President, Immediate Past President, and five other members of the Board appointed by the President and approved by the Board, as to their findings.

This committee meets three times a year or oftener if occasion demands, and takes care of official matters in the interim between Board meetings.

A finance committee, consisting of three members of the Executive Committee, is appointed by the President, with the approval of the Board. This Finance Committee meets at least six times a year and administers the finances of Kiwanis International under the direction of the Board.

Various other committees of the Board are appointed by the President as occasion requires, especially to study specific questions and problems and to advise the Board.

Under the authority granted at Cleveland, clubs were chartered in Canada early in 1917. The first two were Hamilton, Ontario, which held its organization meeting on November 1, 1916, and Toronto, Ontario, so that when the first International convention was held in the year 1917 in Detroit, Michigan, there were two Canadian and fifty United States clubs in the organization.

The present official name of the organization, "Kiwanis International," was adopted at the 8th. annual convention of the organization held at Denver, Colorado, in 1924, at which time also the present constitution and bylaws were adopted to which a few amendments have since been adopted.

Tremendous Growth

Today there is a total membership of 113,000 Kiwanians, divided approximately into 2,300 clubs throughout Canada and the United States. Of this number, 9,000 Kiwanians are now in uniform and already thirty have made the supreme sacrifice.

There are 77 Kiwanis Clubs in the Dominion of Canada with a total membership of 5,400 Canadian Kiwanians. The Belleville Club forms part of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district which runs from Sault Ste. Marie on the west to Sydney, Nova Scotia, and from Noranda to the Great Lakes. No less than 56 of the Canadian Kiwanis Clubs are located in this one district.

International Conventions

The annual convention of Kiwanis International is usually held in June of each year in a city officially determined by the International Board of Trustees. The Board must, however, select the city in rotation from each of the five consecutive zones. To this annual convention each club is entitled to send two accredited delegates to vote on all matters proposed and to elect International officers and trustees. International trustees and past International presidents, district governors and chairmen of International standing committees are delegates-at-large. In addition to the two accredited delegates, each club is urged to send as large a delegation as possible in order to share the fellowship and inspiration offered by such a convention and to acquire a clearer vision of the broad relationships of Kiwanis, through contact with representatives of clubs from every section of Canada and the United States.

District Conventions

Each district holds a district convention sometime between August 1 and October 15, at a date mutually agreed upon by the Board of Trustees of the district and of Kiwanis International. It is presided over by the District Governor, and is under the supervision of the District Board of Trustees. The host is a Kiwanis Club, or group of clubs, in the district whose local committee co-operates with the district organization in the convention arrangements. In some districts clubs of an entire division have acted as host with considerable success.

Each district convention is usually visited by at least one official representative of the International Board of Trustees, assigned by the International President.

Each chartered club in good standing in the district is entitled to three delegates, one of whom shall be the President.

The Heart of Kiwanis—the Club

The basic unit of Kiwanis is the Kiwanis Club. All the organization of the district and International exists in order to assist the Kiwanis Club in the local community to function as perfectly as possible along the line of Kiwanis objects and objectives. The heart of Kiwanis activity is the Kiwanis Club in your community.

Civic Greetings

The citizens of Belleville and more particularly the members of Belleville Kiwanis Club are signally honored by an official visit of the President of Kiwanis International, Fred G. McAlister. On behalf of all citizens of Belleville, I extend to Mr. McAlister greetings and a warm welcome. I further speak of the high esteem in which the Kiwanis Club of Belleville is held. Their work in the interests of those less fortunate has won for them a warm spot in the heart of every citizen.

HARRY W. ROLLINS,
Mayor, City of Belleville.

Objectives of Kiwanis International

Belleville Kiwanis Club Extends Cordial Welcome to Fred G. McAlister, London, President Kiwanis International

BELLEVILLE KIWANIANS FEEL HIGHLY HONORED ON THE OCCASION OF THE VISIT OF THEIR INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT, FRED G. McALISTER, AND EXTEND TO HIM A WARM AND SINCERE WELCOME.

In Belleville the Kiwanis Club has become an integral part of the life of the city. It is our fondest hope and desire that the International President will find on his official visit the ideal in Kiwanis Club structure. Our members represent practically all walks of life and our service work is wide in its scope, embracing hundreds of heart-rending cases every year.

Elsewhere in this issue of The Ontario Intelligencer the story of the Belleville Kiwanis Club's activities will be told, but nevertheless, I want to lay emphasis on the fact that in the Belleville organization we have a group of men, who take pride in their membership and believe that their contribution of service to others is motivated by sound principles and that the time devoted to the less fortunate is well spent.

As president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club I extend a warm welcome to you "Fred." I am sure the greeting you will receive from the members will in a measure prove to you that the Kiwanis Club of Belleville is indeed "Fortified with Friendship" and is determined to "serve to the utmost."

And now, on behalf of the undersigned, who are members of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, may I extend the hope that your visit to Belleville will be pleasant for you and instructive to us.

Hero, Legend To Tank Men

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

With the American Army in Tunisia, April 28 —(Delayed)— Lieut.-Colonel John H. Todd, Jr., the "daddy rabbit" of the American armored forces, is both a hero and a legend.

I never saw him. I never shall. A German shell splinter killed him as he knelt on the ridge near Pont du Pahs while directing a tank attack.

The picture of a rabbit and underneath it the words "the daddy rabbit" were painted on his own half track and his tank. When he led his men into action he'd say, "follow the daddy rabbit." That's how he got his name.

Poor Country Boy

This man who liked to call himself "just a poor country boy from Georgia trying to get along" has risen above death. Four months after he was buried in the little Beja military cemetery, his spirit flames as widely as ever among the tank men who followed him with a veneration akin to worship.

He interested me—this dead soldier I had never seen because everywhere I went I heard stories about him. Gradually from many conversations in interludes between battle I pieced together his story. I thought the people he died for would like to know this brave man's tale. This is what they told me.

Had Common Sense

"He had more common sense in his little finger than most people have in their whole bodies," said Major Jacob Shapire of Brookline, Mass., as he talked in an olive grove about the man who had been his closest friend.

"He was a big husky man about six feet three inches tall and weighing about 220 pounds. He knew the Bible backwards and forward and he was the sloppiest dressing guy in the regiment. He used to be a polo star at the University of Georgia—he lived in Rome, Ga.

"John learned all there was to know about tanks. He commanded a company when he was only a lieutenant and organized two companies himself. He went to the tank school at Fort Knox and became a tank mechanic just to know the business from all angles.

"When we landed at Oran he took four towns and an airport with only one company of 17 tanks, one platoon of 32 infantry men and four 75 millimeter guns. After reinforcements arrived, he led the attack on Ora itself and it was he who actually made the treaty of peace with the French commander.

Understanding Officer

"I think he was the most outstanding officer in the army. He struck you as a big dumb sucker when you first saw him but he had sparks shooting out all over him. He was a great leader. He used the lessons learned from every action to prepare for the next battle. He always said 'in war the school is never out before the armistic is signed.' Another saying of his I remember was 'tactics are nothing but aggressiveness and common sense.'

"He was always with any company of his when it went into action, usually in his own tank at the head of a column. There was no such word as defeat in his vocabulary. He was tough-minded but softhearted and I've seen him cry and cry when some of his men were hurt.

"His thoughts were far ahead of those around him. Even in the middle of the war he used to worry over the kind of peace that is still to come."

Days later in the kitchen of a French home with a bitter winter wind pouring through broken window panes, his regimental chaplain, Major Harry P. Abbott of Little Rock, Ark., told me;

"I never saw a man who had a greater presentiment of his own death than Colonel Todd. Once when we were talking about the death of one of the men he said, 'I'm going to be a gone goose, too. I'm not worried about it but I do know it is coming.'"

A banjo was strumming on a Tunisian hillside in the twilight and the Kentucky tank sergeant who fingered it was humming a mountain folk song of his homeland. The seven battalion officers still at mess drank red French wine from tin cups and talked of Colonel Todd as if he were the eight man at the table.

Used as Symbol

"When he led us into action he'd say 'follow the daddy rabbit,'" said Lieutenant—now Captain—Phillip H. Killey, of Vivian, West Va. "He used it as a symbol to teach us the responsibility of leadership. When he sent us on a mission he'd call the leader and tell him, 'you're the daddy rabbit now on this job. Don't let the rest of them forget that—and don't you forget it either.' And when he got through telling you, you were pretty damn glad he had picked you to be the daddy rabbit."

By a wood fire on a raw January evening in the bomb marked village of Teboursouk, Major Martin Philipsborn, one of the staff officers most closely associated with Todd, reminisced.

"John married a pretty Summit, N. J., girl less than two months before we left the States," said the major. "He was very deply in love. It would have soured a lot of men to have to go off to war so soon but he had a wonderful sense of humor. he could talk anybody out of anything.

"He always protected his men. When one of his officers, trying to get fresh beef for the mess, shot a steer from the herd on the farm on which the battalion was camped, John went himself with another officer to call on the owner who was threatening to take the matter clear to President Roosevelt.

"As the farmer told his story, John pretended to get madder and madder until finally even the farmer was impressed. He asked the other officer what would be done with the steer-killing officer and was told that Todd had decided the officer must be shot. The farmer began to beg for milder punishment. Then Todd let himself solemnly be dissuaded from ordering the execution. The hapless lieutenant got out of the whole trouble by paying the farmer for the steer.

"As we left John told me with a grin, 'that was a dumb thing to do—trying to get fresh meat that close to home. I've got some smarter boys in one of my other companies. They just drove about 10 miles down the road and what do you know—two bound pigs fell right into their car. Those boys brought home the bacon'."

'He was standing on a hill working on a plan to trap the Germans when their artillery started firing. An 88 shell landed less than 15 feet from him and the shrapnel caught him. He just slumped over forward without a sound. No one knew he had been hit at first until they all climbed to their feet and saw him there.

"He got it quick. It didn't hurt. His face was peaceful."

MARS

STILL TAKES OUR BICYCLE MATERIAL

BLOOD-THIRSTY, steel-thirsty Mars, God of War, continues to thrust his grasping mailed fist into our steel bins and to toss our bicycle materials into the maw of war.

Guess we'll have to let him do so for awhile yet until we "finish the job".

We are, however, able to make a few bicycles. Our war-time models lack the glamorous color and bright appearance of C.C.M. peace-time models but they are durable, comfortable, easy-running bicycles nevertheless.

If you are in war work and could use a bicycle to travel to and from your "battle station" it is possible one of our C.C.M. dealers may be able to procure one for you. Or, if you have an inactive bicycle in your household get it into active service by selling it to your C.C.M. dealer, who will see that a war-worker or other qualified purchaser gets it.

Bicycle Purchase Application form may be filled in at any Bicycle Dealer's store.

Debenture By-Law To Build Reservoir Read Second Time

Following a special meeting of the City Council on Tuesday afternoon at which were present besides the members, A. J. B. Gray, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs for the Province, J. P. Coombs, supervisor of Municipal Affairs and William Storrie, Consultant engineer for the firm of Gore and Storrie, who constructed the Belleville Purification Plant, O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Utilities Commission, Morley P. Duff, chairman of the Utilities Commission, H. D. Bateman, comptroller for the Corporation, A. B. Collins K.C., city solicitor, H. B. Stock, treasurer for the city and R. A. McFadden, auditor, a by-law was given its second reading for the issuing of debentures of $30,000 to build a 1,000,000-gallon reservoir for the storage of water at the filtration plant.

Sent By-Law to Board

The by-law will now be sent to the Municipal Board of Ontario for ratification and then returned for its third reading and final passing. It requires a three-fourths vote of the council to pass any by-law, which outlines the expenditure of money and at the second reading the by-law did not pass as there were only eleven members present and Aldermen Clapp, Follwell, Pringle and Potter dissented while Mayor Rollins, Aldermen Hyde, Armstrong, Clarke, Woodley, Wotten and Chamberlain agreed.

Mr. Gray explained that it might be arranged that the debentures would not be issued for two years according to the by-law and by that time the expenditure could be met out of surplus revenue of the Commission and the dissenting members allowed the by-law to receive its second reading. All those disagreeing with the expenditure stated that they were not in favor of any expenditure in war time although Mr. Storrie had explained to the members the absolute necessity of having reserve storage.

Both Mr. Gray and Mr. Coombs explained in detail the investigation into the surplus of the Sinking Fund of the Corporation and showed that there was a possibility but not a promise that some of the funds could be released for certain purposes. The Council was asked to make representation to the Municipal Board for these funds setting out in the application the use to which the funds were to be placed. It is anticipated that the Council will request certain sums to repair the main thoroughfares of this city for as Ald. Armstrong, Chairman of Public Works explained some of the pavements had outlived the life of the debenture and were badly in need of repair. Mr. Storrie in dealing with the necessity of the reservoir stated that the Commission had to deal with the maximum demand and that took place between the hours of six and eight o'clock in the evening especially in the summer months.

Vote of Thanks

At the conclusion of the business, the council discussed informally with the officials present other phases of the city's business and Mayor Rollins on behalf of the members moved a vote of thanks to the members of the Municipal Board and Mr. Storie for their information. It was agreed after the meeting that in future there will be a better understanding between the Utilities Commission and the Corporation.

Azilda, Ont., May 12 —(CP)— Damage was estimated at $60,000 in a fire which destroyed five of the main buildings in this Nipissing district community yesterday and for a time threatened the entire village.

The fire started in a storage shed of the general store operated by T. Paquette and before it was checked had destroyed both shed and store, a service station operated by Eugene Paquette and another shed and garage owned by Louis Paquette.

The ruins were still smouldering this morning as Ontario Forestry Branch pumps continued to pour water on the blaze.

The War Today—

What a Change Since First Visit Of Churchill Across Atlantic!

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Prime Minister Churchill's arrival in Washington is a further stimulating exhibition of that friendly Allied co-operation and co-ordination of effort which made the great Tunisian victory possible.

It's the Axis debacle in North Africa, of course, which has brought the great man across the Atlantic again. That has opened the floodgate of possibilities for direct assault on Hitler's European fortress —or what he hopes is a fortress. It also may ease the way for extension of activities against the Japs.

There has been no indication of what line the Washington conference might take. It would be surprising, however, if the fundamental strategy of knocking out Hitler first should be abandoned in favor of shifting to the Orient.

Hitler's Difficulties Serious

We now have Hitler in serious difficulties as the result of the policy of concentration. We achieved success in Tunisia by hitting the weakened Axis forces ceaselessly and furiously at many points simultaneously. Whether we are in position to apply these methods on the continent is something which will be determined at Washington in consultation with Moscow, but it may easily be the conferees will decide that the time to catch a June bug is when he's on his back.

In any event, intensification of operations against the arch gangster wouldn't preclude extension of activities against the Japanese. Allied production has reached huge proportions, and the reclamation of the Mediterranean zone with its invaluable shipping routes has eased the situation so that doubtless more help can be sent to Gen. MacArthur.

Change Since 1941 Visit

This is a far different occasion from the first meeting of these two great figures in August of 1941 when they held their historic Atlantic conference. That was less than two months after Germany struck at Russia with all the power of the mightiest fighting-machine ever constructed.

The Germans were sweeping all before them, and the master Hun's hoarse cries of triumph were ringing round the world. Those were days of grim anxiety for the Allies, though never of despair.

Despite the gravity of the situation Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill ruled out any peace with "Nazi tyranny." They offered Stalin maximum help.

Nazi General Weeps

What a change now! We get a fair measure of it in the little story of Maj.-Gen. Willibald Boroweitz, Commander of the German 8th Armored Division in Tunisia, who wept when he surrendered to the British 7th Armored Division.

Then from Cap Bon comes word of the Boche soldiers who rode to voluntary imprisonment in an Arab cart drawn by a plume-bedecked horse — and they cheered wildly as they drove out of the war. Hitler's invincibles!

To this we really must add the remark of the battle-begrimed general who called for "unconditional surrender" — or else — on the American 2nd Army Corps front. Said he:

"We split them in two and kicked hell out of them."

So Hitler's story of a super-race is just a fairy tale after all. He made a lot of people — including himself—believe it for a long time.

That doesn't mean all the Boche are going to ride gaily to surrender behind a plume-adorned Arab horse. We have heavy and costly fighting ahead of us—perhaps some of the bloodiest work of the entire war, for we shall be attacking a powerful enemy on his own ground.

Trenton and District

Trent River Floods Powers Coal Dock

Trenton —(Special)— With an extremely heavy rainfall lasting for nearly 24 hours here the river is on the rampage and threatens severe damage to property along its banks. Early Tuesday evening the Government Dock was under water as were coal docks where huge piles of coal belonging to the Powers Coal Co., on the east side of the river, are stored.

Talking to old-timers around Trenton and vicinity they claim this is the highest the river has ever been since the Hydro dams were installed many years ago. It is said the river will not reach its highest peak until some time in June but at the present time there has not been known to be such heavy rains for many years.

Lost Money Found

A very happy woman was Mrs. R. H. Smith, of 40 Spring Street, when she was finally told that a sum of $40 which she had lost had been found in the A. & P. Store by Mr. Gerard Shoniker.

Mrs. Smith had been shopping in several stores and after informing police of her loss she had retraced her steps for some time, during the most terrific downpour of rain seen here in years. Tired and wet she returned in despair to her home but was later informed the money had been found.

Red Cross Work

Much work is being accomplished at the Red Cross work rooms these days but there is an urgent call for still greater supplies. At the meeting on Tuesday, work convener Mrs. J. H. Redick read the new quota just received which includes clothing for Greek refugees who have escaped into Turkey and other countries, as well as knitted goods for British civilians and men of the forces. Much help is needed by the local branch to get these articles made and on their way as quickly as possible. The refugee quota consists of 50 girls' bloomers, 50 girls' dresses and 25 girls' coats all for ages 8 to 10 years, 50 boys' underpants, 8 to 10 years, 50 men's underpants, sizes 32 and 34 and 50 men's undervests of the same size. British civilian clothing consists of 25 boys' knitted suits size 3 to 4 years, 25 girls' sweaters 1 to 4 years, 25 boys' sweaters and 25 pairs boys' socks size 10 to 14 years and 25 women's sweaters. In addition to all this there is an urgent need for 50 pairs 18-inch seamen's stockings.

During the meeting home-baked buns donated by Mrs. L. Parks were raffled and brought in $1.60. Mrs. O. G. Alyea, was the lucky winner.

Following the work meeting the regular monthly business meeting was held with Mr. B. F. Joyce in the chair. Reports were read by the secretary and the treasurer, also the various conveners. Shipping report for April showed 1,344 articles had been shipped with a total value of $157.

Many Bikes Stolen

Another epidemic of bicycle stealing has been going on around Trenton for the past two weeks, five taken during this time have all been found, one as far away as Consecon. They were stolen from all different districts in the town.

Police Court

Fifteen cases came before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton police court Tuesday afternoon, B. C. Donnan, K.C. prosecuting.

Four were fined $1.00 each for breach of the traffic by-law and one was fined $1.00 for breach of the dog by-law.

D. Tait was fined $10 and costs for driving a car without a licence, while one other was fined $5 and costs for speeding.

Lucien Drolett for trespassing and having no registration certificate appeared. The charge was dismissed when he produced a discharge from the army.

One man was charged with assaulting his wife, the case was dismissed.

Another young man was charged with vagrancy and was ordered to pay $1.00 and to keep better hours.

L. Robertson and Roy Curran charged with stealing a turkey and a duck last December were given one month suspended sentence and ordered to pay costs.

Mutual Aid Bill Criticized From Important Angles

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Ottawa, May 12 —(CP)— The government seeks neither commercial advantages nor repayments for the mutual aid given to the United Nations, Finance Minister Ilsley said in the House of Commons last night as the $1,000,000,000 Mutual Aid Bill was criticized from two points of view.

The bill comes up today for further consideration in committee of the whole.

While Quebec Independent members and some Liberals pressed for the repatriation of Canadian corporate securities held in Britain exchange for mutual aid Progressive Conservative members were critical of the powers given the government to attach conditions to the grant of mutual aid.

"We do not regard the contribution we are going to make under this bill as sales to Great Britain. We regard it as our contribution to the common cause," said the minister when Wilfred LaCroix (Lib. Quebec - Montmorency) asked why the recall of Canadian securities was not stipulated.

J. G. Diefenbaker (Prog. Con. Lake Centre) thought the powers contained in the bill might give the ministers in charge of its operation power to direct the commercial policy of Canada without reference to parliament and to make treaties.

He objected particularly to the provision in clause 4 which says that "no war supplies shall be made available to any of the United Nations except upon terms and conditions approved by the governor-in-council."

"Certainly I did not have any intention of entering into trade agreements under this clause," said Mr. Ilsley. "It might mean it would be possible to get some trading advantage but certainly we are not approaching this whole problem in that spirit."

Delivering his promised reply to requests for a breakdown of the disposition of the $1,000,000,000 gift to Britain last year Mr. Ilsley said it was impossible to say what supplies had been furnished out of the gift and what had been paid for in other ways.

The sum of the gift was simply placed to the credit of Great Britain but British purchases in Canada ran to a total of $1,440,000,000.

To meet the request, however, he had made an arbitrary allocation and estimated that $689,000,000 of the gift went in purchase of munitions and $311,000,000 in purchase of foodstuffs and raw materials.

For purposes of the allocation, he assumed that all munitions purchases came out of the gift and all services including freight, air training, interest, capital expenditures came from other funds.

Announcement of an action complementary to the new Mutual Aid Bill was made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King when the House opened.

He said Canada had become a party to a protocol concerning supplies to Russia with the United Kingdom and the United States.

Where hitherto Canadian supplies shipped to Russia had formed part of the United Kingdom and in some instances of the United States, allocation now they would go on a separate Canadian allocation which was appropriate in that this country was an important producer of war supplies for the Soviet Union.

NORSE TEACHERS STEADILY REFUSE TO BOW TO NAZIS

Brutal Treatment and Suffering Result of Nazi Persecutions

TEACHER TELLS STORY

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 12 —(CP)— Herded into a bitter existence of forced labor, Norwegian school teachers never faltered in their refusal to bow to the Nazi doctrine, the Norwegian government in London said in issuing the first full eye-witness acount of a German action that shocked the Allied world.

Written by one of 500 teachers arrested in March, 1942, because they refused to join the Nazi "teachers' front" and instil German teachings into the minds of Norwegian children, the account told of brutal treatment and intensive suffering during which disease was rampant and some of the prisoners died or went insane.

Released Last November

The teachers were released from the labor camps last November and returned home, their spirit unbroken, after eight months of exile. There was a trip in a "hell ship," and they endured the starvation died and long hours in icy barracks of northern Norway far beyond the Arctic circle. Then, too, there were gymnatics in the snow while below-zero winds tore at flimsy clothing.

The sea voyage lasted 17 days. The teachers were kicked into the holds, one on top of the other. Space was cramped. Food was non-existent medical attention forgotten. There was no ventilation and many became hysterical. One elderly teacher went insane.

Germans Laugh at Hungry Norwegians

At Trondheim, where the ship lay for several days, the Red Cross brought porridge and milk and the account said "we were so hungry we ate like pigs while the Germans stood laughing at us." The Red Cross was not allowed to bring food after that.

Arriving at Kirkenes, the prisoners were given a meagre meal and sent ashore. They are marched 10 miles without rest or food and packed into three dirty barrack rooms "where the food was better."

'After three days 150 men who were ill were picked out and the rest of us marched back to Kirkenes and into a prison camp surrounded by barbed wire and guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets.

Littered With Filth

"We despaired when we saw this place, which was littered with piles of filth.

The Norwegians worked 12 hours a day, seven days a week, and became gaunt and ragged. Bread and soup made from rotten fish was the regular meal.

"It came as quite a shock when we are moved to Elvenes in June and found a stream in which to wash ourselves. We lived in a stable—400 of us packed into a space almost as confined as that on the 'hell ship.' It was dirty and we became verminous."

In August the teachers were transferred to a camp of Papier-Mache tents and finally they were sent home.

30-Game Schedule Adopted By Belleville Ladies Softball Loop With 4 Teams in Playoffs

First and Third and Second and Fourth Place Teams Will Enter Playdowns

PLAY AT ARMOURIES

A 30-game schedule was adopted for the season of 1943 by the Belleville Ladies' Softball League at an executive meeting held last night. With six clubs facing the barrier, each team will participate in ten games during the regular playing season.

At the termination of the regular playing season, the clubs placing in the first four positions will then engage in a league play-off series. In series "A" the team finishing first will play the best-in-three series with the club finishing fourth, with the first placed team being the home club in the first and possible third game. In series "B" the second and third placed clubs will playoff in a similar series with the club placing second in the regular schedule enjoying the same advantage as the first placed team in series "A", namely the right of being the home club in the first and possible third games. The winners of series "A" and "B" will later meet for the league championship and the Frontenac trophy.

War Charities Benefit

The league executive voted, that all games would be of the seven inning nature with games being played on the armouries lawn and net gate receipts to be turned over to war charities. A home and home double schedule was adopted with games being played on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening commencing at seven oclock. President Charlie Barnett announced that all official lists of team rosters must be in the hands of Secretary Eddie Schrieder on or before May 18th.

The tentative list of umpires submitted by the executive included "Speedy" St. Louis, Cy Young, Joe Kelleher Jr., Gene LaBonne, H. G. Woodley, Harold Bawden, H. Townsend and members of the executive when the above named are not available.

HUBBELL TRYING FOR 250TH WIN

New York, May 12—(AP)—Despite the war, the New York Giants have found enough wire to bind together the creaking left arm of Carl Owen Hubbell and "oldsquare pants" will open his 16th Major League campaign today.

Hubbel, whose 40th birthday is June 22, will be trying for his 205th victory—a goal both Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox and Charles Ruffing of the New York Yankees reached last Summer. Both are now in the armed forces and if Hubbell makes the grade today he will be the only active Major League twirler with that record.

The southpaw has been kept on the bench until warm weather in recent years but the Giants of today are doing so poorly that Manager Mel Ott, in deepest desperation, is starting the meal ticket against the Chicago Cubs.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, May 12—(AP)—One of the choicer bits of sports nonsense is the "war" going on in the Pacific Coast conference over next fall's football program. . .Graduate managers of the four southern schools decided they'd play a double round-robin schedule and let the six northern teams shift for themselves. The northern schools didn't like being shoved out of the big-dough sector and they let everybody know it. . . What makes it especially silly is that there's nothing official about the plan and there can't be until the 10 faculty representatives meet June 14, and there's no telling what they'll decide.

Long Range View

Sport and Shells

The National Hockey League, which won't name a new president until after the war, is looking around for a comparatively young candidate who knows a lot about hockey and enough about law to straighten out the tangles the clubs get themselves into. . . .Mickey Owen, usually a hard-to-sign guy, won't have another salary argument with the Dodgers until 1946. Branch Rickey gave him a three-year contract this spring . . .Now that Greg Rice has joined the Maritime Service, he has to learn to swim—so watch out for more records. . .Another reason for the shortage of sports news: The Peoria, Ill., Journal-Transcript is the second paper we've heard of that has contributed nine members of its sports staff to the Armed Forces.

Many Postponements In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Although the present International League season started six days later than that of 1942 almost twice as many games has been postponed, compared with that of last season. . . From the start of the 1942 campaign to May 10, 13 contests were set back because of weather conditions. . . .Taking in the same period this season, 26 have been postponed with Syracuse involved in 12. . . All four games yesterday were postponed. . .

Montreal's patched lineup enjoyed yesterday's enforced vacation but the management still is hopeful that the parent Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League will ship assistance soon. . . . The Royals are in need of outfielders primarily. . . .

George Barley, one-time New York Yankee farm hand, now is a part time pitcher for Buffalo Bisons . . . Barley refused to report to the Portland Club of the Coast and the Bisons returned the purchase price. . . Barley will continue his defence job in a Buffalo plane factory but will hurl for the Bisons in games at home.

Today's schedule lists the first twilight-night doubleheader of the young season with Baltimore and Toronto as the combatants.

Toronto—(CP)—Eamon Park, representative of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) said last night the Union was conferring with the John Inglis armaments plant regarding a pending 'large-scale layoff" which would involve possibly 3,000 workers. The company declined comment.

Canadian Athletes at War

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 12 —(CP)—One of Canada's most amazing hockey careers apparently is ended. After 27 consecutive years in senior and intermediate hockey, Waldon Kennedy has lost an eye in an accident at his Kentville, N. S., home. Maybe he could still go for years but at 41 loss of an eye is a blow to even the most durable athletes. Two steel splinters pierced his right eye ball while he worked as a machinist. The eye was removed in hospital.

Waldon broke into senior hockey with Wolfville in the Nova Scotia Valley League when he was 16 and led the league in scoring his first season. In 1922 he moved to the Kentville Wildcats and, except for a brief period with Halifax Wolverines and one season with Wolfville, has been with the Wildcats ever since.

A left winger, he packed one of the hardest shots in the Maritimes. Year after year he was the Wildcats' high scorer and he still holds the Valley League records of 72 points. He played with many league championship teams but reached the Maritimes title only once—in 1927 when Kentville took the crown.

Kennedy was a senior player until two years ago when the Wildcats, weakened by player losses, reverted to intermediate ranks.

Round and About:

The western racing season gets under way at Calgary Saturday. One of the thoroughbreds in training there is Maginot Line, which won the Canadian Derby at Winnipeg last July 1—the race in which Ten-to-Ace, the King's Plate winner, was last by 20 lengths. . .Lions Club members sold hockey programs in Kingston, Ont., during the past winter and the $438 proceeds went into the club's fund for British bomb victims. . .PO. Bob Walker, the former Regina Roughriders football lineman, has introduced a game called floor hockey to his airmen associates at a west coast station. Regulation hockey sticks and a rubber ball are used in a game which apparently is survival of the fittest. Fourteen teams of 20 players each make up the league.

Incidentally:

Three former Canadian championship basketball stars are entered for the New Westminster, B. C., city golf tournament May 23. The three, Dick Butler, Wally Mayers and Ted McEwen, were with the University of British Columbia National Cage champions of 1928. . .When the Kitchener, Ont., Westmount Golf Club decided to dispense with services of a professional this year, Normie Himes was left without a summer job. Himes, former N. Y. Americans hockey star, will remain at his Galt home, assisting his brother, George, in their tobacco business.

Monkeys Used As Plane Spotters

Two South African monkeys that have taken on an essential job of war work were mentioned by Cyril Watling in a recent BBC overseas talk. They've got the keenest eyesight and hearing, and they give warning of approaching aircraft minutes before any human can detect them. They have to be given some training, of course, but they seem to be very bright pupils.

One of these two, called Japie, is attached to the First Division. He's now back in the Union with troops on leave. But he was all through some of the biggest battles. He did his job as a spotter so well that many German 'planes were turned back before they could do any damage.

The second monkey — named Adonis — trained every day for months, down at Haartebeestsfontein, in the Transvaal. He's never made a mistake. Even vultures flying "way up" don't fool him. If he looks up at a black speck in the sky and stays on the ground eating his nuts, everyone knows its only a vulture. It it's a 'plane, Adonis leaves everything, scrambles to the top of a tree and keeps on screaming till its passed out of sight. — BBC London Letter.

'Deroches' Team Leading Way At Albert College

With intramural athletic competition all completed, except the track and field meet and tennis, the Deroches team under Captain Tom Ballantyne is leading the way in the Albert College interscholastic athletic program. Competition has already been finished in badminton, table tennis, swimming and basketball under the direction of Paul Goyette, athletic director of the college. Running second to the Deroches team is Don Ridout's Bishops and next in line, Bill Bailey's Gra-Beaches.

During the aquatic competition, Blair Slight of Toronto, established a new underwater swim record when he swam 205 feet in the spacious Albert pool to set up a new distance record in this class. This was the only school record established this semester. Incidentally, the annual Albert College track and field meet will be held on the campus on Monday, May 24th.

The results to-date have been as follows:

Junior basketball—Bishops.

Girls' badminton — Champion, Barbara McKimm, Smith's Falls. Winning team, Gra-Beaches.

Husband of Woman Stowaway Missing

Ottawa, May 12. (CP)—Sgt. Gordon Darling whose wife, Marion, broke all world's records hitchhiking in order to be near him, has been reported missing overseas.

Mrs. Darling, a member of the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. stowed away in a Trans-Atlantic bomber and thus got to England, where her husband was serving.

The incident received widespread publicity at the time. It was strictly contrary to rules but whatever disciplinary action the air force authorities took they did not send the hitch-hiking airwoman home.

NEITHER YANKEES, DODGERS APPEAR TO BE STRONG

Western Clubs Appear to Hold Balance of Power in Both Loops

EAST TEAMS TRAVEL

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The major league season is three weeks old, but there is an evident widespread feeling that the games played thus far have proved little about the ultimate strength of the various teams.

Two teams in each loop—Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals in the National and New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians in the American — have established themselves as pennant possibilities. But they were rated as such before the season started and nothing they have done in their early games has been particularly distinguishing.

For this reason the start of East-west play today in the two circuits was looked forward to eagerly. The Western clubs seem to hold the balance of power in both leagues.

The Yankees have a good chance of holding their two game lead in the front rank. Their makeshift lineup has shown potential strength. The rookies in the infield have been doing well; Johnny Lindell, the pitcher converted into an outfielder and placed eighth in the batting order, has landed among the American league's 10 leading hitters; and the pitching has been satisfactory.

Open Against White Sox

New York's road trip will be opened against the White Sox at Chicago, which also should help the Yanks because the Indians will be on the defence at Cleveland against a strong, fourth-place Washington club. They play a night game tonight.

Another question to be answered is whether Boston Red Sox are really as pitiable as their present place in the American League cellar indicates. Their pitching has not been as strong as expected. However, the fact they had to meet the Yankees eight times in their first 18 games may have had something to do with the Sox' slow start.

Boston opens at St. Louis today and Philadelphia Athletics will be at Detroit.

In the National League Brooklyn and St. Louis will be up against about equal opposition for the start of the intersectional struggle, the Dodgers playing Pittsburgh Pirates in a twilight game and the Cardinals invading Boston.

To date the Dodgers have appeared slow, light hitting and uncertain in their pitching but they lead the league by two games.

The Cardinals, lacking their full strength at the start, have had the expected bitter battles with their western rivals, Chicago and Cincinnati. Now, for the first time they will be meeting the kind of opposition previously faced by Brooklyn.

Snowstorm Blankets Large Portion of West

Winnipeg, May 12. (CP)— The tree planting missions, planned for Arbor Day, failed in many Prairie districts as a heavy snowfall covered the ground Monday.

The storm, reaching blizzard proportions in Manitoba, halted all farm operations, the second time in a week, with a fall of ten inches of snow reported at Brandon, 145 miles west of here.

Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie districts also had a heavy blanket of snow, while in the Blairmore district, a mining centre in south-western Alberta, snow plows were called out to clear secondary roads.

Transportation on highways was maintained and electric power services suffered little from the heavy, wet snow, but plane schedules were delayed.

GIANT PLANES CARRY HUGE LOADS EASTWARD

New Delhi, May 12. (CP)—Several big, new American cargo planes now are speeding equipment, men and supplies eastward.

The first three planes arrived from the United States two weeks ago to augment the expanding fleet of cargo planes carrying war supplies in this theatre.

The new planes have two engines of 2,000 horsepower each. They are capable of carrying 40 passengers plus freight.

ITALIAN ADMIRAL DISMISSED

New York, May 12. (AP)— The Italian general staff has dismissed Vice Admiral Mario Falangola, chief of the Naples naval port, and other high Italian officers in consequence of an explosion March 28 at the Naples Arsenal, Moscow radio, quoting a Stefani report, said yesterday in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

The Stefani report was quoted as saying the explosion killed 72 persons and injured 1,179 civilians and soldiers.

TRYING TO FORM LEAGUE

Ottawa, May 12. (CP)—The Ottawa Football Club decided last night to make an effort to revive inter-city senior gridiron competition for the capital. At its annual meeting, James P. McCaffery and Dr. A. P. Davies were appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of forming a league including teams from Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A traveller was wandering across the Rockies in search of a man to whom he had been given a letter of introduction.

After a long and tedious journey he hailed a wild-looking fellow who was smoking outside a shack.

"No," said the man.

"Then can you tell me where I can find his friend and neighbor, Roughhouse Joe?"

"Well, they told me Hard Pete lived within gunshot of you."

"He did."

Paul Goyette Writes

Elsewhere in today's issue will be found the results of a House League athletic competition that has been carried on at Albert College during the past semester. The statistics are provided by Paul R. Goyette, Athletic Director at Albert College, who leaves at the end of the term to enlist in the armed forces. Paul has been training with the 34th Battery since January 1st and will enter an officers' training school.

In an accompanying letter Mr. Goyette asked this department to continue our interests in the encouragement of sports in the local secondary schools.

"I believe a great deal can be done to further sport in this community if secondary school athletics are fostered and encouraged. It is from this source of intelligent, bright young men that our future atnletes must come both to play the games of athletics and the struffle of life. I hope you will continue to assist in maintaining the friendly rivalry which has finally been achieved between the other high schools and our college so that sports in Belleville's schools will continue to go forward in the moulding of better citizens," Mr. Goyette wrote to this department.

(Ed. note—Any assistance this department can afford minor or school sports has always been a pleasure and will continue to be so, be it Albert College or the kids from below the proverbial tracks.

Remember When—?

Carl Hubbell, now a veteran hurler with the New York Giants, pitched his first complete game for the Toronto Maple Leafs 17 years ago today. He allowed Jersey City two hits and won the game for Toronto 1-0. Two years later he went to the Giants where for many years he has been the old reliable of the Giants' pitching staff.

Won't Be Long Now

Sunday's bright warm sunshine proved too intriguing for a goodly number of golfers with the result both local golf clubs were well patronized last weekend. With the exception of the lower gullies where it was still dampish, the fairways and greens at both the Belleville Golf and Country Club were in excellent playing condition. Even Ted Woolley, manager of the local Victory Loan campaign, couldn't resist the urge to lift the odd one down the fairway. Incidentally Billie Steer, club captain at the Bay of Quinte Country Club is planning a gala official opening day program for May 23rd with sweepstakes and tournaments for all concerned.

With additional gasoline rationing in vogue this summer golf officials here are looking for additional interest in golfing circles and are preparing extended tournament programs to stimulate interest in both the ladies' and men's sections.

Juniors Get Sponsor

In what should prove a move in the right direction, the local unit of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada abandoned their interests in an intermediate softball team and voted to sponsor "Red" Townsend's Belleville Juniors, to be known hereafter as the Vets' Juniors. President Tommy York and Joe Samain were the prime backers of the suggestion, as the Vets felt they would be doing more toward the actual fostering of softball in Belleville by financing the juniors than with an intermediate club. However, "Red" Townsend will continue to coach the junior team and already has had his charges out to three practices at the Collegiate campus.

What the softball clubs would like to know, however, is when President Harry Knott and his colleagues are going to convene for 1943 organization?

Pachyderms Squirm

Yep, Frank Tunney has Earl McCready and John Katan for tonight's suet soiree with "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the sensational colored grappler, tossed in for good measure. Walt Gerow's sport palace, better known as the Hume Arena, should see a bumper rasslin' gallery for this all-star card.

It seems both McCready and Katan are priming their guns for a shot at Billie Watson's British Empire crown so it's a cinch there will be no en rapport connected with tonight's main go.

VICTOR GENERAL

Major General Omar Bradley, who replaced Lieut.-Gen George S. Patton as commander of the American Second Corps in Tunisia and led the corps through to victory culminating in the capture of Bizerte and Tunis.

FORD DIRECTOR

Douglas B. Greig, Windsor, who becomes a director of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited after 24 years with the company. He was born in Toronto and joined Ford after returning to Canada from overseas duty in World War I. He is also treasurer.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 53

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We come now, as I eventually must, to a comparison of ways to count no-trump tricks. Horse Sense is the easiest in the world. You just add up all your aces and kings and queens.

That's all there is to that. Anything else is just a waste of time and effort. Being so easy, you do not suspect that it is also the accurate.

Some players use other counts. Like the cumbersome honor trick method. That's where you mix the aces and kings and queens with the jacks and tens. Great gobs of goulash.

That mess is cut up into 8½ hunks of honor tricks. You must assume the 8½ will take 12 or more tricks. Horsefeathers. I can show you as many as 10 honor tricks in one deal.

With honor tricks, you must assume that six and a fraction will take nine tricks; five and a fraction, eight tricks; four and a part, seven tricks. Page the engineering department.

Honor tricks are not as accurate as Horse Sense count. You can find eight honor tricks that can take only eight tricks. Or three honor tricks that can take 13 tricks.

However, millions of players struggled hard for years to learn honor tricks. After all that work, they hate to change. Even when they hear Horse Sense count is easier and safer.

You will meet such players in a bridge game. When you do, be not concerned that they count by another method. You will have what they expect with a shade to the good.

You have this hand:

♠A 5 3 2
♥K Q J
♣K 10 6

You have six Horse Sense tricks in no-trump; an ace, three kings, two queens. The hand contains what the experts will tell are known as four honor tricks. They produce six tricks. Six of one and half a dozen of the other.

You cannot teach an old dog new tricks, perhaps. But it would do some of them a lot of good.

AT THE BELLE

"KID GLOVE KILLER" Mystery

Dramatizing the efficiency of scientific crime detection, "Kid Glove Killer", comes next to the Belle Theatre, featuring Van Heflin, Marsha Hunt, and Lee Bowman, the picture combines the excitement of a manhunt with an unusual triangular romance.

With Heflin enacting the police chemist, Miss Hunt as his assistant and Bowman as the heavy, the story opens with the drowning of the newly-elected district attorney. From that point on, the action develops rapidly with unusual interest.

"Berlin Correspondent" Gripping

Producer Bryan Foy interviewed several fugitives from Nazi concentration camps in preparation for one of the key scenes in "Berlin Correspondent" the 20th Century-Fox dramatic thriller featuring Virginia Gilmore, Dana Andrews and Mona Maris, and announced as the added feature attraction.

As a result, the suspenseful sequence shows authentic Nazi horror chambers, torture cells and other handiwork of the Gestapo more realistically than they have ever appeared on the screen.

"People of Russia" a timely and entertaining topical film will also be exhibited.

AT THE CAPITOL

At the moment, life for young Prince Bambi is a butterfly which has alighted on his wisp of a tail. That's Tunder, Bambi's best pal and teacher giving him the snaggle-tooth laugh. They're both in "Bambi," coming next to the Capitol with the Three Mesquiteers in "Blocked Trail."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Bambi"

The theme of Walt Disney's new feature-length production, "Bambi," to be shown next at the Capitol Theatre, is strictly adult, and its situations are the emotional ones which confront grownup men and women. Felix Salten wrote the best-selling novel on which the picture is based, telling in terms of appealing animal characters living in the Vienna Wald a story which is a life cycle of birth, growth, love, parenthood, tragedy and triumph.

Of course, "Bambi" has its lighter moments, as witness the famous "twitterpated" sequence, probably the most hilarious tomfoolery Disney has ever created. And the production is rich in music.

3 Mesquiteers

The added western stars those three favorited of western films—Bob. Steele, Tom Tyler and Jimmie Dodd — turn detectives in Republic's newest Three Mesquiteers action picture, "The Blocked Trail."

A Popeye cartoon and the serial "Secret Code" complete a grand entertaining program for both young and old.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was around at the firehouse talking to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver and he asked me what I intended to be when I grew up and I said a fireman.

Saying it partly for a compliment to him and partly for the truth, and Mr. Riley said, You'd better not try it till you're sure you're fitted for the job by nature. You dont want to be like a certain chap by the name of Hoosgather, he said.

Did he try to be a fireman? I said, and Mr. Riley said, No, he tried to be a painter, and he was totally unfitted for painting. He was color blind and had no sense of direction, so his brush strokes never went the way he was looking, and yet he insisted on proving he was a painter by varnishing the living room floor. He started at the door and varnished himself into a corner before he discovered he couldn't get out of the room again without walking on the wet varnish, Mr. Riley said.

G, what did he do? I said, and Mr. Riley said, Well, the telephone happened to be in that corner of the room, and like a lot of people who get themselves in different kinds of trouble, the only thing he could think of was to call up the fire department. I was on duty at the time and I responded to the alarm and saw at once what a natural painter would of seen for himself. In other words he could easily of got out of the window, finishing the last few inches of floor as he slid out backwards, which of course was precisely what he did when I suggested it, but the whole incident shook some sense into him and he took up opera singing, because he was a real lover of birds, and now he's singing very successfully in several languages. Well, drop over again some time, I've got a little polishing to do, Mr. Riley said.

Meaning goodbye.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 13

She patted Jud's hand and smiled at him. "And dear, remember you promised to send me a picture in uniform."

"But I'll be only a private, Mother. There's nothing very glamorous about that."

"But I know you'll be a captain before very long. Hetty Turner's son is a captain. Do you remember Hetty, Jud? I play bridge with her every Wednesday. No, every Thursday afternoon. There's another crowd of girls on Wednesday. Do you play, Miss Graves?"

"I play, very poorly," Temple said.

"Oh, really? That's too bad. You should play more or take some lessons. I've always loved cards. Jud's father didn't care for them, but he was always so sweet about my going out to play. He didn't mind in the least how many nights I went out. He'd read or work and look after Jud. I've had the sweetest two boys in the world. Dear, when the waiter passes this way again, will you order another round of drinks?" To Temple she said, "Jud's telegram gave me such a shock . . My nerves, really, if I didn't take a little stimulant. Oh, I'm not going to drink alone, am I?"

Jud said, "I'll have one with you but Temple never has but one."

"You have such a beautiful name, dear, and you remind me of some movie star. I saw her in a picture recently; they played a song throughout the whole picture. You hear it on the radio so much. Oh, what was it? I can't remember but I will. I always remember the ones that make me cry. Silly, isn't it? Just a picture."

She patted Jud's hands again and smiled at him. "Every minute with you is so precious, darling. If I had known I was going to lose you like this, I'd have come down and taken an apartment here as you asked me to." She turned to Temple. "He wanted me to come down with him, but it seemed so hard to leave my friends and my clubs. I didn't see how I could adjust myself in new surroundings. I was afraid I'd be lonely. It was easy for him. He's young. But I'm not so old, am I?" She laughed, a light, tinkling little laugh. "I won't be old. I keep telling myself that I simply won't be old. I loathe old people." She gave Temple a sharp look. "Now I know! I told you I'd remember. It was Ingrid Bergman . . or was it Bergner?"

Temple said, "Thank you."

Jud said, "I'm afraid we'll have to rush it a bit if you're going to make your train, Mother."

"You're leaving tonight?" Temple asked. She had taken it for granted that she must share Jud with his mother until he left.

"Yes," Mrs. Amory said painfully. "I just have to be home tomorrow. I don't know what the committee would do. I couldn't turn the program over to someone else at the last minute." Her plump fingers played nervously with her diamonds. "And, of course, it's such a big thing, a hundred tables."

She looked appealingly at Jud, who said, "That's okay, Mother."

"It's for charity," Mrs. Amory added hopefully.

Jud smiled. "There's no reason why you should turn your life upside down before I'm in the army."

"But you are all I have in the world, darling."

For the remainder their conversation was fitful and meagre. Mrs. Amory ate heartily, her diamonds sparkling. She ordered a heavy sweet desert which she ate with undiminished relish.

Temple wondered whether she were to accompany them to the station. She hoped not since she feared that Jud's mother would repeat what obviously had been for him an embarrassing scene in the station yesterday. Embarrassing to Jud, but highly satisfying to his mother, she thought hotly.

Mrs. Amory had not missed the opportunity to appear as the broken-hearted mother giving her son to his country. It seemed to Temple that her dinner had remained in her throat. She thought, "I can see my mother in a situation like this—kind and dignified, keeping her emotions to herself if it killed her."

Looking at his watch, Jud said. "I'm afraid we'll have to be going."

Temple said. "I'll take a taxi home, Jud. I don't mind at all."

As they went out Mrs. Amory walked ahead so intent at looking at herself in her compact mirror that she did not hear Jud say, "I will be back for you later, Temple."

On the sidewalk Temple turned to Mrs. Amory and held out her hand. She loathed saying what she did not mean. "It was so nice meeting you." When her hand touched the hand of Jud's mother she was reminded of the clay with which she had played as a child. And Jud's touch was so warmly human.

Mrs. Amory accepted the compliment with her tinkly laugh. "Thank you, dear. That's sweet of you. Bye-bye."

In the taxi (a rare luxury, but Temple had hated simply to walk away) she thought, "She didn't like me or dislike me. She didn't think about me except as a girl Jud invited to dinner and a girl who reminded her of an actress. She'll never think about me again. And Jud's father died so that she could live. I feel all hollow inside."

When she reached the house, she found Abby alone in the sitting-room playing the piano.

"Hi," Abby said. "You're home early."

Temple thought, "What will I do when Jud goes? What will I do with my nights? Abby sews or reads or plays the piano and writes letters, writes letters, writes letters. When you are 21 and want to live every minute you do not have to work, you write letters."

"Did you like her?"

Temple shook her head. How could she be fair and honest too?

"I'm sorry," Abby said. "I'm sorry it's like that."

In half an hour Jud came back. They talked for a time to Abby and then went out to his car. Temple wondered whether he would speak of his mother. But he did not. Starting the car, he said, "I wish there was someplace where we could go and be alone. I hate parking the car as if we were kids." In the half-light he saw her smile. "Take off your hat and let your hair blow . . and move close to me. All right?"

"Very all right."

"Good. Let's go . . I don't know where."

Temple did not know where she and Jud rode or how far they went. The roads were unfamiliar to her. But after a long while of riding with her shoulder pressed against his he stopped the car on a cliff above a deserted beach. She saw outlines of small houses, summer homes probably, but there were no lights in them. From below came the sound of rippling water. They sat there hearing only the musical sound of the river and their own breathing.

"Will you marry me, Temple? I want to have a few days alone with you somewhere and we'll have to be married if we want to be together for a few days. This did not just occur to me. I've been thinking about it. But the only promises I can make you are that we'll be happy for those few days and you need not worry about having a baby.

"What other promises can I make? I can't even promise that I'll come back to you. But I can tell you this—that you're not just a girl, any girl, I want to live with you before I go away. It's you I want. I don't want to get married now. We have no right to be individuals and it will be unfair to both of us. But here we are. We want to live together for a few days and even if we could live together innocently there's only one way we can do it without hiding and lying. I could do that, but it would make you sorry and ashamed. There's only one thing I ask. I'd like for it to be kept a secret until the war is over."

"That's asking a hell of a lot, I know. But if you can't go through any of it, Temple, it won't make any difference in the time I have left. We might have become conventionally engaged and conventionally married like decent people if a certain guy in Berlin had had smaller ambitions. Don't do it for me alone, Temple. Think of yourself. How much do you want those few days with me? That's as far as we can look ahead. I may have said this badly and made it sound as though it were a cold-blooded proposition, but I don't want to deceive you. This will have to be for now because the future is out of our hands. I love you. I'm going down on the beach and have a cigarette and leave you to think about it."

He got out of the car and walked away. She heard his footsteps over earth made soft by many spring rains.

She had never felt quite so alone or so young or so helpless before. She had no experience into which to delve so that she might bring up a wise answer. Nor was there time for her to separate her rushing thoughts and examine them. Neither was there time to recognize desire as anything but desire.

In her early teens a favorite teacher had been married and had sent invitations to her wedding to a number of pupils. She had sent one to Temple who had sat in the last pew, looking at the most beautiful spectack she had ever seen—a formal church wedding, beautiful and solemn. She had told herself that night that when she married she must have beauty and solemnity, too.

But now she sat in a broken-down car on a strange road hundreds of miles from home, faced with the most serious problem of her life. It was not beautiful. Solemn, yes, and sad and frightening. There could be no grace and leisure about it, only awkwardness and haste. There was a distasteful, clutching element in it. Take what you can get or you'll be sorry. Hoard love or you'll grow hungry. Have a blitz affair. Why not?

Jungle Trails Astir With Patrol Clashes

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 12 — (CP) — Jungle trails now are astir with clashes of Japanese and Allied patrols below Salamaua, New Guinea, a possible prelude to renewal of the land fighting which subsided in January after the Allies conquered Buna.

Salamaua, on a one mile isthmus extending into the Huon Gulf, is the first Japanese base of importance on the New Guinea northeast coast above Buna, 150 miles distant. To the south of the town is a good airdrome.

Today's communique from Allied headquarters reported "intensified clashes are occurring between small advanced ground elements in the Greens Hill area" of Mubo, which is only 12 miles south of Salamaua. A spokesman elaborated, saying that yesterday an Australian detachment was surrounded for a time but broke through the Japanese ring.

An Allied threat to Salamaua has been growing since the Japanese were defeated decisively at Wau, 235 miles southwest, on Feb. 11 and two days later started a retreat toward Mubo.

Japan's precarious position around Mubo has been rendered worse over a period of more than a month by low-flying Allied attack planes which have made as many as 40 passes in one day to take enemy positions with machine-gun and cannon fire.

Every Experience Of Deaf Child Is Dramatized

King George Home and School Club Members See Demonstration of Teaching Methods

Teaching methods as used by the Ontario School for the Deaf in teaching children handicapped through inability to speak or to hear, were demonstrated to members of the King George Home and School Club at their regular monthly meeting held in the school auditorium on Monday evening.

Miss Ethel M. Nurse, School for the Deaf teacher, told the members of the Home and School Club that the main purpose of teaching the children was to develop speech. This was done, she said, by dramatizing every experience of the child, including his walk, by recitation and more recitation.

Pupils of Grade 1 were called upon by Miss Nurse to give a class demonstration of their methods of learning. Results of training were exemplified in the development which each child demonstrated.

W. J. Morrison, principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf, gave an interesting talk explaining the handicap of losing their school at the outskirts of the city. Though initially handicapped through necessity of setting up a new teaching schedule, great progress was being made under present conditions, he stated.

Honorary president of the Home and School Club, Mr. C. A. Brown, principal of the school, presided over the meeting and expressed the appreciation of the members to Mr. Morrison and his staff for their part in the program. School Inspector, Mr. J. R. Pickering, introduced Mr. Morrison. Included on the evening's program was the installation of officers by Mr. Arthur Hill, chairman of school management for the Board of Education.

Officers installed were Mrs. M. C. Ward, president; Mrs. W. Dawson and Mrs. J. C. Thompson, vice presidents; Mrs. R. Irwin, recording secretary; Mrs. M. F. Ferguson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. A. Wyatt, treasurer. Mrs. Greenwood reported an increase in membership while Mrs. Vandervoort presented the layette report. The evening's program was in charge of Mrs. Tebworth, whose group also served lunch.

Six Ministers May Take Action

Toronto, May 12 (CP)—The Globe and Mail in a newspage story today said that six ministers of the Ontario cabinet "decided yesterday at cabinet council that Prime Minister Gordon D. Conant must declare himself immediately as to whether he intends to remain as Premier or resign."

(Premier Conant entered hospital suffering from nervous exhaustion on the eve of the ballotting in which the Ontario Liberal convention last month selected Harry Nixon, M.P.P., as its provincial leader.)

The Globe added: "If Mr. Conant declines to answer this question before leaving on a vacation in northern Ontario, or if he announces his intention to continue as Premier, then the six ministers will take drastic action which may lead to resigning from the cabinet, it was reported yesterday.

"Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten, who presided at the cabinet session, or Lands and Forests Minister Norman Hipel may carry a message to this effect to the Premier. Mr. Conant is said to be staying with a friend near Oshawa."

Toronto, May 12—(CP)—Sidney Gaskins, 53-year-old taxi driver, today told Toronto Police two gunmen had slugged him and made off with his cab after robbing him of $25 and his driver's licence. Gaskins said the men had thrown him into the rear seat of his cab and drove away with one of them sitting on top of him.

He started fighting with the man on top of him and succeeded in escaping from the car while it was moving. Gaskins gave a description of his assailants to police and a search was started for the men.

Russia Accuses Nazis of Abducting Red Citizens for Slave Labor in Reich

London, May 12—(CP)—The Moscow radio reported today that Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov had addressed a note to the Allied governments accusing Germany of abducting Russian citizens for slave labor in Germany and declaring that those responsible would be brought to account after the war.

Molotov said Marshal Goering ordered full use made of the captured Russians at a secret conference in November, 1941, and reported the German Marshal had declared "they are excellent workmen who succeeded in creating a great industry in their own country."

Molotov charged that Fritz Sauckel, Nazi Labor Man-power Commissioner, had at one time demanded the dispatch to Germany of "400,000 to 500,000 healthy, strong girls."

The Russians sent to the Reich have been half-starved and forced to work 12 hours a day, the note said.

Airways Asked To Fly Food Into Arvida, Quebec

Montreal, May 12 —(CP)— Officials of Canadian Pacific Airways said today they had been requested to fly food from Quebec City to Arvida, Que., to relieve a food shortage developing as a result of recurring landslides which have wiped out sections of railway line running into the northeastern Lake St. John district.

The request came from the Aluminum Company of Canada, Limited, which feeds the thousands of employees working in its giant aluminum-producing plant at Arvida, approximately 150 miles north of Quebec.

There was no immediate indication as to whether the population at large in the district was experiencing any shortage.

Airways officials said they had been asked to fly in 1,169 pounds of meat and 1,000 pounds of butter, eggs and yeast for the making of bread. They added that one of their aircraft had been stripped of seats and non-essential equipment to carry the load.

In 1943 the higher total of subscriptions was reached from the purchases of 54,496 individuals, actually only 394 fewer individuals than the total number of railway subscribers who purchased bonds during the Third Loan campaign.

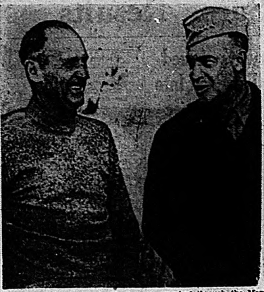
HAPPY WARRIORS



After General Bernard L. Montgomery smashed through the Mareth Line and took El Hamma, he is personally congratulated by General Dwight Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies in North Africa. Both men seem very happy at the way the campaign was going when this photo was made at "Monty's" headquarters. Gen. Eisenhower is at RIGHT. It was probably at this meeting that final plans were laid for the drive that effected the juncture of forces.

Grombalia, on Cap Bon, May 10. (Delayed) (AP)— Hitler's famous shock troops became a desperate rabble, running for their lives into the hills of Cap Bon Peninsula or surrendering in thousands to the British 1st Army today.

All morning I have raced forward with the armored scout cars and seen the amazing spectacle of the German army humbled in the dust of a panicky retreat.

Only a few artillerymen are making any sort of resistance to the 1st Army. Five thousand German infantrymen surrendered in the last four hours to one armored brigade.

I have just entered Grombalia and six miles away on the left, the little town of Soliman also has been captured.

Grenadiers Surrender

A German armored force of Grenadiers who said they had come from the Russian front to Africa last December came up and asked me to accept their surrender.

"We are kaputt (ruined)", declared a grimy-faced blond sergeant who towered above my own height of six feet three inches. "We have no food, no munitions, no benzine".

The four stood in the whirling white dust of the main highway, their guns abandoned and little blanket bundles slung over their backs while passing British armor ignored them.

"You must march to the prisoner-of-war stockade at the Junction", I advised them.

The little group shuffled off obediently.

Further on a lieutenant colonel formally accepted the surrender of a German major and all his surviving junior officers and men. Military police clambered into a captured German half-track troop carrier and escorted a column of 200 toward the rear.

The German command obviously had hoped to stall off the British forces at Hammam Lif, a picturesque Mosem village on the plain a half-mile wide between the hills and the Mediterranean.

Tanks swept through this Gap nine miles southeast of Tunis in a 10-hour battle yesterday, outflanking a line of German 88s by sending one squadron along the sandy beach.

It was strictly an armored show. No British infantry was used today.

This morning the armored advance guard swept forward nine to 13 miles as the enemy defence collapsed in a mad rout.

Huge stocks of military supplies were found untouched in the warehouses of big vineyards near Grombalia and Soliman.

Large parking lots filled with undamaged enemy vehicles are scattered in the fields and the hills to the right of the main highway.

Huge Stocks Supplies Found

Many mobile 88 guns have been abandoned but usually only after their breeches were smashed by explosive charges.

Refugees and carts piled high with bedclothes and pots and pans were returning to their shell-shattered homes.

A black-bereted British general who was studying his maps in the turret of a Sherman tank told me:

"It's all over, there isn't going to be any Axis Dunkirk. A few tough chaps are still fighting, but most of the enemy now is giving in."

It had been a hot morning, drenched with African sunshine, and the hungry general was just about to eat his biscuits spread with peanut butter.

The wireless in a tank began sputtering and I could hear the cool, Oxonian accent of some squadron leader reporting from his patrol.

"Quite an interesting story here, sir," the voice said. "We have met a British soldier who was captured and disarmed last night. This morning, he says, the Germans gave him back his rifle. Now he is here with 200 Germans who surrendered to him."

COLLAPSE OF ENEMY ENDS TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN

1,500 TONS OF BOMBS RAINED DOWN ON DUISBURG

Italian Army Last To Cease Fighting, Order of Mussolini

Von Arnim Taken Chief Commander, By Troops of an Indian Division

GEN. MESSE CAPTURED

Allied Headquarters, in North Africa, May 13—(AP)—The Italian General, Giovanni Messe, surrendered today to the British 8th Army and it was reported here, but not confirmed, that one of the sons-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy gave up with him.

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 13. (AP)— A strong bombing attack combined with a nutcracker action aground "finally induced the enemy 1st (Italian) Army to ask for terms" in the area north of Enfidaville yesterday, ending all organized resistance aground, the Allied communique said today.

(The Italian High Command announced today that the Italian 1st Army, headed by Marshal Giovanni Messe, ceased fighting this morning by order of Mussolini. The communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by The Associated Press, said that to this army "fell the honor of the last Axis resistance on African soil.")

Allied headquarters said that small isolated pockets of the enemy still remained to be mopped up.

"Further large numbers of prisoners are being collected and, as already announced, it is estimated that at least 150,000 have been taken since May 5", the communique said.

"Naval forces still maintain their close watch on both sides of the Cap Bon Peninsula to prevent any escape of the enemy by sea. In the last two days naval units have captured various little parties of troops trying to reach Pantelleria in small boats".

The communique said that Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim, Commander-in-Chief of the Axis forces who was among the 12 Axis Generals rounded up by the victorious Allies, was captured by troops of the Indian 4th division yesterday near Ste. Marie Du Zit, midway between Tunis and Enfidaville.

German and Italian troops were taken yesterday morning from Zembrj Island, 12 miles east of Cap Bon, it was announced.

Large fires were started by Wellington bombers in the dock area of the Sicilian port of Marsala Tuesday night the communique said. Light and medium bombers made the raids on the holdout enemy positions in Tunisia.

Three planes were reported missing from these offensive thrusts.

"Last night enemy bombers attempted an attack on the Algiers area," the communique said. "They were driven off by anti-aircraft gunfire and night fighters, at least three enemy aircraft being destroyed. The few bombs dropped caused a very small number of casualties and slight damage to civilian property."

A triumphant special communique announced that only isolated, unimportant pockets of resistance remained at 8:15 p.m. (4:15 p.m. E.D.T.) yesterday, six months and four days after British and United States forces landed in Morocco and Algeria.

All organized Axis resistance was finished. Tens of thousands of Germans and Italians streamed unescorted from Cap Bon peninsula yesterday toward the prison pens where they were to be classified and sent on to permanent prison of war camps.

Huge stores of war material of all kinds were captured, "including guns and aircraft in serviceable condition," headquarters announced. Most of the material, in ironic justice, will go to outfit French units which for the first time since the great war had forced a German army to beg for an armistice.

Only a nine-mile wide circle of Axis troops still held out southwest of Bou Ficha last night, but its stance was considered hopeless and unimportant.

Von Arnim's capture was effected in Cap Bon peninsula where the Axis had made a brief pretense of putting up a last brave show, but quickly was overwhelmed by crushing Allied air power and speedy British 1st Army armored units.

Victory 'One of Most Complete, Decisive In History' Says General Alexander

ALLIES ARE 'MASTERS'

By WILLIAM B. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 13 —(AP)— Allied mopping-up parties hunted the last ragged remnants of Hitler's African armies in Tunisia today to round out a victory which Gen. Sir Harold Alexander has called "one of the most complete and decisive in history."

A military spokesman estimated that the prisoners would total "near 175,000" when the last of the holdout detachments are rounded up in the offensive launched May 5th.

All organized resistance has ended.

German and Italian armies were crushed and their commander in chief, Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, was among the 150,000 captives already counted.

The small pockets of enemy soldiers who fought on either had not heard about the general debacle or preferred to remain in action despite the surrender of their commander.

Allied armies dropped their final bomb in Africa at midmorning yesterday. It was dropped by the desert air forces, which loosed its first one June 11, 1940, on Tobruk the day after Italy entered the war.

No Letup by Air

But the air force announced there would be no letup. It means merely that its attacks will be concentrated across the Mediterranean.

On the southern sector facing 8th Army positions fighting was stubborn throughout yesterday morning, but the battle ended as organized combat during the day.

Enemy resistance collapsed suddenly in the area of Zaghouan, 28 miles south of Tunis. The Allied communique announced that French troops, centring attacks in that area, had captured more than 22,000 prisoners in the final 48 hours of combat.

Von Arnim, in Surrendering, More Anxious About His Baggage Than Men

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

British 1st Army Headquarters, Tunisia, May 13—(AP)—Dust-stained Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim, captured commander of the conquered Axis forces in Africa, refused to sign the surrender terms of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson and was sent to the rear today more anxious about his baggage than his troops.

Driven nearly 100 miles in an automobile after sending out envoys with a white flag and surrendering, Von Arnim was received last night by Gen. Andersen in the tent in a green pasture from which he directed the drive of his forces.

Gen. Anderson's refused terms were that the enemy cease destruction of war material, relinquish weapons undamaged, give details of mine fields and aid in clearing them—but the refusal was academic.

Gen. Anderson himself told war correspondents that it didn't matter anyhow, underlining the completeness of the Axis debacle.

Captured by Indian Div.

Officially Von Arnim was captured by troops of the Indian 4th division which attacked the enemy's 1st army a week ago. The 4th division, desert veterans, now is part of the British 1st Army.

Cornered near Ste. Marie Du Zit, Von Arnim, surrendered and was interviewed last night by Gen. Anderson in his pasture tent. After that the British leader met Allied war correspondents.

175,000 Prisoners

As the inflow of prisoners continued one military source said that the total bag of captives since May 5 probably would approach 175,000.

Standing in the moonlit British headquarters after a hot supper last night, Von Arnim's only comments were about his baggage which was being transferred from one truck to another.

The procession of Axis commanders through the mess tent here for meals included Gen. Count Von Sponeck, commander of the 90th Light Infantry Division; Maj.-Gen. Franz of the 19th Anti-aircraft Division and the past few days acting commander of the Goering Division; Maj.-Gen. Broich of the 10th Armored Division; Maj.-Gen. Hulsen, Acting Commander of the 21st Armored Division; Gen. Kramer; and Gen. Da Costa, of the Centauro Division, President of the Italian Military Tribunal.

Terms of Surrender

Gen. Anderson demanded that the enemy cease destruction of war material, turn over weapons undamaged, reveal details of mine fields and assist in clearing them.

"The situation is that if Von Arnim won't sign the terms it won't matter anyhow," the general told war correspondents.

One military source predicted that when mopping-up is concluded "the total prisoners will be near

REVOLT RAGING IN HOLLAND AND SPREADING FAST

Reports State There Has Been a Series of Attacks on German Military Forces

EXTENDS INTO BELGIUM

London, May 13 (CP)—Reports from the continent today said revolt was raging in occupied Holland and had spread "like wildfire" across the border into Belgium where there was a series of attacks on German troops, military establishments and communications.

Reverberations of the Allied victory in Africa were said to be shaking the whole of Hitler's Europe.

Accounts of sabotage, armed clash and general resistance poured in from Poland, Norway, Yugoslavia and Greece, but Hollanders and Belgians appeared to be giving Nazi occupation forces the greatest trouble.

There were indications in reports reaching here that the Germans were sending additional troops into the low countries, but it was not clear whether this was in anticipation of an Allied invasion or to suppress rebellion

The Netherlands government in London urged Holland's 400,000 ex-servicemen to defy German orders to register for reinternment.

Revolting Chinese Puppet Troops Kill Jap Garrison

Chungking, May 13—(AP)—Revolting Chinese puppet troops have engaged in a series of clashes with Japanese forces near Hangchow, main enemy base in Chekiang province, the semi-official Central News Agency reported today.

The Chinese were said to have killed the Japanese garrison commander and eight other officers in a railway town south of Hangchow and joined forces with puppet troops from a neighboring town.

The joint forces then fought Japanese troops, inflicting more than 100 casualties, the agency said.

SINK ENEMY SAILING SHIP, DAMAGE FIVE OTHERS

Civilian Subscriptions Lag Though 96 Per Cent of Quota Has Been Attained in County

Despite the fact that Hastings county has now obtained 96 percent of its $3,300,000 objective in the Fourth Victory Loan campaign, civilian subscription to the loan still lags far behind pre-campaign expectations, it was stated this morning by county headquarters committeemen.

The splendid co-operation received from large buyers and county industries through the payroll savings plan has been greatly responsible for the county now being near its campaign objective. When broken down, however, the 96 percent figure is not as encouraging as it sounds as there is still a great deal of money to be raised if the county's general canvass objective is to be attained.

With only two full days of the Victory Loan campaign still remaining, county loan committeemen urged all civilians to get behind the attack and back it with every available dollar they can spare. Citizens were urged to back their boys in the fighting forces and to swing in line with the large buyers and industries to help put Hastings away "over the top."

In Leading Position

Hastings today is in the preferred position of being right up with the leaders across the province in percentage of their objective to the Victory Loan now achieved and with co-operative effort on the part of those who have not yet subscribed with every dollar they can spare, this county has a splendid chance of being in No. 1 position at the conclusion of the campaign.

Citizens who have not yet subscribed to the Fourth Victory Loan were urged by county committeemen. to get in touch with their salesman, banker, or contact the local Victory Loan Headquarters at 311 Front Street.

So, come on citizens, let's "Back the Attack" and give Hastings a record of which to be proud.

TOTAL FOR LOAN NEARS BILLION DOLLAR MARK

MORE FARMERS BUYING

Ottawa, May 13 (CP)—Subscriptions of $74,405,450 on Wednesday raised the cumulative total of the three-week Fourth Victory Loan campaign to $959,707,800, with three business days left before the campaign ends and the objective of $1,100,000,000 less than $150,000,000 away, National Loan Headquarters announced today.

"The increase in subscriptions Wednesday over the day before was represented largely by corporate special names' subscriptions, mostly from Ontario," said the daily statement to the press.

Tuesday subscriptions amounted to $64,399,950. The Wednesday total of $74,405,450 compares with $57,075,500 on the corresponding day of the third victory loan and the cumulative total of $959,707,800 compares with $772,281,500 at the same stage of the $750,000,000 third victory loan last autumn.

Manitoba Passes Objective

Manitoba reached and passed its over-all objective late yesterday, second province in Canada to do so. New Brunswick was first. Prince Edward Island also reached its official over-all quota.

Headed by a subscription of $14,000,000 from Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Waterloo, Ontario turned in a list of substantial corporate subscriptions. Officials of Mutual described its large subscription as "an investment of policy-holders life insurance savings in the best Canadian security."

Other Large Subscriptions

Other Ontario subscriptions included: The Robert Simpson Co. Ltd., $4,000,000; Lever Bros. Ltd., Toronto, $1,000,000; Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, $2,000,000; McIntyre-Porcupine Mines Ltd., $2,000,000; Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co. Ltd., Toronto, $1,000,000; Premier Trust Co., Toronto, $500,000; Wright Hargreaves Mines Ltd. $1,500,000; Canadian Niagara Power Co. Ltd., Niagara Falls, $500,000; Toronto General Trusts Corp. Ltd., $1,800,000.

From Montreal were reported subscriptions by Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. $1,500,000; Homes Insurance Co., New York, $800,000; and Zeller's Ltd., $500,000.

Good support for the loan by farmers was reported to Ottawa headquarters today from Ontario.

PRESIDENT'S NEW PRODUCTION GOAL IS 75,000 PLANES

Figured on Weight Total Will Equal 150,000 Planes of '42 Vintage

90,000 IN 1944

By KARL BAUMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 13—(AP)— President Roosevelt's new 1943 aircraft production goal—911,000,000 pounds —apparently means about 75,000 planes.

While this figure is much smaller than his original goal of 125,000 planes, announced early in the war, this year's output figured on a weight basis will equal 150,000 planes of the 1942 vantage.

In 1942, the first year of real mass production, United States produced about 48,000 planes of all types with a total weight of 291,000,000 pounds, or an average of approximately 6,060 pounds per plane.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson of War Production Board predicts that the 1943 models will have an average weight twice as great as last year's. So 911,000,000 pounds of planes, each averaging 12,000 pounds, would mean between 75,000 and 76,000.

Mr. Roosevelt translated aircraft production, past and projected, into pounds to fully reflect the emphasis on heavier planes, particularly the growing output of four-engine bombers specially designed to carry the war to the enemy.

Next year's goal, as announced by the president, is 1,417,000,000 pounds. Assuming a further average increase in weight of 25 per cent—from 12,000 to 16,000 pounds per plane—this would mean about 90,000 planes.

Aircraft production has climbed steadily in numbers as well as weight this year, reaching 6,200 in March, the last month for which official figures were announced.

BELIEVE LEADERS CONSIDER INDIA FOR STAB AT JAPS

Allied Armies May Attempt to Capture Burma Road to Move Supplies to China

EUROPE ACTION FIXED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 13 (AP)—The strategic possibilities of India as a base for major operations against Japan apparently constitute one of the main questions under discussion among Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and their top-flight military and naval commanders gathered here for decisions on future war plans.

Disclosure that Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Supreme Commander in the India-Burma theatre, had arrived led to speculation that a vastly more active role for that sector of the front against Japan is in the making.

With Wavell came Admiral Sir James Somerville, Commander-in-Chief of Britain's eastern fleet, based on Ceylon, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Richard Peirse, the theatre air commander.

Road of Extreme Importance

These three direct the only land, sea and air forces in position to open a route for heavy movement of supplies to China— the Burma Road. That the enemy controls this road has become of extreme importance for two reasons:-

First, the re-opening of the Mediterranean as a result of the Allied clean-up in North Africa so shortens shipping routes to India that delivery of greatly increased material there this summer seems certain.

Second, until those supplies can be trans-shipped to the Chinese armies the full weight of Allied military power cannot be brought to bear on Japan's Asiatic flank.

The impression persists here that the broad pattern of action in Europe has already been fixed since any early invasion of the continent calls for such masses of men and material and such minute planning of detail that the strategy must have been laid out long before this.

Former Netherlands Troops Ordered To Defy German Registration Order

London, May 13—(CP) — The Netherlands Government in London urged Holland's 400,000 ex-servicemen to defy German orders to register for re-internment today as news of the smashing Axis defeat in North Africa inspired new unrest in Hitler's European citadel.

The appeal, broadcast by the Free Netherlands station radio Orange, warned the ex-servicemen that the Germans intended to make them "labor slaves" and advised them to defend themselves against attempts to arrest.

The broadcast represented an unprecedented action on the part of the government in London, which thus—by implication, at any rate—advocated for the first time a policy of outright physical resistance in the homeland.

German authorities who had directed the re-internment of all former members of the Netherlands' armed forces for the apparent purpose of preventing them from co-operating in a possible Allied invasion, had set today as the deadline for registration.

The broadcast came as Axis sources disclosed that five more Netherlands' citizens had been executed in the town of Eindhoven under a recent proclamation of martial law in the Netherlands, bringing the total put to death since May 1 to 43.

Forbidden to Stand in Doorways

At the same time it was reported that inhabitants of Eindhoven had been forbidden to stand in doorways or windows after the nightly curfew, and police were instructed to shoot offenders on the spot. Eindhoven is the site of the oft-bombed Philips Radio Works, and the Germans apparently were afraid the Netherlanders might be signalling Allied raiders.

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said reports there were that shooting broke out in the streets of Holland's cities three days after martial law was declared, and that the names off 44 executed persons had been announced, although many more were known to have been shot.

The Netherlands' news agency Aneta also reported that trouble was brewing in Holland over a German order of May 5 ordering conscription of all students who refused to sign declarations of obedience to occupation authorities. About 15,000 of the country's 18,000 were said to have refused to sign and gone into hiding.

Signs of Trouble

While Holland appeared to be the chief centre of unrest in Occupied Europe, there were signs of trouble for the Nazis in other spots.

The German news and propaganda agency DNB reported from Brussels that military authorities there had sentenced eight Belgians to death for collecting weapons and equipment for sabotage. Long prison terms were imposed on several others.

From Berne it was reported 150 Frenchmen had been arrested in Vichy on charges of plotting against Pierre Laval.

The Algiers radio addressed a broadcast to the French people telling them that as a result of the Allied victory in Tunisia "the battle for liberation will soon start—get ready for it."

Through Stockholm came reports of armed uprising against German forces in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, while in Yugo-Slavia Gen. Draja Mihailovic's guerillas were reported to have inflicted a sharp defeat on Italian troops.

Heaviest Attack Of War on Ruhr Delivered by RAF

Canadian Bomber Group Well Represented, 9 Missing From the Raid

34 IN ALL LOST

London, May 13 — (CP) — R.A.F. bombers delivered their heaviest attack of the war on Germany last night, dropping more than 1,500 tons of bombs on the battered industrial centre of Duisburg, it was announced today.

Thirty-four bombers were reported lost in the raid—the first great night attack on the Reich since the smashing assault on Dortmund May 4.

The Canadian bomber group was "well represented" in the attack by Halifaxes and Wellingtons. Two of the Canadian squadrons were led by Wing Cmdr. M. Fleming, D.F.C., of Ottawa and Wing Cmdr. L. Crooks, D.F.C.

Nine Canadian bombers were missing from the attack, authorities said.

Followed Up Assault

Allied raiders followed up this assault by streaming across the English Channel this morning in bright sunlight to smash at the coast of occupied France. The rumble of heavy explosions rolled across the Channel, and later twin-engined bombers came winging home under a swarming escort of fighters.

Duisburg, situated at the junction of the Rhine and Ruhr, is a vital transport and communications centre in addition to being the site of important war industries.

It was last bombed the night of April 26, when heavy R.A.F. bombers unloaded 1,350 tons of high explosives on the city in one of the mightiest assaults undertaken by the R.A.F. up to that time.

An air ministry communique said that visibility was good last night and that preliminary reports "indicate excellent results."

Did Not Specify

The communique did not specify the exact weight of bombs dropped on Duisburg, but characterized the raid unequivocally as "the heaviest attack of the war".

Changing Basis Of Promoting Officers in Army

Toronto, May 13 — (CP) — The Financial Post in a despatch from Ottawa said today: "An attempt is being made to bring about a drastic and far-reaching change in the basis on which officers in the army can be shifted from the jobs."

The despatch continued: "Under British and present Canadian practice there is little that can be done to make room for younger men unless the holder of an important job is 'kicked upstairs.'

"What is intended apparently is to introduce into army regulations a provision which will enable senior officers to use their judgment in advancing younger men to positions of responsibility and retiring older men without the stigma of an adverse report on their conduct or ability.

"It is common business practice to retire or shift men from responsible positions without any stigma attaching to the move. What is hoped, apparently, is to work out a plan which would give similar flexibility in the army."

Body of Missing Man Is Found In Little Lake

Peterboro, May 13 (Special)—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Charles E. Holloway, C.N.R. yardman, who has been missing since the night of Friday, April 2, was solved at noon Wednesday when the body of the missing railway man was found floating in Little Lake.

The discovery was made by thirteen year old Gordon Runnett, 18 Wallace street, who was walking along the shore line of the Burnham's Point wartime housing subdivision when he noticed the body in the water close to the shore. This was at 12.12 and the police were called. Inspector James P. Reid and Constables C. J. McGillen and Ernest Beatty went to the scene and brought the body of Holloway to shore by means of a fishing line.

Holloway had not been seen since the night of April 2 when he accompanied a number of friends to the American hotel and after an unsuccessful attempt to get into the closed beverage room walked down the laneway at the side of the hotel. When he did not come back and later failed to return to his boarding house or report for work next morning, the police were notified. They arrived at the conclusion that the unfortunate man must have fallen into the Jackson Park creek which runs past the rear of the hotel and was travelling at freshet speed that night.

Holloway's wife, who lives in Belleville, has been notified. It is expected that there will be an inquest into the fatality.

The late Charles Holloway, who was in his 53rd. year was born in England and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Holloway. Three years ago he came to Belleville from Saskatoon, Sask., and was employed as a yardman with the Canadian Nationl Railways. At the time of his death he was engaged in work for the railway at Peterboro. His wife and family live here at 54 West Moira Street, Belleville.

In religion Mr. Holloway was a member of St. Michael's Church and was well respected. In connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society. His sudden death has brought much regret to his friends.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Cecile McEvoy; four daughters, Mrs. Albert Bent, Victoria, B.C.; Miss Catherine Holloway with the C.W.A.C., Ottawa; Lillian and Shirley, both at home; three sons, Patrick of Toronto; Bernard now serving in the forces at Petawawa, and Robert at home; two brothers, Bernard of Prescott and Joseph of Niagara Falls, Ontario. Resting at the Corrigan & O'Brien Funeral Home, 30 Moira Street West; the funeral announcement is made on page two in this issue.

Churchill to Speak To U. S. Congress Next Wednesday

Washington, May 13 —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill will address the United States Congress next Wednesday at 12:30 p.m., E.D.T.

Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House of Representatives invited him this morning, he accepted, and Rayburn returned to the Capitol to arrange a joint Senate-House session.

The White House said, meanwhile, that a radio address Mr. Churchill has scheduled for tomorrow afternoon (3 p.m. E.D.T.) will be almost entirely for home consumption in Britain.

It will carry out a promise made before the Prime Minister came to the United States to honor the anniversary of the British Home Guards.

North American networks will carry the address if they wish.

Whether Mr. Churchill's speech to Congress will be broadcast is up to Mr. Rayburn.

What the theme of it will be and whether it will give any clues to easons for the current Churchill-Roosevelt meeting, the White House did not say. But it will give the Prime Minister a forum for analyzing the Tunisian victory and its relation to the future conduct of the war, if he wants to make this use of it.

FARMER USES TWO TRACTORS

Carlton, Ore., May 13 (AP)— It took a lot of sprinting, but farmer John Kirsch solved the manpower shortage. He had two tractors and only himself to run them. He set the controls of one and started it driverless across the field. Then he jumped aboard the other and followed. Before the first one reached the fence he ran it down and turned it around . . . and so on—for 300 acres.

Britain Exerts A New Lever

London, May 13—(CP)—A new lever in the effort to get Germany to strike the shackles off Canadian and British prisoners-of-war was placed in the hands of the Allies with the Tunisian victory, where the mass surrender of Axis troops gave the United Nations more German prisoners than there are Allied prisoners in German camps.

Before the blow fell in Tunisia this week, the number of British and Canadian prisoners in Germany was roughly about 90,000, while up to the fall of Tunis and Bizerte, British forces had taken about 30,000 German prisoners.

The count is not completed in Tunisia, but Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced in the House of Commons today that more than 150,000 prisoners had been taken there in the last eight days and it was believed that the majority of them were Germans.

The Germans began putting chains on Dominion and British war prisoners last August, asserting they did it because British commandos had chaind prisoners taken in the Canadian-led Dieppe raid.

Alaska Highway Damaged Less Than Feared by Thaw

Whitehorse, Y. T., May 13—(AP)—The spring thaw damaged the Alaska highway less than feared and already busses amaze settlers deep in the heart of the northland.

During the dry and comparatively warm months ahead, Brig.-Gen. James A. O'Connor, Commanding General of the United States Northwest Service Command, is confident the first land route in history to Alaska will become a permanent year-around road.

The spring thaw had been feared particularly for washouts. Many temporary timber bridges along the 1,600-mile road withstood the full force of river ice movements. Ferries are being used where bridges buckled.

The big busses, although restricted to military personnel and civilian construction workers, now are operated on regular runs from Dawson Creek to Whitehorse.

"It's quite a sight," one old settler observed, "to see a bus rolling along where before you saw only dogsleds, pack trains and an occasional canoe on the rivers." This summer long stretches of the road will be gravelled.

J.G. Skelcher Dies Suddenly While Mowing His Lawn

John George Skelcher, retired Canadian National Railways engineer, died suddenly at his home, 136 Chatham Street, about seven o'clock Wednesday evening. He had been cutting the lawn and was resting upon the steps of the verandah when he expired and was found there by members of the family.

The late Mr. Skelcher would have reached the age of 67 years had he lived until June 27th. He was born in Birmingham, England and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Skelcher. Upon coming to Canada he entered the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway at Toronto on Dec. 17th, 1897 and on Dec. 13th, 1898 he was made a fireman. He worked in this capacity until Sept. 2nd, 1902 when he was promoted to the rank of locomotive engineer. In the fall of 1910 he was transferred to the Belleville division and since that time he made his home here.

For some years Mr. Skelcher was engineer in charge of freight trains and in 1930 he was promoted to the passenger train traffic and was the engineer on the fast train between Belleville and Toronto up to the time of his retirement on June 27th, 1941. In the discharge of his duties he was faithful and efficient and was highly thought of by the officials in the division and by his fellow employees. To them and to many friends in Belleville and elsewhere his sudden death has brought much regret.

Since coming to live in Belleville Mr. Skelcher took an interest in the affairs of the city and gave his support to worthy causes. He was a director and past president of the Belleville Motor Club; a member of the Belleville Horticultural Society; member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Division 189; President of the Railwaymen's Veterans' Association and a member of the Order of Oddfellows, East Toronto Lodge No. 263.

U.S. Machine Tools, Plants Ample To Build Production for Victory

W.P.B. Decides to Halt Plant Projects Which Cannot be Completed by October

SWITCH-OVERS

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 13 — (AP) — News that the United States "at last has the machine tools and the capital equipment it needs to build production to defeat the Axis" was tempered today by a threat of unemployment in munitions centres.

War Production Board officials declared, however, that every worker released from ordnance or munitions plants could be absorbed quickly by shipbuilding, aircraft and other industries still clamoring for help. In the process, there undoubtedly will be "some labor migration," they added.

Thousands of construction workers will be affected by W.P.B.'s decision, announced yesterday, to halt virtually all plant projects which cannot be completed by October, and many thousands more will be left idle during production switch-overs in munitions and machine tool plants.

A W. P. B. spokesman said cases of unemployement arising from the reconversion program would be "temporary" and well scattered, so that there would be fewer instances of severe labor dislocations.

Neither W. P. B. nor the War Manpower Commission would venture to estimate the number of workers likely to be affected, but the W. P. B. spokesman said he disagreed violently with the recent assertion of C.I.O. President Philip Murray that 650,000 war workers would be left jobless in the next few months.

In some instances war plants may be reconverted to civilian production to supply shortages of transportation, communications and other needed equipment.

TOTAL FOR LOAN

said this report, "rural purchases to date are more than $30,000,000, well ahead of the figure for the last loan."

More farmers are buying than before in Ontario and most are subscribing in cash it was said. Some salesmen are buying farm animals or produce, convincing the farmers they should use the proceeds to buy bonds, and then reselling the animals or produce.

Armed Services

Latest reports give total navy subscriptions at $2,777,100, Air Force at $7,136,500 and Army at $10,532,000 — a combined fighting services total of $20,445,600.

The Army figures of $10,532,000 was subscribed by 117,522 persons and includes 11,442 overseas applications for $1,212,000. It was announced that 40 per cent of army personnel in Canada has subscribed.

"In subscribing $1,212,000, soldiers outside Canada have contributed 11.5 per cent of the army total", said loan headquarters. "The average overseas subscription is almost $106, while the average soldier subscription in Canada is about $88".

With a total of $9,320,000, Army units in Canada have raised more than 175 per cent of their $5,265,000 objective. Military District No. 4 (Montreal) continues to lead with $1,110,600 of 278 per cent of objective. Petawawa Camp, Ont., is back in second place with $480,500 or 240 per cent. Petawawa is leading in Ontario, where seven Army loan divisions now have a total of $3,443,500.

The three armed services in Ontario have combined for a current total of $6,037,400. In addition to the Navy's $354,200, the Army has $3,443,500 and the R.C.A.F. $2,239,700.

$251,000 From Trenton Station

No. 1 Manning Depot, Toronto, leads the Air Force in Ontario, with $276,300, followed by Trenton, $251,000; St. Thomas, $107,500; and No. 1 Initial Training School, Toronto, $102,300.

VICTORY

Enemy troops surrounded in the coastal sector north of Enfidaville were subjected to a strong bombing attack and this aerial pounding "finally induced the enemy 1st Army to ask for terms," the communique said.

Masters of North Africa

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Deputy Commander-in-Chief, in a man-to-man talk with his staff in a building tucked away in the Tunisian hills, said "We have wiped out an entire army and today we stand masters of the whole of North Africa."

"This is a great victory, one of the most complete and decisive in history," he said. "We have taken 150,000 prisoners, over 1,000 guns, 250 tanks and a mass of lorries and equipment of all sorts which probably will take days if not weeks to count."

(A Tass dispatch broadcast from Moscow said Soviet newspapers featured "the brilliant victory of Allied troops in Africa."

(The Communist party newspaper was quoted as saying that "the collapse of Hitler's gamble in Africa revealed the faults of the Hitlerite strategy, which underestimates the strength and possibilities of the adversary and overestimates its own strength. Whereas the first stages of the African campaign exposed the bankruptcy of the Hitlerite offensive strategy, its finale was a vivid demonstration of the collapse of his defensive strategy.")

Gen. Alexander in his talk said: "Three months ago I was called from the Western Desert to take over the command of the Tunisian front and I had to gather and form a headquarters in the shortest possible time and it was not made any easier because the enemy was then attacking us all down the line and things were not going too well for us. But, thanks to you, this headquarters was formed in record time ... this victory was of your making too and its fame and glory belongs to every one of you."

Von Arnim's Last Message

What is believed to be the last message that Von Arnim sent in his role as Commander-in-Chief of the Axis forces was found among captured papers.

It said: "The order to defend Tunisia to the last cartridge has been carried out."

Von Arnim, 54, is being given the courtesies of a general officer. Capture of the Silesian aristocrat closes a brilliant career in the armies of Kaiser Wilhelm and Hitler. He joined the Prussian Army in his youth and was made a sub-lieutenant in 1905. He won four decorations in the First Great War and, after 1918, remained in Germany's 100,000-man Armistice Army, where he specialized in staff work.

TO ALL PERSONNEL OF THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY:-

The contribution which you have made and are making to the ultimate success of our arms is one of which you can be justifiably proud.

But before we can say our effort, as individuals or as a Service, is a total one, we must all contribute materially as well. The men and women of the Service realize better than most the urgency of a never-ceasing flow of ships, armament, and equipment to make victory ours.

The Fourth Victory Loan provides us with an opportunity to make our contribution complete. It is a financial challenge which must not go unanswered by the Navy. A very large proportion of our personnel have already subscribed. Most gratifying indeed have been the reports from the men on the ships fighting the Battle of the North Atlantic. In almost every instance they have exceeded their quotas. Officers and ratings of the WRENS also passed their objective some days ago. But the final measure of our participation in the Loan should be nothing short of a subscription from every last officer and rating - to help "back the attack".

I confidently appeal to all of you to subscribe to the very limit of your resources in the further discharge of the trust of the "guardianship of the seas" which has been reposed in us.

VICTORY LOAN CAMPAIGN

Prior to the inauguration of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign I asked for the co-operation of all Commanders to demonstrate that the Army, though trained to attack, could and would "Back the Attack".

I am more than gratified with the fine results that have already been achieved. But it is not enough to rest on our laurels with the knowledge that we have exceeded, by a substantial amount, the quota set by the National War Finance Committee.

My hope is that every man and woman in the Army will participate in our effort.

I now ask for your continued active and personal interest in exploiting to the full our initial success.

CANADA

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL DEFENCE FOR AIR

OFFICE OF CHIEF OF THE AIR STAFF
OTTAWA
May 6th, 1943.

To all ranks of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Home and Overseas:

Your response to Canada's 4th Victory Loan has been splendid. With the loan at the half-way mark, subscriptions so far have exceeded the total purchases made by the Royal Canadian Air Force during the entire period of the last Victory Loan. In all commands, results have been most encouraging.

But the present objective of one billion one hundred million dollars is a vastly greater amount than that which was sought last fall and it is a goal which is a challenge to all Canadians. As Chief of the Air Staff, I am confident that every officer, airman and airwoman of the R.C.A.F. will meet this challenge and support the 4th Victory Loan to the limit.

I look to you to subscribe to the loan not only out of your savings, but with whatever proportion of your future pay you are able to assign. This may require careful stewardship, but there is such marked need for full and most serious support of the loan that all Air Force personnel, I am sure, will scan their living budgets most carefully to ascertain how they can achieve some added economy which would enable them to participate.

When the subscription lists are closed I hope that every member of the R.C.A.F. may be in a position to say with pride: "I bought a bond. I am in this war with dollars as well as deeds!"

(L.S. Breadner)
Air Marshal
Chief of the Air Staff.

How about You?

That the Commanding Officers suggest "that every man and woman in the Armed Forces will participate in the purchase of Victory Bonds to the utmost of their ability" is a challenge to all of us. We can do no less.

The men in the Navy, the Army, the Air Force know from cruel experience that they cannot defeat the enemy with their bare hands. They know the job will need the backing of every dollar we can put into this fight. They will not spare their lives—we must not spare our dollars.

Don't delay—don't even hesitate—phone Victory Loan Headquarters right now—today, and tell them that you will take another Bond. If you haven't the cash your Bank will help you or the Victory Loan salesman will arrange for you to buy the additional Bonds on the Instalment Plan. Sign on the dotted line—Act now.

Invest in Victory Loan

Canadians who read the appeal of G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee on Wednesday, for at least one hundred million dollars in subscriptions to the Fourth Victory War Loan in the last four days of the campaign, which he said meant twenty-five million dollars a day from the general canvass of the public, learned the need of wholehearted support by those who have not yet contributed and by those others who are able to add to their purchase of Victory Bonds in order to attain the national objective of $1,100,000,000.

What the men of the navy, army and air force have done is well known. It is something to inspire every Canadian for these men in the forces are giving their time and services and are ready to take their places in the theatre of danger to bring about the victory which alone can be the end of this struggle, and they also invest their savings from pay in the banner securities.

War demands sacrifices of those who serve in the places of danger, of those who work in the home or in the factory or shop, and of all for this war of democracy against totalitarianism and tyranny and aggression is all people's war. Some of this sacrifice is in restrictions which really are not severe, much of it is in labor and also a large part of it in lending every dollar one can to the Government to further the striking force. Investing money in war bonds does not reach total effort until the buying of bonds does impose a sacrifice.

People are advised to save in wartime: the best saving is in buying war bonds. If they save they have an insurance for the days after the war when there will be opportunities to buy things that cannot be bought today because of shortage of materials and priorities for war purposes.

The great value of course in supporting the loan is in furnishing the men in the spearhead of attack with the weapons to defeat the enemy and in the subscriber realizing that he or she has done the utmost possible. It is folly to waste money on the trifling things at this time when money can be dedicated to the highest purpose possible — that it may serve in the safeguarding of liberty and freedom and in the liberation of the world from savage and depraved aggressors.

It is sincerely to be hoped that these last days of the loan will see the utmost in subscriptions go beyond the bare requirements of twenty-five millions a day. It will be a satisfaction at the close to everyone to know that the aims and hopes in respect of the loan have been realized and that Canada has done her best in offering the sinews of war to the great task.

In the words of Mr. Spinney, "The people of this nation will never permit it to be said they failed their fighting men in the face of offensive battle."

There are great events developing and Canadians will not fail even as the men in the fighting forces will not fail.

Great Leaders Meet

Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt are again in counsel. For the fifth time they are meeting. They met before in momentous times and today they confer under conditions which give the world of the free nations a foresight of the victory and the peace to be. Hitler's armies and Duce's soldiers have again been beaten after a campaign that will live in history. New history has been made along the Mediterranean—history of a kind that will mould the future of not only the Mediterranean world but also the Continent of Africa, the whole of Europe, Asia and the New World as well as the great island Dominions of Australia and New Zealand. It is a world event that has taken place in Tunisia which has become the springboard for the next event against the Axis and the foundation on which victory upon victory will be built.

These meetings of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt have an air of surprise about them as to time and location. No one seemed to have thought of a new meeting of the great leaders of democracy yet when it is announced that the meeting is in Washington, it is easy to see that no more appropriate time could have been chosen than after the consummation of their plans laid at Casablanca a little over three and a half months ago.

The fruits of Casablanca are seen, the enemy resistance practically gone in Tunisia and every position and place of importance in Allied hands. The firm decision of "unconditional surrender" of the enemy is being realized daily as thousands of the enemy surrender "unconditionally."

About the Washington meeting there is much interest and speculation. The North African campaign practically has closed. What step is next?

This meeting will carry with it the acceleration and added importance of all the events since the Atlantic Charter meeting in August 1941. On the shoulders of these leaders rest momentous decisions.

An Ambitious Young Fellow

(Christian Science Monitor)

A young fellow out in Hollywood named Lionel Barrymore (who claims to have passed a 65th birthday) told reporters on that occasion:

> I want to fly one of those new flivver planes they'll have after the war, and I'd like to write some really good music and make a really good etching.

And this is no mere bravado or display of inordinate ambition either, on the part of this "young squirt," as "Dr. Gillespie" so often calls his assistants. For he has become quite proficient, both a etcher and musician during his fifty years on the sta—Ooops! Did we say fifty? Well, pshaw, what's a mere fifty years' background to a young fellow in the prime of his career. Remember, sir, what Longfellow wrote for the 50th anniversary of his class at college:

Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand Oedipus, and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers
When each had numbered more than fourscore years,
And Theophrastus, at fourscore and ten,
Had but begun his Characters of Men.

Old Time is a liar, as Holmes said, young Mr. Barrymore. And, as long as you stick by your own wise decision not to look back over the past—since you're "beginning a new fifty" — there is no reason, sir, why you should not succeed in your ambition.

Water Stills

Navy life rafts now come complete with stills, says Collier's. The stills have nothing to do with alcohol. They make respectable drinking water out of sea water.

The cans of fresh water with which the usual rafts and open boats are equipped would last only a few days. The still will turn out three pounds of water an hour and enough fuel comes with it to produce a total of more than fifteen gallons which should last quite a time.

Two major problems had to be solved in developing the stills. First, they had to be light. The one finally chosen weighs twenty-nine pounds, counting nineteen cans of safety fuel. Second, it had to be simple enough to be run by inexperienced men. According to reports, the current model is so easy to manage that "even you could make it run," as one officer puts it.

No one is a slave whose will is free.

Admiral Halsey Meets MacArthur

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Advanced South Pacific Base, May 13 — (AP) — Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., Naval Commander-in-Chief in this area, has conferred for the first time with General Douglas MacArthur at the latter's headquarters in Australia, the United States Navy's South Pacific Command announced today.

Reporting Halsey's return from the conference, an announcement said "The discussions centred on the closest co-operatio and co-ordination of the two commands, utilizing the total means at their disposal."

Observers here agree that the MacArthur-Halsey conference may be the signal for a new phase in the Pacific war. A headquarters spokesman observed that the only reason Halsey had not visited MacArthur's headquarters before was because the Admiral had been "too busy fighting a war."

The spokesman remarked that while it could not be said the tide of Japanese aggression had been turned, it now is certain at least that the tide has been stemmed.

While explaining that General MacArthur is in charge of the Southern and Southwestern Pacific war theatres so far as all defensive and offensive moves are concerned, the spokesman pointed out that Admiral Halsey's South Pacific naval force still is part of the Pacific fleet under Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Shipping Losses For Allied Campaign 2.16 P.C. Total Traffic

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 13—(AP)—Shipping losses in moving the enormous number of men and supplies into North African for the Allied campaign have amounted to 2.16 per cent of the total traffic, it was announced officially today.

In the six-month period from Nov. 8, 1942, to May 8 a total of more than 11,000,000 gross tons of shipping arrived in North African ports, including Casablanca, from the United Kingdom and the United States.

Since the traffic goes both ways, the tonnage actually escorted by the Allied navies thus was more than 22,000,000 tons.

SHADOW CLOCKS

The earliest instrument for measuring the time of day was the sundial.

Even before the invention of the sundial primitive man no doubt learned to keep track of the time roughly by his own shadow or that of some other object.

It is believed that the sundial was developed by the Babylonians about 5,000 years ago.

The sundial is referred to in the Old Testament in II Kings 20:8-11, which reads;

"And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I shall go up into the house of the Lord the third day? And Isaiah said, This sign shalt thou have of the Lord, that the Lord will do the thing that he hath spoken: shall the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go back ten degrees? And Hezekiah answered, It is a light thing for the shadow to go down ten degrees: nay, but let the shadow return backward ten degrees. And Isaiah the prophet cried unto the Lord; and he brought the shadow ten degrees backward, by which it had gone down in the dial of Ahaz."

This same incident is alluded to in Isaiah 38:4-8.

The upright style, pin or vertical plate that serves as an indicator by casting its shadow on the dial is known as a "gnomon," which is a Greek word meaning "one that knows."

The science of constructing sundials is known as gnomonics, which at one time was an important branch of mathematics.

In his history Herodotus says that the sundial with the divisions of the day in 12 parts was received by the Greeks from the Babylonians.

Columns, pillars, obelisks and pyramids were used as gnomons in Egypt.

But the sundial marks its hours only by shadows, and an old sundial inscription says, "I count only the hours that are bright." For that reason the sundial is far from a satisfactory method of measuring the time of day. The water-clock was devised by the Babylonians and Egyptians as a supplement to the sundial.

In Mohammedan countries it is customary to put sundials on mosques.

Maharajah Jai Sing of Jaipur in India in 1730 built a sundial with a gnomon 147 feet long, 90 feet high and casting a shadow on a stone arc 50 feet in radius.

Lake Freighters To Carry Gunners In Combat Zones

By STAN MANTROP
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A St. Lawrence River Port, May 12 —(CP)— Keen-eyed veterans of the Royal Canadian Navy, some of whom have heard their shots rattle off the steel sides of enemy submarines on the Atlantic, will this year become crewmen of lake freighters for the first time in history.

Each of the lakers that finds its way through waters designated by the navy as a combat zone will carry stern guns for protection against lurking U-boats and blue middied gunners, who know how to handle them, will be on duty 24 hours a day.

Night and day shipyard workmen are putting the finishing touches on guns and equipment which skippers hope will bring death and destruction to U-boats and their crews who lurk in waters off Canada's eastern shores.

Special deckhouses are being built to house the gunners, only a few feet away from the guns, and lookouts will scan the water night and day for the tell-tale feather of enemy periscope.

Last year, according to the lake skippers, they could do little more than shake their fists at U-boats that surfaced near their boats and took pot shots at other ships in their convoys. But this year, they say, things are going to be different.

One skipper said that last year they could have finished off more than one submarine that surfaced near them, but hadn't as much "as a pea-shooter to hit back with."

The need for more ships on deep-sea routes, shipping authorities said, has made it almost a necessity to send the lakers on runs through combat zones.

SAYS AXIS ATTEMPTS WILL FAIL TO PREVENT

Washington, May 12. (AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox, commenting on the Allied Victory in Tunisia, said today the German Air Force undoubtedly would try to keep Allied shipping from using the Mediterranean routes eastward but "they won't be able to prevent us".

Knox, talking at a Press Conference, declined to estimate how long it would be after the final clean-up in Tunisia before the Mediterranean route could be thrown open with supply ships operating under an Allied air umbrella from the northern rim of Africa.

Prisoners of War

Special permits are available for Canadians sending sugar, tea or coffee in quarterly parcels to next-of-kin who are prisoners of war. With these permits, purchases of goods do not cut into the rations of the senders. They are known as "Prisoners of War Purchase Permits." THE SECRET OF "JUST-PERFECT" MERINGUES!

Hello Homemakers! Women not only want to turn out pieces of war equipment with precision but they also want to turn out "just-perfect" foods at home.

Among the "extras" that give us special delight are the meringues, delicate and golden—the crowning glory of pies and tarts. But there have been mysterious meringue failures even in our very best kitchens. So we have gone hunting for clues to "just-perfect" meringues to put you "in the know."

The ingredients are simple — egg whites, salt, a little sugar and flavoring. Take eggs from refrigerator and let warm to room temperature. You will be rewarded with greater volume of froth. As you break each egg, separate the yolk from the white. If suitable for meringue, white will be clear and firm and will "plop" into the cup quickly. If white is weak and watery, set egg aside for omelette or custard. Be sure to use all of the egg white, including the thicker portion clinging to shell and yolk. Use a bowl that is small at the bottom. Placing it on a folded towel prevents it from slipping. Add a pinch of salt; measure out fine sugar (2 tbs. sugar to each egg white, or 1 tb. honey, syrup or jelly). Use the rolling pin on coarse sugar.

If you use an electric beater, add sugar prior to beating. When beating by fork or dover beater, beat whites to a foam before adding any sugar. Beat in half the sugar, then fold in remainder, sprinkling it in —thus less danger of overbeating. The "just perfect" meringue is shiny and moist looking. Peaks should be stiff when beater is lifted out and whites hold their position when the bowl is tipped. If you beat too long, the mixture begins to fly out of the bowl and the volume will be small. It is important to stop beating at the proper moment.

Your pie or tarts should be ready for the meringue mix which is spread with a dull knife or spatula. Bake in a pre-heated oven of 375° for 10 min. Let cool at room temperature—do not chill quickly.

RECIPES

Fluffy Omelette

3tbs, baking fat, 4 egg yolks, ¼ cup water, ½ tsp. salt, dash of pepper, 4 egg whites stiffly beaten.

Heat fat in skillet. Beat egg yolks until creamy. Add water and seasonings and mix well. Fold in egg whites and pour into skillet. Cook slowly over low heat until it is browned evenly on bottom. Set in moderate electric oven and cook until it is firm to the touch. Fold; serve. Serves 4.

Scalloped Eggs

4 hard-cooked eggs, 2 cups White Sauce, ¾ cup chopped cooked chicken, veal or fish, ¾ cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Chop eggs fine. Sprinkle bottom of a greased baking dish with crumbs, cover with half the eggs; cover eggs with sauce and sauce with meat; repeat. Cover with remaining crumbs. Bake in electric over at 375° until crumbs are brown.

TAKE A TIP:

Uses of Egg Yolks

1. Substitute 2 egg yolks for 1 egg in cake, muffin or cookie recipes and add 1 tablespoon more liquid.
2. Poach egg yolks hard. Drain and use in salads, grated in cream sauce, soups, sandwich fillings, casserole dishes, etc.
3. Egg yolks whipped into a cup of milk provide a perfect, nourishing drink.

THE QUESTION BOX

Answer: Too hot an oven, or trying to brown it beneath a top element instead of fully pre-heated electric oven. Use temperature of 250-275°.

Mrs. C. B. R. asks: "Why are custard pies soggy on bottom?"

Answer: Custard pies must be placed in a hot oven (450°) to cook pastry quickly, for 8 minutes. Then reset electric oven control to 275° and bake until silver knife comes out of custard clean (about 30 minutes). Cool quickly so that fat in pastry hardens before steam from custard causes sogginess.

Surprise Party And Presentation

On May 8th, the home of Mrs. Annie Gibbons, 14 Brassey St., was the scene of a surprise party when twenty former school-mates, neighbors and friends met to honor AC. Harry Gibbons on leave at his home here.

An enjoyable time was spent in music and games to nearly midnight when Mrs. Gibbons and Miss Ruth Gibbons served delicious refreshments to the guests. While the company was still seated, Mrs. H. W. Froats, on behalf of all present, spoke a few words of reminiscent appreciation for the small boy and the growing lad who has now become one of Belleville's contributions to His Majesty's R.C.A.F. "Having known Harry over a period of years and having watched his progress through public and high schools until his entrance into civilian life as an apprentice in the C.N.R. machine shops at Montreal, we are now proud to meet him again and take this opportunity to express our commendation of his present position in our Canadian Air Force, and to extend our best wishes, along with this small gift, which we hope will be a useful reminder of your Belleville friends." The gift was a fine leather writing case with a R.C.A.F. crest.

AC. Gibbons, although entirely unprepared for this added surprise replied in a few well chosen remarks, expressing his appreciation and gratitude for the kindness of his friends and for the useful gift and in closing voiced the wishes of all when he said: "I hope that this terrible war will soon be over and we shall all meet again under happier circumstances."

After singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," friendly conversation was resumed for a short time and later the guests took leave of their hostesses, thanking Mrs. Gibbons and Ruth for their kind hospitality and for a most enjoyable party.

How The Patient Can Help the Hospital

Many think of hospitals with almost distrust; it is the place to go if very ill or in need of an immediate operation. Those who have had to stay in hospital and friends and families of patients, learn to think about hospitals with trust and confidence. Many patients go into hospital now simply for observation.

On their part, hospitals try in every way to allay fear on the part of incoming patients and so the doorman, the admitting nurse, and the nurse or orderly who conducts the new patient to his room or ward appreciate the feelings of the patient and try in every way to make him feel comfortable and assured. The dietitian makes the ordinary diet or the special diet as attractive as possible so that food is inviting.

In these days when hospitals are crowded, doctors and nurses few in number because of the large number in the war services, the time has arrived when patients, their friends and families, can help the hospital continue its good work.

"In a time of national emergency such as the present when the resources of the hospital staff are strained to the utmost, co-operation and courtesy on the part of the patient will do much to relieve pressure and save the time of attendants".

I am quoting Dr. Arthur P. Trewhella, Jersey City, N.Y., in Hygeia, The Health Magazine. Dr. Trewhella points out several ways in which by being willing to abide by the rules laid out for the comfort of all the patients, the patient will be doing his part to keep the work of the hospital as efficient as possible under the circumstances.

The patient should learn that the most dangerously ill patients must be attended to first, and that there is probably some one else worse off than you. If you find it difficult to be pleasant and cheerful, at least do not spread gloom.

When the intern visits you, show him the respect due him because he is a qualified doctor".

Now no one can estimate or realize fully the pain or discomfort of others, but there is no excuse for not "trying" to be gracious in your sickness. "Your reward will be an unbounded satisfaction with yourself when it is over together with the admiration of all those in the hospital who have helped you to recover".

Fossil remains of ground sloths as large as elephants have been found.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. When it's the "pain cry" give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting — easily crushed to a powder, if desired. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Each package gives an analyst's report. Get a package today. Sickness often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

VILLE DE QUEBEC HAS SEEN FAMOUS

King and Queen and Naval Leaders Have All Visited Canadian Corvette

Ottawa, May 12 (CP)—If, in walking down an Algiers street, you overheard a couple of Canadian seamen saying chattily: "So the Queen said to me . . . and I said to the King . . . and Lord Louis Mountbatten remarked . . . and I told Sir Dudley Pound and Admiral Cunningham . . ." It wouldn't be the fault of North African wine said naval headquarters in an overseas press dispatch released today.

For the corvette H.M.C.S. Ville de Quebec probably has seen, since she sank an enemy submarine in the Mediterranean, more "gold braid" than any other corvette afloat; more, in fact, than any Canadian ship in recent history.

It began in North Africa with a general inspection of the ship's company on the docks. Attending were the Admiralty's First Sea Lord, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Dudley Pound, Chief of Naval Staff; Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham; the Chief of Combined Operations, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten; Sir John Dill, formerly Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and, the ship's company said, "many rear-admirals, commodores, generals, etc."

Not long before the inspection, Ville de Quebec had taken a convoy run right through to a British port and the crew were surprised and gratified when the King and Queen arrived to inspect their ship.

There was scarcely a member of the crew who had not some personal remark from a famous visitor of which to tell his children. But the one that will be remembered longest came from Lord Mountbatten, Chief of the Commandos.

After looking the crew over he turned to Sir John Dill and remarked: "They're a tough-looking bunch of so-and-sos."

Hitler's Heroes, Cowed by Surrender, Drive to Prison Camps Unescorted

(By DANIEL DE LUCE)

Medjez-El-Bab, May 13 (AP) — Africa's strangest procession moved in the pre-dawn darkness Wednesday for 90 miles from the tip of Cap Bon peninsula to this bomb-scarred hamlet, 34 miles west of captured Tunis.

The picture: Hitler's invincibles were driving themselves, unescorted, to Allied prison pens.

German and Italian soldiers, crowded into every kind of vehicle in their armies except tanks, streamed in a dust-choked file almost bumper to bumper. Mile after mile, the beaten Axis survivors drove without any sort of British guard along a route where military police were ten miles or more apart.

Like uncertain tourists, the surrendered enemy kept inquiring the correct way to their ultimate destination. At every hail from curious Allied service troops far behind the erstwhile front the Axis vehicles came to a full halt.

French, native-born Italians and Arabs stared open mouthed at this parade which seemed endless and continued all night. The procession swung through Tunis itself, along streets where every house proudly flew the tricolor.

Some Axis prisoners played accordions and mandolins, but mostly these truckloads of defeated men were grimly, wearily silent.

There was not a report of any prisoners trying to escape into the countryside, although it would have been easy.

Attempting to bring back a dispatch to a plane far inland, I got caught in the traffic jam and my British army chauffeur observed: "The Jerries look more fed up with the war than the Italians. I never thought I'd see bags of Jerries trying to get to a barbed-wire cage ahead of me."

Fighting Spirit Ends

The German fighting spirit ebbed to nothingness and tens of thousands of Nazi soldiers threw up arms and raised white flags of surrender to a squadron of British armored cars that reached Cap Bon's Lighthouse Hill at 3 p.m. yesterday.

This was one of the most incredible sights of the war. The Germans made no real attempt to hold Cap Bon. They quit cold. I could have outfitted a division with the rifles, machine-guns and artillery discarded by the enemy along the 40-mile road from the neck to the tip of Bon peninsula along which I drove.

As an unarmed non-combatant war correspondent I had a rare experience when a captain of the famous Goering division stopped me on the road where no British troops were in view. On his sleeve he wore a blue-white band with the full name of Goering, No. 2 Nazi.

Saluting as his adam's apple bobbed nervously, he said his company was complete, including a field kitchen, and was ready to drive its own vehicles to any destination I could name.

"Marschiern sie weiter," was all I could reply, pointing in the direction of Tunis.

I have personally viewed about 30,000 prisoners, of whom only 3,000 or so were Italians.

The German crack-up along the main west road has been so suddenly complete that the greatest hazard I have encountered was from an Allied fighter bomber raid at 2.30 p.m. yesterday. It set the hilly brush afire a half-mile from where I was hastily lunching on German sauerkraut and brown bread. Bombs and machine-gun bullets flushed a few hundred tardy prisoners from the hills.

German colonels drive up in their own "volkswagens" or captured Jeeps. They turn in their Luger automatics to a squat, grinning British private who waves them on along the dusty route to Tunis with his bayoneted rifle.

No Guard in Sight.

German half-tracks and trucks are crammed with junior officers and men. There is not an escorting guard in sight. Just before one truck reaches the crossroads a German in the driver's seat decides to play safe. He tosses two potato masher grenades out into a plowed field.

An Italian colonel tramps with a gold-braided retinue to the junction, asks sadly where he shall go, and then begs a passing German half-track for a lift.

"Ah, Tunis," he said, "I only left it four days ago and now I must go back."

The Germans forage the fields among some of their damaged vehicles in hope that one or two may be repaired quickly and save them from hiking perhaps 60 miles. They sabotaged a considerable number of cars before they were trapped, and now they obviously regret their zealousness for the fatherland.

These German troops going toward military prisons have almost a skylark attitude. Many men with war decorations are among them. The Iron Cross for Russian front service and the Pour le Merite are the easiest to spot because they are so common.

They carry pet dogs and accordions and have pockets bulging with cigars, cigarettes, biscuits and candy. Hitler fed them well, dressed them well and inspired them with what they thought almost a holy mission. But they did not fight today. They quit.

Rommel's Afrika Korps and Von Arnim's Elite divisions from Europe didn't fight to the bitter, heroic end. When you see nearly 30,000 Germans throw up their hands at a glimpse of a few armored cars as though they had guns and acres of ammunition dumps, you know the German morale can and will be cracked.

No ignominy which the Poles suffered in 1939 or the French in 1940, surpasses the spectacle of able-bodied veteran German soldiers driving hundreds of German vehicles to captivity.

with Japan appears to be much more fluid, however, and most authorities would not be surprised if important decisions for its development were reached at the current Washington meeting.

From Kiska Island, in the Aleutians, down to Guadalcanal in the Solomons and Port Moresby in New Guinea, the Japanse must be constantly on the move, using up ships, planes, men and oil, even to maintain their present defensive position. They have no way of knowing where promised blows will fall from the east this spring and summer.

West and north of Australia, however, the situation is different. The Japanese so far have not been threatened in their main and immensely rich positions in the Dutch Indies and Malaya. Light raids on five Japanese bases in New Guinea and New Britain and the Taninbar Islands were reported in today's communique from Allied headquarters in Australia, as well as minor clashes between Allied and Japanese patrols in the New Guinea jungles. But such skirmishing still falls far short—in both scope and distance—of threatening the main captured enemy strongholds.

In Burma, Wavell's British forces undertook a limited drive aimed at Akyab but failed of their objective and now apparently are in danger of being forced by enemy flank attacks to give up all the territory won. With the monsoon season setting in, there is virtually no possibility of a recovery before next October.

In the meanwhile Allied forces might undertake an amphibious attack on Rangoon, best port of entry for the Burma route to China, but even the capture of Rangoon this summer would merely be the beginning of a long campaign inland which could not get fully underway until the monsoon's end.

HEAVIEST

The greatest weight of bombs previously loosed on a single target was 1,500 tons—a record that was set in the great 1,000-plane raid on Cologne nearly a year ago and probably was equalled in the May 4 raid on Dortmund.

The largest concentration of four-engined bombers ever sent out on a war mission participated in the latter assault. Thirty bombers failed to return from that foray.

Duisburg, which is only 12 miles west of oft-bombed Essen, has been bombed 59 times before. Among its important industries is the Vereinigte Stahlwerke Munitions plant, which was reported heavily hit in successive raids on April 8 and 9.

While last night's raid was said to have been the heaviest in point of weight of bombs dropped, it was not necessarily the largest in respect to the number of planes employed.

The dropping of 1,500 tons of bombs on the city of 440,000 would represent about a ton of bombs for every acre. It was presumed that many four-ton blockbusters were in the R.A.F.'s deadly cargo.

Selection of Duisburg as the target was regarded as significant, inasmuch as it is Germany's greatest inland port and one of the main keystones in the transportation system on which Hitler must depend for supplying his defence forces in the west.

Much of the munitions and troops which would be required to meet an Allied invasion thrust across the English Channel would have to move through Duisburg.

Bombers of the British coastal command also were busy last night while the main raiding force was over Germany, a formation of torpedo-carrying Hampdens attacking Axis shipping off Norway and leaving one vessel sinking, the Air Ministry said.

12 Bodies in Wreckage

The German air force struck back with a night attack on a British east coast town which the Berlin radio identified as the Lowestoft. One bomb destroyed an inn, and 12 bodies were found in the wreckage.

The R.A.F. raid on Duisburg was the high point of an Allied Spring aerial offensive which has placed heavy emphasis on paralyzing Hitler's transportation facilities.

Allied Navies Working With United Nations Up 30 P.C. Since '41

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 13—(CP)— Fighting ships of Allied navies working with the United Nations have increased by nearly 30 per cent since August, 1941, and there has been an 80 per cent increase in personnel, vice-admiral E. L. S. King, Principal British Liaison Officer to the Allied navies disclosed.

The Allied navies on March 31 had 220 vessels and nearly 27,000 officers and men. Two years ago these forces comprised 170 combatant vessels and about 15,000 officers and men.

Fighting French, 49 ships and approximately 6,150 officers and men; Royal Norwegian, 53, 5,100; Royal Netherlands, 63, 6,850; Polish 12, 2,600; Royal Hellenic, 33, 5,450; Royal Yugoslav, three, 200; Belgian section of the Royal Navy, seven, 350.

In the past 19 months, Britain's Allies have been replacing as far as possible their older ships by modern ones. They have incomparably greater fighting efficiency and their more powerful armament and latest scientific devices need more men to man them. This is why the percentage increase in the number of ships is much less than that of the men.

Destroyers have increased by 63 per cent and include many of the most modern and powerful types.

The Allies now provide 2,300 officers and men as gunners for their own ships and the British navy still has to provide a considerable quota.

Sgt. W. Hogg Writes Home of Conditions In Nazi Prison Camp

Picton, May 13—First letters from her son, Sgt. Walter N. Hogg, R.C.A.F., who is a prisoner of war in Germany, have been received by Mrs. E. L. Hogg of West Lake. He was taken a prisoner last November.

Delay in securing her son's address prevented Mrs. Hogg from sending parcels but one of eleven pounds is now on its way, and due to the delay, the government has given permission to send a second on May 30th instead of waiting three months.

His address is Sgt. Hogg, W.N., British Prisoner of War (R.C.A.F.), Prisoner of War No. 930, Camp Stalag Luft 1, via Stalag Luft 3, Germany.

In a letter and card received by Mrs. Hogg, which was written on Jan. 22 and Feb. 11, Sgt. Hogg states "we are allowed to write two letters and four cards per month. Please don't worry about me as I have quite recovered and we are treated O.K. Just look forward to our reunion after the war and pray that it won't be too long. We just had a good shower bath this morning so feel right with the world again.

"I'll attempt to enlighten you on our food system. The Red Cross allows each of us half a food parcel per week, then we have German rations daily consisting of potatoes, bread, butter with either barley, cabbage or stew, so we do quite well. The big irritation is the wire between us and freedom but of course that cannot be avoided. We have a fairly good sized skating rink but as yet there are few skates. Perhaps some will arrive for us soon.

"I have done a good bit of reading, at present am reading "The Tale of Two Cities."

"The Red Cross has given us what clothes we really need, so don't bother trying to send me many things. A few cigarettes now and again will be quite welcome. Give my best regards to all."

Sgt. Hogg has a brother A.B. Manly Hogg in the R.C.N.V.R.

Township Offers $25 Reward for Wolf Blamed For Killing 24 Sheep

Picton, May 13 — A reward of $50 awaits the person who disposes of a wolf which is causing havoc among flocks of sheep in South Marysburgh township. In addition to the usual bounty, the township council yesterday decided to give a reward of an additional $25. To date 24 sheep and lambs have been killed and the wolf is blamed.

Mrs. L. B. Metcalfe reports ten lambs killed, Ernest Rorabeck has had four sheep and several lambs taken while Claude Dulmage reports four lambs disappearing. All farms are in the Point Traverse district where there are large stretches of pasture and wooded land. Farmers had planned a wolf hunt on a large scale yesterday but rain forced its cancellation.

Foxes are also blamed for loss among lambs. When a den was dug out on the farm of William Walmsley at Milford, bones of lambs were found, having been the feast of the fox pups.

A wolf was shot at Point Petre last fall and another has been seen in the district several times of late and is still at large.

Play Presented by R.A.F. Group

Four hundred enthusiastically applauded members of the Royal Air Force Drama Group when they presented the three-act English farce "George and Margaret" at the station theatre yesterday afternoon. It was the fourth such presentation, this matinee being given to benefit the Evening Telegram British War Victims Fund.

The same play is to be given at the Eaton Auditorium in Toronto on May 17, 18 and 19 with the B.W.V.F. receiving the net proceeds of the presentation on the second night.

In the role of the father, Flight Lieut. deCourcy Ireland, a former member of the British stage, gave a brilliant performance. Lorraine Clewes of the British stage and screen, and the wife of Sgt. Pilot H. Liggatt who also takes part in the play, was another star, while Mrs. R. V. Robins as the mother played a difficult role.

VON ARNIM

175,000" since May 5.

Two German generals of the Goering Division, named Schmitt and Kocch, were believed to have escaped to Italy although some of their men were captured yesterday on the tip of Cap Bon without a fight.

Gen. Anderson, usually taciturn and austere, smiled often and his blue eyes twinkled as he held his first press conference of the offensive.

British Fought Magnificently

"British soldiers fought absolutely magnificently," he said. "The Americans demonstrated that they had become a splendid fighting machnie. And I have the highest admiration for the French who laid the early foundation for the Allied victory last winter when they held the mountain Dorsal with the inadequate weapons and against heavy odds."

The general said the 1st Army would hold a thanksgiving service on Sunday May 23 "for when success comes our way we are inclined to place too much emphasis on our own skill and power and not enough in the strength which comes from beyond human limits."

Gen. Anderson summed up the developments thus:—

"The enemy appears to have been bowled over by the speed of our push. His Division Corps Headquarters were overrun, and even enemy Headquarters had to move back so fast they lost their wireless apparatus and could not contact their units.

"The enemy surrender has been piecemeal, therefore, and not all at once. I believe it is one of the greatest victories the Allies ever had and it should make itself felt throughout the world."

Many Members of Parliament Advocate Increased Birthrate

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 13 — (CP)—Alongside campaigns to "grow more food," "plow more land" and "save more scrap" has come a novel war cry, proposed by 90 members of parliament — "Have more babies."

They have tabled a motion in the House of Commons urging the government to take immediate steps to meet the problem of Britain's falling birthrate, which is worrying experts on population even though incomplete statistics show that there were 631,000 births in 1942 highest since 1931 when 632,081 births were registered.

The current birth rate is not high enough, in the view of a Royal Commission studying trends in population, to keep the country from becoming a "nation of old men."

Situation Serious

"Quite apart from financial and other measures, steps will have to be taken to bring home to the people how essential it is for them to have children," said Miss Eleanor Rathbone, Independent M. P., who has helped prepare a leaflet to explain the seriousness of the situation.

"The leaflet quotes experts to show that it is already too late to stabilize the population at its present level," she said. "It might be just possible to keep it at three-quarters of the present figure."

At the same time Mrs. C. M. Burns, wife of a Durham University professor, forecast in a book, recounting five years of investigation into infantile and maternal mortality that the future generation would be unhealthier and weaker and would constitute a huge army of "misfits."

"The investigation has shown that misfits of civilization, now about 10 per cent of the population, will form about 30 per cent of the next generation," said Prof. Burns, who collaborated with his wife in gathering information.

Predicts Increase of Misfits

"At present fertility rates, in two generations we will be flooded with unskilled labor that industry cannot absorb, unfit people to crowd our hospitals, misfits for our asylums and prisons and — worst of all — a great army of the 'just not well' struggling on in circumstances a little too hard for them."

Lord Eustace Percy, Rector of King's College, Newcastle, was even gloomier about the prospects of the next generation. In a foreword to the book he wrote:

"Western Europe may suffer the same biological collapse in the later years of the 20th Century as Roman Italy suffered towards the end of the second century."

All this evidence is being assembled by the 90 members seeking parliamentary action on the problem.

Story About Churchill

Here is another story of Mr. Churchill, the painter.

One Sunday at Lady Paget's home at Kingston Hill during the last war, Mr. Churchill and the late Sir John Lavery were painting when a booming voice behind called out:

"Hello, Winston, when did you begin this game?"

"Well, who knows? Perhaps I may have saved a great master."

Lord Beresford was a retired Admiral who had been active in the House of Commons against the Board of Admiralty of which Mr. Churchill was First Lord from 1911 to 1915.

Likely to Name Sports Officer

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 13 (AP)—A National co-ordinator for all sports, rumored for nearly a year, is likely to be named by President Roosevelt within a month, and U.S. Senator James Mead, who advocated cancellation of the world series and all star games less than three months ago, is the leading candidate for the job.

Word on the early appointment of such a sports officer, whose big job will be to decide how the nation's sports "can be handled without affecting the war effort," came last night from Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York Racing Commission and consultant on public policy to the War Department.

Mead is a Vice President of the Buffalo (International League) Baseball Club, but on March 1 he came out for cancellation of baseball's two fanciest shows for the duration to relieve the strain on the nation's transportation system.

Larry MacPhail, who made the Brooklyn Dodgers tick until the army took him last fall, also was mentioned for the job, but it was learned no man in uniform would be considered. Representative Sam Weiss of Glassport, Pa., near Pittsburgh, also was reported among possible candidates. And ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York, father of this state's boxing and Sunday baseball laws, has been given serious consideration.

Howe Predicts Large Merchant Fleet After War

By G. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 13—(CP)—Retention of the bulk of Canada's war-built freighter fleet to form a post-war merchant marine was envisioned in the House of Commons yesterday by Munitions Minister Howe.

With the exception of some 75 vessels sold to the United States the title to the freighters will largely remain with Canada to be returned after the war, the Minister said.

Such vessels as may be transferred to United Nations under the $1,000,000,000 mutual aid measure will be for charter only and will revert to Canada if still usable when the war is over.

The Minister made his statement during consideration of the Mutual Aid Bill which was before the House in committee throughout yesterday's three hour sitting. Little progress was made.

Mr. Howe said a merchant fleet in excess of 200 ships, manned by those now serving in Canadian naval units, was possible.

Meanwhile attention was being given to a possible change over to construction of larger and faster freight carriers as a post-war project.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that he would be in Washington next week to participate in the conferences between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. He said he had been advised that Mr. Churchill would be unable to come to Ottawa during his present visit to North America.

Answers an Inquiry

Mr. King's statement was in answer to an inquiry by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader.

The Senate passed 16 divorce bills and received a report from Senator C. W. Robinson (Lib. New Brunswick), chairman of its divorce committee, recommending adoption of 10 others.

The commons yesterday was occupied during a considerable part of the afternoon with discussion of points of order punctuated by appeals from Finance Minister Ilsley, sponsor of the Mutual Aid Bill, for an observance of the rules of debate.

Unless there was such observance and an orderly consideration of government business Mr. Ilsley said it was obvious the House would be in session all sumer.

The discussion of shipping was among subjects eventually ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker Bradette but not until there had been a long statement by the Minister and some questions and answers.

This subject arose when the Minister answered questions asked yesterday by Howard Green (Prog. Con. Vancouver South).

Attempts to Discuss Editorial

Earlier J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) precipitated a long discussion on points of order when he attempted to discuss an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

This editorial had criticized Mr. Pouliot for an attack he made last week upon J. S. McLean, head of Canada Packers, and criticized the Prime Minister and his colleagues for not immediately calling Mr. Pouliot to account for his utterances about Mr. McLean.

Before the administration of the rules closed this discussion Mr. Pouliot had described the Globe and Mail as a "dirty sheet" and Mr. McLean as "public enemy No. 1" to the farmers of Canada.

The afternoon was enlivened by a declaration from Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) that "Conservatives" were carrying the weight of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign, and receiving "not a cent" for their effort.

He declared further that all public tasks for which there were no emoluments were given "Conservatives" while salaried positions went to friends of the government.

Mr. Ilsley said the charge about the Victory Loan was unwarranted, that every effort had been made to make the campaign machinery non-partisan, and that all parties were carrying their share of the load.

Moves Amendment

Mr. Green precipitated another debate that lasted until adjournment time when he moved an amendment that would add the name of trade minister MacKinnon to the five-man board proposed in the bill to administer neutral aid.

The board as proposed in the bill would be composed of the Ministers of Munitions and Supply, Finance, National Defence, Agriculture and Justice.

Mr. Green said trade and commerce in the post-war period should be considered in administering the mutual aid measure and Mr. MacKinnon should be on the board.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader expressed a similar view and Mr. Pouliot endorsed the proposal but went further and offered arguments why Mr. King and every member of his cabinet except resources minister Crerar should be on the board.

Mr. Hanson said the "burlesque" might be carried further by putting Mr. Crerar's name forward. He said nobody had less to do in the cabinet than Mr. Crerar and his long experience might be put to good use.

FRONT STREET BELLEVILLE

Claybourne Steals the Show As McCready, Katan Battle On Even Terms in Main Bout

Colored Wrestler Proves Most Sensational Ringman Yet Produced by Mr. Tunney's Squirmers

THRILLS CROWD

It was nearly "favorites night" at the Hume Arena last night when the apples of the wrestling fans' eyes won the preliminary bouts, while big Earl McCready, the Aurora farmer, was forced to accept a draw with John Katan, the Palmero mat villain in the main scrap, although as usual McCready gained the customers' nod, which went for naught in an hour-limit scrap.

Knowing full well that McCready and Katan can always be depended upon to give full value, the patrons were given an extra treat, when Promoter Frank Tunney introduced "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, 222 pounds of little negro flesh, announced as the colored wrestling champion of the world. Claybourne literally stole the show with his speed and agility that sent upwards of 1,000 grunt and groan addicts home singing praises of the "black boy's" ring prowess.

Sensational Finish

Just as an example Claybourne won his semifinal scrap over Jan Gotch, a Dutch hulk of 221 pounds, with comparative ease. However, it was the manner in which he finally beat Gotch that thrilled the patrons. The Dutchman proved little match for the lithe, agile colored lad, as Gotch could seldom retain any particular hold gained and ultimately resorted to unorthodox methods in a futile effort to win.

The kill was perhaps the most thrilling piece of ring workmanship ever witnessed in the local sports palace. Picture this—Claybourne in a neutral corner with Referee Cliff Fox standing with his back to the negro and between him and Gotch. With a mighty leap "Gentleman Jack" vaulted completely over Fox's head and while in mid-air dropped kicked the astounded Gotch to the mat where he was an easy victim for a press after 17.21 minutes of thrilling mat work. Yea, Claybourne really sold himself to the local rasslin' clientele and anytime Marse Tunney wishes to bring him back to Belleville the patrons will welcome this agile negro lad with open arms, as he is a ring showman and crowd-pleaser of the first water.

Try New Tactics

Insofar as the main bout was concerned both Katan and McCready employed new tactics, namely the use of punishing kidney punches with "Palmero John" staring the fracas and "Big Earl" finishing the business.

McCready too the initial fall an exchange of torrid kidney punches to win the first fall with a press in 22.35 minutes. After the customary rest the gladiators returned to again slug it out with kidney and rabbit punches, when suddenly McCready picked Katan up bodily for what looked like a good oldfashioned aeroplane spin. However, Katan laid hold of the ropes and as Referee Phil Lawson kicked the hold loose, McCready lost his balance and toppled over backwards with Katan atop and winning with a press in a soft decision.

It was action personified in the final round as both men tried in vain to gain a much-desired quick decision. Both gained step-over-toe-holds that looked like winners, but the one hour limit bell sounded to call quits and the next time Skipper Tunney matches these two mat pachyderms it should be of the fight-to-the-finish nature. It would prove a natural.

Crowd Quite Happy

There was ample fun in the curtain-raiser that saw Referee Cliff Fox the target of attack at the hands of "Rubber-belly" Al Dunlop and finally disqualified for his continued attacks on the referee. Dunlop was supposed to have battled it out with Jack Wentworth, but apparently took a disliking to Fox and twice floored the official with the result Mister Fox disqualified the Toronto badman and raised Wentworth's hand in token for victory. This, of course, was most acceptable to the patrons who haven't any too much love for Dunlop any way you want to look at it. Wrestling continues at the Hume arena next Wednesday.

Police Probing Woman's Death

Windsor, Ont., May 13 (CP)—Windsor police are investigating the death of Mrs. Theona Gouin, 37, of Windsor, a former resident of Kamloops, B.C., who was found unconscious today in a lane behind a Dougal Avenue home. Police said they were holding Charles Cayoutte, 42, a native of Quebec City, as a material witness but no charge has been laid against him.

A blow on the head, possibly from a fist, may account for Mrs. Gouin's death, police said.

Cayoutte, who police said was Mrs. Gouin's common law husband, was found near the woman when officers came to investigate cries for help. He had suffered a slight cut on the top of his head.

He told police that he and Mrs. Gouin had arrived in Windsor a few weeks ago.

LEAFS WIN TWO FROM BALTIMORE TO KEEP AHEAD

Conger and Hamlin Hurlers Who Took Orioles by 3-1 and 4-1

BEARS ALSO WIN

(By The Associated Press)

Remember boiling Bolly Grimes, the big guy with a rough manner and a rougher beard who showed little pity for opponents and none at all for umpires during his major league pitching days? Well, he's bland Burleigh, everybody's friend, now. And if you wonder why, just take a look at Toronto's pitching record.

As Toronto Manager Grimes has reason to be happy. Maple Leafs have won 12 of 15 games so far and their last seven in a row. They have allowed only 30 runs, counting a 21-inning, 2-2 tie with Baltimore, and in their last seven starts they've held the opposition to eight tallies. In all, they've chalked up six shut-outs so far, which anyone will admit is a sign of good pitching.

Needless to say, Maple Leafs are leading the International League by a wide margin—3 1-2 games today—although they haven't done a lot of hitting themselves.

Did Mound Work

Dick Conger, who hasn't been able to break into the shutout brigade, and Luke "Hot Potato" Hamlin, who has turned in two whitewashings, did the mound work last night as Leafs whipped Baltimore Orioles in a doubleheader, 3-1 and 4-1.

Conger hurled four-hit ball in the seven-inning opener but lost his chance for a shutout in the first inning when the Birds bunched two of their blows. Leafs won the game in the same frame on hits by Al Rubeling and Maurice Van Robays and a double steal.

Hamlin allowed eight blows to Toronto's four off Steve Gromek, but he fanned eight and was steady and effective in his one tight spot. Gromek made two wild pitches that let a pair of runs score in the eighth after Baltimore errors had put the men on base.

In yesterday's only other game, Newark Bears pounded out a 13-1 victory over Hapless Buffalo Bisons. While Jim Davis pitched six-hit ball, the Bears landed on Jack Tising in the fifth for seven runs, three on a homer by Mike Garbark.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 13 — (CP) — Canada's greatest athletes are joining the armed forces and inevitably service teams are taking the Dominion's top sports honors. A year ago Ottawa R.C.A.F. won the senior hockey title and this season Ottawa Army Commandos held it for the services. Toronto R.C.A.F. holds the National football title and now Victoria R.C.A.F. has won the Canadian basketball crown.

Civilian clubs are passing from the sports scene and with them go some of the great names of the pre-war era. One such club is Port Arthur Bearcats, for years ranked with hockey's greatest. Some players are in the services, others in essential industry and Dick Elliot of the Port Arthur News-Chronicle says there is little chance the lakehead will have senior hockey next season.

The Bearcats name was adopted in 1933 and won national recognition in 1939 when the 'Cats captured the Allan Cup. Bearcats have been lakehead champions each year since 1937.

Predicting passing of the club, Elliot commented: "The story of the Bearcats is a story of hockey buddies, rather than one of a collection of hockey stars.

"The Bearcats have been almost unique as an organization, remarkably successful as a unit but composed of many players who, if taken away and placed on teams elsewhere, probably would impress very little.

"They'd miss the Bearcat spirit, their old associations on and off the ice. It undoubtedly explains why Bert Laprade didn't do as well as expected with the Montreal Air Force team this season and makes you wonder whether Edgar Laprade, for all his genius, would be even half as successful playing elsewhere as he has been in his five years with the 'Cats....

"We fervently hope that when senior hockey returns to the lakehead, the same Bearcats spirit may be recaptured, if not some of the Bearcat players themselves."

Incidentally:

Victoria hockey officials say they know nothing of reports the Victoria rink will be closed next winter. If all goes well they hope to send a team in defence of the western senior title they won this year ...the Nova Scotia Harness Racing Association plans 16 meets this summer, opening June 30 and closing Sept. 28. Meets will be at Bridgewater, Truro, North Sydney, New Glasgow, Amherst and Inverness.

Cleveland Indians Crowding New York Yankees for First Place in American League

Move to Within One Game of Leaders by Beating Senators

TIGERS BATTLE

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

Cleveland Indians are crowding New York Yankees for first place in the American League, but there is no way of telling yet whether the Tribe is on the warpath or simply doing its spring moving.

In recent years the Indians have moved menacingly in the spring and usually subsided in the summer.

This spring the Indians have not been as flashy, have had no winning streaks, but they have not lost two consecutive games. This may mean they will stick in the scrap longer.

They overpowered Washington Senators last night in a floodlight affair 8-2 to move within one game of the pace-setting Yankees, who were beaten at Chicago 2-1 in 10 innings for their second straight setback.

Chubby Dean held Senators to six hits and had a shutout till the ninth. He also lost a shutout in the ninth in his only other start — against White Sox last week. Dean's pitching was supported by a 13-hit attack on the part of his teammates, their biggest spree of the season.

The Yankees' whipping of the White Sox was the handiwork of Johnny Humphries and Joe Kuhel. Humphries pitched six-hit ball. Kuhel singled Humphries home with the tying tally and then in the 10th singled rookie Thurman Tucker across with the winning run.

Philadelphia Athletics and Detroit Tigers battled in a 15-inning marathon at Detroit before a single by Ned Harris gave the Tigers a 3-2 victory.

St. Louis Browns staggered the bruised and bleeding Boston Red Sox 6-4 with Chet Laabs hitting a three-run homer — his second round-tripper of the season. It was the fourth loss in a row and 14th in 20 games for the last place Red Sockers, who made only six hits.

All National League games were postponed because of unfavorable weather in the East.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 13 — (CP) — War blinded soldiers enjoy football matches as spectators up Blackpool way. It's all part of a plan to prove to the sightless that life has not lost interest. Each week men undergoing blind training at a school near Blackpool take a section of the grandstand reserved for them and "see" some of Britain's highest-priced stars in action.

Accompanying the men is an experienced commentator—a man able to "read" every move, every incident, in a match quickly and accurately. Through his efforts and by listening to comments of the crowd, the sightless quickly pick up the trend of play. Observers say they re-act to thrills just as if the panorama was seen by their own eyes, instead of in their mind.

Star of one team in Britain's war-time football is a man who once was blind. Bob White, talented amateur left half of Tottenham, Hotspur, suffered so severaly in the hell that was Dunkerque that, following a protracted period of exposure in the water, he lost his sight. For weeks it was feared the affliction would become permanent. But rest and careful nursing brought about a complete cure.

Now Captain White—he was a private at Dunkerque—is playing such outstanding soccer there's a big chance an English amateur International "cap" will grace his head some day.

It's not often a football cup crowd pays tribute to the memory of a rugby star. But it happended at a game between Bristol and Aston Villa. Fifty past and present Bath and Somerset rugby players made a half-time collection for a memorial fund honoring Maj. R. A. Gerrard, 14 times "capped" for England, who was killed in action with the Eighth Army.

The fund will found a scholarship at Taunton School to one of the most brilliant three-quarters to represent his country. He won the D. S. O. last November for disposing of mines and "booby traps" near El Alamein. The family announcement of the death ended with the words: "Played for England 1932-36;" died for England 1943."

Jimmy Hogan, man who taught Europe to play football—he coached in Switzerland, Hungary, France and Germany—still carries on his tuition. In spare time from his war job he coaches military units, the Home Guard and the A. T. C. He instructs, lectures and demonstrates and often undertakes long trips at the request of the Army to reach isolated searchlight and anti-aircraft units.

Plenty of training in track sports and bicycle racing during school days helped give WO. Turner the alertness a Spitfire pilot must have. Only Canadian on an R. A. F. fighter squadron, he was a motion picture projectionist back home in Acton, Ont. His brother, Pte. Bill Turner of the Canadian Army, was taken prisoner at Dieppe.

It is hard for a face to conceal the thoughts of the heart. The look without is an index of what is within. That dirty look again.

A man was boasting to a neighbor who lived in the same block of flats that he had kissed every woman in the building except one.

The neighbor, boiling with jealousy, went straight home and reported the story to his wife, saying, with a suspicious glance: "I wonder, Maggie, who the woman is that he hasn't kissed?"

"Oh," was the reply, "I suppose it will be that stuck-up Mrs. MacIntosh on the third floor."

Tribute to Brian Casey

Following the announcement from overseas that Ft.-Lt. Brian Casey had been killed in an operational flight, Doug Vaughan, sports editor of The Windsor Star, penned as fine a tribute as was ever published regarding the qualities of his late friend, Brian Casey, who incidentally was a native of Windsor and a personal friend of FO. Archie Green, of No. 5 I.T.S.

In part Mr. Vaughan wrote as follows: "The last time we saw Brian was just a little over a year ago when he played here in Windsor with the Trenton R.C.A.F. basketball team.

"Home on leave from foreign parts at the same time were two of his closest friends, Lieut. Jimmy Farmer and Lieut. Alf Hurler, both of the Royal Navy. The three had played side by side for three years in the backfield of the greatest football team ever turned out by the University of Western Ontario. They had shared a million experiences down through the years. It was our pleasure to sit for a couple of hours and listen to them reminisce.

"At that time Brian was an instructor in the Trenton air school. He hadn't, as yet, been out of Canada. He was frankly envious of his pals who had 'been places and done things.' A dozen times in the course of the evening he said: 'You lucky stiffs. I'd give my right arm to have been in on that show. But just you wait, I'll be bumping in to you one of these days in London or Egypt or some place and I'll have better stories to tell than you punks could ever dream up.'

"Now Casey won't see his pals in London or Egypt or any place on this earth again. A Divine Power has ruled it so. But this we do know, that Farmer and Hurley, wherever they may be, when they learn of his death, will grit their teeth, tighten their belts and fight even harder so that when the time does come and the three are together again in the Great Beyond, they'll be able to look Brian squarely in the face and say: 'We didn't let you down, did we pal?'"

It's a Natural

Belleville wrestling fans, and there are plenty of them who religiously attend the weekly bouts at the Hume Arena, would like nothing better than to have Promoter Frank Tunney rematch Earl McCready and John Katan in a finished bout some fine evening. This can be truthfully said after last night's draw battle between these two arch ring enemies.

However, if and when such a match could be arranged for Belleville, Marse Tunney should include "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the sensational colored grappler on the same card and it would just about cause Manager Walt Gerow to hang out the S. R. O. sign. For a first appearance Claybourne today is perhaps the most popular matman seen locally in years. The lithe Negro lad showed more agility and speed than has been seen in a local ring in many a moon. Especially of interest was the manner in which he leaped clear over Referee Fox's head to win his bout over Jan Gotch. Frankly, the colored lad should go in for Olympic high jumping.

Ready for Action

Prexy Chuck Barnett's feminine softballers are ready for action after adopting a 30-game schedule. All games will be played on the Armouries lawn this season and the total net gate receipts will be given to war charities. Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, O.C., of the Argyll Light Infantry, gave his personal consent for the return to this popular playing field and will also name the war charity to benefit from the proceeds.

At the termination of the regular schedule the first four clubs will engage in a play-off for the league championship. Games will be played regularly on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. Another innovation will be the use of a backstop, which will tend to speed up the games as it will take care of the all too many passed balls that doubtless slowed up play in years past.

Remember When—?

Five years ago today Elwood Sachsenmaier's Charlett Girl won her seventh straight victory in the United States racing season by adding the $5,000 Pimlico Nursery to her list at Baltimore. The two-year-old made a poor getaway but finished within one-fifth of a second of the track record.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 54

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You know Mrs. Shouldahad. She could be your partner at almost any bridge party. She opens her yap and out comes: "You Shouldahad three plus." Or, "You shouldahad two and a half."

Ask her what she does with a plus and she looks at you as if you were a worm. Ask her if she ever took a half trick and she gets mad.

She does not know why. But she knows that four plus produces enough tricks for one no-trump; five plus, for two no-trump; six or more, three no-trump.

It generally will. The honor trick table is a reasonably good measuring stick for no-trump tricks. But it is a cumbersome way of arriving at a simple result.

Under the Horse Sense count, each ace or king or queen is a no-trump trick. If your pair has seven of them, you make one no-trump; eight of them, two no-trump; nine of them, three no-trump.

You have this hand:

♠K 10 3
♥A Q 5
♣J 6 4 2

You have five Horse Sense no-trump tricks. If partner has two, your side makes one no-trump. If partner has three, your side makes two no-trump. If partner has four, your side has three no-trump.

That and the honor trick count will reach the same result. The only difference is, you understand why with the Horse Sense count. And Horse Sense is a little safer.

Horse Sense merely takes the 12 highest cards as the 12 no-trump tricks. Honor tricks break them into fractions. The pieces are grouped into 8½ portions to take 12 tricks.

Look at it like this. Take 12 apples. Cut them up into pieces. Put them into a stewpan and cook. Set out the result into 8½ dishes to feed 12 persons.

Why not give each person one whole apple? The other way is just a lot of apple sauce.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Crystal Ball"

Paulette Goddard, who has proved to be no slouch when it comes to battling on the screen, is marked for action again in "The Crystal Ball", which opens today at the McCarthy Theatre.

In "The Women" this vivacious beauty had a chance to try her jujitsu and clawing on Rosalind Russell in a bloodthirsty battle. Only this time Paulette innocently walks into the middle of a family squabble between Iris Adrian and Ernest Truex and is immediately suspected by wife Iris of being hubby's girl friend.

So—blond Iris Adrian clutches the expensive-looking dress on Paulette Goddard and give it a yank.

Then she rips. The dress parts clear down the front, leaving Paulette shivering in a flimsy, silky underslip.

"It is the biggest "strip" scene Paulette Goddard has done in pictures.

Director Elliott Nugent was jubilant at the results as he claimed: "We did it with one shot and one dress".

This is wartime and fabulous Hollywood is being fabulously saving, for which Miss Goddard is thankful.

AT THE CAPITOL

"BAMBI"

"Twitterpated?"

Ask Walt Disney. Or, see Walt's newest feature production, "Bambi," now showing at the Capitol. The "twitterpated" sequence in this enchanting picture is probably the most hilarious tomfoolery the screen has ever seen.

"Twitterpated" describes the ecstatic state of being in love. But it doesn't describe the delicious humor of the sequence in which three boastful young males who have stated that they are immune against the tender passion are set back on their heels by three young females. If ever love has been shown graphically on the screen, it is in this episode of "Bambi," unquestionably destined to be one of the most famous of all Disney creations.

"Bambi" is based on the best-selling Felix Salten Book-of-the-month Club novel. It is an RKO Radio release, and was photographed in Multiplane Technicolor.

"THE BLOCKED TRIAL"

The wonder horse, Brilliant, who may currently be seen at the Capitol Theatre in "The Blocked Trail," the added hit is a new Republic western starring Bob Steele, Tom Tyler, and Jimmie Dodd, can perform such difficult tricks as working a teeter-totter board, doing division problems, jitterbugging, dancing the conga, and taking a bow on either one knee or both. A midget mustang mare, Brilliant is only thirty-five inches high, and weighs 220 pounds — one fifth the size of a regular saddle horse!"

A Popeye cartoon and "The Secret Code" complete a grand program for the entire family to see.

The program is sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company of Canada, Limited, and will originate from the Drill Hall at the Repair Depot.

Friday will be Stop No. 30 on the "Victory Parade." This program is sent direct to war camps and war plants across the Dominion by the Coca-Cola Company of Canada for the entertainment of the sailors, soldiers, airmen and war workers.

The program is comprised of a stage show and broadcast. The stage show starts at 7:15 p.m. and is made up of novelty features and the latest "Hit Parade" tunes played by the band. This portion of the show continues until 8:05 p.m., EDT., when the program goes on the air over a coast-to-coast network of stations, lasting till 8:30 p.m. providing over an hour and a quarter of popular entertainment.

An important feature of the broadcast is a "Salute to the officers and men of No. 6 Repair Depot, R.C.A.F. Trenton. The Nation and the Spotlight pay tribute to the fine spirit and serious effort they are putting into their training, and to the vital and heroic part their predecessors now play in keeping our aircraft flying over the fighting fronts of the world.

Cy Mack, CBC announcer, is the Master of Ceremonies who in characteristically able fashion sparks the show on its march across the country.

Mr. A. H. Coe, Belleville Plant Manager of the Coca-Cola Company, will be on hand to take a bow as host of the evening. On behalf of the Coca-Cola Company he is very happy to have this opportunity to entertain the officers and men of No. 6 Repair Depot, R.C.A.F. at Trenton. Mart Kenney, genial music maestro, Judy Richards, Art Hallman and the entire cast look forward with great pleasure to doing this stage show and broadcast at Trenton Station Friday night.

AT THE BELLE

"Kid Glove Killer"

Latest in split-second timed screen battles is that between Van Heflin and Lee Bowan, currenty featured on the Bell screen in the new M-G-M mystery, "Kid Glove Killer," drama of scientific police crime detection.

The fight sequence called for Heflin to knock Bowman out when the latter threatened to kill him. They went through a rehearsal perfectly, and Director Fred Zinnemann called for action.

Heflin leaped at Bowman. As the two came together, Heflin's right lashed out—wham! It caught Bowman flush on the jaw and knocked him sprawling.

"Out!" yelled Zinnemann.

Other scenes in the film called for Heflin to knock down Marsha Hunt twice in order to get her out of a line of fire. Miss Hunt came through without a scratch but filming the scene took hours.

Heflin, "chin shy" after actually hitting Bowman, was so afraid of hurting Miss Hunt that it took ten takes before Zinnemann got what he wanted.

Built around the election of an honest mayor and district attorney, who are slain when the underworld, led by Bowman, realizes they meant their campaign promises to clean up the city, the picture adroitly mixes detection and romance.

A strong supporting cast includes Samuel S. Hinds, Cliff Clark, Eddie Quillan, John Litel, Catherine Lewis and Nella Walker.

"Berlin Correspondent" Suspenseful

There have been several films about Nazi Germany in general and the city of Berlin in particular, but for tantalizing suspense, exciting action and tender romance none has equaled 20th Century-Fox's thrilling "Berlin Corsespondent," the companion feature attraction

And no wonder! Few people know Berlin the way America's famed foreign correspondents got to know it. And this picture is a realistic story of those intrepid men and their fight to find the truth despite almost insurmountable difficulties. This is the story of the nightmare they had to survive to bring the whole shocking tale to America.

That bright young actor, Dana Andrews, recently seen in "Ball of Fire" and "Swamp Water," plays the title role of the courageous reporter who fights the Gestapo to get his news past the censor and loses his sweetheart in the proces. Lovely Virginia Gilmore, whose beauty of late has graced "The Loves of Edgar Allan Poe' is the distaff half of the romance that, because of its intense pathos, will be long remembered.

"People of Russia" Timely

"People of Russia," is the title of a timely and thoroughly entertaining film to be exhibited on the same program.

Washington —(AP)— The Senate's military sub-committee charging lack of unified over-all production control was responsible for a drop below the president's goals for plane production yesterday demanded a United States War Mobilization Board under a new "super czar" who would be superior to the Economic Director James Byrnes and War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson.

Beurling Wants Active Service

London, May 13—(CP Cable)—Flying Officer George Beurling of Verdun, Que., Canada's greatest fighter ace of this war, is back in London with a problem he may not be able to solve as easily as he has anything he has met in the air so far—how to get back on operations.

It is understood the R.A.F. wants to make him a gunnery instructor, thus using to the full the magnificent marksmanship with which Beurling got the 29 enemy aircraft officially credited to him before he was put out of action with a shot in the heel last October when he was shot down near Malta.

But Beurling, who maintained during his long convalescence in Canada that his only desire is to get back into action, is understood to be asking strongly for a posting back with the Fighter Command.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 14

She closed her eyes and shook her head slowly from side to side.

What had she to guide her except the things she knew, except the things she could be sure of for the next few days? She would be getting married for a few days. No one could be married for always now. You got married for a few days and lived them to the full and after that? You waited and wrote letters and listened to the radio and shut off your dreams as you shut off the radio with a quick turn of your finger. You were a war bride. You had been a war baby and now you were about to be a war bride.

The things that she could be sure of for the next few days. Not to meet Jud and have to go to a restaurant or to a cocktail lounge and sit and eat and drink when she did not particularly want to do either. Not to ride endlessly because the car was their only place of privacy. But to live with him, to sleep and wake with him, to be with him somewhere where she did not have to wear a hat and coat, to have comfort and freedom with him and to have him. Those were the only things she was sure of and by them she had to live.

Her mother's face, troubled and tired and strong, came before her. She thought, "But can you blame me? You may be disappointed that I wasn't married in the church at home and that you weren't there, but can you blame me? Who has any right to blame me? I'm not taking anything from you and the others I love or from my country. I'm not taking anything from anyone except from Jud and to him I'll give as much. Oh, don't you see? It's so simple, really. Jud and I have to get married so that we can have a few days together. I'm not afraid he'll die and not come back. Maybe . . maybe deep down I'm afraid he'll live and not come back."

She opened the door and got out, her tall black heels sinking into the earth. The narrow patch of whiteness beneath her was the path she followed. It led down a gradual incline to a wide stretch of beach where Jud stood, the lighted end of his cigarette stabbing the darkness. When he saw her, he tossed the cigarette into the water and stood tensely at attention.

Shee hurried until she was a few feet away from him and then she advanced slowly. His face expressed anxiety. He was trying to read Temple's answer in her face. She put her arms around him and kissed him.

"You will?" he asked. She felt the tenseness leave his body.

"Yes, Jud, I will."

"Oh, darling. You're not doing it just for me, are you?"

"No, I want to as much as you."

"You couldn't. I don't want you to fool yourself, darling."

"I'm not being fooled. It's the only thing I'm sure of. But why must it be kept a secret?"

"Because of our families mainly. It would worry your mother. She doesn't know me. And my mother would worry you. It would mix me up and put you on the spot. And it would involve me in a lot of things I'd rather not go through right now."

"I know a place we could go. Paula's farm."

"You'd have to tell her."

"She wouldn't ask any questions."

"I don't think I'd mind your telling her. You will probably want someone to talk to and she doesn't know our families. A farm . . that sounds good. We'll be married tomorrow, Friday and stay until Monday. I'm leaving Tuesday. Have Paula call your office and tell them something."

She nodded. There wouldn't be time to buy anything new.

When she glanced up, she saw how happy he looked, how relieved. It couldn't be wrong when it made him look like this!

"I'm not being very romantic, Temple."

"I guess I've stopped believing in Santa Claus."

"But you should have all the nice, conventional things . . house full of guests tearing around madly, bridesmaids, orange blossoms and organ music." He looked down at her and smiled. "I'd be mad as hell at my daughter if she did what you're going to do."

His arms tightened around her and he pressed his face close to hers. "I love you. When I want to say something rather wonderful so that you'll attach it to this particular moment, all I can think of is that I love you and that the world or whatever you chose to call it has played a dirty trick on us. Shall we go? I hope I can find my way to the main road. If I can't, then all my efforts to make an honest woman out of a nice girl will have to be in vain."

"Kiss me, Jud."

"Tonight I'll kiss my girl. Tomorrow night I'll kiss my wife."

Because there was no privacy in telephoning from the house Temple left Jud a block from the house and entered a drug store to call Paula. The tired, lifeless faces of people sitting around the soda fountain threatened for a moment to depress her. She wanted to cry, "Get up and live! Don't look like that! Feel what I feel and live!"

A servant called Paula to the telephone.

"This is Temple. I hope I'm not disturbing you too much."

"No, of course not, darling. How nice to hear from you. You are only disturbing a discussion as to whether women should work. I'm holding my own that they should if they want to. I, who never do one earthly thing. What's on your mind?"

"Then you know something is."

Paula laughed. "Listen, Baby, when a woman calls another woman after midnight, there's more to it than a social chat."

"Yes, there is. Could I see you tomorrow morning?"

"Morning? Are there mornings still? Yes, of course, dear. If you'll come around 10, I'll try to have my eyebrows on and I'll have breakfast in bed while you have yours beside my bed. Then you may tell me all about it. Am I being flippant when there is perhaps something seriously wrong?"

"Oh, no! Not at all. It's . . . it's good news."

"Oh, splendid. Good-night, darling. I'm going back to women who work if they want to."

When morning came, bright and warm, Temple was already awake, having been awake the whole night through. It had been much too long a night, but tonight would be shorter. Until Monday the nights would be all too brief indeed. She wondered whether Jud would remember to buy her a ring.

She got up quickly and made the bed and took a shower. Hearing the house come slowly to life with people preparing to go to work, she packed, leaving out the navy suit and the frivolous hat to wear, taking with her a navy slack suit, a plaid skirt and red sweater, moccasins and a white satin nightgown Fran had given her two Christmases ago.

It was an odd wardrobe for a bride. She felt a little sad about it because only the nightgown did justice and was suitable to the occasion. Fran, whose greedy hands took in everything to herself, had given Temple her trousseau, one nightgown.

She did not like what she had to do next: leave the house before the others because she did not want anyone to see her departing with a bag. It was furtive and somehow shabby to walk quietly down the creaking old steps, praying she would not meet anyone, and then outside rush in a direction opposite from the one the others would take. On the street she felt conspicuous, as though people were staring at her.

In a small basement restaurant she had breakfast and watched people going to work. For a second she wished she was among them, that she was free, that she had no desire and no love that was making her, unconventional making her do this thing which a few months ago she would have scoffed at. But only for a second until she remembered Jud and the fields around Paula's farm that would be green. Until she remembered Jud and the relief that had come to his face and body when she said she would marry him. That was real, too, as real as these people going to work and the smell of bacon and coffee. As real as the shining sun. As real as the war.

She had time to waste since she could not go to Paula's until 10. A delightful idea struck her. She would buy Jud a present! She could spend three dollars. But what could she buy a soldier? She paid for her breakfast, went out and walked downtown, the heavy bag in her hand.

Would he remember to buy her a corsage? The florists' shops were overflowing with beauty. She entered a department store and walked up and down the aisles, trying to see something a soldier could use. She found it at last, an odd gift for a bride to give the bridegroom, but one which a soldier could use. It was a shoe-shining set, compact and complete. His shoes were always highly polished. But the moment she paid for it her mood for being practical passed. She would like to give him something really beautiful.

It was ten minutes to 10 when she came out of the store. Now there was no more time to waste. There would not be a minute to waste until after Jud went away.

"Don't Know What I Would Have Done Without Syntona"

Recommends it Highly to All Friends and the Public. Says it Built Him Up and Gave Grand Relief From Stomach Gas, Indigestion, Dizziness and Constipation.

"I certainly was in bad condition if anybody ever was," said Mr. Holding, 47 Edgemont Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario. "I had no appetite, couldn't get restful sleep at night and lost so much weight that I hardly had enough energy to carry on my work. I was troubled with constipation and would get awful headaches and dizzy spells. I also had a lot of gas and bloating in my stomach and intestines and I felt so sluggish and tired-out that I actually thought I'd have to quite entirely.

"But it wasn't very long after I started taking Syntona that I began to feel better and now after a couple months this medicine has given me REAL results. I've gained back several pounds of my lost weight, I have a good appetite for hearty meals with no trouble from gas, bloating or distress in my stomach. My sluggish bowels are regular now and the relief this gave from headaches and those sickening dizzy spells is wonderful. I feel so much stronger and better in every way that I just want to tell every one about the medicine that has done so much for me."

SYNTONA contains 12 Herbs and Roots and assists Nature to cleanse the bowels, flush sluggish kidneys, tone up weak, nervous stomach and improve assimilation of food. The action of Syntona is pleasant and prompt and what Syntona has done for others it can do for you, if you will give it a chance.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Forty-Nine Cases Listed for Trial In Police Court

The largest docket of cases ever to be presented in a county police court here was in evidence Thursday morning when 49 cases were listed for trial before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd. The fact no police court was held last week owing to the death of the late Magistrate E. J. Butler accounted for the large accumulation.

With only about fifty percent of the cases presented alternatively by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., and Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, the court adjourned during the noon hour for luncheon. The majority of the cases entered were for minor offences and multiple charges against the same parties materially helped to swell the charges.

Roy Brown, Frankford, pleaded guilty to two charges preferred under the H.T.A., Brown paid $25.00 and costs after being convicted on a careless driving charge and also contributed ten dollars and costs when he admitted to driving a motor vehicle without first obtaining a driver's licence.

Speeding counts preferred under the War Measures Act exacted $17.50, including costs, from Gordon Phillips, Ottawa, and Jas. P. Hunter, Belleville, while Herbert McKilican, Belleville, was assessed five dollars and costs after being convicted of careless driving.

A second offence of intoxication and plea of guilty resulted in James McGiffin, Deseronto, being given one month in jail after he assured the court he was not able to meet the minimum fine of $50.00 and costs. Chief N. Langton of Deseronto, presented the case and pleaded McGiffin's cause. Thomas Brant, Tyendinaga, paid $15.25, including costs, after being convicted of being found in possession of intoxicants on the Tyendinaga Reserve.

William Laundry, of Belleville, pleaded guilty to five charges of breaking and entering summer cottages and farmhouses in Sidney Township and also of stealing a bicycle in Belleville. Without concern Laundry pleaded guilty to all counts and immediately Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan requested Magistrate Lloyd to remand the lad in order that he might be examined by Dr. McGregor, the provincial psychiatrist. "I had the same thought and will gladly consent to this examination", replied His Worship.

The court continued in an afternoon session.

FIGHTING REVIVED BY RED FORCES IN KHARKOV AREA

18 PLANES DESTROYED

London, May 13—(CP)—Russian troops in a resurgence of fighting in the Donets river valley around Lisichanskk, about 125 miles southeast of Kharkov, have occupied a hill described in the Soviet noon communique today as a "height of great tactical importance" after rolling back German armor and crushing an enemy wedge thrust into a town held by the Russians.

More than 1,000 Germans were killed and about 1,000 were captured, along with a great store of military equipment in a battle which continued last night, Russian war bulletins said. They were recorded here by the Soviet radio Monitor.

Temporarily, the outbreak overshadowed the steady, grinding drive by the Red army against the line of German fortifications outside Novorossisk where a German counter - attack was thrust back and Red army artillery kept up its attacks on the German blockhouses and artillery posts.

Moscow, in a special broadcast, said the Red air force had inflicted heavy damage in 12 more raids on German communications centres, bringing the total of such raids to more than 50 in four consecutive days. Some of the cities were targets for the second or third nights in succession.

The midnight communique said that in aerial battles 18 more German planes were shot down with a loss of five Soviet craft.

The noon communique said that a German bomber attempting to raid Leningrad was shot down by anti-aircraft defences.

Artillery duels on the Leningrad and Kalinin fronts, and west of Rostov, and scouting skirmishes on the Smolensk front marked developments in other sectors.

The official Russian war bulletins said that 600 or more Germans were slain in the continuing battle to take Novorossisk and clean out the Kuban delta.

Maintains Preference For Corvette Duty

Maintaining a definite preference for duty aboard a corvette rather than service on a destroyer, Petty Officer Robert Jones, Royal Canadian Navy, is spending furlough with his family in the city. Enlisting in the navy at the outset of the present war Petty Officer Jones admittedly has seen action chasing Nazi subs on the Atlantic coast but very conveniently does not recall details of any "brushes" that he may have experienced with enemy craft.

At present with the stoker service aboard a Canadian corvette, Petty Officer Jones will shortly try for his engineer's papers, it was stated.

Conducts Loan Campaign From Rowboat at Windows

Gatineau Point, Que., May 13 — (CP)—Remi Chevrier, Victory Loan canvasser in this settlement near Ottawa, is determined to put the loan "over the top" as far as Gatineau Point is concerned.

The Ottawa River has flooded much of the village and two of the main streets are under nearly four feet of water. Chevrier is conducting his campaign from a rowboat, interviewing prospects at their windows and making more than half his sales in this way.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 13 (CP) — Soft tendencies kept up during late morning and early afternoon trading, on Toronto exchange today, the majority of golds and industrials holding to their lower levels established earlier.

The gold list widened with Beattie, Chesterville, Malartic Goldfields, Pickle Crow and Preston joining their losses. Bear got back to 28 1-2 after losing an early gain of 1 1-2 cents.

Base metals showed improvement in the noon indices but in early afternoon business Falconbridge, Sherritt Gordon and Steep Rock all tacked on losses.

One o'clock volume at 170,000 was 32,000 shares below yesterday's turnover at the same time.

WALL STREET

By VICTOR EUBANK

Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, May 13—(AP)—Stock customers fiddled on both sides of today's market without starting anything like a buying or selling conflagration.

There was plenty of bullish psychology, idle funds continued abundant and business items, on the whole, were encouraging. Many potential bidders, however, inclined to conservatism pending further war developments, including outcome of the important world strategy conferences at Washington.

Trends were foggy at the opening and, while scattered strong spots were in evidence near the 4th hour, minor declines were widespread. Dealings were even slower than in the preceding session.

Bonds and commodities were narrow.

Canadian issues were mixed. Fractional gains were marked up for Lake Shore and Dome while the leading liquor stocks, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram, were off slightly. C. P. R. held unchanged.

Fame of 8th Army Held Axis Armies Until 1st Dealt Blow

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 13 —(AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, reviewing the six-months campaign in North Africa, said today the final blow was struck in a clever move by which the bulk of the enemy troops were held on the British 8th Army front while the British 1st Army got in the knockout punch.

"The reputation of the 8th Army alone was enough to hold powerful enemy forces in front of it," the Allied commander-in-chief said.

"There was a peculiar circumstance at the end which Gen. Sir Harold Alexander (deputy commander-in-chief in charge of ground forces) took advantage of. In many punches the 8th Army delivered hammer blows while the other units served as the anvil. Because of its efficiency, the 8th Army got an enormous reputation, with everyone, including the Germans, expecting the killing punch to come from it.

"Gen. Alexander counted on that. He built up the 1st Army and to make its (western) front still stronger, brought around some of the 8th Army to the 1st Army front. The Germans thought the real fight was coming from the south."

Gen. Eisenhower cited the success of this move as another proof of the advantages of a unified command.

All indications were that the Germans were greatly surprised by the thrust from the west and this led to their disorganization and collapse.

The Allied chief said the governments of both Britain and the United States and the local French "have a real reason for encouragement and hope as a result of this campaign."

Highly respected by all who came in contact with her, the sympathy of her many friends is extended to the bereaved sister.

The funeral announcement will be made tomorrow.

FATS AND KEYS FOR ADMISSION

Although there was fairly good attendance at the Collegiate Auditorium Wednesday evening to view the series of war pictures shown through the auspices of the local salvage committee, the amount of fats and keys collected as admission was rather disappointing, it was reported by Mr. Clarence Clapp, this morning.

Three or four pictures were shown during the evening's entertainment, all being films pertaining to the war efforts. Fats and keys were taken as admission to the auditorium, the drive amounting to approximately 325 pound.

Canadian Troops' Morale Very Highest Says Archbishop

Kiwanis International Pres. Speaks on 'Weapons We Wield' In Addressing Belleville Club

Mr. and Mrs. McAlister Tendered Reception and Presentation at Kiwanis Centre at Close of Luncheon

GIVEN CIVIC WELCOME

A most instructive address by Fred McAlister, president of Kiwanis International, a reception and presentation tendered to Mr. and Mrs. McAlister by the members and Kiwanis Queens at Kiwanis Centre, Dundas Street, all tended to make the official visit to the Belleville Kiwanis Club one of the truly great nights in the history of the organization. Practically every member of the club was present at the Quinte Hotel to hear the President speak on "The Weapons We Yield", an address that brought hearty appreciation and which was ably expressed by Jack Trudeau with Cliff Baragar, past lieutenant-governor, introducing the principal speaker.

Bruce Lattimer, president of the Club, presided, with Jack McIntosh as sergeant-at-arms and Harold Carruthers as song leader, with Alec Gordon at the piano for the community singing. Seated at the head table were Orliff Lloyd, president of the Kinsmen Club, Lloyd Hicks, president of the Rotary Club, William Weller, vice president of the Kingston Club, Billie Mills, former lieutenant-governor, of Kingston, Mayor Rollins and George Griffin, former secretary and past president of the local Club. Eddie Logan welcomed the guests and Mayor Rollins extended a civic welcome to the distinguished guest.

Presentation Made

At the Kiwanis Centre, a reception was held under the direction of Mrs. Norm Edwards, head of the Red Cross branch of the Kiwanis Queens, while Mrs. P. H. Wills and Mrs. Clarence Jewell poured, with the Kiwanis Queens serving the guests. Mr. and Mrs. McAlister were each presented with a Grenfell raincoat, the address being given by President Bruce Lattimer and the presentation being made by Fred Deacon. Both Mr. and Mrs. McAlister replied briefly for the gracious gift stating that their visit had been very much enjoyed and would be long remembered. George Griffin presented the Club with a code of ethics on a plaque.

The International President in speaking to the Club stated:—

"All that today is being challenged as it has been challenged again and again in ages gone. Listen to these words. They may sound to you like the next speech of Churchill so modern and timely are they. But they were spoken a hundred and fifty years ago by a preacher in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, England, a year before the Battle of Trafalgar, that battle which secured the freedom of the seas for the ensuing century. England was then, as more recently, in imminent danger of invasion. Volunteers or home guards had come forward in thousands for a service of dedication before taking up their battle stations, and this is what they heard:

"Be not deceived. There is no wall of adamant, no triple flaming sword to drive off these lawless assassins, that have murdered and pillaged in every other land. Heaven has made with us no special covenant that there shall be joy and peace here and wailing and lamentation in all the world beside. I counsel you, therefore, to put on minds of noble action. Whatever energies there are in the human mind you will need them all. Every man will be tried at the very springs of his heart, and those times are at hand which will show us all as we really are, with the genuine stamp and value, be it much or be it little, which nature has imprinted on every human soul."

Thought Peace Had Come

"In those seemingly remote pre-Dunkirk and pre-Pearl Harbor eras which in reality are only a few months away, we thought that we were living in a free world. We thought, as many of the people of England thought after Munich, that we were going to have peace in our time, peace purchased with someone else's sacrifices. Now we are face to face with the fact that we have to buy our own peace, that the price of our own personal preservation is our tears, blood, toil and sweat. We find that already we ourselves are in a concentration camp. It is true that it is a camp of tremendous size for it is the continent on which we live. It is true also that we cannot see the barricades of steel that enclose this camp, but they are there and they have been coming closer. Beginning in Tokyo, these bands of steel and fire, that is to say battleships and bombers and millions of men fully armed with the murderous weapons of war stretch southward through Hong Kong and Singapore, Bataan and Corregidor toward Australia and India, reaching around us across Libya and Egypt to join hands with the Nazis at the rich oil lands of Iran and Iraq. From there the circle runs north across Rumania and Hungary and through the prostrate lands of Poland and France and the Low Countries to Archangel and over the top of the world to the Aleutian Islands and back again to complete the giant pincers at Tokyo.

"In a hundred different ways we are feeling the pressure of this ring upon our daily lives, and unless we can resist the pressure and break up the ring it will eventually close in upon and choke us.

"Situated as we are, what then are our defences? They were named in an outline on over-all wartime planning adopted by the Executive Committee of the Board of Kiwanis International in September, 1942, as being among the weapons which we as an organization should help to wield in the defence of democracy.

"I would like to name now these steps to victory upon which we agreed and then we can consider each in turn. The weapons which we wield in this life and death struggle are Production, Transportation, Annihilation and Rehabilitation.

Had Seven Year's Start

"The Axis forces had a seven years' start on Production. Against that they have undergone over three years of the tremendous wastage of war in men, in materials and latterly in morale. You in this continent are fresh and just hitting your stride. We must not minimize the productive power of the widespread facilities available to the Axis augmented by the acquisition of conquered territory. On the other hand, they are finding that the whip on the bleeding back of slave labor cannot out-produce the whir in factories filled with free men and women. That was proved in England when factories suddenly spouted thousands of planes just in time for the Battle of Britain in which Hitler met his first reverse. It has been proved again in Canada where the floor space devoted to airplane production has been jumped from 500,000 square feet to over 5,000,000; where the cost of the air training program is $5,000,000,000 for the first three years, more than the total annual tax bill in normal times; where another $5,000,000,000 has been allocated to the merchant shipping and naval program, multiplying our navy from 15 ships to approximately 500; and where annual exports of essential foodstuffs have reached from 50 million to over 180 million, with a backlog still in this country of the two largest grain crops ever produced in the history of this country.

Unimaginable Output

"And the productive capacity of free men is again being proved by the almost unimaginable output of guns, tanks, planes, ships and all the accoutrements, supplies and paraphernalia of war by the United States at the present time.

"In this program of production Kiwanis is playing its part. During the past two decades this organization had donated to young farmers thousand of awards for achievements in the area of agriculture and, realizing that food is among the munitions of war, this organization is capitalizing on its country-wide connections to promote increased production. The most recent example of this is an appeal which I received in January (1943) from Wayne H. Darrow, Director of Information, Agricultural Conservation and Adjustment Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, for our cooperation in promoting farm mobilization day, an appeal to which we responded within twenty-four hours by a special bulletin mailed to every club asking them to cooperate in this vital task. Active promotion by our clubs of the sale of bonds, stamps, and certificates is pouring funds into our federal treasuries and, on the other hand, we are seeking to stop up governmental expenditures on non-essential peace-time projects. We are participating actively and effectively in the vital scrap collection campaign and just as actively in the task of salvaging man power discarded by the army as unsuited for active service, redirecting, retraining and relocating these men in essential war industries. We are utilizing our experience and associations in vocational guidance work in directing youth into the most effective lines of effort in either war industry or the active services. And more recently we have been interesting ourselves in arranging for day nurseries so that mothers in industry could be free of concern as to what was happening to their young children formerly left alone at home, and thus be able to give undivided attention to the machines they are tending.

"Thus Kiwanis has had an active hand in pushing up the production curve, that is to say, in wielding the weapons of production.

Must Reach Enemy

"To be effective, however, the weapon of production must reach the enemy where he lives. Nelson's last message to his men at the Battle of Trafalgar was "Engage the enemy more closely." That today means transportation. That was the meaning of the trade of territory for destroyers earlier in the war. Britain could not throw islands at her enemy. It was the meaning of the phenomenal development of the Canadian Navy and Merchant Marine to which I have referred. Over ten thousand ships flying the flags of seventeen different nations have sailed in convoy from Canadian shores bearing more than sixty million tons of cargo protected by Canadian escort vessels, with a loss of less than twenty vessels. You people have a similar transportation story, on a more stupendous scale, to tell.

"Today the two countries in both the production and transportation field have integrated their transportation facilities. For example, machine tools are not allowed to lie idle but are catalogued and rushed from place to place as most urgently required regardless of the boundary line. Canada has completed a chain of airports along the inner fog-free and foe-free course to Alaska which United States Army plane are now using, and United States Army engineers are now pushing a new motor highway up along the same route. Engineers from Iran and Iraq were recently brought back to rush a pipe line to Montreal from which at the present time 50,000 barrels a day of oil are spouting to fuel Trans-Atlantic planes and to free Trans-Atlantic tanks which otherwise would have been tied to their 2,000 mile pilgrimage up and down the Atlantic coast. Our enemies understood the importance of transportation to us. The Axis submarines sinking tankers along the Atlantic Coast while the Japs cut off our rubber supply in Pacific constituted a vast pincers movement designed to throttle us.

Taking Active Part

"In this transportation program, too, Kiwanis is taking an active part. First in its traffic safety work and also in its advocacy of motor fuel and general fuel conservation, in its participation in the campaign for tire saving and in its public presentation of the reasons for conservation and for rationing generally, including travel; all of which have a very definite, if indirect bearing on how adroitly and how effectively these countries of ours can wield the weapon of transportation.

Our weapons, however, must not only reach the enemy; they must be pressed home. That is a stern and rigorous but absolutely necessary piece of business. We have found that there are snakes in the swamps that lie around us. We have heard the agonized cry of our neighbors as the coils of these monsters have crushed out their lives, and we know in our hearts that our own countries are not safe until the swamps are drained and the serpents disposed of.

Our enemies before the final pounce crept up upon us and today they hate us more than they hate the hundreds of thousands of men and women whom they have already done to death. They hate us more because we have been able to hold our heads higher than they could, because we have given them and are giving them more trouble than they did and because we have more of the things they want. We have richer possessions and above all greater privileges, including the privilege of choosing our own course and making our own way in life. We are, whether we think much about it or not, the target at which our enemies are shooting and, my friends, we must remember these next five words — we are within their reach.

Talks to Veteran

I was talking a short time ago to a Canadian father, a veteran of the last war, concerning the fact that Canada was just finishing three years of conflict.

"Three years ago," he said, "my lad was still a boy in school. We went out hunting one day and came upon a ground hog. The boy raised his gun to shoot, then lowered it again."

"That ground hog never did anything to me," he said, turning to his father. "It has no food value and I just can't kill it." Then the father added, "These three years have made of that lad an officer training Canadian Commandos in the tactics of unarmed combat. I heard him last week give a talk to his men. He closed it with this admonition: 'Remember men, when you are within reach of your enemy, it is either your life or his that is forfeit. If you forget that, it is yours.'"

"That is the position we are in today. It is our fate that is at stake, our freedom, our future. The question we must answer is: Can you keep it ours?

There is only one way — along the grim road of annihilation.

During the past fortnight a boatload of truculent Nazi prisoners were disembarked at an eastern United States port and rushed by train northwest across the Canadian border toward a distant fortress camp somewhere in the north-western reaches of the Dominion. They were haughty and turbulent and hard to handle. They spent a day and a night speeding across the settled part of Southern Ontario, another travelling along the rugged north short of Lake Superior. Two more days with a night sandwiched in found them out on the vast open stretches of the prairies.

Became Quite Docile

Finally one of these men to whom three or four hundred miles had once been a pilgrimage in Europe, allowed his wonder and curiosity to overcome his pride, and he asked one of the guards who could converse with him and from whom I have this incident, where in the world they were being taken. "Why", whispered the guard, feigning surprise, "don't you know? We are taking you across Canada and Alaska to Siberia where we are turning you over to the Russians". The young Nazi impressed with the immense distances he had been travelling, could well believe it. Within an hour the word had been passed along throughout the train and a grim silence settled down upon the prisoners. They had been spoken to in the language of their own trade and about the one thing that conveyed any meaning to them, the one thing that struck home, and the only thing that will strike home in this struggle into which we have been drawn.

"And let us make no mistake, the winsomeness of mere words will not win for us. Brute force knows only one language and that is the brutal language of force. Cruelty knows of nothing but cruelty; conquerors understand nothing but conquest; and killers nothing but cruelty; conquerors understand nothing but conquest; and killers nothing but death.

"In this grim task also Kiwanis is taking its part. Over 8,000 of our members have joined the active service forces, and we are throwing the full resources of our organization into backing up the men who battle for us.

Part of Gun Carriage

"The greater the gun, the more massive, the more mobile, the more responsive, the more resilient must be the gun carriage, and we are a part of the gun carriage for the forces at the front. We must maintain a vital, active, full-blooded, forceful national life here at home so that back of our long arm and mailed fist there will be the fighting heart; and then we must transmit the full warmth of feeling, the tempo of thinking and force of action to those who are the cutting edge of our irresistible drive.

Our cheerful, wholesome, well-balanced Kiwanis Magazine is going to each of our own men in the service. We are developing letter-writing procedures by which cheerful, wholesome and well-balanced messages are beginning to go forward not only to our own men but to thousands of others, including "our" boys keeping them in close contact with the hopeful, steadying and inspiring life back home. We are devoting the major part of our attention to morale building activities that will keep that life back home hopeful, steady and inspiring. By open forums and weekly radio broadcasts and gatherings such as this we are keeping the public informed. They are already aroused. We are actively supporting the Red Cross and we are providing in association with other agencies for the entertainment and recreation of the troops in training—speeding the day when the weapons of annihilation can be wiped off and hung in a handy place on the nation's mantelpiece as a reminder that "He who keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep".

"You will have wondered why rehabilitation should have been mentioned as one of the weapons we wield. Let that wait until the war is won, some say.

Must Win the War First

"It is true, of course, that we must win the war first before we can put into effect any of our plans for rebuilding out of the wreckage of war. But it is also true that without preserving in our minds our plans for rehabilitation and maintaining in our hearts the determination to realize them all the suffering and sacrifices of this struggle will have been in vain. And we must never forget that, already, the war is over for increasing thousands whose men, women too, have gone and will never come back, or other thousands who have come back hoping that we have ready some means of rehabilitation.

"Preoccupied as we are with the pressing problems of the moment, Kiwanis has two International committees at work on different phases of this question. Until we have their findings it will be impossible to predict what contribution Kiwanis can make in the post-war world except to say that it will make a worth while contribution.

"We in Kiwanis have faith in the future and that, in itself, is one of the most effective weapons we can wield. We have heard a great deal of talk about Hitler's secret weapon. He confided in a friend who later left him what this weapon was and his subsequent and successful use of it confirmed the fact that for once he was telling the truth. This is what he had to say to Rauschnigg about it: "Mental confusion, contradiction of feeling, indecision, panic, these are our weapons."

"But there is a weapon that overcomes fear, and that is the weapon of faith. Fear was the weapon by which Hitler hoped to subdue the people of the entire planet into slavery but he has blunted his weapon in contact with our faith—first in China, then in Britain, then in Russia and now everywhere.

Gives Lie to Hitler

"These days of struggle have disclosed that something lives within men and women high and low that gives the lie to Hitler's appraisal of human nature. They do not propose to become the sawdust stuffing of a great shadowy stooge sewn together and used as a plaything by a gang of elite pirates, who named their patchwork creation the State. There is another interpretation of life in which these millions of men and women prefer to believe and that is that they are spiritual beings whom it is the duty of the State to serve. This interpretation has not been whipped up for the occasion. Many years ago Patrick Henry put it in these well known words:

"Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased with chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death. That is, take my life rather than my liberty, for without liberty I may exist but I cannot live."

Foundation Simple

"The foundation teaching upon which that faith is built is, very simply, that we are relatives of God, not merely his creatures even, but his children and as such we are entitled to believe that each of us has a part to play—a vital part. Each of us is entitled to the feeling that, to quote: "God could not have made this violin without Stradivarius." Is each of us a Stradivarius working with God to produce with the materials at hand an instrument of infinite harmony, or are we sacks of sawdust for Hitler to throw around or scatter to the winds as the whim takes him? In the words of the first object of Kiwanis, is it the human and spiritual, or the material values of life to which primacy, or priority, is to be given? That is the central issue of this struggle and for the fight you have had the weapon of faith put into your hand. Do not let it sleep there, for if it restz it will rust. Use it. In the words of Sir Owen Seaman:

"You who have faith to look with fearless eyes
Beyond the wreckage of a world at war
Rejoice, whatever anguish rends your heart
That God has given you for priceless dower
To live in these great days and play your part
In Freedom's crowning hour;
Tht you may tell your sons who see the light
High in the heavens; their heritage to take
'I saw the powers of darkness put to flight::
I saw the morning break'."

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Japanese Premier Tojo undoubtedly would give a slice of Nippon's plunder if he could get his hard-working ear to the key-hole of the Churchill - Roosevelt conference room and learn the reasons for the dramatic appearance of the chiefs of the three British fighting services, in the Indian theatre.

The presence of this noted trio—Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell, Admiral Sir James Somerville and Air Chief Marshal Sir Richard Peirse — is calculated to inspire anxious speculation in Tokyo. The truth is that it could mean any one of quite a lot of things. Hitler himself must be deeply interested, for the big three of the strategic Indian base would be consulted in connection with any Allied plans involving an invasion of the Balkans, or mid-Eastern operations.

However, the main reasons why the Wavell-Somerville-Peirse combination has been called in probably are two. One is to check on the Japanese threat of a great offensive. The other is to go over the general situation and lay plans for a major drive against the Japanese as soon as conditions permit.

One of these days, of course, the United Nations must launch a mighty attack to oust the Nipponese from Burma and open the Burma Road so that supplies can be poured into China.

The Burma offensive presumably will be a water-borne expedition across the Bay of Bengal from India — a dangerous and difficult task.

Such an invasion couldn't very well be carried out before September. India is just at the beginning of the summer Monsoon with its deluge of rain which precludes big-scale military operations for about four months.

Presumably the question of whether an invasion could be undertaken then must depend in considerable degree on the state of the European fighting, since a great amount of shipping and other support would be necessary. Certainly the reopening of the Mediterranean ship lanes will facilitate operations in the Orient.

In any event the indications are that the Allied High Command is in process of strengthening the air forces of India and China and is increasing the volume of supplies which are sent mainly by air to the hard-hit Chinese.

While Allied production has reached a point where greater aid can be sent to the Orient, and a major offensive against the Japanese undoubtedly will be staged at the earliest possible moment, there is no indication that the Washington conference is going to rest on its laurels in Europe while taking the Mikado's measure. Up to this juncture the announced aim of America, Britain and Russia has been to finish Hitler off as soon as possible. It will be most heartening if we are strong enough to broaden operations against Japan at the same time.

U. S. FORCES LAND ON JAP-HELD ATTU ISLAND

RAF POUNDS CONTINENT IN GREAT STRENGTH

One of 2 Principal Japanese Bases At Tip of Aleutians

Action Began on Tuesday and Forces Are Now Locked in Battle—Attu Island Is 1,778 Miles From Tokyo and 196 Miles West of Kiska—Garrison Not Large

POSSESSION OF GREAT VALUE TO AMERICANS

Washington, May 14 —(AP)— United States forces landed on Japanese-held Attu Island in the Aleutians Tuesday, the Navy announced today, and now are locked in battle with enemy troops.

The landing was announced in a communique which said:—

"On May 13th the United States forces landed at the island of Attu in the Aleutians, and are now engaged with Japanese forces on the island. Details of the operation will be released when the situation clarifies."

Naval spokesmen declined to go beyond the limits of this bare announcement or offer any comment on the course of the fighting.

Pointed at Heart of Japan

Attu is the westernmost of the rocky Aleutians, pointed like an arrow at the heart of the Japanese Empire from Alaska. Near the international dateline, the island is 1,778 miles from Tokyo as the bombers fly.

It lies 196 miles west of Kiska, the other Aleutian island to which the Japanese have held footholds since occupation last June 7-8.

With U. S. forces entrenched with an effective steel-stripped air base on Amchitka Island, in the Andreanof group 70 miles east of Kiska, the American attack on Attu was seen as a step toward virtual encirclement of Kiska.

10,000 Japs on Kiska

Some 10,000 Japanese troops are reported on Kiska, posing a bombing threat to Alaska and even to the North American west coast. The Attu garrison is believed to be considerably smaller.

Should Attu fall, the Americans would be astride the Japanese communication line to Kiska, rendering the Japanese position there untenable.

Bombed Many Times

Both Attu and Kiska have been targets of incessant aerial assault in which the R.C.A.F. has played a part. Bombs were cascaded down on both whenever the Aleutian weather lifted sufficiently for aircraft to leave their bases.

Attu was bombarded April 30 by a naval force.

There was no indication today that any attack had been made on Kiska and this led to speculation that the United States manoeuvre was designed to outflank the more strongly-held enemy base and if possible place its garrison in an almost untenable position before attacking there.

Supply Point For Kiska

Attu has been used as a supply point for Kiska and presumably American possession of Attu would greatly reduce Kiska's usefulness to the enemy as a potential airbase and a submarine operating base.

Possession of Attu would give the American Aleutians command a weather observation station west of Kiska—a fact of supreme importance in the Aleutians where weather is the most constant single problem which airmen and seamen face. Heretofore the advantage has been all with the Japanese because the weather moves from west to east and they knew what conditions would be when United States forces could not know.

If the Japanese have succeeded in carving an air base out of Attu's mountainous landscape, American forces undoubtedly would devote full energies toward completing it as speedily as possible in order to bring Paramushiru in range of aerial bombardment.

New York, May 14. (AP)— The Tokyo radio reported today that strong United States forces had landed on Attu Island in the Aleutians on May 12 and that severe fighting is now in progress.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the landings had been announced by Japanese Imperial headquarters.

Attu is one of the two principal bases of the Japanese at the western tip of the Aleutians and has been bombed repeatedly by United States airmen.

The O.W.I. said the text of a Japanese Imperial headquarters communique, broadcast to Japanese areas and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, announced:

"Imperial headquarters communique, May 14, at 4 p.m. (3 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time): Crack American forces began landing on Atsuta (Attu) Island of the Aleutians on May 12. Our forces on the same island have intercepted them and are now engaging them in fierce battle".

There was no immediate confirmation of the Japanese report. There have been indications, however, that the United States has been building up a powerful striking force in the Aleutians and the strength of American aerial attacks on the Japanese bases has been mounting steadily.

Large Air Base

The Japanese have been reported constructing a large air base on Attu, presumably for the purpose of launching attacks on the United States mainland.

Tokyo claimed last June 25 in a communique that their forces had occupied Kiska June 7 and Attu a day later, and that they then were "consolidating their position in neighboring islands".

Japanese Imperial headquarters also announced that Attu would be renamed Atsuta Island, after the Atsuta Shrine at Magoya, Japan, and that Kiska would be named Narukami.

LOAN PASSES BILLION DOLLAR MARK THURSDAY

Campaign Establishes Raise Money in Greatest Effort to The Dominion

NEED $64,000,000

Ottawa, May 14—(CP)—Subscriptions to the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan passed the $1,000,000,000-mark Thursday, third last day of the three-week campaign, and the loan has become the greatest money-raising effort in the Dominion's history.

National Loan Headquarters announced that total business up to last night amounted to $1,035,731,150 including subscriptions yesterday of $76,023,350.

Subscriptions in the Third Victory Loan last Autumn, previously the largest money-raising campaign in Canada, totalled $99,389,050 when final returns were computed.

The loan is only about $64,000,000 short of its minimum objective with Friday and Saturday sales still to come. The daily average for the first 16 business days of the loan drive was slightly more than this amount and there is always a backlog of subscriptions reported after the actual drive is over.

P. S. Show Increase

Payroll savings combined with general canvass showed some increase yesterday, and officials of loan headquarters said this was "encouraging."

"But the figures plainly indicate that the goal set for the general public is still a considerable distance from being reached," they added.

Today's headquarters statement said that after calculating the indications for the final two days of the campaign, plus an estimate to cover time-lag in communications, at least $48,000,000 over and above what is at present foreseen is still needed from general canvass and payroll savings, to reach the goal set by the Minister of Finance for subscriptions from the general public.

B. C. Over Quota

British Columbia became the 4th province to go over its quota.

Thursday's total was marked by the subscription of $22,000,000 by the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada on behalf of its policy-holders. Arthur B. Wood, president and managing director, said this brings the company's total investment in bonds of the United Nations to more than $355,000,000.

Other large corporate subscriptions announced today included:—Dome Mines Ltd., Toronto, $750,000; Otis-Fensom Elevator Co. Ltd., Hamilton, $775,000; Waterloo Trust and Savings Co., Kitchener, $1,000,000; National Trust Co. Ltd., Toronto, $1,650,000.

All branch banks in Canada and the trust and loan companies will be open Saturday from two until four o'clock to facilitate late subscriptions.

Fine Record by Armed Services

The fighting services at home and abroad now have made Victory Bond subscriptions totalling $21,191,509.

"If service subscriptions continue at their aberage pace of $1,412,767 daily, the Services total may reach a minimum of $25,429,810." loan headquarters said.

Hastings County Reaches Objective in Victory Loan; Over-Subscription Wanted

Once again this county of Hastings has responded nobly to the call of the nation and for the fourth time in as many campaigns has obtained in subscriptions to the Fourth Victory Loan the municipality's minimum objective of $3,300,000.

The announcement that the county had gone "over the top" in cumulative sales was made by local Victory Loan headquarters committeemen Friday morning. Subscriptions from the general sales division had not quite reached the objective but this was overbalanced by an over-subscription in special names, it was stated.

With almost two days' subscriptions yet to be tabulated by county headquarters staff five districts in the general canvass division had reached their respective goals, it was stated. Special names contributions stood at 110 per cent.

In Second Position

In the accomplishment of meeting its Victory Loan objective almost two full days before the campaign is officially scheduled to close, Hastings county has kept up with the leaders in the province. Only one other district in Ontario, that of Simcoe county, was known this morning to have exceeded its objective. This, if correct, puts Belleville in second place among all districts of the province.

Although leading other districts in the county in the percentage of its objective attained during the course of the campaign, Belleville was paced to the 100 per cent mark by Deseronto and Stirling districts. These three districts went "over the top" as Friday morning returns were tabulated. Deloro and county R.C.A.F. stations attained their respective objectives earlier in the campaign.

County Districts Near Top

With the campaign quickly drawing to a close it was revealed by percentage standings that objectives in all various districts of the county would possibly be reached before Saturday night. Trenton, Sidney and Tweed stood at 90 per cent, while Madoc and Bancroft had attained the 80 per cent mark with every expectation that their objectives being reached by the end of the week.

Despite the fact that Hastings has gone over the top, Victory Loan committeemen today urged that there be no let-up on the part of canvassers and salesmen. They claimed that if all did their part and citizens realized Canada needs every dollar that can possibly be over-subscribed, Hastings county could very well lead the province in objective over-subscription.

Hastings can, and will, answer that challenge.

20 ENEMY VESSELS SUNK OR DAMAGED IN SICILIAN RAID

Harbor of Augusta is Heavily Bombed by U. S. Bombers

R.A.F. ESCORT

Cairo, May 14 — (AP) — About 20 enemy vessels were sunk or damaged by a strong force of United States bombers which attacked the harbor of Augusta, Sicily, yesterday, it was announced today.

Escorted by R.A.F. fighters, the heavy bombers scored direct hits among the clustered vessels and started large fires in oil storage tanks in the harbor, a Middle East Command communique said.

Enemy seaplanes in the harbor also were bombed.

Enemy fighter planes were driven off by the R.A.F. escort.

R.A.F. long-range fighter planes sank a small vessel in the Aegean Sea and set another ship afire in an island harbor, it was announced. A Junkers-52 float-plane was shot down in the Aegean Sea.

Canadian Pilot 'Hottest' Member Of Fighter Group

On the Burma Front, May 14—(CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force Hurricane pilot from Toronto right now is the hottest member of one of the most active R. A. F. fighter squadrons on the Burma front.

He is Homer (Hap) Armstrong who in five days destroyed three Japanese aircraft and shared in the shooting down of a fourth.

The 25-year-old fighter pilot started his scoring splurge on the day he and four other members of the squadron shot down eight enemy machines, probably downed at least one more and damaged two others.

HITLER MAY MAKE DESPERATE EFFORT AGAINST RUSSIA

Observers Observe Possibility as Posing Problem for Conference

NAZI PRESTIGE FALLS

(By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Hitler probably will make a desperate attempt to win some spectacular victory over Russia in the next few weeks, qualified authorities predicted today, in order to offset the loss of prestige and morale which Germany suffered as a result of the rout of her armies in North Africa.

This likelihood was regarded as posing a problem for Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt and their military advisers, carrying their strategy conferences here into the third day. It could have an immediate and direct bearing on any decisions yet to be made about combined British-American operations against Western Europe this year.

The conferees themselves remained silent about the nature and progress of their discussions on global strategy, but several occasions on which some inkling of the talks may be given out have now been scheduled.

The earliest of these is Mr. Roosevelt's press conference which was set for today. Later in the day, Mr. Churchill will broadcast to England on the anniversary of the British Home Guard; but this is expected to be almost entirely for home consumption. Next Wednesday the Prime Minister is to address a joint session of Congress.

Churchill's Method of Travel

The only official word given out thus far about Mr. Churchill's latest trip to Washington, other than the news of his arrival on Tuesday, was a White House disclosure late yesterday that he had travelled by ship and train.

Indications were, however, that the preliminary talks between the two leaders have been completed and that they now are in virtual seclusion, going over their plans step by step.

SARDINIA, SICILY AND ITALY GIVEN TERRIFIC PASTING

Naples, Messina And Reggio Di Calabria, Other Cities Feeling Weight of Air Arm

ROYAL NAVY ACTIVE

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 14—(AP)—Allied air squadrons rained powerful blows upon Sardinia, Sicily and Italy herself yesterday in an offensive no longer divided by the necessity for support of ground troops in Tunisia.

U. S. heavy and medium bombers delivered a smashing assault upon Cagliari, port and air base which long helped support Axis forces in North Africa.

The raid was the biggest yet undertaken against Sardinian targets, far surpassing that on Maddalena two weeks ago.

About 20 enemy vessels were sunk or damaged and large oil fires were started at the Sicilian harbor of Augusta by about 50 U. S. bombers Attacking from Middle East bases, they dumped almost 250,000 pounds of explosives there under RAF fighter escort from Malta.

Naples, Reggio Di Calabria and Messina were other cities which felt the fury of air power unleased by the unconditional surrender of the last of Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's troops, a surrender that yielded enormous quantities of war supplies and nearly 175,000 German and Italian prisoners.

The last of the captives went to prison camps.

No Axis Forces in Tunisia

"No Axis forces remain in North Africa who are not prisoners in our hands," the Allied communique said. "The last remaining elements surrendered at 1:45 hours (7:45 a. m. E.D.T.) May 13."

A British naval force slammed 20 broadsides into the harbor area of Pantelleria at dawn yesterday. Shore batteries of the Italian island replied, but their fire was ineffective, Allied Headquarters announced.

Pantelleria lies 45 miles east of Cap Bon.

British Wellingtons made a night attack against Naples, dropping blockbusters on selected targets of that Axis supply centre.

Tons of bombs were dropped on the harbor, industrial and warehouse areas of Cagliari.

Thirty German and Italian fighters rose to challenge the Americans and nine were shot down. One plane of the formation's escort was shot down by the enemy. A ship in the harbor blew up. Others were left burning.

The attack was "considered by observers to have been the most successful of any recent raids," the official report said.

NO PEACH CROP

Welland, Ont., Hay 14 — (CP) — There will be no peach crop in Welland County this season, according to agricultural representative Joseph Wilson, and consequently no peach blossom season. Other blossoms—cherry, apple, etc.—will be at their best about the middle of next week, and blossom Sunday will be May 23.

Berlin, Ruhr Valley, Czecho-Slovakia Main Objectives

Dunkirk and Calais Blasted by Daylight In Continuance of Aerial Offensive

34 BOMBERS LOST

London, May 14 (CP)—Berlin, Czecho Slovakia and the Ruhr Valley of Germany were pounded in great strength by R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombers last night and the Berlin radio reported that American bombers had attacked the north German coastal area at noon today, extending the augmented Allied air offensive to nearly forty-eight hours of incessant assault.

The British force lost 34 bombers last night—eight of them Canadian—in a swift, punishing sequel of the record punch at Germany's leading river port of Duisburg the night before. In daylight yesterday, Americans bombed Meault and St. Omer.

Berlin's version of the north German bombings, recorded from radio accounts by The Associated Press, was not confirmed immediately from U.S. headquarters. The Germans claimed at least three bombers were destroyed in fierce battles with German fighters.

Wilhelmshaven, Kiel and Emden have been frequent Allied air targets on the German north coast, but the Germans did not specify the fog-shrouded targets.

British authoritative sources said preliminary reconnaissance reports indicated "heavy industrial damage" in R.A.F. raids on Dortmund May 4 and on Duisburg two nights ago.

The Canadians of the bomber group taking part in the raid were from squadrons headed by Wing Cmdrs. D. (Tiny) Ferris, D.F.C., of Edmonton, and M. M. Fleming, D.F.C., of Ottawa.

Eight of the Canadian bombers were reported missing.

Offensive Continued at Dawn

The non-stop offensive was continued at dawn today by fleets of Allied bombers and fighters which swarmed out at great height over the Channel the latter missions meeting the first raiders coming back.

Tremendous explosions rolling from the French coast indicated that the Calais and Dunkirk areas were being hardest hit.

(The German radio asserted that the British planes were unable to concentrate their night attack because of pursuit by German night fighters and heavy anti-aircraft barrages. The Germans said at least 32 raiders, mostly four-engined bombers, were destroyed and that ten others were probably shot down.)

The last sizeable British raid on Czecho Slovakia was April 16, when a heavy force smashed the Skoda armament works at Pilsen. The R.A.F. lost 37 bombers in that assault.

The Air Ministry also disclosed that R.A.F. fighter-bombers were active throughout last night, shooting up air fields and railway targets in France and Germany, and bombing a mine-sweeper off Boulogne.

ENEMY AIR ARM DANCES TO ALLIES' TUNE IN AFRICA

2,000 Axis Planes Destroyed in Six Months and Three Days of Campaign

ALLIES LOSE 770

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The Allied air forces of North Africa destroyed approximately 2,000 enemy planes while losing about 770 in the six months and three days between the landing in French North Africa and the collapse of Axis resistance May 11.

The United States War Department reported this today in a review of the part played by the Allied team under Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder.

It said that in the first 11 days of May alone the score was 300 Axis planes destroyed against 48 Allied aircraft lost, a ratio of 6 to 1, and added that from May 7—the day Tunis and Bizerte fell—"the enemy air arm literally danced to the Allies' tune, losing approximately 11 planes for every Allied plane brought down."

This score, however, was "only a fragment" of the air contribution to the North African campaign, the department continued, since faraway strategic bombings against German production centres fitted the pattern of Mediterranean strategy.

"The campaign provides the first large-scale demonstration of the resistlessness of an aerial striking force employing all it capabilities in an integrated pattern," said the report.

"It is an example of the net result of co-ordination of all types of military airplanes, of air power enabling the reduction of the size of a force required to do a job and shortening the time required to do it."

Allies Intend to Avoid Mistakes Of Last War When Axis Collapses

By EDWARD D. BALL
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

London, May 14 (AP)—The Allies are determined to avoid one of the major mistakes of the 1918 armistice and intend to occupy Germany and Italy with their military forces lock, stock and barrel when the final collapse comes. It was asserted today in informed quarters.

Furthermore, it was understood that during the period of military occupation the Allied leadership has decided to deal only with military authorities and only on an unconditional-surrender basis.

There will be no trafficking with puppet governments brought out of the limbo to save the face of discredited regimes.

And if the military authorities in the occupied countries cannot re-establish order, the Allies will do the job themselves in the transition period until the people have the opportunity to choose their own free governments, it was said.

"This time, there won't be any armistice," one well-placed informant declared. "German militarism is going to be crushed once and for all.

"As proclaimed at Casablanca there must be unconditional surrender. This done, there won't be any future Hitler to rise up and say it was the home front that collapsed, instead of the army.

"The failure to occupy Germany in the last war was responsible in large measure for this war. That mistake will not be repeated."

It was said that the United Nations' decision to treat only with the military authorities in the post-war interlude was based upon a desire to prevent any appearance of supporting political factions.

Men, Women and Children Rescued By Naval Sloop Guided by Airplane

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A British Port, May 14—(CP) — Huddled in lifeboats roped together in choppy seas 500 miles out in the Atlantic, survivors of a torpedoed British merchantman — men, women and children — were rescued by a naval sloop guided to the spot by a coastal command Liberator which located the boats and twice during a six-hour visit sent crash-diving a Nazi submarine lurking nearby.

When the big Liberator was forced to head for base because of dwindling gasoline supplies after 12 hours in the air, the crew dropped a pencilled note of reassurance telling the survivors help would reach them before dark and inviting them to "Drop us a line when you get back."

Capt. Gordon Higgs of Beckenham, Kent, skipper of the torpedoed ship, said on the survivors' arrival here later that "I saw tears in the eyes of more than one man as the message from the aircraft was read."

On arrival, Higgs immediately sent a telegram to the Liberator crew. It read: "One thousand thanks from all of us. Letter following."

Signed by each member of the crew, the message read: "Ship will be with you about 1750 hours, well before dark. Best of luck and don't worry. Drop us a line when you get back."

Skipper Higgs said the Liberator message was the greatest souvenir he had collected in two wars. "I am going to have it framed," he stated.

NURSING SISTER, ALTHOUGH IN S. AFRICA BUYS VICTORY BOND

Love of country, plus an appreciation of Canada's need of money in her Fourth Victory Loan campaign and a desire to assist in time of need, has spanned thousands of miles of ocean to result in the purchase of a Victory Bond by a Belleville woman now serving on the other side of the world, it has been revealed by county loan committeemen here.

Nursing Sister Edna Sullivan, formerly of this city, but now serving in South Africa, has just purchased a Victory Bond through a local friend, according to county loan headquarters. Realizing that it takes up to three months for a letter to reach Canada from South Africa, Nursing Sister Sullivan early in February wrote her Belleville friend to purchase a bond for her in Canada's next Victory Loan. The letter arrived this week and the request has been fulfilled.

A unique event took place Tuesday in the lodge room of Benjamin L.O.L. 274 when Bro. J. Lockie of Peterboro lodge, an associate member of the Belleville lodge, initiated his son, Signaller Reginald Lockie into the Order.

It was agreed to cancel the 12th of July celebration in Belleville this year on account of transportation difficulties and rationing restrictions. A basket picnic will be held at Point Anne that day. Several speakers were heard during the evening including Wor. Bro. H. B. Fetterly who gave a very instructive address on the problems facing the Order at the present time. A draw was held at the close for the purpose of raising funds in order to send cigarettes to our boys overseas, the winners being:—

A.&N. Veterans Purchase $1,000 Victory Bond

Physically unable to again give active participation in their country's fight for freedom, members of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association; unit 201, are backing the attack with their dollars as was demonstrated Thursday evening when the local association subscribed for a $1,000 Victory Bond from unit funds.

The purchase of the bond was officially made at the conclusion of the association's regular monthly meeting when President Thomas York tendered the cheque to Victory Loan salesman Harold "Bouncer" Holway.

Decision to subscribe to the Fourth Victory Loan was made by the association executive with membership approval being unanimously given after a few explanatory words by the president.

"It is your money and you have a right to know where it is going," stated President York as he briefly addressed the members prior to the purchase of the bond.

Girls' Orchestra Plays

Highlighting the monthly meeting of the veterans at which regular association business was transacted, was the presentation of an entertainment feature by a girls' orchestra from Mountain View R.C.A.F. school. Headed by AW. Sergeant Pritchard, (WD) orchestra played a series of popular songs, while vocal solo and duet numbers added to the enjoyment of the evening. The orchestra pianist provided accompaniment for community singing period in which the "Vets" entered with enthusiasm.

A hearty vote of thanks to the air force girls and to Bill McKenna, program convener, was tendered by the members following which refreshments were served.

Two Kingston Youths Sent to Reformatory

Jack Taylor, 17, and Vernon Smith, 18, both of Kingston, were sentenced to serve one year in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted of the theft of two motor cars when arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today.

Originally Smith and Taylor appeared before His Worship on Thursday and pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Irwin's garage in Deseronto with the intent to commit the indictable offence of theft. At that time Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., introduced several charges that had been transferred from a Kingston court, including the car thefts. The pair pleaded guilty to all counts and Magistrate Lloyd deferred judgment until today.

On the car stealing counts His Worship gave the pair one year determinate in the reformatory, while on the Deseronto breaking and entering charge sentences of six months, to run concurrently, were given.

Charles A. Payne K. C., local barrister, appeared on behalf of the youths and informed the court the lads' employer, who is at present incarcerated in Kingston on theft counts, was the ringleader and responsible for the boys' erring ways.

"These are serious matters and it was only fortunate that they were apprehended in Deseronto. However, I will take into consideration their youthful ages and the fact this is the first time they've been before a court," stated His Worship. Smith and Taylor were arrested by Chief N. Langton of Deseronto, in Irwin's garage, after Mr. Irwin captured them at the point of a revolver one night late last month.

POLICE COURT

Trucker Convicted On Cruelty Charge

Charged with causing unnecessary suffering to two horses, Wm. C. Garniss, Belleville trucker, was convicted of cruelty to animals after his employer appeared in local police court, held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today, and pleaded guilty on behalf of his employee. A fine of $10 and costs was paid by the employer, W. Wallbridge, local transport operator.

The charge was preferred by Inspector Thos. Thorne of the Humane Society and came following an investigation which revealed Garniss had allowed two horses to fall down in his truck while being transported to Toronto recently.

"There were nine horses in the large transport and two had fallen down and were being crushed by other horses," stated Acting Sergeant Ellis, who assisted in the investigation. The horses were in transit to a Toronto glue factory.

"This appears to be more a case of lack of attention than deliberate intent of cruelty," commented His Worship to which Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., agreed.

Two Months for Non-Support

After Reginald J. Horton, Kingston diemaker, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to support his wife and family and subsequently refused to provide the necessities of life for them, His Worship could do nothing else than sentence Horton to two months in the common jail. "This is a rather peculiar case. You admit failing to support your family and also flatly refuse to make provision for their keep. Are you trying to defy this court?" commented His Worship.

"No, sir, I just won't contribute to her keep," replied Horton as he was led away to the cell block below.

Case Dismissed

A charge of failing to produce a National Registration card was dismissed again Grant E. Meraw, of Brockville, after the accused produced discharge papers from the Canadian army.

Air Station Crest Presented To No. 5 I.T.S. by Air Commodore F.S. McGill in Colorful Ceremony

In a ceremony unique as it was colorful, No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville on Thursday afternoon became one of the first air stations in Canada authorised by King George VI to use an air station crest of their own design.

Official presentation of the crest to the training school was made by Air Commodore F. S. McGill, commanding officer of No. 1 Air Training Command at Toronto, with the ceremony taking place on the parade grounds over a flag draped table and underneath the air force ensign. Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, commanding officer of the Belleville training school accepted the crest in full view of the entire station personnel which was drawn up in flight formation on the parade ground.

Crest Approved by the King

The privilege to choose their own crest with approval from the King is one granted to all air training stations across Canada but to date very few stations have taken advantage of the courtesy. According to Air Commodore McGill, yesterday's ceremony at the Belleville school was "very unique."

Signed by King George VI and also bearing the signature of Chester Armstrong of the Royal College of Arms, London, England, the crest submitted for approval by the Belleville school is one of particular beauty. Surrounded by suitable scrollwork in rich colorings the crest is in the form of a Maple Leaf printed on special glazed linen-like material.

The date of the presentation, the name of the training school and a motto "From the Air to the Stars", in Latin, is etched on the parchment.

Air Commodore Takes Salute

The presentation of the crest to No. 5 Initial Training School took place following an unofficial inspection of the station by Air Commodore McGill. After the presentation he addressed the assembled station personnel briefly and then took the salute in a colorful march past.

Immediately following the march past the station personnel proceeded on a route march through Belleville Streets in a special parade in support of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign. The station bugle band headed the parade with Wing Commander Snetsinger marching in front of the men under his command.

Postman's Alertness Results in Arrest Of Trio Reported Damaging Mail Box

Alertness on the part of Postman Arthur C. Burton, 144 Albert Street, resulted in the apprehension of an airman and two young girls by police on Bridge Street early Friday morning. The trio was taken into custody by P.C. Carruthers after Postman Burton reported he had seen two airmen and two girls damage a mail box on East Bridge Street.

However, before the trio was arrested one of the airmen disappeared. The airman arrested and held gave his name s AC2. Joseph H. Grenier, of the Trenton R.C.A.F. base, while the two girls held at the police station are Pte. Ida Pickell of the WAAC stationed at Kingston, and Shirley Thompson, Belleville. The identity of the other airman was not obtained.

Later Chief Probert announced that in the event of payment of the damage to the mail box no charges would be deemed necessary. It was also announced that Pte. Pickell was absent without leave from her WAAC unit at Kingston. She was held for military escort.

Postman Burton informed police he had seen two airmen and two women, one in uniform, deliberately tear a mail box from its fastenings and later accompanied P.C. Carruthers to identify the responsible parties.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Dahl Urges Purchase Of Victory Bonds

Recently returned from Africa, where he saw at first hand the tremendous quantities of war materials needed by the Allies to accomplish the successful rout of Axis forces in Tunisia, Squadron Leader "Whitey" Dahl, flying instructor at Trenton Air Station, Thursday night told a Belleville audience, that their dollars were needed to supply the munitions of war.

Speaking during an intermission at the Victory Loan dance staged by Flight Lieutenant "Buff" Estes and his swing orchestra from Trenton Air Station, Squadron Leader Dahl told his listeners that only by actually seeing can the need for more and more war materials be appreciated.

"You all have seen advertisements and pictures in the press indicating what part of a bomb your $50 bond will help purchase, or how many of them it takes to build a heavy tank or plane, but only by seeing can the needed quantities of such materials and equipment be appreciated," he said.

The people of Canada, and also of Hastings, were complimented by Squadron Leader Dahl for their response to the Fourth Victory Loan, but he stressed the fact that greater efforts were needed if the loan objective of $1,100,000,000 was to be met by Saturday night.

In conclusion he stressed the urgency of Canada meeting her objective in the Fourth Victory Loan and reminded that every $50 bond purchased helps put Canada that much nearer her goal.

Canadian Army African Casualties More Than Score

Ottawa, May 14. (CP) — The small band of Canadian officers and men attached to the British Forces in North Africa to gain battle experience has had its share of casualties in the fighting which has just ceased with the Allied triumph in Tunisia.

A check of previously published casualty lists and notifications to next-of-kin, today showed at least 29 men from the Canadian overseas army who served in the zone were casualties. Seven have been killed, two have died of wounds and four previously reported missing now have been reported killed in action.

In addition, one man is listed as dangerously wounded, four as wounded in action and five as wounded. One man is listed as wounded and missing in action and four are reported prisoners of war, one of them wounded. Another is listed as missing in action.

The compilation may not be complete, as reports of casualties must come through British channels sometimes are delayed. The number of Canadians attached to the forces in North Africa is not known, nor is it known to what extent relays of men have been sent since the first group went there months ago.

It is believed, however, that a number of those who went with the first group have returned to their units in the United Kingdom and that others subsequently were sent out to gain experience of actual combat the Canadian command considers will be of value when the Canadian army goes into action.

The following are Ontario names in an unofficial list of casualties so far reported:

Killed—Gnr. Robert Morris Vick, Listowel, Ont.

Died of Wounds—Acting Major Graeme Falkner, Peterborough, Ont.

Previously reported missing, now reported killed in action — Sigmn. Wallace John Browne, Ruby, Ont.

Hitlerism on Evil Days

The battle of Tunisia which surprised the world by the lightning character of the Allied attack and success with the complete destruction of the large German and Italian army as far as a fighting force is concerned was one of the swiftest, greatest and most decisive battles in history. If it surprised the Allied peoples, it must have more than stunned the Germans and Italians and their leaders. It was the powerful demonstration of Allied unity and of the superiority of Allied strategy. The Battle of El Alamein where General Montgomery first started the enemy on the run was a true herald of this event which has torn from the Axis the last vestige of standing ground on the whole continent of Africa.

The marvel of British, American and French co-ordination of air, sea and land power, the striking might of the various services of the Allied armies, the disclosure of something of the great part which aircraft will play in the destruction of Hitler's tyranny and the superiority of the spirit of the men of the armies are a happy Allied augury for the future. Never did British and Allied confidence falter, never was there flaw in their campaigning. On the other hand the Axis had no such spirit, it was supposed to be a fight-to-the-last-ditch stand by the Germans and Italians but then came the amazing thing, the demonstration of the thoroughness of the shattering effect of the powerful United Nations' offensive. The relentless sweep which gathered in Tunis and Bizerte both within a space of five minutes, the speed with which Germans and Italians surrendered by the thousands, were evidences of something which the enemy could not stand. In the end there was but a small remnant holding out. The mighty Axis army had fallen away, many were heavy casualties and more than 175,000 men are prisoners of the United Nations, while Allied losses were by contrast light.

That story of the surrender of the enemy is one of the most graphic. Hitler's own Elite Guard and his own General von Arnim surrendering after the German commander had sent word to Berlin that they had fought to the limit and were going to surrender. German boasts that it was to be a fight to the death were not carried out for the Germans themselves played a large part in what has been called the strangest procession which streamed for ninety miles from the tip of Cap Bon Peninsula to a hamlet 34 miles west of Tunis. Here they were, Hitler's own invincibles, making themselves prisoners of the Allies and driving themselves without escort to Allied detention camps. They and Italians rode in all sorts of vehicles for mile after mile without a guard in sight.

Did ever an enemy make such a display?

The enemy had had enough of such an offensive, swift and deadly. They knew that defence was useless and they quit. But the Italians were the last to quit and Mussolini, according to report, ordered the army to lay down their arms. Von Arnim the German had surrendered Wednesday and Messe on Thursday. Italians who have been looked down upon by the Germans as soldiers proved they could fight better under Italian leaders than under Hun domination and stayed with the fight longer than the Germans.

The world is erpectant now, so much has this victory galvanized the world. The Nazi-overrun peoples are aroused. Revolt is spreading throughout the Netherlands where heroic Dutchmen are performing acts of sabotage of the German war machine and her ex-servicemen are disregarding German orders to register for re-interment. The flames of revolt are sweeping over the border and Belgians are striking in every way at the Germans.

Mischief is afoot in Europe against Germany. The German-dominated peoples know what has happened and they have caught the inspiration of the conquest of Tunisia by the Allied Powers.

Battle Decisive

Adolf Hitler has had a bad past few months. The routing of Rommel at El Alamein and his precipitate flight across the sands of North Africa and through wadi and gulley, while the British Eighth Army followed like an avenging angel, right through Libya and Tunisia; the landing of the Allied Nations' forces in French Colonial Africa last November and since that time the relentless application of the Allied pincers, squeezing and mopping up Germans and Italians until not a piece of a remnant of the Axis armies remains; German General von Arnim surrendering; Italian General Messe then surrendering; the Mediterranean cleared of Axis planes and ships and the way reopened to the Middle East and the Far East; then some time ago, the spectacle of the German armies cut to pieces at Stalingrad by the Russian armies; in Europe heroic Dutchmen rising and openly insulting the Hun, refusing to do his behest.

All these things have come in the space of a few months to roost in Hitler's brain as retribution starts to come in.

It is a long way from 'Mein Kampf' which Hitler wrote, to the smashing victories of the Allied Nations at Stalingrad and in Tunisia. Yet Stalingrad and Tunisia are the direct reply of democracy to Hitler's brutal tyranny. Hitler had a world conquest dream. Now he is paying for his crime as he sought to realize that dream. The hand writes on the wall and Hitler the neurotic beholds its prophecy of his doom and Germany's overthrow.

Fly Swatting Technique

(From the London Listener)

A correct technique for "swatting" a fly is suggested by some photographs taken by Professor Egerton of Massachusetts.

Using a special apparatus, the professor was able to photograph various moving objects which are difficult to observe at normal speeds. Now one of the things he photographed was the take-off of the common house-fly. What he did was to put a piece of sugar on a piece of paper, attach a few feet of string to the paper, and wrap the string round the shaft of a high-speed camera. As the camera brought the film up to running speed, it would pull on the string attached to the paper, eventually jerking the paper out from under the fly which had settled on the sugar. As the fly felt the paper start to move, it took off, and the resulting motion of the fly was observed by the high-speed camera.

The photographs showed that when the fly takes off from his aerodrome, so to speak, first of all he springs backwards for about an inch, making an angle of some 60 degrees with the ground. Then his wings begin to beat as he flutters towards the place from which he's just taken off, and from that moment onwards his flight is in a forward direction. Now, is that quite clear? He starts backwards, then drops down, then goes forward. But why does he do this?

Well, he has to, because of his peculiar anatomy. The muscles and joints on his legs are so arranged that when he lands the shock is lessened by the special angle at which his legs are set. In a word, his legs act as "shock-absorbers." But this special angle has one distinct disadvantage: when he takes off for a flight he can only do so backwards.

And the moral of all this? Well, if you want to swat a fly first time, you must remember that after he has taken off, he will begin his fligh backwards. So if you aim about half an inch behind where the fly's resting, you will stand a good chance of bringing him down.

Says a Chinese statesman, "Japanese are the meanest, cruelest and most barbarous people in the world." Probably too dignified to say what he really thinks of them. Or hasn't the Chinese language the right words? asks the Owen Sound Sun-Times.

INQUISITIVE WILLIE

When Willie was a little lad
He almost drove his father mad
By asking how and when and why
And pleading with him to reply.

His mother very often said:
"Till Willie has been put to bed
And all his endless queries cease
We never have a minute's peace.

"It is a busy life we lead.
His father gets no time to read
Nor can I do my household tasks
So many questions Willie asks."

But Willie has grown up, somehow,
And is an expert questioner now.
What once his father often riled
Is driving men of business wild.

So busy are they with replies
To governmental "hows" and "whys"
It must be Willie who prepares
That endless flood of questionnaires.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Churchill in Washington

New York, May 14—An English schoolboy, according to Punch, was asked: "What are the three greatest things in the world?" He replied: "God, love and Anglo-American relations."

If Anglo-American relations are personified in Roosevelt and Churchill, they are in good hands. For both are men who saw far in advance of their people, the shape of things to come. Both know, and have known from the beginning, that the future of Western civilization and of world peace rests in the Anglo-American combination. Both have the prime quality of the truly great man: Willingness to accept the heaviest responsibilities, under the greatest risks.

Both have gone through terrible crises with serenity and fortitude.

In a dark moment of the British lone war I once remarked to Mr. Churchill: "History will record you as a very great man." He replied sardonically: "That depends upon who writes the history."

History has been written in the last days by Anglo-American armies in North Africa. It is glorious history. And one of the most glorious things about it has been the wonderful comradeship between British and United States soldiers and officers—a comradeship transcending all questions of personal or national prestige. Such a comradeship is personified in the leaders of our two nations.

The Scene Changes

Mr. Churchill was in Washington when Tobruk fell, and Hitler was handing Rommel the marshal's baton as "Conquerer of Egypt." Now he is here in the moment of our first great mutual victory, and that he celebrates it with us enhances our joy.

In time of triumph it is well to look back, lest we forget. There was a moment when one man and 500 youngsters, British mostly, with a few Canadians and Americans, stood between us and the destruction of our common world.

The man, with nothing but words—words, gushing from the deepest springs of our glorious language; words of faith, fortitude, memory, hope, pride, humility—broke the frozen paralysis of a people who stood them on their feet, while the young anonymous eagles in the air beat off the threat to civilization.

Seventy per cent. of them are dead. But they held a little isle of freedom until we girded ourselvs to fight for the world's freedom and our own.

Only now, when Britain, Russia, the United States and China realize what oceans of strength are needed to defeat the enemy, can we esti- Anglo-American world. The hand- Churchill and the people in whom he reposed unswering faith.

The Balwark of Security.

And only now do we realize that whatever else the future may hold, the Gibraltar of our security is in the unbreakable association of the Anglo-American world. The handful of United States volunteers who flew with the first 500 of the R.A.F. understood.

It is said that Roosevelt, Churchill and their staffs are mapping the next campaign. But we are no longer living from hand to mouth. At Casablanca it was announced that the campaign had been mapped for nine months, and only four are over. I think the armies in North Africa and the Middle East are not waiting for word from Washington. They already have their orders.

But as we come closer to Europe political questions step into the foreground. These resolve largely around our relations with the Soviet Union. The main questions are in Eastern and Southeastern Europe, and it is folly to hink that they are simple. They are only soluble under very large aspects. They are insoluble to the petty-minded. Fortunately our two leaders of the Anglo-American world are of grand calibre.

Two Realists Lend Aid.

The presence of Mr. Edward Benes and of Lord Beaverbrook at this conference is of great significance. Mr. Benes was for 17 years Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia before he became President, and has also been president of the League of Nations. He is a political thinker, a realist, and a man of principle. More than any other country, Czechoslovakia, under his leadership, managed to maintain excellent relations both with the Soviet Union and the West. Even now, under the strain of exile, this one country, Hitler's first victim, is no problem child of the great powers.

Lord Beaverbrook is another type of realist. He is a shrewd, gifted business man who understands the nature of collective bargaining with a "class enemy", in order to keep the wheels turning and everybody relatively happy.

The men conferring in Washington are the best combination available on this earth to consider our approach to the political problems of Europe on the eve of an invasion.

Delegation Urges Railway Line Peterborough, Port Hope Be Retained

Ottawa, May 14 (CP)—Members of a Peterborough-Port Hope, Ont., delegation said late Thursday they were "encouraged" following a meeting with Transport Minister Michaud at which they urged that plans to close the Peterborough-Port Hope Canadian National Railways branch be dropped.

The delegates said they had presented "new evidence" to Mr. Michaud, urging that the branch be retained to facilitate war work and other operations.

They said the Minister had declared he would recommend that further consideration be given to the proposed May 23 closure by the board of Railway Commissioners.

The delegates told the Minister of the possibility of increased freight rates having to be borne by manufacturers if the branch were closed.

They said transport difficulties had been increased by gasoline rationing and the branch was more important than ever before.

The branch represented an alternative route to that through Belleville, Ont., in the event of washout or other damage to the latter line.

The delegation's presentation was opened by T. J. Carley, K.C., and other members participated in the discussion.

Others attending included Aldermen R. M. Glover, Fred K. Overend, and E. V. Morphet of Peterborough; Mayor Stephenson of Port Hope, Senator Rupert Davies, Kingston, Ont., W. F. Rickard, Liberal member of parliament for Durham, Bruce McNiven, Liberal member for Victoria, Ont., and G. K. Fraser, Progressive Conservative member for Peterborough.

Also present were Reeve Percy Bentley of Millbrook, Reeve Proust of Port Hope and Reeve Cathcart of Cavan.

Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON)
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 14. (CP)—Congress has turned the spotlight on one of Washington's most colorful institutions—the Press Conference.

In no other capital has the Press Conference been developed into an institution of government as it has in Washington. Everybody uses it, from the President down to a visiting crack-pot trying to get along in Washington.

There are 21 regularly scheduled Press Conferences each week in Washington, with the State Department holding one each day and the White House two a week. Those are the official ones but impromptu, irrevelant ones are tossed in by the dozen. Some are genuinely informative and valuable, some are interesting, some amusing, some a pure waste of a newspaperman's time.

President Roosevelt, of course, gets the biggest crowd, averaging 125, because he produces the most news. The most exclusive is Mrs. Roosevelt's conference, limited to women writers.

The Food Conference: Marvin Jones, farmer-lawyer from the Texas panhandle, will head the American delegation to the United Nations Food Conference next week. His life is a typical success story. . . . Born on a Texas farm 53 years ago. . . Taught school at 17. . . . Became a tenant farmer to put himself through college. . . Small-town lawyer. . . . In 1916 ran for Congress as a Democrat against a man who had represented the 51,000-square-mile district for 20 years. . . Elected. . . when President Roosevelt went to the White House in 1933, Jones was chairman of the House Agricultural Committee and he wrote most of the new deal farm relief laws.

The fingerprint division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, growing at the rate of 100,000 prints a day, is so big it has been moved to a National Guard Armory in Washington. It contains 65,500,000 prints, including not only criminal arrest cards but the records of all military and naval personnel, workers in war plants, federal employees and alien registrants.

The next conference on refugees probably will be held "somewhere in the United States" late this month, to act on the confidential recommendations of the Anglo-American conference in Bermuda.

The conferees will be the members of the Executive Committee of the Inter-Governmental Committee of 32 countries formed after the Evian conference in 1938— the United States, Britain, Netherlands, Argentina and Brazil. France was an original member but formation of the Vichy Government ended that.

The Evian conference, called such because it was held in Evian, France, was convoked by President Roosevelt for the purpose of looking after refugees—chiefly Jewish who were fleeing Germany and German-occupied or dominated countries at that time.

THE HOOPSNAKE

This snake, according to the belief, has a venomous stinger in its tail that works like that of a wasp.

The snake, it is said, forms itself into a hoop by putting its tail in its mouth and rolls along like a wheel.

It travels with incredible swiftness and when it gets close enough to a victim it lets go its tail and drives the stinger into the object of its attack.

If the victim dodges, the myth has it, and a tree is struck instead, the tree is sure to die.

There are many elaborate versions of the hoopsnake myth. One says the hoopsnake is inflated like a rubber tire and that it is luminous at night.

Of course, the pranks of the hoopsnake are purely mythical, although believed by many people.

There is no snake that rolls along like a hoop, and there is no species of snake with a stinger in its tail.

The little snake known as the hoopsnake, or horn snake, is perfectly harmless. Similar stories are told of the wampum snake, another harmless species. The hoopsnake is bluish-black with a few red bars across the belly, and its tail tapers to a fine point having the appearance of a horn or spike, but it is quite incapable of piercing or stinging anything.

That any snake could place its tail in its mouth and roll along like a wheel is manifestly absurd, and considering the anatomical peculiarities of the vertebral column of snakes it is clearly impossible.

The earliest known report of the stinging snake was published more than 250 years ago in a "Report to the Lords Proprietors of the Carolinas."

John Clayton also mentions the myth in a letter to the Royal Society of London in 1688.

In the first-mentioned report it is asserted that there lived in the Carolinas a snake the tail of which was a poisoned horn or spike.

RALSTON OUTLINES CANADIAN ARMY'S ROLE IN CONFLICT

Great Preparations Going Forward and Canadians in Midst of Them

FOR USE ANYWHERE

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 14 — (CP) — Defence Minister Ralston last night told the House of Commons that "great preparations are going forward...and Canadians are in the midst of them," as he began an exhaustive outline of Canadian Army operations overseas and at home.

He repeatedly stressed that Canadian forces overseas from the very start were available to the High Command for use in any theatre of war, in part or in whole, and always would be.

That they had remained comparatively inactive was due to the judgment of the High Command, he said, and not because of any desire on the part of any Canadian authority to insist on their use as a complete army unit.

Col. Ralston began his outline, which he said would be long and complete, shortly before adjournment, after the House had passed through committee stage the $1,000,000,000 bill for mutual aid to the United Nations. The bill already has received second reading and now awaits third reading.

Continue Review Today.

Col. Ralston is expected to continue his review today when the House resumes consideration of the $3,890,000,000 war appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1944.

In the course of his presentation Col. Ralston made the following points:

1. The strategy of the United Nations is to direct the main operations against "Hitler and his Italian satellites first."

2. Canadian troops overseas have been available from the start and always will be for service in whole or in part wherever the High Command considers they can best serve to crush the Axis.

3. Enlistments for last March and April were below normal "and May has not begun too well" possibly because of an "erroneous" idea that the need was not pressing.

4. Strength of the Canadian overseas army last March 31 was more than 190,000, compared with more than 130,000 on March 31, 1942.

5. The Dieppe raid last year which cost many Canadians in killed, wounded and captured, was an undertaking to perform a vital part of the United Nations' offensive strategy—to obtain information which could be obtained only by fighting.

Authorized and Approved

The Minister stressed the point that more than two years ago, in 1941, the overseas establishments had been authorized and approved and operations since then, with exception of the second army tank brigade, had been for the supplementary units necessary for those formations.

"I make these points, he said, "because there seems to be in some quarters an idea that we embarked on some new and over-ambitious policy regarding our overseas army."

In the Senate Senator L. M. Gouin (Lib. Quebec), son of a former premier of Quebec, appealed to all Frenchmen in France and Canada to sink their differences and unite to win the war.

He spoke on a resolution introduced earlier by Senator A. K. Hugesson (Lib. Quebec) condemning Nazi ruthlessness towards conquered peoples.

The upper chamber passed unanimously a resolution express satisfaction over the Allied victory in Tunisia and sending congratulations to Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Allied military leaders concerned. A similar resolution was passed previously by the common.

Army in Canada is Base

At the outset of his statement in the House on the war appropriation bill, Col Ralston said that while army activities in Canada were separated from those overseas, "we must remember that the army in Canada is the base and foundation of the overseas organization."

The objective of Canada's military organization was "to make Canada's weight felt as fully as possible in the fight to destroy the Axis powers."

In this connection the Minister said: "on the assumption that Germany is the backbone of the Axis, the strategy of the United Nations is to direct the main operations against Hitler and his Italian satellites first.

"Our job has been, is and will be to organize and maintain the strongest force of which we are capable, well forward in the main theatre of operations for use wherever Germany and Italy can be met and overcome.

Co-operate in Defence

"To co-operate in the defence of North America . . . with the object of preserving the safety of our shores and homes and institutions, and carrying out our agreement with the United States for joint defence, and of maintaining a strong, defended base from which to provide and frame and dispatch reinforcements for the purpose of preserving the vitally important sources of supply to the Canadian army here and overseas and to the United Nations of raw materials, goods and munitions, and for maintaining a strategic reserve to meet the unexpected at home and abroad.

Col. Ralston said the story of the Canadian army had been one of constant expansion, according to plan. "Mistakes have been made—it could hardly be otherwise in any organization that has increased 100 times over since 1939."

He gave a chronological account of the raising and dispatch of Canadians for service in the army overseas. The number of troops needed to support the army overseas had been larger than expected.

Organization Not Rigid

The minister referred to recurring questions regarding the long inactivity of the Canadian forces in England, and said it was wrong to assume that the organization overseas was rigid.

It could be taken apart on the principle of a sectional book-case, he said.

"It has always been and still is our policy that the Canadian army in whole or in part is available to be used wherever and for whatever task would best serve the common cause."

It had never been the policy that the Canadian army overseas must be used as a whole or not at all, and never would be.

He had impressed this upon the the British high command when overseas, and it was well understood from the start, Col. Ralston said. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the overseas army, had continuously impressed upon the War Office than the Canadians could be used wherever and however they could best serve the common cause.

Fully Know Our Attitude

"Canadian troops have been employed at jobs in which those who are directing the strategy of the war considered they could best serve.

"They know fully our attitude. They know too how anxious Canadians are to come to grips with the enemy. They know also the striking power which Canadians can deliver.

"Great preparations are going forward and the Canadians are in the midst of them. But Canada is a member of a team and in the first place it is not good team work if Canada insists on a particular position . . .

"We will have to be pretty sure that success will follow before we can insist on thrusting these troops into some particular task without the advice either of our own military advisers or those who are responsible for major strategy.

"What we can do and what we will continue to do is keep before those who make the plans the availability, the readiness to serve and the efficiency of the Canadian army."

Col. Ralston said there were more than 130,000 on the strength of the Canadian army overseas at March 31, 1942, and more than 190,000 on March 31, 1943.

In that year more than 70,000 had been sent overseas, also some 400 members of the Canadian Womens Army Corps.

125,000 Enlistments Last Year

Last year the estimated enlistment need was between 90,000 and 100,000 but the actual enlistments were upwards of 125,000.

In the fiscal year ended last March 31, there was a net intake into the army through operations of the National Resources Mobilization Act of about 60,000 men.

Enlistments last March and April were "down somewhat," the Minister said, "and May has not begun too well."

He said his idea was that the drive to get men for civilian occupations had something to do with it and that there was a feeling that because the army was not in action the need was not urgent.

This sentiment overlooked the obligations to the army overseas and was erroneous. "The army does need men and it will continue to need them in constant flow until the war ends."

Col. Ralston repeated much of the statement he made last September on the Dieppe raid and paid the highest tribute to the Canadians who carried the burden of that operation.

He said it was the performance of a vital task essential to the offensive strategy agreed upon by the United Nations High Command.

FO. Chuck McLean Tells Story Of Ducking at Malta

Ottawa, May 14—(CP)—FO. Charles (Chuck) MacLean of Brockville, Ont., who bailed out into the sea at Malta as a human torch but insists it was his own fault is back from the war but impatient to return to fighting again.

MacLean hesitated to tell the story of his grim experience at Malta which still shows up in burn scars on his body and preferred to praise the work of the British anti-aircraft gunners at Malta.

It happened that he was the flight commander and PO. George Beurling of Verdun, Que., Canada's ace, was in his flight. Some of 109's were above and he saw some dive bombers and Italian fighters below. He decided to go down to attack on the lower level.

"I guess I was being smart," he said. "I was diving with my throttle wide open."

His engine seized and his only hope was to glide home because at Malta the motto was "bring the aircraft home." An Me109 came up behind him and started shooting. He was shot in the arms, his tank was hit and blew up. Somehow he thinks he was out on the starboard wing and just fell off.

In any case he regained consciousness after falling about 12,000 feet, and pulled the ripcord of his parachute. The parachute opened but his clothes were aflame. He pulled off one glove and the skin of five fingers came with it.

With the glove he beat out the flames and hit the sea and went under. He got his "Mae West" safety belt filled and on coming to the surface cut himself free from tangled shrouds of his parachute. In his dazed condition, however, he forgot about the rubber dinghy attached to the parachute and let it go.

Shore looked to be about two miles away though it was really seven and he decided to try to swim. An air-sea rescue craft picked him up after 2½ hours, the 54th pilot thus saved from the sea at Malta. MacLean thinks it was Beurling, now back in England after leave in Canada, who spotted him and gave the signal which resulted in his rescue.

Strike Referred To Labor Minister

Hamilton, Ont., May 14. (CP)—The strike of an estimated 800 workers out of a total of 1,100 at the Hamilton Bridge Company here was placed before the Federal Minister of Labor by the company and the Union today.

A scheduled meeting yesterday between Ontario Labor Minister Peter Heenan and officials of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) was cancelled after Mr. Heenan wired the Union that the company had stipulated further discussions must be limited to the Federal Labor Minister personally.

The company's general manager, Harold Chambers, confirmed that the company insisted on limiting further discussions to the Federal Labor Minister personally. The Union last night forwarded a telegram to the Federal Minister, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, urging him to exert all possible influence on the company to sign a union contract.

Two Detroit Men Guilty of Murder

Windsor, Ont., May 14—(CP)—After six hours deliberation a jury under Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland last night returned a verdict of guilty in the murder trial of two Detroit men. Stefan Ogrodowski, 24, and Bruno Kisielewski, 21, and both were sentenced to be hanged on Aug. 24.

The charge followed the fatal shooting of Joseph Borg, Windsor restaurant proprietor, during an attempted hold-up in his restaurant on the night of Oct. 2 last. Accused were arrested in Detroit and brought here for trial.

The jury added a recommendation of mercy in both cases and His Lordship said this would be passed on to the proper authorities.

Much of the evidence during the eight-day trial concerned statements made by the accused to police officers in Detroit. Defence counsel, N. J. Riordan, argued these statements, in which Kisielewski was named as the gunman and Ogrodowski as an accomplice, were obtained by force after the accused had been beaten by police officers.

In his charge to the jury yesterday Mr. Justice McFarland said of the statements: "It would seem impossible to me for the police to make up such a complete, connected and detailed story as outlined in the confessions."

During the trial both the accused repudiated the statements, while Kisielewski, asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, repeated a previous statement: "I have never been in Canada before." Ogrodowski had nothing to say. Both prisoners remained calm and erect as sentence was passed.

BRUYEA—HEBERT

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a pretty wedding on April 26th at 10 a.m., when Agnes Gertrude Hebert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hebert, became the bride of Arthur Robert Bruyea, son of Jacob Bruyea, Trenton and the late Mrs. Bruyea. The Rev. Monsignor Nicholson united the young couple in marriage. Mrs. Grant presided at the console of the organ and Mr. J. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her white sheer wedding gown with fingertip veil and corsage of pale pink roses. She carried a white prayer book and white rosary, which belonged to her grandmother.

Mrs. A. Terry, the bride's sister, as matron of honor, was frocked in pale blue sheer with pale pink headdress and corsage of pink roses and lily of the valley. Miss F.L. Wright, R.N., Invents Folder To Save 2 Million Hours Year

ON SUN LIFE STAFF

MISS F. L. WRIGHT

MISS F. L. WRIGHT, R.N., a nurse on the head office staff of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, Montreal, recently illustrated that necessity is still the mother of invention. Finding the job of measuring and folding bandages, which she does for the Red Cross in her spare time, a slow and tedious operation, she set to work and invented a mechanical folder which has since been copyrighted and which will be made available, through models and instructions, to all Red Cross units across Canada. It is estimated that the folder will save at least two million hours folding time a year. Miss Wright, who graduated from Ottawa Civic Hospital and subsequently worked in various laboratories, and who has also taken a mechanics course, said modestly of her invention: "It's really not a machine at all, just a gadget of flips and flaps made of cardboard, with linen reinforcements and blotting paper on the front so the gauze will stick to it. It's really very simple."

Miss Wright is the daughter of Rev. G. G. Wright rector of Christ Church, and Mrs. Wright, Belleville.

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario.

Q.—What will we do for meat for our pet cat after the rationing of meat is introduced?

A.—I am afraid you will have to provide him (or her) with meat from your own rations. There are, however, various ways in which concentrated pet foods now available may be made more attractive and palatable and the S.P.C.A. will be glad to furnish suh information upon application.

Q.—I have recently moved my place of business to a new location. Do I have to apply for a new W.P.T.B. licence?

A.—No, but you should forward your licence card to the Director of Licensing, Ottawa, who will issue you with a new one, carrying the same number but with the new address recorded on it.

Q.—We have now occupied a rented apartment for three months and have yet to receive any printed form from our landlord giving the terms of the lease. What course should we follow?

A.—If you will notify the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it will see that appropriate steps are taken.

Q.—Is there no place in the consumer organization of the W.P.T.B. for men who do the shopping for their households and who like to watch prices?

A. While the Consumer Branch is primarily for women consumers and is administered by members of that sex, I am sure its director would welcome men as recruits and would be glad to have them as associate price-watchers.

Q.—Is it true that people can be sent to jail for violation of the maximum prices regulations?

A.—Yes, the maximum penalty is a fine of $5,000 and two years in jail. Imprisonment has already been ordered in a number of cases.

Q.—The restaurant that I patronize is still serving butter without it being asked for. Is that not against the law?

A.—Yes, no public eating-place is permitted to serve butter unless it is asked for, and then not more than one-third of an ounce at a serving. Report the circumstances to the nearest office of the Board.

"B.O." ROBBED HER of her CHANCE

● A moment before she had been so confident, so hopeful. This was the job she had always wanted and she knew how perfectly she was qualified to fill it.

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY BOYS . . . . .

AND REMEMBER THIS—

WE'VE JUST STARTED TO ROLL!

It's no military secret that Pearl Harbor was a blow to America—that the British had a Dunkirk, that you had Russia rocking on her heels for a time, but, neither is it a military secret that the United Nations have taken long strides towards crushing the living daylights out of you murderers since then. What's that you say, Adolf? You didn't figure on Canada playing such an important part? Well now you know, and mark this down rat, we've just started to roll and how.

Take our armed forces, for instance . . . it wasn't long ago that ours was still a peacetime country, and yet right now we have expeditionary forces parked on every important Axis doorstep in the world. You know what we mean, Adolf . . . you've had a taste of their fury.

Sure, we know you have submarines, boys. But that hasn't stopped our getting aid to China, Russia and our Motherland, and lots of it. And we don't have to tell you what a gallant job our boys have been doing, do we? Your countries are plenty patched up as a result of their fighting.

Say, Adolf . . . ever hear of the Commandos? You may not have had a formal introduction, but you've had some very unpleasant experiences with these highly-trained soldiers. And we're training hundreds of thousands of them all for your pleasure, Adolf. Nice thought, eh fella.

No, we're not forgetting the dirty work of you weasels, Canada is buying bonds to build bombers . . . mighty flying ships that have bombed hell out of Europe. Or maybe you'd rather not be reminded—

Stop pouting, Benito, we aren't forgetting you. You've been having a little trouble fighting our tanks and airmen in Africa, haven't you? We'll promise you something else, too. You'll have lots more trouble before we're through with you.

And then there's Russia. What a magnificent fight our comrades have put up. Poor Adolf . . . we'll bet you're sorry you ever started that "push-over."

Just one more thing, boys. Production is up in Canada . . . 'way up. You see, our civilians are working and plugging and supporting the war effort and willingly buying Victory Bonds. They're making tanks, guns, planes and ships . . . rolling them off the assembly lines by the thousands. That's Canadian spirit, boys, and we've only started to roll.

Philadelphia Phillies Amaze Populace by Pulling Up To Fourth Position in National Reach Dizzy Heights by Splitting Twin Bill With Reds

A'S ALSO WIN

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

A rumor is circulating that there now are two major league ball clubs in Philadelphia and the amazed populace of that city today pointed to two facts to prove that it's more than a rumor: The Phillies are in fourth place in the National League and they are buying players, not selling them as in the past.

The dizzy heights of fourth place were reached yesterday when the rejuvenated Phils split a doubleheader with Cincinnati Reds, winning the opener 2-1 and dropping the afterpiece 3-1.

After the game it was announced that Gordon Phelps, 35-year-old catcher, had been purchased by the Phillies from Pittsburgh Pirates and will don a Philadelphia uniform Monday.

Phelps had announced previously he would remain in a war job in Maryland and not play baseball this year.

One of the acquisitions made to give a happy ending to the Philadelphia story was Babe Dahlgren, obtained from Brooklyn. Dahlgren singled across the pay-off run in the ninth inning of yesterday's first game with the Reds, breaking a deadlock that had lasted from the second inning. The Reds went into the lead in the second inning of the nightcap and stayed there the rest of the way.

Hubbell Forced to Retire

Carl Hubbell made his 1943 debut yesterday against Chicago Cubs, seeking his 250th victory. He was forced to retire in the seventh inning after giving up 12 of the Cubs' 13 hits and New York Giants were behind 4-1. Dick Bartell's pinch home run with two on base in the ninth brought the Giants a 7-4 victory.

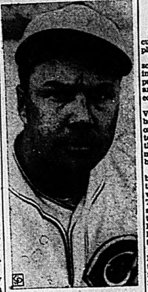
In the best Ebbets Field tradition, the Dodgers came through with a 5-4 ninth-inning conquest of the Pirates, breaking a tie in the eighth inning. Belligerency prevailed throughout the contest and broke out violently in the eighth inning. The upshot was that Pirate manager Frankie Frisch, pitcher Truett Sewell and first baseman Elbie Fletcher were ejected from the game.

St. Louis Cardinals got five hits and five runs in the seventh inning to shutout Boston Braves 5-0, in the other National League game.

Overtime games were the rule in the American League. Mike (Fireman) Ryba stopped St. Louis Browns with the bases loaded, none out and the score tied in the last half of the ninth inning and went on to win 6-4 in 12 innings. Philadelphia Athletics edged out Detroit Tigers 2-1 in 13 frames, giving Jesse Flores, Mexican right-hander, his fourth successive mound triumph, and Washington Senators scored twice in the 12th to beat Cleveland 3-2. New York at Chicago was postponed.

Madrid — (AP) — Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, said in an address to the British community here last night that the British Empire "once more is a great military power" with vast quantities of modern arms and well-tried military leaders.

HE'S CLICKING



"Greatest pitcher" in the minor leagues last year and a 20-game-or-more winner in the Pacific Coast league for six of his eight seasons, Richard Oliver (Kewpié) Barrett, 34-year-old Chicago Cubs' rookie, finally is making good in the majors. In his first full stretch on the mound the other day, Barrett gave up but one hit to the Pirates in seven innings only to lose the game one to nothing.

FOUR-TEAM LOOP IN TORONTO AREA

Toronto, May 14—(CP)—Formation of the four-team Toronto Congress Services Baseball League was completed last night with election of Frank Pepiatt as president. H. M. Berscht of Hamilton is fourth vice-president.

Teams in the new loop are the R.C.A.F. of Hagersville, Ont., the Army District Depot of Hamilton, the Army Training Centre of Brampton, Ont., and the Tip Top Tailors of Toronto.

The Toronto team meets Hamilton at Viaduct Park here on Saturday, May 29, in the opening fixture, with Hamilton at Hagersville June 3 and Hagersville at Hamilton June 5 at Scott Park under floodlights. The rest of the schedule will be announced later.

New York, May 14. (AP) —Pops at Pep; although Willie Pep, featherweight champion, New York model, still hasn't been licked by a guy his own size, fight managers can hardly wait until the deadline next week to get in their challenges for title bouts . . . Latest is Bobby Gleason, who offers Willie a $20,000 guarantee to fight Phil Terranova any time and any place.

Today's Guest Star.

Roy Mumpton, Worchester, (Mass.) Telegram: "The New York Yankees haven't been out of first place in the American League since May 6, 1942. That's not a record, but it might be an Augury".

One Minute Sports Usage.

Syracuse U., which couldn't dig up enough men for Spring football practice, plans to organize an all-girl band to play at games next fall. . . . Probably the boys will be playing tackles instead of tubas. . . The new Sports Editor of the York, Pa., Gazette and Daily is Thelma Crone, 19 years old and described as "an attractive blonde".

"V" Formation.

Although the Beulah Park race track is an oval, like most of them, the "V" (for Victory, of course) is much in evidence. . . The winners' enclosure is a "V" instead of a circle, the letter is used to decorate various markers around the track and W. E. Brannon, New Orleans horseman who races there, has a "V" and the three dots and a dash on his racing silks. . . . A few bettors also have been observed passing "V's" through the $5 windows.

LEAFS CONTINUE A GIDDY PACE IN INT. LEAGUE

Jimmy Ripple Hits Homer With One On to Beat Newark 2-1

ROYALS WIN

By the Associated Press

The only thing wrong with Syracuse Chiefs' execution of a triple play is their timing.

They waited until Montreal had scored four runs in the eighth inning to break a 2-2 deadlock before pulling their triple killing yesterday, and consequently the Royals walked off with the ball game, 6-to-2.

The flashy play came in the eighth Van Harrington, Syracuse second baseman, speared a line drive with one hand, stepped on second base to catch Alex Campanis off the bag, then threw to third where Ded Savio made the third out by tagging Castro before he could get back to the bag.

Toronto continued its giddy pace by turning back Newark, 2 to 1, for the Leafs' eighth straight victory, with Jim Ripple responsible for all Toronto's runs as he scored Rubeling ahead of him with a home run in the fourth inning. Pitcher Jim Hoper of the Leafs allowed only five hits, although he was in trouble in the seventh and ninth.

Ted Holcome was effective for the Bears, allowing only three hits in the six innings be worked being removed for a pinch hitter. Fallon finished the game.

Bill Voisell, Jersey City right hander, pitched his third shutout of the season in blanking Rochester, 1 to 0, in 10 innings. Jersey Giants got the lone run of the game off southpaw Kemp Wicker when Fleitas got on an error, took third on Kerr's double and scored on Small's fly to Mack.

The Baltimore-Buffalo game scheduled for Buffalo was postponed.

• • •

Missing the Boat.

Down in Kingston the lovers of baseball organized a baseball school for youths under 17 years of age. Over 200 teen-aged boys answered the first call. Sensing the advantage of training young boys in baseball, Oshawa moved in the same circles and a baseball school has been organized in the Motor City. Such a program is bound to pay off in dividends when this war finally terminates, as both Kingston and Oshawa will be fortified with a galaxy of trained youths ready to take their place on the baseball field of peacetime.

What of Belleville and Peterboro?

If there are those sufficiently interested in teaching of baseball in Kingston and Oshawa, why shouldn't the same thing hold good in Belleville? In past years Belleville's sons have proven their worth on the ball diamond and given a chance the future of the game could be assured if only the youth of the city was given an opportunity to learn the fundamentals of the game.

• • •

Veterans go to Bat.

Down in Kingston veteran ballsters like Bob Elliott, Joe Corkey, Vin McQuaide, Mickey Compeau and other C.O.B.L. stars of another year have rallied to the cause and twice a week these baseball schools are held with kids, eager to get into the pastime, absorbing all teachings given. Up in Oshawa such former diamond greats as Tip Miller, Luke Dainty, Reg Fair, Red Jubenville and Peg Hurst have volunteered to give freely of their time in order that baseball may not completely pass from the sport picture of the Motor City. If these veteran players are sufficiently interested in the fostering and tutoring of the summer pastime, at their own expense of time and labors, again we ask — "Why can't Belleville baseball lovers see the light of day and put their shoulders to the wheel?"

• • •

A Community Service.

Belleville is not blessed with a central practice field like the Cricket Field in Kingston, but if a baseball school becomes a reality in Belleville one class could be tutored at the old circus ground off Bleecker Ave. for boys on the east hill while the Exhibition Park diamond could be utilized for students in the west section of the city.

As a suggestion a class could be held Saturday morning and one evening a week and following a month's tutoring a city baseball league for players of juvenile age might result and the future of the game be assured. There is little doubt but baseball will revive after the war is over just the same as the C.O.B.L. came into being as an off-shoot of the old Midland League following the last war. It was during the 1914-'18 war that junior baseball was organized in Belleville with the Ontarios, Eddie Thomas helped the cause with his Ponies and Jack Fahey with his Athletics. From these teams came players who later made up Belleville's great senior teams of years to follow. It was a community service that really paid swell dividends.

Enough Veterans Available.

Surely after enjoying many years of baseball on the diamonds of Ontario such former stars as the Mills brothers, Vern Weir, Allan Meagher, Wicky Ross, Stan Hagerman, Cy Young, Walt Gerow and other Belleville stars of another year would rally to the cause. For pitching coaches there are Carl Casey, Harold Smith, "Cap" Smith, Joe Kelleher Sr., to help in teaching youthful and ambitious boys the finer points of toeing the mound, deliveries, the art of control, etc. Such a program has a definite place in the community if baseball is to return to its proper status after the war; so, what about it?

• • •

Kids Anxious to Play.

In many sections of the city 'teen aged boys are anxious to learn to play baseball. There are ample facilities for boys desirous of playing softball in Belleville, but baseball seems to have been abandoned simply for the lack of organization. In the event a baseball school is forthcoming, however, the boys would be asked to provide their own gloves and shoes if they desire the latter. Baseballs and bats should be obtained by the sponsors of such a program. The program would not entail too much time from the veterans who might volunteer to lend their talents towards the furtherance of the game to insure its revival, as classes could be arranged to suit the various coaches available. All that is needed to assure the success of the project is proper organization with business men looking after the administration end of the program.

Toronto, May 14—(CP)—Football seems due for revival in Canada next Autumn. The Ontario Rugby Football Union was the only Major League to operate last year. City leagues operated in Winnipeg, Ottawa and Montreal but the old Eastern and Western Interprovincial Unions were dormant. They was return to life this year.

The Ontario Union plans to operate again. Montreal has organized in hopes of re-entering interprovincial play. Now comes word that the Ottawa football club is investigating possibility of forming a league to comprise Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa teams.

Similar, though less active, interest is shown in the west. The Winnipeg Blue Bombers executive is probing chances of reviving the Western Union. Alberta, in particular, is keen.

Members of the United States Armed Forces in Edmonton are reported willing to field two teams. There is some talk, too, of army and air force entries being organized in Calgary. If a league materializes, Regina could probably be induced to enter.

One-two-three:

Gordie Bell made the National Hockey League in two big strides. A year ago he was goalkeeper for Portage La Prairie Terriers, Canadian Junior champions. This year he was the 17-year-old sensation of Buffalo Bisons, American League champions. And Gordie was drafted at last week-end's N. H. L. meeting by New York Rangers who, quips Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara, "needs a good goalie like Rommel needs an alibi."

Incidentally:

The N. H. L.'s Byng Trophy winner, 23-year-old Max Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks, has taken his medical and reports to the active army at Calgary May 20. Max says he enlisted at Calgary to be close as possible to Drumheller where he and his brothers, Doug, Reg, Roy and Scoop played together with Miners in the Alberta Senior Hockey League. . .Another Chicago player, the veteran Johnny Gottselig, has been inducted into the United States Army. . .When Normie Himes found he could not continue as professional at the Kitchener Westmount Golf Club because he was needed in his tobacco store at Galt, the Westmount Golf presented him with a playing membership for this year and arranged to have him visit Kitchener occasionally to give lessons.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 55

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An export starts with no-trump even when he has a suit. That wiseguy is a bid-hog and a stubborn cuss to boot. An export, you know, is a bridge player who is half ox, half expert.

Your hand may have enough for an opening bid of one in a suit. It may also have enough for an opening bid of one no-trump. Which should you prefer?

Compare the needs for each. That will tell you. If you believe your own eyes, you can prove it to yourself. When you do, it will be quite a comfort to you in the days to come.

If an opening bid of one is in a suit, it promises a biddable suit. The word no-trump means not any trump suit. So, an opening bid in no-trump denies a biddable suit.

Therefore, an opening bid of one no-trump is not true if you have a biddable suit. That is so obvious, it sticks out like a sore thumb. And do not despise this proof because it is so short and sweet.

The full needs for an opening bid of one in a suit are five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable suit. One no-trump needs five high cards, two sure tricks, no biddable suit.

You have this hand:

♠A Q 9
♥A J 3
♦A 7 5
♣K Q 10 4

Your hand has all the needs for an opening bid of one club. It also has enough for an opening one no-trump. But it has a biddable suit. That makes it a suit bid.

There are a great many hands that have enough for either one in a suit or one no-trump. And many experts and experts like to open them with one no-trump.

But experts and experts like many things in bridge that are not correct. Even those who have attained widespread fame. The fact that they change their views every few years shows how wrong they can be.

After all, an expert is only a kibitzer who has issued himself a diploma.

AT THE BELLE

"Kid Glove Killer"

Marsha Hunt, Academy Award winning Van Heflin and Lee Bowman are the principals in M-G-M's top murder mystery drama, "The Kid Glove Killer," now on the Belle screen with M-G-M's "Berlin Correspondent" co-starring Virginia Gilmore and Dana Andrews as the added feature attraction.

In addition to the two action dramas, "People of Russia," a timely and thoroughly entertaining documentary film will be exhibited.

"Star Spangled Rhythm"

More than forty top ranking stars in one picture is something of a record, even for fabulous Hollywood, but that is the score Paramount runs up with its show of shows, "Star Spangled Rhythm," which is due to entertain Belleville beginning this weekend at the Belle Theatre.

With a lineup of talent such as that listed above, it is easy to believe reports that "Star Spangled Rhythm" is the greatest, truly all-star musical comedy ever produced by any movie studio.

The story kernel of "Star Spangled Rhythm" concerns the efforts of Paramount studio gateman, Victor Moore, and telephone operator Betty Hutton, to build themselves up to Moore's sailor son, Eddie Bracken, by deceiving him into believing that the old man is head of the studio, and Betty his secretary. The deception is a cinch by correspondence but it becomes something less than that when Eddie and a group of sailor pals show up in Los Angeles on shore leave, Eddie promising his friends the time of their lives at the studio.

Betty conceives a crack-brained idea of how to continue the deception for the duration of the boys' leave, as well as to put on a show for them with Paramount's roster of stars participating. Betty's idea backfires hilariously in Moore's face, although the show does go on, stupendously.

In seeing "Star Spangled Rhythm" fans will not only be treated to what promises to be a really sensational show, but will enjoy what amounts to a personal tour of the Paramount studio, and in these days of travel curtailment, it's a great convenience to be able to visit Hollywood by simply buying a ticket to the Belle Theatre.

Incidentally, there are seven hit tunes in the film.

THE WAR TODAY

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

We may have the forerunner of sensational developments in the reports that Holland and part of Belgium are seething with revolt against their Boche oppressors, and that patriot bands are springing into action.

All the occupied countries of Europe, and some of the small satellites, are smoldering volcanoes which need little to set them into violent eruption. Perhaps The Netherlands and Belgium movements aren't enough to turn the trick— and we most certainly shouldn't be hasty in reaching conclusions—but there always is the possibility that the trouble may spread from them.

Should civilian Europe suddenly rise against the Huns it would create an entirely new situation. Allied plans might go by the board almost overnight and have to be supplanted by new ones.

One can see that the reported revolt in Holland and Belgium might spread and create a situation that would compel not only Hitler but the Allies to alter prepared plans. I'm not predicting anything, because we haven't enough facts to go on, but even if the present revolt dies out, there still will remain the threat of a continent-wide upheaval at any time.

Across Channel Invasion

The question uppermost in the minds of most military chiefs and observers is when will the Allies be able to invade France across the English Channel. That's likely to be the decisive operation which will crush the life out of Hitler. Other invasions will contribute to victory but the cross-Channel drive, straight through the Boche strength, is held by a great many military men to be essential for the kill.

We don't know what the Allied High Command has in mind at this moment. Invasion across the Channel may be uppermost in its thoughts, or it may be far away. However, the point I'm driving at is that a widespread uprising in Europe might impel the Allies to strike quickly.

All this is speculative, of course, but it's worth watching. Meantime the Allied bombing fleets are continuing to iron the Germans out in preparation for the coupe de grace. For instance, that R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. raid on Duisburg likely in a few hours achieved the destruction which it would have taken a great land army weeks to have done.

Every time we have a great raid like this, we get a jump nearer invasion.

Picton and District

Two Graduates Of R.A.F. School Awarded D.F.C.

Picton, May 14 — Two more graduates of the R.A.F. Bombing & Gunnery School here have been awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses, it is learned here.

Flying Officer Joseph Richard Byles has been taking part in the Tunisian campaign. The citation states: 'This officer has taken part in a large number of sorties involving attacks on targets in Germany and more recently in Tunisia. He is a most capable and determined navigator whose example in the face of trying circumstances has merited high praise. On several occasions the aircraft in which he was flying has been attacked by enemy fighters and once his aircraft was hit in no less than forty places."

Flying Officer Francis Elliott Drew, R.A.F.V.R., also graduated at Picton in 1941. The citation states: 'This officer has displayed great navigational ability throughout his many operational flights against targets in the Ruhr, Nuremburg, Munich and on mine-laying operations. Recently he has flown to Turin and Genoa. He also participated in the daylight attack on Milan. This officer has always displayed remarkable calmness under most trying conditions and his constant success is worthy of the highest praise'.

Group Captain Cox to Return to England.

Group Captain J. Cox, D. F. C., Commanding Officer of No. 31 Bombing and Gunnery School, R. A. F. at Picton, has been advised that he will return to England shortly. Mrs. Cox and daughter will remain in Picton.

It is just fourteen months ago that Group Captain Cox came to Picton to take over command of the Station from Group Captain C. H. Keith, who was posted to a command in England.

On taking over his new command, Group Captain Cox was promoted to that rank from Wing Commander which he held as Chief Flying Instructor of the Service Flying Training School at Carberry, Man., since that station had been opened. Though a Canadian by birth, G/C Cox had been in Britain for some time and saw action in the present conflict. For Distinguished Service he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Group Captain Cox' work in Picton has been crowned with success. The Station has ranked high in general efficiency. It has turned out graduates who are distinguishing themselves in many theatres of war, it has contributed not a little to the town and district, in many ways.

Group Captain Cox has always stressed the importance of working as a team, and this has been his object as C. O. of the Station, and which has resulted in such success. He has enjoyed the co-operation of the entire Station personnel, also their affection and esteem. His kindly consideration of their problems has contributed much to their happiness, an aid to efficiency. His joining in their activities brought out those qualities which men admire. As a cricketer he played the game as he played the game of life —fair, square and with team play always in mind.

There is universal regret on the Station at the departure of this popular Commanding Officer.

In civilian life, Group Captain Cox also made many friends. His friendliness, a generous spirit of co-operation, an hospitable nature, are attributes which won him the respect and esteem of all who were privileged to know him.

Mrs. Cox has been a most charming help-mate and the manner in which they have welcomed wives of officers and men and entered into their activities, will not soon be forgotten.

Picton has indeed been fortunate in having Group Captain and Mrs. Cox as residents even if for all too short a time. His impending departure while a matter of regret, will be a considerable gain to the R.A.F. overseas.

Organize Schools To Collect Salvage

Picton, May 14—Schools of Prince Edward County are being formed into Commando Brigades to undertake an extensive collection of salvage. All scholars are enrolled as members and will receive a metal badge as a sign of membership. The motto is 'We supply the raw materials to make the munitions with which our Commandos overseas will win Victory.'

The campaign is to commence at once and continue until June 12. Salvage will be taken to the school and collected by trucks provided by the Prince Edward County Salvage Committee.

Competition among the schools is to be a feature, with prizes being awarded for the best work done.

The schools will receive a portion of the proceeds of the sale of salvage while the remainder will go to the County Committee to be used to send parcels to Prince Edward men serving overseas.

Tells of Conditions in Britain

The story of a thrilling trip across the Atlantic and conditions in wartime Britain, was related at the annual banquet of Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders' Club by W. H. Porter, editor of the Farmers' Advocate, London, Ont. He was a member of the Bomber Press which included twelve well known writers.

Praising the spirit of the British people, Mr. Porter stated that he believed it was the humor of the British people which would win the war. Speaking of miracles, now as in Biblical times, Mr. Porter referred to the churches destroyed by bombs, but with spires still standing, as evidence to the old belief that the prayers of the people ascend through the church spires.

Mr. Porter saw the Canadian army overseas at first hand and described them as a magnificent organization. "When we read that McNaughton has the best equipped army in the world, we can believe it. Behind the army is the scientist, the industrialist, the manufacturer. In the army is the specialist. After the war you can expect to have better mechanics, and machinists, than you ever had before in Canada', said Mr. Porter.

To watch the air force at work made him feel very humble, the speaker stated as he told of spending five complete days with the different commands.

Mr. Porter with his party was received by Churchill. 'Then he told us that the tide was turning into our favor, a prophecy which has since been borne out by realization, but then it might have been skeptically received by hard-boiled newspapermen.'

As a result of his air travel, Mr. Porter foresaw a rapid growth in this field in Canada after the war.

Ronald Hyatt presided and the speaker was thanked by B. R. BBBaxter and S. P. Dodds. Vocal solos were given by Rev. J. B. Creeggan. More than one hundred attended the banquet.

German Prisoner Soon Recaptured

Toronto, May 14. (CP)—Toronto police said today they had been notified by officials of a prison camp at Bowmanville, Ont., that a German prisoner of war, who escaped yesterday had been recaptured.

The prisoner, Major Hans Asmus, 25, escaped while being taken to hospital at Oshawa for medical treatment.

Asmus' escape was the second in 24 hours, Hans Helpert having escaped from a prison camp at Monteith in Northern Ontario Wednesday. He was recaptured yesterday in Cochrane, 45 miles from Monteith.

RECALL ARCHER SELF STARVED TO RIDE RACES

Jockey Gordon Richards' Wins Bring Up Perennial Question of Record Winning on British Turf

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Newmarket, England, May 14 — (CP)—As long as horses run on the green turf of England the argument over top jockey honors will go on. And as long as horses run the argument probably will remain unsettled.

So far as present-day riding goes stocky Gordon Richards must be recognized as king. He equalled a 57-year-old record by riding his 2,749th winner as Newmarket's historic track opened its 1943 season but Gordon would be the last to claim himself as Britain's greatest jockey of all time.

For such an historic landmark in sport, Gordon's feat in drawing level with Fred Archer's mark received little recognition from the crowd as the 39-year-old jockey guided the Aga Khan's Baman home first in the Maiden Plate. One reason was that Gordon always has discouraged any undue estimation of his prowess.

Fifteen in 23 Years

Britain's champion jockey 15 times in 23 years of riding, Richards will add many more winners to his string before the season ends but turfmen consider it impossible to compare him with Archer because of the vast difference in conditions under which the marks were made.

Lord Russell, a member of the House of Lords, summed up the situation nicely in a letter to the London Times a few days before the record was equalled. He said: "Richards no doubt will ride a larger number of winners but he cannot approach Archer's record." Archer rode his first winner in 1870 and died in 1886 aged 29. Richards rode his first winner in 1921 and is now aged 39. Archer was a tall, long-legged fellow who had to waste in order to ride at weights which are well within the reach of Richards. Archer, with fewer mounts, rode a number of winners in 16 years which Richard, with more mounts, will have taken over 21 years to equal."

"Tinman" Archer

In Archer's heyday the cry most frequently heard was "The Tinman (Archer's nickname) Wins' and when he was buried at Newmarket after a life of semi-starvation to keep his weight down, it was said, "There'll never be another jockey like Fred Archer; his record will stand forever."

His greatest year was in 1885 when he was up on 246 winners. In 1933 Richards rode 259 first-placers but he had more mounts than Archer.

As an added example of futility of comparison, Archer won the Derby five times while that race is the only classic in which Richards hadn't booted home a winner. In addition, present-day competition is considered keener.

Anyway, Reticent Richards is a popular champion and there was much handshaking and backslapping in the jockey room when he entered after equalling the mark to change his silks for the next race. He finished second in that one and couldn't get a winner the rest of the afternoon.

British Forces Make Withdrawal On Mayu Peninsula

New Delhi, May 14 (AP)—British forces have made a withdrawal northward on the Mayu Peninsula of Burma and have taken up new positions "more for defence," a communique said today.

The withdrawal was from Maungdaw, on the west coast of the peninsula.

Maungdaw is about 36 miles southwest of Buthedaung, which British forces abandoned last week when threatened by encirclement by the Japanese.

The new withdrawal was made on the night of May 11, the communique said it was made "without interference from the enemy."

R. A. F. fighters continued their attacks yesterday against Japanese water transport and four launches and other small craft were machine-gunned between Akyab and Ramree Island.

Four-engined planes bombed the Heho airfield last night and bursts were observed on dispersal areas and across the runway.

RECEIVED HIS REFUND

Oklahoma City, May 14—(AP)—The County Treasurer notified E. L. Green to come down and get a refund on his 1942 taxes. Green went down eagerly, stood in line two hours and received his refund—one cent.

HOPPED HOME FOR LUNCH

Kitchener, Ont., May 14—(CP)—From work in Quebec to home in Kitchener for lunch is the distance-shrinking effect of the airplane demonstrated by Ralph Leslie, local pilot. He had to fly air force officials to Toronto from the Quebec airfield where he is in charge of operations, and having two hours to spare, hopped home for lunch.

Soldier Sentenced To Death Penalty

London, May 14 (CP Cable)—Pte. Charles Arthur Raymond, 23-year-old member of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, was sentenced to death in the Old Bailey here today after being found guilty of the murder of Marguerite Beatrice Burge.

The charge arose from the death of the 22-year-old member of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force who was found fatally injured Jan. 31 in a lane near Goodwood, Sussex.

Asked if he had anything to say after the sentence was passed, Raymond said, through an interpreter, "I am not guilty, my lord." No date was set for the execution.

Raymond is listed in Canadian army records as from Riviere du Loup, Que.

After he quit work at the Sugar Factory at noon he did a bit of shopping and hurried home. He asked his wife what she would like for lunch. "First," she said, "I'd like to have some breakfast."

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 15

Paula was sitting up in bed, reading her mail when Temple went into her room.

"Oh, good morning, darling," Paula said. "You look . . you look the way I'd like to look at this hour! Pull up a chair. Our breakfast will be up shortly. This darned old mail. I'd like to get an exciting letter, but I have no idea what could excite me. Maybe you can. Why are you playing 'hooky from your job?"

The maid appeared with two trays. She placed one before Paula and the other on a small table beside Temple. Temple wondered how she could eat two breakfasts. She had quite forgotten that Paula had asked her to breakfast.

She tried to smile though she succeeded in looking only young and anxious and a little nervous.

"Paula, I wonder . . I wonder if you'd let me use your farmhouse until Monday?"

Paula's expressive hands, lavishly buttering toast, were suddenly still. She looked at Temple directly. "Why, certainly. I'll call Mamie and Herman and see that it's in order and that there's wood brought in for a fire You can never tell. When it rains in May, it's often cold enough for a fire." She went back to buttering the toast. "There's a lot of food in the pantry. No fresh meats, of course, but a good many tinned ones. You can get fresh meats in the village. Mamie would come over and cook for you if you wouldn't mind having her around."

"Jud and I are going to be married today. He's leaving Tuesday. He enlisted."

Paula's hands were still again. "Oh!" Then, "Temple you poor kid."

"Is that what you think I am?"

Paula sat back against the pillows. She took a deep breath. Her hair was so bright it looked as though it would go up in flames. "Who knows? I don't pretend to. But you don't get married for a weekend, my dear."

"We are."

"And you think it will end there?"

"No. It will begin there."

Paula shook her head and smiled. "I can't talk to you. There are twenty-odd years between us, Temple. We can't reach each other. You've come to me because you think I'm a friend and because you are sure that I won't lecture to you. Very well, I won't. But those twenty-odd years are screaming in my ears." She smiled again. "If you can take this in your stride and everything that it involves, things you don't dream of now, if you pick up again where you left off . . then you're some gal, my friend."

"Of course. Of course. But why . . Oh, never mind." She laughed. "What can I do except give you my blessing? And since this tray won't let me move, you come to me and let me kiss you. Oh, don't let me forget to give you the key to the house. Look who's getting excited. Me! What am I excited about? I'm not getting married. No, thank heaven. I have reached the blissful state."

A few minutes later Paula said, "Don't thank me." She said holding Temple's hand. "You know, when you come back next week, quite a few of those twenty-odd years will have dropped off. It's a strange thing what marriage does to a woman. It will change your whole conception of everything. You won't come back the same, Temple, though it may be months before you realize the change in your outlook. It's mental, all mental. You're scarcely listening. Never mind. Have your week-end marriage with your soldier lover and call me up when you get back. Men have given me everything I have, but I'm for the women. Run along. You're wonderful for me. You've given me something to worry about. No woman is really normal unless she is worrying. Good-bye, darling."

"Good-bye, Paula and thanks anyway."

"I'll call your office and lie for you."

Jud was not waiting in the lobby of the small hotel where last night they had decided to meet. She waited ten minutes before he came and when she saw him the few fears that had been mocking her fled instantly. As he walked toward her, smiling, her throat ached and she felt light-headed. She knew that she would never be able to tell anyone how she felt then and she wondered if there could be a higher moment.

"Sorry I'm late, darling. The people at the office held me up." He tried to say it casually for the benefit of people near by. But something had happened to his voice, the thing that always happens when you try to be casual and every nerve in you seems to be beating separately.

"I haven't been waiting long." Just to say something . .

He took her bag and package; they went out and walked to a parking lot. When they were in the car he turned to her. "I'm glad you wore that. You look lovely. Here . . ." He reached in back for a box and brought it forth. "Here's something no bride should be without. I'll put them on you. I've never done it before and I don't know how it's done, but here goes."

Two orchids . . "They're lovely."

"Not lovely enough," he said soberly. "Not good enough." Jud looked straight into her eyes. "You are very calm, Miss Graves."

She smiled. "I'm not, really. I have the key to Paula's house."

"And I have the ring. No, I won't show it to you. It looks like gold cord. No diamonds, sorry. And now will you leave the rest to me? I made some inquiries and a phone call and we're expected. I didn't want to go out and look for a clergyman. You're taking a chance darling. You still have time to change your mind."

"I don't want to change my mind, Jud. Why do you think it is more of a gamble for me than for you?"

Because you're better than I am and deserve a better break."

"I chose you . . and whatever happens."

"Then let's go."

They drove to Virginia where the honeysuckle filled the air with sweetness and where farmers were following their plows and where Model T Fords moved jerkily over the road like spry old ladies in black bonnets. There was a brightness and clearness about the day that was purifying as though the warmth and light were penetrating every dark corner.

Jud asked, "How do you feel, darling?"

Temple smiled. "I feel as though I were going on a picnic. On days like this at home we always went on picnics."

He laughed quietly, "Some picnic."

They passed through another village with its inevitable court house and bank and school and post office.

Temple said impulsively, "Look, Jud, at those people! They are America, women in clean house dresses going about their marketing and going to the bank to put in their savings. There are more of them than the others and because they are strong we have a democracy. I learned that in economics."

"There are swell little towns in Italy and France, too. More picturesque than ours. Ours are like pictures by amateurs."

"Grant Wood is no amateur."

"I don't share your national feeling, Temple. Can't you see the rich New Yorkers motoring through here and saying 'Ah, the simple life, how sweet!' and driving as fast as they can to big parties and the races in Florida? Would you rather be a penny-pinching housewife in a cotton dress or dressed up like a million dollars at Hialeah?" He reached for her hand and held it tightly. "You're being married today. We're almost there."

They were married in the parlor of a century old brick house. There were no guests and no music. The clergyman, a little man in shiny blue serge, stood before them while his wife, plump and rosy, and his daughter, small and nervous, witnessed the ceremony.

When Temple remembered it later, she remembered chiefly the little bits of dust playing in a shaft of sunlight. She did not remember whether Jud kissed her and what pleasantries were exchanged between the clergyman and his family and Jud and her. Suddenly they were in the car again.

They were married!

They looked at each other.

Jud said, "We're shy. Isn't it funny that we're shy? Just standing there and listening to those few words and . ."

"And you feel as if you've been through a deep and rich experience. I'm married." Temple smiled at him. "That sounds funny, coming from me. Married."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

GASOLINE FUMES IN TRAP IN BASEMENT CAUSE EXPLOSION

Toronto, May 14—(CP)—Officials of the fire Marshal's department said today that gasoline fumes from a basement sewer trap caused an explosion that wrecked the rear part of a three-storey dwelling near the lake front in Toronto's westend. A child, only occupant of the house when the blast shook the neighborhood last night, escaped without injury.

Gasoline, which had been used to clean part of the house and an automobile was poured in the sewer trap, Det. Sgt. John Houston said, and exploded when heated by a furnace.

Destroy 2 Enemy Torpedo Boats

London, May 14 (CP)—British light coastal forces destroyed two enemy torpedo boats last night in a fight off the coast of Holland, the Admiralty announced today.

The British ships, on patrol, "intercepted and engaged a strong enemy force which included torpedo boats and armed trawlers," the war bulletin said.

"Despite rapid fire from the enemy, his Majesty's ships pressed home the attack to close range and torpedoed two enemy torpedo boats of about 600 tons each.

"The bows were blown off one of the enemy ships which also was hit on the stern and sank. The other was torpedoed amidships and broke in halves."

GAS RATION BOOKS STOLEN

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—Thieves who broke into the west-end office of Hill the Mover stole 18 commercial gasoline ration books, police reported today. The burglars also stole a safe which they carted away on one of the company's trucks. A company official said the safe contained "only personal papers."

HOLLAND'S UNREST REACHES TENSEST POINT IN 3 YEARS

Populace Warned Premature Revolution Would Lead Only to Retaliation

NORWAY RESTLESS

London, May 14 (CP)—German-occupied Holland, reported stirring with unrest, had a warning from its government in London today that premature revolution would lead only to crushing German retaliation before it could grow into large-scale underground warfare.

The official hint that the time is not yet ripe for widespread uprising coincided with reports of spreading violence in both Holland and Belgium, and a Swedish newspaper reported that rioting had occurred in Berlin itself.

Radio Orange warned the homeland that a widely-distributed circular urging The Netherlands to register in an underground movement "to help the British troops liberate your people" is a German plot "to incite Netherlands violence over the shortest period possible and to break it most forcibly so that the consequent terror regime and the German plans may be executed without further disturbance."

The reports of spreading violence in Holland and Belgium came from sources with close links to the Allied governments but without official confirmation.

However, Aneta said the situation in Holland had "reached its tensest point in the three years of German occupation and might erupt momentarily."

Increasing attacks on vital rail arteries for Axis troops and supplies were reported in Belgium and Holland, and a Russian domestic broadcast said that mass strikes are taking place in Holland in protest against the Nazi order that all former Netherlands soldiers must go into concentration camps.

In Norway increasing resentment against forced labor has reached the breaking point, the Stockholm radio said, adding that passive resistance is turning into "active counter measures."

The Berlin rioting episode was reported in a Reuters news agency dispatch from Stockholm which was based on an account sent from the German capital by the correspondents of the Goteborg (Sweden) Handelstidningen.

It said thousands of men and women gathered outside the information office to learn the fate of their sons in North Africa. When they were brusquely turned away, it went on, the crowd began rioting and SS Elite Guards broke up the crowd without resort to arms.

Meanwhile, Germany continued her wide-spread defensive preparations.

Command Same As First Set Up

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 14 — (AP) — Command of the vast operations intended ultimately to roll the Japanese back to Tokyo remains divided, but in a spirit of perfect co-ordination, between Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a spokesman for the general said today.

His comment was in response to questions concerning a dispatch from an advanced South Pacific base which disclosed that the two high ranking officers had conferred here recently.

Today the spokesman for the general said the command situation was the same as it had been, two areas and two commanders — the Southwest Pacific under MacArthur, the South Pacific under Halsey.

The spokesman said that General MacArthur and Admiral Halsey "understood each other perfectly."

On the fighting front, an Allied Headquarters' communique reported a heavy raid on the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, a harmless raid by two Japanese bombers on Port Moresby, New Guinea, and the killing between May 9 and 12 of 95 enemy soldiers in jungle clashes south of Salamaua.

Japs Offer Reward For Capture of Yanks In Over 70 Raids

With the U. S. Air Force in China, May 14—(AP)—A reward of 10,000 yen for the capture, dead or alive, of any member of the United States medium bombardment group based in China, which group has carried out more than 70 raids against Japanese bases in the last year, was offered today in a Tokyo broadcast heard here.

(The yen before the war was valued at 23 cents.)

Since the recent heavy raids began on Hainan, Haiphong and Canton, the Tokyo radio has been shouting threats that the Japanese would destroy all American-Chinese airports and would wipe out Chungking, Kumming and other important Chinese cities.

C.C.F. Presents Brief to Board

Ottawa, May 14—(CP)—The C. C. F. today asked the National War Labor Board to endorse an over-all program of labor legislation providing compulsory collective bargaining, protecting the workers' right to organize and outlawing company unions.

A brief prepared for submission to the Board by two C. C. F. members of parliament, Clarence Gillis, Cape Breton South, and Angus MacInnis, Vancouver East, and the National Secretary, David Lewis, said present machinery for administering labor legislation was totally inadequate and "has been used with little imagination and understanding."

The brief said there was "urgent need" for a legislative program which would:

1. Guarantee the right to organize and make it a punishable offence for employers to interfere with organization.

2. Provide "expeditious and uniform" machinery for determining which of two or more bona fide bargaining agencies had the support of a majority of the employees concerned.

3. Exclude company unions from any status under the law.

4. Make union recognition and collective bargaining compulsory.

5. Set up an appropriate body, like the present War Labor Board, for the peaceful settlement of labor-management disputes.

DR. H. R. H. Kenner To Retire After 50 Years As Teacher, Principal

Peterborough, Ont., May 14—(CP)—Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, for 50 years a teacher on the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School and for 35 years its principal, has tendered his resignation to the Board of Education to take effect at the end of the school term. Dr. Kenner joined the staff of the P. C. I. in September, 1893, when the staff consisted of seven teachers and 210 students were on the roll. Now there is a staff of 40 and 900 pupils in attendance.

Born in England Dr. Kenner came to Canada in a sailing ship when four years of age. He received his primary education in Hamilton and London, his secondary education in Oakwood and Port Perry. Prior to attending the University of Toronto he attended the High School Teachers' Training College at Hamilton. For four years he taught in Listowel, Fergus, Caledonia and Orillia Collegiate Institute.

Sentenced to 4 Years In Penitentiary

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—Robert Weir, 28, was sentenced today to four years in the penitentiary on two charges when he appeared before Judge Ian MacDonnell in General Sessions Court. Weir pleaded guilty to both charges, the armed hold-up of a Toronto transportation commission office and the assault with intent to rob of Aubrey Ardill, a butcher.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—Prices continued to move in narow range on Toronto exchange today.

Among industrials General Steel Wares was higher 1-8 to 10 7-8 a new high for the year, but most others showed minor fractional declines. Western Canada Flour preferred dipped a full point.

In golds 5 to 9-cent losses were suffered by Buffalo Ankerite, Chesterville and Pickle Crow. Cariboo was up 2.

Base metals and western oils were dull.

WALL STREET

New York, May 14 —(AP)—Stocks generally held to the downward trail in today's market and the ticker tape picked up a little speed on the descent.

Hesitancy ruled at the start in slow dealings. Selling then expanded around noon and, near the fourth hour, while activity tapered, declines of fractions to more than 2 points were the rule in virtually all departments. There were a few wider losses.

International news was all on the side of buying contingents domestic imponderables, including the belief of technicians that the 12-months' climb of the share averages to three-year peaks called for much more of a correction than had been witnessed, served to restrain bidders and inspire additional profit-cashing.

Bonds and Commodities slipped.

Canadian issues were on the soft side. Fractionally lower than yesterday were Dome, Lake Shore and Canadian Pacific. Hiram Walker dropped 1 1-4 points and Distillers Seagram gained slightly. Canada 4s gained in the Bond market.

POULTRY MARKET

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—The poultry market remains firm, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Dressed receipts are practically nil.

Two Nominations For Vacant Seat

Only two were nominated at the City Hall today for the Aldermanic seat made vacant by the disqualification of Douglas W. Bews, they being A. J. Allin and Glencoe E. Thompson.

Before the close of nominations, Mr. Allin had filed his qualification papers with the City Clerk, Wilfred Holmes and in conversation with Mr. Thompson the Ontario Intelligencer learned that the ex-mayor had no intention of contesting the seat. "I have no idea of qualifying because I would not be the means of causing the expenditure of $1,200 for an election," said Mr. Thompson. "I sincerely wish to thank my mover and seconder of my nomination but feel it would be a waste of money to cause an election for one seat."

A. J. Allin's nomination was proposed by Mayor Harry Rollins and Arthur J. Snare, while Glencoe E. Thompson was nominated by Raymond L. Zufelt and W. J. MacKenzie.

FOURTH VICTORY LOAN GOES "OVER THE TOP"

GERMAN ATTACK ON LENINGRAD FRONT REPULSED

Friday's Business Raises Total To $1,125,353,950

Belleville Stands In Fifth Place In Payroll Savings, General Canvass

$89,622,800 ON FRI.

Ottawa, May 15 (CP).—Canada's Fourth Victory Loan has exceeded its minimum over-all objective of $1,100,000,000, National headquarters announced today, the final day of the three-week campaign. Subscriptions at the end of Friday's business totalled $1,125,353,950.

With a quickened tempo as the campaign neared its end Canadians yesterday subscribed $89,622,800 to push the cumulative total past the objective.

The new objective-breaking cumulative total came from 1,825,496 individual subscriptions. At the same stage of the last loan, which had an objective of $750,000,000, 1,218,969 subscribers had invested $879,573,300. The total for the corresponding day of the third loan was $57,607,750.

Lethbridge Leads.

With the latest returns the city of Lethbridge, Alta., continued to hold a substantial lead in percentage of general canvass and payroll savings subscriptions, standing at 137 per cent. Red Deer, Alta., reported 114 per cent, Sault Ste. Marie 112 per cent, Drumheller, Alta., and Belleville, both had 108 per cent, and Medicine Hat 106 per cent. Other cities reporting late percentage standings were: Vancouver 93; Saskatoon 87; Edmonton 86; Regina 84; St. Catharines 77; Galt and Victoria 75; and Calgary 73.

Regina today reported a total of 102 per cent of its aggregate objective. Other standings reported were Edmonton 99; Calgary 98; St. Catharines 92; and Saskatoon 96.

General Canvass Slow

The announcement made by headquarters today said that although the gross objective has been passed the total from general canvass and payroll subscriptions while substantially increased, "still appears short of its goal."

Urging a renewed effort to move this total up the statement said: "If and when the general canvass quota is obtained, it will be Canada's greatest home front victory."

The Province of Quebec reported today that it had passed its objective and from Nova Scotia came word that that province has reached its overall quota.

The Quebec report showed there was still a shortage in the general canvass and payroll savings and Provincial officers said from Montreal that they were intensifying the drive to obtain the utmost investment from the general public.

Quebec's total at the close of Friday's business was $297,681,600, which is 101.6 per cent of its minimum over-all objective.

1,250,000 Ont. Subscribers

From Ontario came an official estimate yesterday that at the rate of subscriptions during the campaign to Thursday night, a total of 1,250,000 subscribers should be attained in the province. This would mean an increase of 25 per cent. in number of subscriptions.

Up to and including Thursday a total of 774,667 subscriptions had been recorded in Ontario, compared with 593,191 up to the same time in the Third Victory Loan. Of the total to date payroll savings subscriptions loomed large, accounting for $50,400,000. The payroll savings objective is $60,000,000.

The National War Finance committee asked citizens to make such additional purchases of bonds as they could afford and said the cumulative efforts of thousands of such moderate purchases would assure the attainment of the goal of $500,000,000 set aside for individual Canadians.

Loan officials at Calgary said all purses at the Victoria Park races, which begin there today, will be paid in Victory Bonds.

North Bay became the first Ontario city of 10,000 persons or more to achieve its quota on general canvass alone when it passed its objective with subscriptions of $780,000, $20,000 more than the quota set.

The village of Wyoming, near London, claimed an all-Canada record. Quota for the village, which has fewer than 500 inhabitants, was $25,000. Subscriptions passed the $50,000 mark yesterday.

Enemy's Losses Exceed 35 P.C. Of Planes Used

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 15—(AP)—Japan has paid the staggering price of 125 planes shot down or badly damaged out of slightly more than 300 risked in large-scale raids in the Southwest Pacific since April 11.

On that date, the enemy Air Force opened an erratic outburst of mass attacks by sending 45 planes against Oro Bay, New Guinea, losing 23. Yesterday 45 more planes attacked that same Allied base 50 miles below Buna on the Papuan Peninsula. Today's communique reported that 16 planes were shot down for certain and six others probably destroyed.

In between those dates, the Japanese struck with 105 planes on April 12 at Port Moresby, New Guinea, losing 37; sent upwards of 100 planes against Milne Bay, New Guinea, on April 14, losing 30; and 51 planes against a Darwin, Australia, airdrome May 2, losing 13.

The enemy's losses exceed 35 per cent. of the planes used—far above the Allied formula that a raid on Axis-controlled Europe is a success if losses are under 10 per cent.

Despite the fury of battle over Oro Bay yesterday morning, Allied plane losses were described as minor and there was not a single fatality. Of the Japanese attacking force of 20 bombers and 25 fighters, seven bombers and six Zeros were listed as certainly downed, five bombers and another fighter as "probables."

CONFINED TO AIR ATTACKS

New Delhi, May 15 (CP).—British-Indian activity on the Burma front was confined to air attacks on Japanese troops, shipping and airfields yesterday and last night, today's communique said.

Medium bombers attacked the Kangaung airfield in central Burma last night and fires were left burning. Other bombing attacks were made on Yebyanbyin and Rathedaung.

Moncton Becomes Major Supply Line Base for Canadian Base at Goose Bay

(By JOHN DAUPHINEE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Moncton, N.B., May 15 (CP) — An R.C.A.F. officer whose home is in Winnipeg came here January 23 with one plane and 13 men to form an R.C.A.F. transport squadron. Now he has eight planes and the squadron has become a major supply line for a big, new Canadian airbase at Goose Bay in Labrador.

More than 1,200,000 pounds of vital supplies—from nails to steel beams and from perishable foods to cigarettes—has been landed in Labrador without loss of an ounce of cargo or the denting of a single plane.

"We're just a truckline," said the commanding officer, a 33-year-old former R.A.F. and Trans-Canada Air Lines pilot who has flown seven planes across the Atlantic. "But it's an interesting job—and we're only beginning."

Two Trips a Day

The squadron's planes fly a straight-line route from here to the Labrador base at the head of Hamilton Inlet more than 1,000 miles to each round trip. Two trips a day for each plane is the present peak schedule but the C.O.'s expressed aim is three a day, with his planes in the air between 18 and 20 hours in each day.

It wasn't all easy sailing for the young veteran of overseas service in this war when he was posted here to organize the transport outfit.

A service flying training school was well established at the airport when he took over. The C.O. commandeered an old hangar being used to store aircraft. In that unheated building his ground crews worked sometimes 22 to 24 hours at a stretch to keep the small fleet serviceable.

Now that the initial organization work is completed, operating the squadron is simpler. It has moved into a heated hangar which is being remodelled to meet its needs.

Never Knows The Load

The squadron never knows what it will be asked to deliver—and doesn't much care, as long as the weight doesn't exceed the normal load limit of its planes. It carried small parts needed for plane repairs, and it carried beams for building construction. The biggest individual parcel weighed 2,032 pounds and the only hitch was getting it into and out of the aircraft.

In 11 days in April the squadron moved 300,000 pounds of freight to Labrador.

The commanding officer, who wears the red-and-white, diagonally-striped ribbon of the Air Force Cross—"I don't know how I got it because I haven't seen the citation"—is looking forward to the day when his squadron has enough planes and men to extend its operations over all of Eastern Canada, Newfoundland and even across the Atlantic.

"If they ask us to fly the ocean, we'll be ready", he said "The next ten years will see a big development in aviation. If we get an early start on trans-oceanic flying it will be all to the good. I want to be in on it".

Watchword of the squadron is "safety" and it has paid good dividends. So far more than 300 round trips have been made across the forbidding terrain of northeastern Quebec and Labrador. The trips have been virtually without incident.

PLAN WELL AHEAD OF MOVING ARMIES SAYS CHURCHILL

Design, Forethought Must Be Guides And Heralds in Mapping Campaign

SPEAKS TO HOME GUARD

Washington, May 15 — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill, declared he and his military experts had met with President Roosevelt to "plan well ahead of the armies who are moving swiftly forward," and indicated general offensive plans were in the making.

"It is no good only having one march ahead laid out," he said in a broadcast to the British home guard on the third anniversary of its life, speaking by radio from the White House.

"March after march must be planned as far as the human eye can see. Design and forethought must be our guides and heralds.

Owe it to Troops

"We owe it to the fighting troops. We owe it to the vast communities we are leading out of the dark places; we owe it to heroic Russia, to long tormented China; we owe it to the captive and enslaved nations who beckon us on through their prison bars."

Urging the home guard which rendered such valiant service in mid-1940 when Britain was under severe air assault from Germany, to continue its vigilance, the Prime Minister said that "until Hitler and Hitlerism are beaten into unconditional surrender, the danger of invasion (of Britain) will never pass away."

Saying "Victory is no conclusion," and that "victories gained by the way must be a spur," Mr. Churchill said:—

"We must prepare for the time which is approaching and will surely come, when the bulk of these armies (Anglo-American troops in Britain) will have advanced across the seas into deadly grapple on the continent."

Mr. Churchill referred to "strong armies" in Britain and described his homeland as the assembly base for United States armies crossing the Atlantic.

Pays Warm Tribute

The Prime Minister paid warm tribute to the Home Guard and told how it got a big advance in

One of the Greatest Air Bases on Continent Located in Labrador

Goose Airport, Labrador, May 15—One of the epic construction jobs of Canada's war effort has transformed a huge natural sand-pit at the head of Hamilton Inlet into one of the greatest air bases on this continent, the cost estimated unofficially at about $15,000,000.

The first construction supplies arrived by ship in the autumn of 1941. Less than three months later the first plane arrived. Now there are 6,000-foot runways and several hundred buildings and defence establishments.

The base is still growing.

The first group of Canadian newspapermen to visit this airport heard the romantic story of the construction of this northern ferry and operational base from the R.C.A.F. officer from Minnedosa, Man., who is the base commander; transport department engineers; and officials of the Ontario company (McNamara Construction Co. Ltd.) which did the work.

The decision to set up an air base on the Labrador coast was reached in the spring of 1941. Eric (Jack) Fry of the Dominion Geodetic Survey, travelling by plane with two natives, located the site and made a preliminary survey.

By early September the contract was let. Then began the task of collecting needed supplies. Available construction equipment was rushed to Montreal, the shipping point, from as far away as northern Ontario and the company was given top priority to obtain other needed supplies. In a matter of days the first ship sailed.

75,000 Tons of Freight Handled

By the end of the shipping season 75,000 tons of freight had been moved in.

The government icebreaker N. B. McLean was the first of the freighting fleet to arrive on Sept. 19. Part of her cargo had to be transferred to makeshift rafts made from timbers in her deckload.

Within three days a temporary dock and 1,200-foot temporary approach had been completed. In three weeks a 300-foot permanent dock and 1,200-foot permanent approach were ready. In another month trees had been cleared from a wide area on top of the sand plateau and three usable runways were finished.

By the end of a year the big part of the work of preparing what has been described as the biggest self-contained airport in North America was done. Defence posts had been established and modern air-travel facilities were available.

But not until this spring did the last of the defending troops move out of dugouts int wooden buildings with such modern conveniences as running hot water and electricity.

Many Buildings Erected

Many buildings, including steel-girdered hangars and living quarters for the R.C.A.F. and army, have been built in the Canadian section of the base. Scores more have been built under Department of Transport supervision for the United States.

General superintendent for the construction company is William H. Durrell of New Liskeard, Ont.

All the runways were garded and packed with snow, and the first land plane arrived, without ceremony, Dec. 9, 1941.

On that day a new airbase was born. But the miracle of speed shown in the first days of construction still continues.

"See that building," said one Air Force officer, grinning broadly as he pointed to a new recreation hall. "Well, so help me, it wasn't there yesterday."

AERIAL FLEETS POUND AXIS IN 48-HOUR ASSAULT

Former General Motors Plant in Antwerp, Belgium, Smashed

SHIPPING ATTACKED

London, May 15 — (CP) — The R. A. F. Fighter Command's night-riding bombers damaged a 200-ton ship near the French coast and struck at communications and airfields in occupied territory last night, the air ministry announced today, as the air offensive continued on a subdued scale.

Two enemy planes were destroyed during the night raids.

There was report of R.C.A.F. activity during the night, the first let-up by the Allies began 48 hours of the most concentrated air assault on Hitler's Europe since the war began. A four-ply sweep by American bombers yesterday topped off those two days of record-shattering blows.

In addition to sending out the greatest number of planes in a single day, American planes engaged in a round-trip flight of more than 1,000 miles to blast the German naval and submarine base at Kiel. It marked their deepest penetration of Europe.

In closely-coordinated supporting attacks, American heavy units bombed the former General Motors plant in Antwerp and a large German airfield and repair station at Courtrai, in Belgium. Medium bombers made successful low level attacks on industrial targets at Velzen, near Haarlem, in the Netherlands.

A Canadian fighter wing provided part of the escort on the Courtrai sweep and shot down four Focke-Wulf 190's.

The tremendous explosive power dumped from coastal France through Germany to German-occupied Western Russia and on Mediterranean bases since Wednesday night can best be pictured by these figures:

When Hitler threw his aerial might at London in an effort to knock out Britain from the war, 7,500 tons of bombs were dropped during 94 raids.

In 48 hours, beginning Wednesday night, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. alone dumped almost 5,000 tons of explosives on German communication lines, factories and naval bases.

ATTU CAMPAIGN SEEN AS START OF MAJOR DRIVE

Attempt Being Made to Drive Japs From Western Aleutians

HEAVY FIGHTING

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, May 15 (AP)—The beginning of a barrage of blows against major Japanese positions throughout the Pacific was seen by some strategists here today in the American drive to wipe out enemy forces in the western Aleutians, starting with Attu Island.

And the belief that subsequent stabs soon may strike at southwestern, southern and central Pacific strongholds of the enemy's ocean empire seemed at least partially borne out by:-

1. Recent conferences between Gen. Douglas McArthur, Commander in Australia and the southwestern Pacific area, and Admiral William F. Halsey, Commander in the southern Pacific.
2. Emphasis on the Pacific situation by choice of high officials sitting in on the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences here.
3. Expressed opinion of qualified authorities that no major Pacific move would have been started unless joint army-navy-air power was set to continue the offensive series all along the line.

The attack on Attu was regarded as conclusive evidence that ships and men are available in great numbers for offensive action against the Japanese, since for such an objective the American command could not afford to weaken its positions elsewhere along the 5,000-mile battle line.

HEAVY ATTACK ON CIVITAVECCHIA 40 MI. FROM ROME

Three Ships Sunk And Others Damaged In Simultaneous Raid On Port of Oblia

AIRFIELD DESTROYED

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 15 — (AP) — American heavy bombers made a heavy attack yesterday on the Italian port of Civitavecchia, 40 miles northwest of Rome, scoring direct hits on several ships in the harbor and on fuel storages and causing an ammunition dump to explode, Allied Headquarters announced today.

A simultaneous attack by medium bombers on the Sardinian port of Olbia resulted in three ships being sunk and others, including a large tanker, being severely damaged, the communique said. Hits also were scored on the docks and the industrial area of the port.

At the same time fighter-bombers swept over the Northern part of Sardinia, bombing and strafing the airfield and port of Alghero and the harbor of Porto Torres and vital points on the railroad.

Fires set at Civitavecchia were visible for 60 miles, returning pilots reported.

In the sweeps over Northern Sardinia, targets also were hit at Calasetaand Porto Ponte Romano, where a carbonization plant was set afire. Another factory was hit at Abbasanta.

Pantelleria Airfield Destroyed

These daylight forays against the strategic island of Sardinia and one of the stepping stones to Europe followed an assault Thursday night by R.A.F. Wellingtons and a daylight attack yesterday by U.S. bombers against Cagliari, in the southern part of the island, and a blow by R.A.F. heavy bombers on Messina, Sicily.

Meanwhile, Cairo dispatches reported that the repeated 100-bomber raids on the little fortress island of Pantelleria off Cap Bon, Tunisia, and a shattering naval bombardment apparently had knocked out that base's lone air field.

Allied pilots said no enemy craft had been seen on the airdrome recently, and apparently the Axis had ceased air operations there.

Only Two Planes Lost.

Two Allied planes were lost in all these bomber assaults on Sardinia, Sicily and the Italian mainland, the communique said.

The official bulletin in recounting Allied naval operations off the Tunisian coast said four enemy merchant ships, an Italian destroyer, three small tramp steamers, a transport barge, a small fishing vessel and numerous small boats, most of them attempting to carry troops in an evacuation, were sunk "during the critical period of April 30 to May 12."

Some 490 men, including a German general, were made prisoner, the communique said.

Uneasy Italians Told Bluntly Navy Cannot Prevent Invasion

London, May 15. (CP)—The uneasy Italians have been told bluntly by one of their leaders that the Italian navy cannot prevent an invasion of their land. The admission was reported by the Rome radio in a broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information today.

The Rome announcer said the Secretaries of War, Aviation and the Navy spoke at a six-hour emergency session of the Italian Senate where the Naval Secretary said flatly his ships could not halt invaders.

The Italian broadcast attempted to calm its hearers, however, with other assurances that measures are being taken to protect the country against an invasion and declared the War Secretary told the Senate that "in case of a successful enemy landing —a possibility that cannot be overlooked—special rationing and supply plans already have been worked out."

Meantime, a Reuters News Agency dispatch said that the official journal of the German Foreign office promised that the German army would fight for every inch of Italy, apparently an attempt to stiffen the morale of the Italians.

The German-dominated Vichy radio broadcast a strange story that Fascist party members in Italy had been ordered to doff their blackshirts, long the badge of the party members, except on March 23, the anniversary of the foundation of the Fascist movement, and on Oct. 28, anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

Information from Greece reaching Istanbul said that all German divisional commanders in Greece, the German Air Commander in that area, and the admiral of the Italian fleet in Greek waters consolidated plans for defence of the Lower Balkans at a conference in Salonika May 4.

The reports added that immediately after the conference a state of siege was declared on the Island of Crete and in all southern Greek ports, and that Italian air and naval forces were placed under the command of Germans.

"Chains" of Men Mowed Down By Artillery Fire

Russian Air Force Smashes at German Eastern Wall for Important Gains

MANY TARGETS HIT

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 15 — (AP) — Sharp new German attack on Leningrad, in an assault preceded by a heavy artillery barrage, was reported today by Red Star, official army newspaper, in dispatches from the front.

Following the heavy barrage, German infantry advanced toward the city in what the dispatch described as "chains" of men.

Russian troops met the attack with fire that resulted in heavy losses, but the Germans continued to attack, the newspaper said.

The Germans made seven additional attacks in a single day, Red Star said, and broke through to fortifications at one point. The Russians rushed reinforcements to the area, however, and "the enemy group was exterminated."

It was too early to say whether this was the beginning of anything important in the way of a German offensive, but it indicated considerable German power has been massed along the Leningrad front and that the invading army was able to strike hard.

In the Kuban area, the Red Army continued its intensive artillery bombardment of German-held Novorossisk.

Active Raiding.

There was active raiding in salt marshes near the Sea of Azov.

The furious air war continued up and down the front with the Russians bombing, shelling and machine gunning railway lines, stations and junctions behind the German lines. Night after night Soviet airmen have been pounding junctions, but trains moving up tremendous quantities of supplies for the German soldiers continue to arrive.

Railway junctions, airdromes, fuel and ammunition depots, and truck columns were the targets for Red army bombers in attacks that began Wednesday and continued through Friday, with Warsaw bombed in one foray over Poland and other planes reaching to the Estonian frontier to hit German supply trucks and military planes.

300 Cars Destroyed.

Tass News Agency said 300 freight cars, more than 200 trucks loaded with arms and other war supplies, and 72 planes were destroyed by the Soviet raiders, striking at Germany's vital rolling stock.

The Kharkov-Orel-Bryansk area below Moscow and the Staraya Russa-Vitebsk region, near the Latvian and Estonian frontiers, especially felt the weight of the Russian bombers.

Big fires followed explosions after railway trains and ammunition dumps were hit at Snezhetskaya, east of Bryansk, Tass said. Barvenkovo and and Slavyansk, important centres recaptured by the Germans when they pushed back into the Donets basin early this year, also were heavily bombed.

Russian losses were listed as 23 planes.

Admiralty Refuses Comment on Report

London, May 15—(CP) — The Berlin radio in a broadcast attributed to the International Information Bureau, a propaganda agency, claimed today that the German destroyer Hermes, formerly a unit of the Greek navy, had sunk the British submarine Splendid in the Mediterranean.

A British submarine by that name is not listed in authoritative naval manuals, though there may be a submarine of that name recently completed. The Admiralty refused to comment.

The broadcast was heard by the Associated Press.

Air Raids 'Most Severe' German Circles Admit

Washington, May 15 (AP)—The Office of War Information today credited to the Swedish newspaper Arbetaran a report which said "German circles" admitted that damage resulting from Allied April raids was "most severe", and reduced the capacity of many German war industries "by more than one half."

It cited the raid on the Skoda armament works in Czecho-Slovakia and said the works were "in ruins."

"The Skoda raid," it said, "is a grim reminder of what may happen any day to Germany's other so-called 'secure' war plants in eastern Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria or any other country."

LANSING BUSMEN STRIKE

Lansing, Mich., May 15 (AP) — Bus drivers in Michigan's capital city walked out today, depriving an area of nearly 100,000 residents of their means of public transportation.

Thousands of war workers, left standing on street corners by the early-morning walkout of employees of the Intercity Coach Lines, thumbed rides to their jobs.

The decision to strike, made at a meeting of local 1039 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (A.F.L.), was reported to have been in consequence of failure of the War Labor Board to act on a wage question, details of which were not disclosed.

Sugar Ration For Canning Set at 10 Pounds

By JACK WILLIAMS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 15 — (CP) — Cheer up ladies — even if you don't get all the canning sugar you asked for you probably couldn't have canned that much fruit anyway.

The amount of sugar Finance Minister Ilsley says is going to be available for canning, 100,000,000 pounds, works out at about nine pounds for every man, woman and child in the country. The applications women sent in to the Prices Board added up to 209,000,000 lbs., equalling about 19 pounds each.

That, Mr. Ilsley says, represents an amount of fruit that "never has been canned in this country and probably never could be canned." In other words there just isn't enough fruit to provide for such an outburst of canning enthusiasm.

Local ration boards in Ottawa, Toronto and some other cities have made known that they are working on a basis of 10 pounds to city-dwellers.

Even with the applications cut to meet the Prices Board quota Canadians are going to fare a good deal better than Americans who are allowed five pounds a person with a limit of 25 pounds to a family. There has been no suggestion of a family limit in Canada.

Final details of the sugar rationing plan have yet to be announced but it is known that the special canning coupons will be staggered through the preserving period, June 1 to Sept. 30.

Under this system housewives will be able to buy two-fifths of their canning sugar in June and one-fifth of the coupons will become good at the first of each of the three succeeding months. The coupons will remain good throughout the canning season so if the June coupons are not used for berries or early fruits they may be used for late fruits.

District Canning Factories Must Solve Labor Problems Within Own Community

Member of Ontario Farm Labor Force Says There Will be No Transfers From One District to Another

OFFER SUGGESTIONS

Labor problems confronting district canning factor proprietors for the coming canning season must be solved from within the community without drastic transfer of workers from outside points, canning factory men in Eastern Ontario were told here Friday by Alex McLaren of the Ontario Farm Labor Force.

Speaking at a special meeting of canning factory owners which was called to discuss labor needs, Mr. McLaren stated that although authorities recognised the seriousness of the situation no really concrete solution has been offered. He offered suggestions intended to assist canning factory men in solving their own requirements from within the community.

Responsibility for the initiative in securing what help is available in each community must come from the canners, however, he stated.

Must Make Complete Survey

Mr. McLaren indicated that a complete survey must be made of the labor needs of every canning factory, with the minimum, not maximum, number of workers needed stated. Dates the workers are needed must be noted and also the number of workers known, to be available. This survey would be made available to the man power committee with the view of workers being supplied from pools formed as the result of transfer of labor from non-essential industry. This would be done only in an emergency, it was reminded.

The fact that the growing and canning of food products is an essential part of the war effort must be got across to the community with emphasis being placed on the fact, that it is to the community's economic interests, that crops not be wasted. "It is a joint problem," stated Mr. McLaren, "and one which should be attacked from a community standpoint."

Co-operation Needed

When all available labor in separate communities was exhausted, the speaker indicated that the Ontario Farm Service Force, the Selective Service and other organizations could be expected to extend every co-operation.

Naming the possible labor supply in each community, Mr. McLaren stated that the previous years help should be taken into consideration while all households should be contacted. The problem of canning factory help should be taken up with merchants with the view of their closing two or three days during the week to give assistance in the rush seasons.

Non-essential industries might lend assistance by lending men, while a special effort should be made to gain assistance from town and city housewives, vacationists should be approached with the view of having them spend at least part of their time in canning factories.

In referring to the assistance needed by growers, and the help given last year by high school students, the speaker revealed, that this year there would be no universal late opening of secondary schools. However, efforts will be made to keep schools closed, where farm help was vitally needed, he said.

Change Holiday Seasons

Along the same lines, Mr. McLaren suggested a change in the school curriculum with reduced holidays at Christmas and Easter to permit a longer holiday period during the summer months. "Educational authorities must be brought to realize we are up against a difficult situation, and one which must be met," he said.

While no labor camps had been conducted by the Ontario Farm Service Force in Eastern Ontario during the past year, Mr. McLaren indicated that the government were prepared to set up such camps in cases where 50 workers would be needed for a period of two months.

Misunderstanding which had arisen between employees and canning factory owners during the past year were now being ironed out. Questions of rates of pay and working conditions had been involved but such misunderstandings were not general throughout the province.

In a question period following Mr. McLaren's talk it was brought out that high school students would not be granted permission to leave schools to work in canning factories.

Factories Use Own Gas

Gasoline, it was learned, would be made available to canning factory owners for providing transportation for workers to and from their work. The program developed by the transit controller provided for employers using their own gasoline ration coupons for the transportation of workers, the coupons later to be replaced. Such a program was also being worked out for farm commandos and other agricultural workers, it was stated.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials from Ottawa were also present at the meeting and answered questions pertaining to the sale of canning factory products.

Dr. Welsh Discusses Position Of Different Political Parties

Member for East Hastings Addresses Women's Conservative Club Talks on Some Phases of Party Records

EXPECTS ELECTION

In the coming election the platform for the Conservatives will be, summed up, work for all with good wages, Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., East Hastings, said at the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Conservative Club on Friday evening. He congratulated the organization in being able to get such large crowds out to political gatherings in these times of stress and strain.

"I think the best subject for me to discuss is the approaching election", the guest speaker said, "because there is no doubt but that we will be faced with a provincial general election". When it comes we immediately ask ourselves what various parties are going to present themselves.

In this case the Liberals are led by Mr. Harry Nixon, the Conservatives by Colonel G. Drew and the C.C.F. party by Mr. E. A. Jolliffe.

Take stock of their past, what they propose to do in the future, analyze their leaders and their aims, Dr. Welsh pointed out.

Nixon Always a Politician

As far as the Liberal leader is concerned, he has been a politician all his life, a Conservative at first, then a Progressive Liberal, and finally a Liberal. "What has Harry Nixon in his public life accomplished?" the guest speaker asked. "He is noted for an election at any price when he felt his party was in a most favored position. He was Minister of Game and Fish and he never occupied any major post in the government. He supported the Hepburn government and voted with the Conant government.

What is his record in the last twenty years? He has just been willing to sit in the government and let matters go as they are.

C.C.F. Against Private Enterprise

In the question of the C.C.F. party, they are very active in the industrial centres. A Toronto lawyer, E. A. Jolliffe, is their leader. They object to freedom of private enterprise and their platform is based on "regimentation." They entirely lack variety and experience in the type of men they are choosing, not businessmen or farmers who understand the problems of the province.

Col. Drew Worthy Leader

Colonel George Drew has been in the Opposition and one requires the very best training to sit in the Opposition. There are no restrictions in it; all have a chance to speak on any or every subject or issue that arises. It is the Opposition's duty, not just to oppose, but to criticize, and to guide the cabinet along various lines so that the legislation they are bringing out won't have errors. Col. Drew is a brilliant man, he knows world affairs, he is a war veteran and therefore knows the problems of the boys in uniform.

When the election comes the government will be asked to give an account of itself and it must go to the people with its record. Since 1934 the Liberal Party has been in power and in analyzing the record of any government the question arises, "Has the province made progress under this regime?"

Debt Greatly Increased

We will look at it from financial, economical educational, health, moral and social standpoints. Since the Liberal party went into power Canada's debt has increased well over $200,000,000. Ontario has rapidly been changing from an agricultural to an industrial province. Yet, the farming conditions, until last year, were worse then at any time, said Dr. Welsh.

In the question of money for highways, the present minister has spent more money on the highways of the province than any other minister since Confederation.

Poorer Educational Standards

In the educational aspect of the government, standards are being lowered; in the educational system boys and girls are choosing courses of least resistance. They try no definite examinations till the last year in High School and consequently when they go on to higher education, problems arise. The Ontario School for the Deaf has been taken over by the Air Force and it is rumored that at the end of the war, it will be still closed to the pupils.

Social welfare can be summed up very briefly, juvenile delinquency has increased 34 per cent.

Not Enough Funds.

In the question of health, up until the last two years, the Department of Health would not spend money beyond their quota in that particular field. Yet, the Department of Highways, said the speaker, spent money lavishly on the highways of the province. They have made studies in tuberculosis but in general health problems they have fallen down. The idea of social security has just been started, Dr. Welsh concluded, "In this election it will be a tough fight because of the fact that a third party is coming into the picture."

Other Members Speak Briefly.

Mr. R. D. Arnott, M.P.P. for West Hastings and Mr. G. H. Stokes, M.P., South Hastings, spoke briefly.

"In view of recent happenings in Toronto the Liberals have chosen H. Nixon and that means an election this fall," R. D. Arnott pointed out.

When the election comes it will be a trying one, both because of the shortage of gasoline and because everyone is working so hard. At the last session of parliament, Col. Drew did a wonderful job. Mitchell Hepburn was a man of great ability, he held the Liberal party together, and when he resigned there was no man to equal Colonel Drew.

Mr. G. H. Stokes said: "Every person is, more or less, criticizing the Federal government, and we must endeavor to make the people realize that they are tied to the Federal government hand and foot."

This competition promises to be a rare treat for many Trentonians, as it is not often citizens can hear the younger generation perform in a like manner.

Thursday, at 7.20 p.m., in Canterbury Hall there will be elocution by Juniors, Intermediates and Seniors.

On Friday the town is to be literally taken over by youth. The Mayor's office, council chambers and office of the chief constable, are to be turned over to these young gentlemen who will acquaint themselves with the workings of the municipality.

Saturday, May 22, promises to be one of the finest athletic meets ever to be held in Trenton. Rotary Clubs of Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby, Campbellford, Peterboro, Lindsay and other points have been invited to sponsor groups of their boys and girls for open competition with our youngsters. The games are to start at 1 p.m. and are to be held on the grounds of the Dufferin Street School.

Sunday is to be strictly observed as "A Day in the Churches" and each Rotarian is urged to attend service and take along with him either his own child or one of his neighbors.

"The Hobby Fair" which is the final attraction of this Youth Week is to be held on Monday, May 24. All who were privileged to visit this Fair last year are eagerly looking forward to seeing again what the young girl or boy of our schools has been doing with his spare time. Nothing short of amazing were some of the entries at last year's exhibition and this year promises to be even better. Four valuable scholarships valued at $30 each are to be given as well as diplomas, and ribbons for other winners.

The Trenton Rotary Club is to be highly commended for their untiring efforts in arranging this "Youth Week" and it is hoped all loyal citizens will do their part to see that large crowds attend all the various activities during the week.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst

Allied initiative of global proportions continued to intensify, forcing the Axis-Japanese combination to stand on the alert at many points.

Hitler's Europe has been rocking under an unprecedented deluge of bombs, from west to east. Italy and her great islands of Sicily and Sardinia have been undergoing furious air-raids. American forces have stormed their way ashore the Jap base of rock-bound Attu up among the Aleutian Islands off Alaska, and bitter fighting is reported to be proceeding.

Out of this welter of pressure and threats will emerge new Allied offensives. At this moment we can't foresee with certainty where the blows will come, and therein lies the value of this war of nerves which the United Nations are waging. The enemy is on the defensive—in the dark.

Signs point to the next major offensive coming in Europe. Observers in Tunisia believe it will fall with certainty on Sicily and Sardinia as a natural corollary to the Axis debacle in North Africa, and it might be extended to the Italian mainland.

However, these are fast-moving days when high commands have to make quick decisions. Necessity or opportunity may provide the impulse for an offensive — and there are numerous points at which it might come. Italian territory likely is the best bet at the moment, but Western France and the Balkans also are inviting trouble.

Doing Tremendous Job.

One thing stands out clearly. The Allied air offensive over Europe is doing a tremendous job of softening up the Boche. Not only are the British, Canadian and American air forces tearing into the continent as far afield as Czecho-Slovakia, but the air war over Russia is intense. Soviet airmen have been ranging clear from their central front to Warsaw.

The Allied air assaults from the west are on a scale which is inflicting severe damage to vital spots in the Axis war machine. Industrial centres, supply points and communications are being crippled and even wiped out. When I was in England last fall I was told in high quarters that destruction of 160 targets of this nature would so weaken Hitler that an invasion army could be landed from the English Channel without undue losses. Since then many of these targets must have suffered heavily.

Have To See To Believe.

You have to see to believe the destruction of one of these major raids. I was guest of Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris at his home and we sat up until the early morning hours studying the effects of mass raids as shown in enlarged air-photos. Forty per cent of the great industrial city of Cologne had been destroyed in one solid block, and another 25 per cent in scattered areas—a total of 65 per cent. Yet they tell us the raid the other night on Duisburg, industrial and railway centre, unloaded an unprecedented weight of bombs. We haven't complete details of this raid, but it was reported as successful.

We shall do well to keep an eye on the continent, for it is getting ripe for invasion.

If our assault on Attu Island is successful we shall have done much to render the position of the Japs in the Aleutians innocuous. This would tend to stymie them from developing Kiska as an air and submarine base which could threaten the Alaskan mainland.

IMPORT, DOMESTIC SUBSIDIES' COST IS $65,161,506

$30,999,920 is Paid on Domestic Products, Milk, Butterfat and Other Goods

REPORT TABLED

Ottawa, May 15 (CP) — From its inception on September 3, 1939, to March 31, 1943, the Prices Board paid import and domestic subsidies of $65,161,506, said a report tabled in the House of Commons Friday by Finance Minister Ilsley.

Of the total, $30,999,920 was paid as subsidies on domestic products such as milk, butterfat and other goods.

Trading losses of associated companies on commodity operations to February 28 before administrative or other operating expenses totalled $3,440,528.

The report, presented to the Governor-General by Finance Minister Ilsley, was prepared by Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman.

In an introduction, Mr. Ilsley said many feared that to maintain an effective price ceiling it would be necessary to employ an army of officials at a cost out of proportion to the value received.

On March 31, the board and its associated companies had 5,251 employees compared with 154 on November 30, 1941. The minister said this figure was not great in relation to the task in hand and of the total 254 officials, most of them in responsible positions, were unpaid.

Administration expenses of the board and its associated companies during the first 15 months of the price ceiling—Dec. 1, 1941 to Feb. 28—were $9,689,042.

The sums spent in subsidies and other expenses "are relatively small in relation to Canada's proposed war expenditure in this fiscal year of approximately $5,000,000,000, and they are small, too, in comparison with the costs of inflation," said Mr. Ilsley.

Rise of 1 Point Cuts 35 Million a Year.

"It has been estimated that every rise of one point in the cost-of-living index costs Canadian consumers as a whole about $35,000,000 a year. If the price ceiling had not been imposed, therefore, about $350,000,000 might easily have been added to the cost of consumers' goods in Canada during the past 16 months."

The price ceiling policy had imposed sacrifices and inconveniences on business, but fears that business could not continue under such a policy had proved groundless, said Mr. Ilsley, quoting a statistical review showing commercial bankruptcies at 609 in 1942 against 882 in 1941.

Petroleum Subsidy Large

Mr. Gordon said the import subsidy on petroleum products had proved the most costly, with $24,028,437 extended at March 31, as a result of increase in shipping costs and insurance charges on the Caribbean and Atlantic routes.

A large part of the subsidy outlay had been for petroleum imports for war purposes and in due course would be refunded by the armed forces to the prices stability corporation.

Next in size were the subsidies on imported foods and beverages which totalled $3,362,526. Of this, tea alone accounted for more than $1,000,000.

"Taking all subsidies together, on both imported and domestic products, the food group accounts for $28,539,041, or not far short of one-half of the entire outlay on subsidies of $65,161,506," said Mr. Gordon.

Economics of Central Buying

Economics resulting from centralized buying through a single government agency had made it possible to keep trading losses to a minimum, he continued. Trading losses incurred by the Prices Stability Corporation up to Feb. 28 totalled $2,111,383.

Mr. Gordon warned against coupon rationing of goods being looked on as a "cure-all," to be immediately adopted on the appearance of any shortage. This opinion ignored the mechanical problems often existing which could impair the effectiveness of rationing some commodities, as in agricultural products where the supply was difficult to control and rationing could result in the development of black markets.

Reviewing the check on the cost-of-living index rise by the price control policy, Mr. Gordon said that increases in the 16-month period ending March, 1943, all were much smaller than for the eight-month period ending November, 1941. The price ceiling policy went into effect Dec. 1, 1941.

Food Prices Advance 28.6 P.C.

Wartime increases to March, 1943, varied for different sections of the budget. Food prices, which are only 31 per cent of the basic index budget, advanced by 28.6 per cent, while rents and miscellaneous items representing 42 per cent of the total expenditure budget increased by only 7.2 and 6.1 per cent respectively. The influence of these two groups had been an important moderating factor in the overall cost of living increase, said Mr. Gordon.

Bulk purchases were made within Canada to safeguard necessary supplies to the Canadian consumer. The Wartime Food Corporation made purchases of beef, and the loss on these purchases as at Feb. 28 was $831,497, with expenses amounting to $26,101.

Milk Producers' Subsidies

In the category of domestic subsidies, the board reported $2,906,814 paid primary milk producers in the winter of 1941-42 and $2,172,935 in the winter of 1942-43 with $3,660,360 paid for consumers.

The butterfat subsidy to March 31 totalled $10,078,597 and that on footwear, $3,272,489.

Other major domestic subsidy payments were:

Garment leather, $1,233,519; coal, $1,185,000; canned goods, 1942 production, $1,509,903; groceries, $1,536,573; tea and coffee $2,,682,397 and butter inventories, $212,160.

French Moroccan Finds, Silences Hidden Nazi Gun

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

In Northern Tunisia, May 12.—(Delayed) (AP)—It was the day after the Americans took Bizerte and the streets of that bomb-wrecked Mediterranean port rang with the sharp crack of snipers' rifles and the staccato chatter of machine-guns as German troops made a last-ditch stand.

At one street corner on the Boulevard De La Republique the sudden clamor of a Nazi 20 millimetre cannon sent a dozen soldiers scrambling for cover. For ten minutes they were pinned down by the fire from the hidden enemy gunner.

Finally they located the building from which he was firing from a second floor window.

They were discussing the best method of blasting him out when a pigtailed Goum, one of the French native Moroccan soldiers, volunteered for the job.

Says His Prayers and Then to Work

"He pulled out his prayer book", said Lieut. Elten Lord, of New York. "He said his prayers, wrapped a tribal scarf about his neck, and laid the prayer book and rifle on the steps.

"Then he took out a hand grenade.

"The stairway was covered with debris and broken glass. He went up it in his sandals like a panther, without making any sound.

"He was gone about 10 minutes—10 of the longest minutes any of us ever had lived. Then we heard a quick tinkle of glass a shuffling of feet and an explosion.

"A moment later the Goum came back down the stairway, picked up the prayer book and put it in the waist of his uniform. He took off the tribal scarf and folded it carefully before putting it away in a pocket.

"He picked up his rifle and as he walked away held up his fingers in the V-sign and said: (Deux Allemands' Two Germans.)

"Then he was gone. The 20 millimetre didn't bother us after that".

42 Millions Given To Red Cross Society In Past 3 Years

Toronto, May 15.—(CP)—Donations by Canadians to the Canadian Red Cross Society in the past three years have exceeded $42,000,000, Dr. Fred W. Routley, National Commissioner, told the Fourth annual meeting of the Society's Central Council here.

In carrying out its activities, the Society has commanded "the personal and financial support in a purely voluntary capacity of an increasingly large number of Canadian citizens", he said.

In 1942, the society spent $6,463,550 in packing and shipping food parcels to British and Canadian prisoners of war. To the end of last year, 3,000,000 parcels were packed in five Canadian plants which have a weekly capacity of 100,000.

Seventy thousand parcels were being supplied weekly to British and Canadian prisoners. The Canadian Society pays for 30,000 the British Red Cross 34,000 and the Australian group 6,000.

Blood donations throughout Canada average 9,000 weekly with an objective of 12,000 per week set for 1943.

Total war expenditures amount to $12,737,000 with non-war expenditures $1,110,000, he said. The average administration costs amounted to 3.8 per cent of the total expenditures.

Says Boris Appeals To Hitler for Extra Secret Police Units

London, May 15. (CP)— King Boris of Bulgaria has sent an urgent appeal to Hitler for additional secret police units as protection against internal disturbances, reports reaching Allied governments yesterday said.

These advices said it was understood that the Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, was hurrying to Sofia.

There was no information, however, on whether concerted outbreaks had occurred.

Meanwhile indications that trouble might be brewing in France were seen in reports of a recent Gestapo roundup of some 200 members of the Vichy government said to have suspected of communicating with French resistance groups or Allied agents.

German-occupied Holland, reported stirring with unrest, had a warning from its government in London that premature revolution would lead only to crushing German retaliation before it could grow into large-scale underground warfare.

It was in Tunisia and right up at the front. A shell hit pretty close to a machine gun post that had been annoying Rommel's men. Most of crew was jarred up quite badly and the corporal was blown up into the air and became unconscious.

He was placed on a stretcher, and the two stretcher bearers started back to First Aid station on a trot. On the way, the injured American soldier regained consciousness; he gazed at the sky overhead and felt the swaying motion as he was carried along.

Carefully he lowered his shaky hands over the side to find only space, then he groaned: "My gosh! I ain't even hit the ground yet!"

Members of the local unit C.W.S.F. are learning to drive the model 800 army trucks each Wednesday afternoon. Some of these lassies in khaki are rapidly becoming most proficient in the art of manipulating these heavy armed equipment despite the fact they are righthand drive and not exactly conventional gear shifts.

Major Malhoney and Captain Harden welcomed two new recruits to the C.W.S.F. this week. Incidentally the members of this women's division are on duty at the men's canteen each parade night in the week now. (No wonder the sales of cokes are on the upbeat.)

Searching Lake For Bodies Of Three Airmen

London, Ont., May 15 — (CP) — Search of Lake Erie off Port Bruce, almost directly south of St. Thomas, for three missing airmen of the R.C.A.F. continued today, hours after some wreckage of their Anson bomber had been picked up on the lake last night.

Two other members of the plane's five-man crew parachuted safely to earth at Shedden, 10 miles west of St. Thomas, and were brought back to their base, No. 4 Air Observers School, at Crumlin, Ont., unscathed.

The bomber is believed to have plunged into Lake Erie with a wireless operator air gunner at the controls, attempting to fly by wireless instruction after his pilot had fainted. All the airmen were believed to be Canadians. Next-of-kin of the missing men have been notified and names will be released shortly. The two who bailed out over Shedden were the student navigator and student bombardier.

A rescue plane took off from Crumlin as soon as notification of the Anson's plight had been wirelessed in. It spotted floating wreckage and guided two fishermen, Jack Kelly and Murray Buckler, to the scene. The fishermen and an R.C.A.F. crash boat from nearby Port Stanley found an open parachute, some twisted wreckage and a gasoline tank, which they brought ashore.

Officers at the air school said the three missing men were a R.C.A.F. Sergeant-Pilot, a Wireless Operator Air Gunner, and a student navigator.

Raids by Germans Are Called Puny

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 15 — (CP Cable) — East Anglia has been the subject of hit and run enemy daylight raids and night forays for the past several days, causing a number of casualties, but the attacks are considered a puny reply — good only for Dr. Goebbel's propaganda purposes —to the renewed bomber pounding of Germany on a greater scale than ever.

By switching over Focke-Wulf-190 fighter-bombers to England's East Coast after some months of foraying against the South and West coast, the German air force has again brought East Anglia towns into the front line.

In one 24-hour period six alerts were sounded. These and several other "stand-to" which might have resulted in action have been keeping their gunners at their posts with only brief rests.

New Plans to Defeat Low-Flying Raiders.

But, said authorities yesterday, each day brings some new plan to defeat the low-flying raiders—more guns, new equipment, fresh dispositions to give more gunners a greater chance to engage.

While there have been no reports of Canadian Army ack-ack gunners in action in the last few days they are known to have served in East Anglia with effect in the past.

Bofors gunners on this coast never cease watch. Experts in recognition, say they are credited with a total bag of 30 planes.

The Nazis said Chelmsford was Thursday night's target during a raid in which two enemy planes were shot down. They met night-fighter opposition.

A report from the raided area said that "in an East Anglian island town several people were killed — seven bodies now have been recovered — the raid was short but concentrated."

Victory Loan Passes Minimum

On the morning of the last day of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign the good news spread across the Dominion that Canada has already gone over the top by passing the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000 by over $25,000,000. The standing with the sales of Saturday still to be added stands at $1,125,353,950. The total result will be reason for satisfaction at the evidence of Canada's greatest financial war effort.

In this section of Canada it is the source of much satisfaction and pride that Hastings County has oversubscribed the loan minimum of $3,300,000,000 and that many of the districts were in the oversubscribed classification.

The answer to the appeal not only to achieve the objective but to put much more money into the financial effort has been shown in a substantial oversubscription.

Into the local campaign the committee and the canvassers have thrown their fullest effort with the results of an excess over the minimum sought. Throughout Canada the same patriotic fervor and effort on the part of committees, canvassers and people have been seen.

Tunisia Shows the Pattern

The debacle of the German and Italian forces in Tunisia brings the United Nations nearer their goal. More and more the thoughts of the people of the world converge on Berlin, like the dagger which General McNaughton, commander of the Canadian army overseas, said, is pointing at the heart of Berlin. Germany is now pinned and fenced within the Continent of Europe. She has been foiled in her plans to break through into Asia as she attacked the stout and patriotic millions of Russians. Germany has been frustrated by the genius and courage of the Russian people and their leaders. She tried in vain to make use of the north and northeast of Africa to make her way into Asia and ultimately toward the Far East. In the west she was foiled by Britain as long ago as in 1940.

The lines are drawing more close about the Axis in Europe. In yesterday's issue an AP story told of the determination of the United Nations never to fall into the mistake of the last war in not occupying Germany and affirmed that it is their intention to occupy Germany and Italy and so make effective such restraint upon these two outlaw powers that they shall never again have the opportunity of menacing the freedom and peace of the world.

The words "unconditional surrender" have an added meaning since the plans and design of Casablanca set the seal on the absolute surrender of Germany, Italy and Japan as requisite to the ending of the struggle and the safeguarding of peace thereafter. Tunisia has written this phrase large upon the world.

What it meant in Tunis and Bizerte and also in the collapse of the enemy army it will mean in Europe, which Hitler with Nazi bombast termed his "fortress" of Europe.

The article in question declared there will be no trafficking in puppet governments crawling out of the limbo to try to save discredited regimes. The United Nations will see to it that order is established throughout the Continent and the peoples wlil have their chance to form their own free governments.

There is going to be no mere stay of arms, known as an armistice, but the pattern and design of the Casablanca declaration of "unconditional surrender" will be the pattern of the collapse of Germany and Italy. The militarist forces of the Axis who created this war will be forced to their knees and utterly crushed and Germany and Italy will be occupied.

General von Arnim

General Jurgen von Arnim, friend of Hitler and typical Prussian general, cold and calculating, has had to suffer defeat at the hands of the United Nations marked by the most disastrous and sudden collapse of his armies. The warlike Prussian has been caught, army, "bag and baggage." He sent out a white flag and surrendered and when asked to sign the terms of General Alexander, refused. These terms were that the enemy should cease destruction of Axis war material, relinquish weapons undamaged and give details of mine fields and assist in clearing them. His refusal did not matter, according to the British commander. So thorough had been the collapse of the army which included Hitler's Guards.

General von Arnim is reported to have been thinking more of his baggage than of his troops and was evidently smarting under defeat. His refusal to accept the terms was what might be expected of a man of his type. And his exhibition of lack of control of his temper gave a good insight into the state of a Nazi and a Prussian, an "invincible," who has been baulked and soundly beaten.

Old Time Fiddler

(Guelph Mercury)

Of late years there has been a tremendous boom in old-time music throughout the continent. To the fore front in this movement to keep the old tunes before the public have been old-time fiddlers. Every community, particularly the rural districts, harbors at least one fiddler of ability. The art has been handed from father to son, for several generations, and playing the fiddle is regarded as no mean achievement.

At all gatherings the fiddler is in demand, and he can supply the music required for the venerable square or clog dance as favored among men. They call themselves fiddlers, and are proud of the name. Designate one of the these country virtuosos by the name of violinist, and you would not be thanked. Fiddle is the proverbial word. Where it originated, and how, few can tell, but the fiddle is a rural institution and even city folk do not frown on it.

It takes the old-timers to do the fiddling. These younger folk cannot get that necessary "hop" to their music, and then they wander off into this jazz or swing which the older fiddlers do not like. Give the old-timer some lamp-lit country hall or school house, a merry crowd in attendance, and he is in his glory, providing they wish to dance to the long-established tunes he intends to play. The labor of the old-time fiddler is one of love. He cares not for monetary reward. It is the joy of coaxing "jiggy" tunes from the instrument he holds close to his chin, and fairly talks to, that pleases him. Your real old-time fiddled fairly worships his fiddle, and let none speak ill of it.

Men Doctors for Soldiers

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

British soldiers have won a point in securing an official decree that they shall not be examined by women doctors. There are, however, women physicians attached to the British army, and there are many ways in which they can serve without impinging on the new regulation.

Women are often described as the "modest" sex, but men probably experience more embarrassment in being examined by a woman doctor than a woman does in being examined by a man. Until comparatively recent times women had no choice, and they just took these things for granted. Even though women doctors are now quite common, most women prefer to go to a man doctor, lacking faith in their own sex, but that idea is quite exploded, there being thousands of women doctors who have proved their qualifications by the character of their work. There are not enough women doctors by a long way to give service to womankind, but even where women doctors are available the majority of women still attend men doctors' offices.

However, be a patient a man or a woman, he or she is just another "case" to a man or woman doctor.

Blessed is the man who having nothing to say abstains from giving wordy evidence of the fact.—Eliot.

This is such a serious world that we should never speak at all unless we have something to say.—Carlyle.

THE WISE-HEARTED MAN

The Scriptures say the tribe of Dan
Was first to teach the artisan
And make him "the wise-hearted man."

"Wise-hearted!" Meaning deft of hand;
With sense to know and understand
The need for work throughout the land.

"Wise-hearted!" Meaning skill to weave
And to embroider robe and sleeve
And things of usefulness achieve.

"Wise-hearted!" Meaning hammer-wise,
The curious works of shape and size
From gold and silver to devise.

"Wise-hearted!" Not the purse best filled;
Not lands by hired strangers tilled,
But hands to useful labor skilled.

Day of Rejoicing Forecast When Japs Driven From China

Washington, May 14—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill has informed General Chiang Kai-Shek that "The day will come when we shall rejoice...at feats of arms of the United Nations which will surely drive the Japanese invader from the soil of China."

Mr. Churchill was replying to a message of congratulation from the Chinese Generalissimo on the Allied victory in Africa.

His words served to underscore indications that he and President Roosevelt, in their war strategy conferences here, might be plotting new, massive blows at Japan.

At the same time, Mr. Churchill released a message from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander-in-Chief in North Africa, giving "my assurance that this army will continue to pound until Hitlerism has been exterminated from the earth."

Further pointing up the possibility that the Prime Minister and President are charting action in the Western Pacific area was the disclosure at the White House that Mr. Churchill had held conferences of 30 minutes to an hour with T. V. Soong, Chinese Foreign Minister, who is now in the United States, and Herbert V. Evatt, Australian minister of external affairs.

Col. Ralston Says Reinforcements Are Adequate

Sufficient Trained Men in United Kingdom to Meet Operations

150,000 AVAILABLE

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 15—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston yesterday told the House of Commons that in the opinion of his military advisers "We have in the United Kingdom adequate trained reinforcements to meet contemplated operations."

He said that if the emergency demanded at least 100,000 more fit and trained or training personnel now in Canada were available for overseas reinforcements, and 50,000 more in compulsory training could be made available if the government exercised its power to extend the field of their service.

A statement that army personnel in Canada would be reduced by at least 15,000 in the next year but that recruiting would be increased, was taken to assume that the overseas forces would be heavily augmented.

Col. Ralston spoke in the continued debate on the war appropriations resolution calling for $3,890,000,000 for the current fiscal year, $1,764,000,000 for the army.

He resumed the outline of army operations he began Thursday night and had not finished when adjournment was taken. He will return to it Monday and outline the plans for the current year.

Before taking up the War Appropriation Bill yesterday the House heard an attack led by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, on the deal by which the Aluminum Company of Canada was assisted in expanding its power and production plant in northern Quebec.

Mr. Coldwell asked for a Royal Commission to investigate this transaction and urged also that Leighton McCarthy, Canadian Minister to Washington, be called to describe his part in the deal. Mr. Coldwell said the Canadian minister was a director of the Canadian company and vice-president of the parent company, the Aluminum Company of America.

Nothing to do With Transaction

Munitions Minister Howe, who some weeks ago described the transaction to the House in detail, said Mr. McCarthy had nothing whatever to do with the transaction.

He said a Royal Commission inquiry would surprise him if it suggested that any better method could have been found than the one adopted to get for the United Nations the aluminum so important to the aircraft industry.

This debate took place on third reading of the bill authorizing expenditure of $1,000,000,000 for supplies to be given the United Nations on a mutual aid plan. The bill was passed and sent to the Senate.

The House heard three other announcements before it took up routine business.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said that the maximum wheat delivery quota was being raised from 14 to 15 bushels an authorized acre and that the oats quota restriction had been removed at 576 delivery points.

Redistribution Bill

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that the government intended to bring in a redistribution bill at the present session.

Labor Minister Mitchell said the machinery was being set up to place conscientious objectors of military age on farms or in other essential work.

Col. Ralston referred early in his statement to criticisms of the Dieppe action last year and said he did not propose to answer them in detail or to answer any further criticism that might arise.

It was sufficient, he said, that the action, costly as it proved, was of tremendous value and served the purpose for which it had been carefully planned. Its results might contribute largely to ultimate victory.

Col. Ralston said the strength of the army in Canada and adjacent areas at the end of March 1942 was more than 170,000 all ranks, and at the end of March 1943 had increased to 250,000 all ranks.

Divided in Three Groups.

These were divided almost evenly into three groups, operational troops, home establishments and training strength. These do not include the Reserve Army.

They were in 17 different areas on the Atlantic, 19 different areas on the Pacific, at 10 inland areas and in four areas outside the Canadian borders.

Air port defences were located at numerous points "from the Yukon territory to Goose Bay in Labrador", and "from Alaska to Sydney".

27 Different Areas

Anti-aircraft defences were located at 27 different areas "with all the latest development in technique and organization".

He asked the House if any would say these 80,000 operational troops were too many and reminded members of the demands which were made earlier in the war when the Japanese threat seemed more menacing.

The successes in Tunisia had not ended the threat of submarine attack on the East Coast or of Japanese aggression in the Aleutians.

The home establishment troops, were described as training and administrative staffs at 87 different centres, requiring 32,000 men, two for every five trainees; headquarters staffs for 12 districts and two commands, headquarters staff at Ottawa, and Ancillary service units.

None Over-Manned

None of these services were overmanned and all were so busy that the constant demand was for more personnel in the face of a constant effort to economize in manpower.

The third group, training strength, constituted those actually in training for service at home and abroad, each soldier receiving at least four months training.

Col. Ralston then discussed reinforcements and said that it would be a mistake to take the ratio of casualties at Dieppe as a yardstick to measure the percentage of reinforcements required to maintain an army in action.

It would only provide information for the enemy to state what percentage of reinforcements were being held available for the Canadian army overseas, he said.

"I can say this, however, that in the opinion of our military advisers we have in the United Kingdom adequate trained reinforcements to meet contemplated operation", he said.

To Be Augmented

"I can say further that these reinforcements will be augmented by the early dispatch of further troops, now available in Canada, from time to time.

"Behind those reinforcements in the United Kingdom we have the steady flow of output from our training system in Canada.

"This training stream, together with the operational units and the administration and servicing units, generally known as home war establishments, provided a backlog in Canada of over 185,000 general service personnel"

He said this did not mean that the whole 185,000 could be made available for service overseas but at least 100,000 could be made available and sent to reinforce the overseas army.

Some 50,000 more Category "A" trainees could be quickly made available for overseas if the government chose to act under the power given it last year to send overseas those called up for compulsory training.

Shipping Handicap

Shipping difficulties handicapped the deartment at times in dispatching troops and some awkward last-minute changes had to be made, but prospects at the moment were good the Minister said.

The Minister said that in the next year it was expected the strength of army personnel in Canada would be reduced by about 15,000.

Mexican jumping beans are the seed pods of a small shrub that grows in Mexico and the southwestern part of the United States. These "broncho beans" tumble because of the presence within of the larvae of a small moth. When the shrub is in bloom the moth lays its eggs in the blossoms. After the eggs hatch the pods serve as an apartment for the larvae. No healthy jumping bean ever jumps. The movements are owing entirely to the motion of the worms inside.

Home Service

A Vitamin-Conscious People Is a Food-Wise Nation

APPLES GOOD FOR YOU

More and more Canada is becoming food conscious—which means an awareness of the importance of vitamins in our every-day life. War has made everyone realize that fitness is a necessity to help defeat the enemy.

Plenty of vitamins every day aid in transforming tired, discouraged men and women into energetic, enthusiastic persons; listless children with no appetite into "can I have more to eat" boys and girls; adolescents who were not doing well in school into honor-roll students.

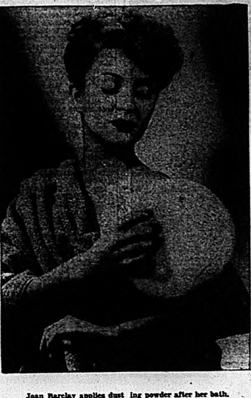
Vitamins, those rather elusive nutritive elements found in small quantities in our food—have a fascination for most of us. They are so small and so important.

No man lives by vitamins alone, but no man lives without vitamins. To avoid certain diseases, we must have enough of the vitamins.

Our 32-page booklet tells the meaning of vitamins and what they can do. This booklet will answer your questions and tell you how to get the maximum vitamin value from the food you eat every day.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Vitamins to Keep You Fit" to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Bathing a Real Beauty Rite



Joan Barclay applies dusting powder after her bath.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SPEEDY bathers are hygiene slackers. They hop into the tub, slosh the washcloth around, leap out. Or they stand under the shower for half a minute, have a rubdown. Bathing should be a rite, and a pleasure. Youngsters who are always in a hurry, never have time for anything, should be taught to keep their bodies scrupulously clean. Daily scouring is an aid in treatment of blackheads and pimples because it helps the entire skin surface function normally.

Let Skin Do Its Work.

The skin is an organ of elimination. If the surface is covered with dead scales that are always shedding, it cannot carry on its work properly. Then there is the matter of the baneful body odor more common than most of us realize. The public nose is constantly being assailed by offensive odors given off by unclean epidermal coats.

Girls who must tear out early in the morning to work should have their baths at night when they have plenty of time to enjoy them. They'll find a warm soaking restful and relaxing.

First, the face washing in the basin, a rinsing and drying, a generous anointing with cold cream. Turn on the hot water so the air will be steamy. Moist heat is good for the complexion.

Hot and Cold Shower

The alternating hot and cold shower will help circulation. Marching blood streams give good color to the cheeks. Then comes a brisk rubdown with a coarse towel, then a talcum friction or application of a bath tonic.

This is the time for a quick pedicure. Friction corns and calloused spots with a toilet pumice stone, massage with mineral oil to soften. Cut toe nails straight across. Lift the cuticle about the nails with the orangewood stick. Apply rosy polish.

What Your Service Man Wants Most, And What You Can Do About it.

One of the complaints I encounter most often among the mothers, wives and sweethearts of service men is: "I don't hear from him often enough".

And oddly enough, what service men everywhere declare they want most of all is, "More mail from home".

My day's mail has this letter to me:

"Dear Miss Fairfax: I had been going with a boy for almost a year when he enlisted in the Air Force. We were very good friends and I thought the world of him, and he often told me that he loved me. At first we corresponded, and he wrote several times a week, but the letters have dropped off and now I receive only about one every two weeks.

"I know a soldier has many responsibilities and often finds little time to write, but I'd really like to know what you think. Do you suppose he has stopped loving me and that he may have met another girl, and doesn't want to continue writing to me? I'm still a very young girl and have plenty of chances, but my whole world seems to have crashed all of a sudden. Thank you.

M. A. B."

My answer to M. A. B. is:

You haven't said anything about being engaged to the young soldier, which leaves both of you free to go out with other friends.

However, you realize that soldiers have little time and many responsibilities. And you should realize, too, that after the first few weeks or months, he feels he has little to write about, for his days are all the same—hard work from dawn to dusk if he's still in training, and no cessation of vigilance at all if he's on one of the fighting fronts. If he's in a fighting line, there's censorship to restrict him further. But you, on the other hand, have limitless subjects to put in your letters—all the things that are going on in the world that he left behind and that he wants to keep up with.

Your letters don't just have to concern you, but can and should tell every scrap of information about all his friends and acquaintances, what's happening at the place he worked, what his favorite sports teams or athletes are doing, and the highlights of the news about his home town, his state and his nation.

Don't expect an answer to every letter you write, particularly if he's abroad or at sea. For some of your letters may not reach him. Many bags of mail for our various service units overseas have been lost when convoys were attacked by U-boats.

Many ships and military units are moving around too quickly for all mail to reach them without delays. Yet despite all the difficulties attached to transmitting mail to our millions of fighting men, it is reported that at least 85 per cent of it reaches the addresses. A considerable part of the remaining 15 per cent goes astray because of wrong or illegible addresses affixed by the senders.

Many a service man has told me that the biggest contribution that could be made to morale would be for each service man to get at least one letter from home or a friend every day.

One soldier told me what his ideal letter was like. First, it was three or four pages of notes about his family, his friends, his former working associates, and conditions at home. Second, it contained lots of clippings—puzzles, jokes and gag cartoons from the daily newspapers and magazines, and summaries of happenings in the sports he likes. Third, it had snapshots of his girl, or his children, or his folks. Such a letter was a passport to heaven for two reasons, he said. It made him happy and gave him plenty to think about in any idle moment; and, second it gave him something to show around to less fortunate comrades.

The important thing is to keep writing, no matter how often you hear from your service man.

FIND FARM WORKER BEATEN TO DEATH

Timmins, Ont., May 14—(CP)—David Palmer, 32-year-old farm worker, was beaten to death today in a deserted outbuilding at the Gold Ridge stock farm near nearby Golden City.

Palmer's body was found in the furnace room of an unused milk plant at the farm by fellow employees who started a search when they noticed he was missing.

Police said that Palmer had been struck over the head several times with a heavy, blunt instrument and his skull was badly smashed. Police said there was no evidence of a struggle and that as far as they knew Palmer had no enemies, describing him as quiet and good-natured.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Treating A Patient With Slight Organic Heart Disease.

Many practising physicians can well remember the importance attached to heart murmurs during their student days in medicine and for some years afterward. Thus, in final examinations at college or for state board or provincial certificates, the location of the murmur on either side of breast bone, between what ribs, or distance from breast bone, whether murmur occurred during or after the first or second beat, were all considered vastly important although the treatment of all murmurs was very much the same.

It was felt that after Dr. Jas. Mackenzie pointed out that murmurs in themselves were not important, that it was the strength of the muscular walls of the heart that meant heart strength or weakness, the words "heart murmur" would gradually disappear. Not so, however, and today a physician mentioning the presence of a murmur means just a small leak in one of the valves which will do no harm because the heart muscle is strong. Unfortunately this word "murmur" and "leaking heart" fastens itself on the mind of many patients and they begin to worry about their hearts. The mere presence of a murmur or a leaking valve outweighs all the assurance the physician can give them.

It sometimes happens that a patient will consult a physician complaining about his heart and there are present also a murmur or some irregularity in the beat. He will complain of shortness of breath, pain under breast bone, and a feeling of weakness. The physician examines the heart, notes the murmur or slight irregularity, and if not careful to make an exercise test, Xray examination, and an electrocardiogram, may treat the patient for serious heart disease. What the physician does not know is that the patient has been worrying about his heart for months, and because of his worry and anxiety has aggravated his symptoms, and in telling about them to the physician may, without trying to do so, exaggerate to some extent.

The thought here, for patient and physician, is that only a "complete" examination of a heart with slight organic trouble can give the true condition of the heart. And, as said above, this examination should include the exercise test, X-rays (fluroscope) and use of electrocardiograph.

Arthritis is Not Just a Disease of the Joints

A middle aged patient was referred by her family physician to a rheumatism or arthritis specialist. The specialist listened to her story as to when the symptoms appeared, the nature and degree of the pain, the different kinds of treatment she had received, and finally was told by the patient that she knew that if he operated and opened up the knee joint, she might get better.

The physician then quietly pointed out that the pain in the knee was just a symptom of a general disease in her body, that fixing up or giving relief in one joint would not prevent the disease attacking other joints, tendons and muscles, and that if he were to help to relieve her symptoms, it would be necessary for her to follow a certain diet, take certain medicines, and receive heat and electrical treatment.

What is arthritis? How can the patient or the physician recognize arthritis?

In the Archives of Physical Therapeutics, Dr. Ralph Pemberton, Philadelphia, whose work on arthritis I have mentioned before, stated that arthritis is not just a disease of the joints, but a disease of the whole body and its results just happen to be located in the joints. In fact, many patients afflicted with the disease of arthritis do not have much pain or inflammation in the joints but have pain where the ends of the muscles are attached to the tendons which move the bones forming the joint. There may be a small amount of swelling in parts of the body near the joints and both hands may be cold and sweaty.

That arthritis is not a joint disease but a general disease is shown by the fact that the symptoms are worse in women at menstruation pregnancy and the menopause. "These patients stand cold poorly".

The underlying cause of arthritis in the opinion of Dr. Pemberton, is that there is an imbalance (or lack of adjustment with other parts of the body) of the central nervous system and the endocrine or ductless glands (thyroid, pituitary, adrenal, sex and others).

The thought then is that in trying to find the cause of arthritis, the aggravation of the two systems—nervous and gland—in various ways should be remembered. Infection, injury, emotional disturbances, food, cold, and moisture, general fatigue, should all be kept in mind.

Smart Selection

By ALICE ALDEN

EVEN IF the choice is not so wide, there are still many varieties of straws available. If you like a rough straw hat for wear with your tailored suits, or a soft silky weave such as shantung to complement a "date" dress, you should be able to make the right selection. Alexis Smith, who is partial to smartly simple hats, says that this model is destined to go with almost all of her Spring wardrobe except for after-five clothes. Worn at the popular forward angle, it is of rough red straw with band and bow of white dotted navy grosgrain ribbon and a navy blue veil.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Prospective Bride and Groom Are Puzzled About Toasts To Them

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am completely "at sea" about toasts, especially how to respond to them, what to say and do when a toast is proposed to me. I have just announced my engagement, and my fiance and I were talking over these problems about toasts last evening. I got the impression that he too could get on better with more definite knowledge on this question!

1. Is it always necessary to "respond" to a toast? 2. At our wedding reception, which will be soon, who is supposed to give the toast? Please explain what we do when the toast is proposed. (We disagree about this.) 3. When a toast is proposed in my honor at a bride's shower, what should I do and say?

Dorothy

1. Yes, there must always be some kind of gracious acknowledgment of a toast. For such a pleasant tribute demands an appreciative response! The acknowledgment may be only a smiling bow and a gracious "Thank you", or "Thank you very much. You make me very happy." Or to this may be charmingly added a sentence or two of warm-hearted thanks for the party in your honor. Something gracious, friendly, something to show you're an appreciative person.

2. The first, and of course the most important toast proposed at the wedding reception, is the one proposed to the bride and bridegroom. This toast is usually proposed by the best man, but it may be proposed by anyone decided on. All (except the bride and bridegroom) rise, raise their glasses and drink the toast. When the toast has been drunk and the guests seated, the bridegroom rises and expresses both the bride's and his own thanks. He may only say "Dorothy and I thank you for your good wishes", or he may add something about the happy occasion...but a long speech is not called for. Your bridegroom may say, for example, "Dorothy and I thank you, most heartily, for your good wishes. Having all you dear people with us on this happy day adds the grandest of memories to the occasion. We hope to celebrate all the anniversaries of this day with you all!"

3. When a toast is proposed to a bride-to-be she may smile appreciatively and say an enthusiastic "Thank you, very much indeed", or to this she may add a sentence or two..."Thank you, with all my heart, for your friendship, and for your friendly words. I am sure Jack and I will be as happy as you have said you wish us to be! Always I shall carry in my heart the memories of this lovely party that you have planned so beautifully for me."

Initials For Bridal Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

With what initials should a bride's silver be engraved and her linen embroidered?

Grace

There is no definite rule about this. The choice rests with the bride-to-be as to whether she has her silver engraved and her linens embroidered with the initials of her maiden name or with the initials of her name-to-be. She may like to cling to the sentiment of the tradition of using the initial of her maiden name, or consider it more practical to use the initials of her name-to-be.

Typical of men who garrison Canadian-built Labrador Air Base, one of the world's largest, are airmen, soldiers shown above..... (l. to r.) S/L. Powell, hails from London, England, is blitz veteran and former fighter pilot; Capt. N. R. Shultz, Sackville, N.B., is former engineer; Pte. M. R. Whitehawk, bronzed Cree Indian, is former Saskatchewan farmer; F/O Ken Matheson, Petrolia, Ont.; Gunner E. Theriault is weight-lifting champ, brought weights to keep in shape; S/L W. F. Napier, R.C.A.F. squadron, is from Campbellton, N.B. Through long winters these men help maintain constant flow of bombers to England.

Good neighbors in far northern outpost are Group Capt. E. H. Evans, R.C.A.F., of Minnedosa, Man. and Col. A. D. Smith, U.S.A., of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

In a constant stream, the huge American Fortresses come from the west, gas up again, and continue the journey to England. On runways that are among the largest in the world, bombers are roaring in and taking off again. The base is a tribute to Canadian enterprise, technical skill and engineering genius.

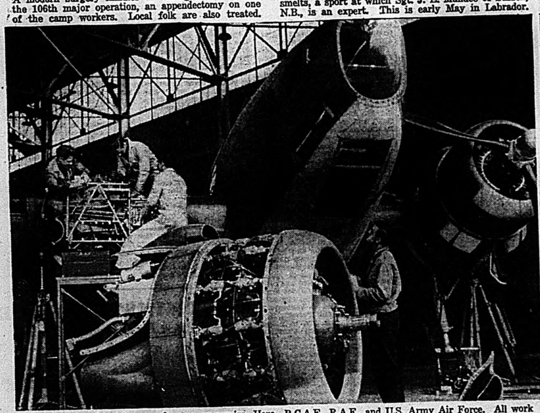
Food and supplies are flown in from Moncton, N.B., an essential job being done by R.C.A.F. squadrons. Winter and summer an enormous volume is freighted.

A modern surgery handles all emergencies. This is the 106th major operation, an appendectomy on one of the camp workers. Local folk are also treated.

A popular Sunday pastime at the base is fishing for smelts, a sport at which Sgt. J. E. Mundee of Sussex, N.B., is an expert. This is early May in Labrador.

Church Services are always well-attended at lonely Labrador Air Base. Here Communion is given by Rev. Capt. Gordon on Easter Sunday in Canadian Army hut.

Typical construction men are Victor Meloche (l) of Hull and Jim Wallace of Montreal. High victory loan quota was exceeded during the first week of drive.



Base is equipped to take care of necessary repairs. Here R.C.A.F. mechanics are overhauling motors of Ferry Command bomber. Base contains separate commands of R.C.A.F., R.A.F., and U.S. Army Air Force. All work in close co-operation. But the construction of the huge base itself, a difficult feat, was Canadian.

Constant vigil is maintained at the base to guard against possible attacks. Mighty defences, such as the Bofors anti-aircraft battery shown here being manned by Canadian soldiers, promise hot reception for any maurauding foe. Canadian Army and R.C.A.F. are ready at this distant North American outpost.

A's Castoff Becomes Chicago White Sox Star As He Limits New York Yanks to Single Hit

Bingle Was of "Fluke" Variety and Chicago Wins 3-0

TWO RAINED OUT

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Two years ago, Chicago White Sox picked up a Philadelphia Athletics discard, Lee (Buck) Ross, a strong-armed right-hander out of Norwood, N.C., who has never been good enough even to make baseball's annual "Who's Who." Yesterday he paid off. Thrown in against New York Yankees, most famous of all hitting circuses, Buck limited them to one scratch single of the "fluke" variety as he twirled the sox to a 3-0 decision.

This was the first whitewash job painted on the Yanks this year and was easily the standout stunt of a day which also saw Freddy Fitzsimmons, fat and 41, fail in his first pitching job in a year, and four of the afternoon's six games decided in the final inning, two of them in overtime. A pair of tussles was rained out.

Several of Buck's teammates and a lot of the fans thought he had his no-hitter when the game ended in Chicago. The only hit off him was a bounder off Nick Etten's bat in the second inning which glanced off Buck's pitching hand. Apparently a lot of folks thought it had been an error, but there was no argument over it in the press box—it was a hit, scratchy as it was.

Fitzsimmons Losing Hurler

For Fitzsimmons, who went less than four innings and was the losing pitcher as Pittsburgh Pirates pounded Brooklyn Dodgers 5-2, the defeat was one of the toughest he's had to take in a big-league career stretching back to 1925. He served up a two-run "boom-boom ball" to Bob Elliott in the first, then walked two men and was tagged for a single by another in the fourth frame—and that was curtains.

New York Giants put on their second-straight ninth-inning rally to knock off Chicago Cubs. This time, after Mel Ott and Ernie Lombardi had hit homers earlier, Sid Gordon singled in the "clincher" with the bases loaded in the final for a 3-2 decision.

The other last-inning sprees saw Washington Senators shove three runs across in the ninth to take Cleveland Indians 3-1 behind Dutch Leonard's nine-hit hurling; Pete Suder put on the squeeze play for the deciding marker as the Athletics nipped Detroit Tigers 7-6 in 11 frames and rookie Charlie Workman, up from Nashville, whacking a single with the bags loaded in the 10th to give Boston Braves a 4-3 edge over St. Louis Cardinals.

TORONTO'S WIN STREAK HALTED AT EIGHT GAMES

Grimes Uses Rookie Hurlers and Newark Wins 7-6

HIT TWO HOMERS

By The Associated Press

Toronto's winning streak was halted at eight games, Blix Donnelly pitched a two-hit fray for Rochester but was defeated and Rufus Gentry tried for another no-hitter yesterday as the International League clubs romped through all four scheduled contests.

Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Leafs decided to take a peek at some of his rookie hurlers and the decision proved fatal to the victory string which had been a-building since May 2.

At that, Newark had to score a lone run in the final frame to nudge the Leafs, 7-6 after Jim Ripple and Happy Davis had clouted homers in the late frames to draw close. Toronto registered twice in its half of the ninth but couldn't pull the engagement out of the fire.

The loss was only the fourth for the Leafs this season.

Allowed Only Two Hits.

Donnelly, speedball king, was touched for a single and a double while striking out nine Jersey City batters but the double followed an error and a pair of walks in the ninth and the Little Giants triumphed 3-2.

Dick West, sent down by the Cincinnati club, caught his first game for Syracuse Chiefs and batted the club to a 5-2 decision over Montreal. He slapped out a trio of blows, including a homer and a double that drove in a pair of tallies.

Gentry chalked up his first victory since his no-hitter on April 25 by limiting Baltimore to nine hits but he needed the home-run clubbing of Mayo Smith and Adam Bengoecha to turn the trick.

Smith's big blow came with two mates on base while Bengoecha connected with one mate on the paths. Smith also chipped in with a double in the 9-3 contest in which Work-Horse Rololie Van Slate was the loser.

EXPECT FIELD OF 12 TO START IN KING'S PLATE

Arbor Vita Seems Horse to Beat in 84th Running Next Saturday

TULACHMORE WORKS

Toronto, May 15 (CP)—A select field of about 12 three-year-olds will go to the post next Saturday in the 84th renewal of the King's Plate, the oldest horse-race fixture run continuously on this continent.

The dozen or so are the best of the 45 thoroughbreds originally nominated for the Ontario turf classic, which is restricted to Ontario-breds and carries the King's 50 guineas and $8,000 added by the Ontario Jockey Club. The race is the feature of the opening day of Canadian racing.

Workouts at Woodbine Park during the past few weeks seem to confirm the turf followers' impression that W. P. Morrissey's brown colt Arbor Vita is still the horse to beat. Arbor Vita was the leading Ontario money-winner as a juvenile last year, with a total of $10,915.

Arbor Vita trimmed much the same field in winning the Clarendon Plate and Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Saucer, big events for two-year-olds last season. In the Coronation Plate at Woodbine he was second to Harry Hatch's Grandpal, which is not expected to start in the Plate.

Had Railbirds Talking

But the MacDonald stable's Tulachmore had the railbirds chattering yesterday when he worked the full Plate distance of a mile and an eighth in 1.58 2-5 over an none-too-good track, the time being only 3-5 second slower than Ten to Ace took in his walkaway Plate victory a year ago.

Riverdale stables' Gallant Foe came into the front rank of choices with a handy mile workout in 1.45 2-5 yesterday. Gallant Foe is one of the few fillies in the race, a daughter of the good campaigner Frisius out of Attack.

Other likely starters are Harry Hatch's Sweepgold, Charles Hemstead's Paolita, Mrs. Grace MacKay's Hemjoy, C. George McCullagh's Vivid Vision, W. T. Northgrave's Pacific Isle or Thrifty Maid, Parkwood Ctable's Heysickle and either Talipat or Raglan, J. Frowde Seagram's Tefnet and H. A. Tomlin's T-Chum.

Toronto, May 14—(CP)—Appeal was instituted at Osgoode Hall yesterday by Carl P. Telfree, Toronto Elector, against a judgment of Mr. Justice J. A. Hope which quashed proceedings instituted by Telfree seeking to declare invalid the act of the Ontario Legislature in passing a one-year extension of the legislature's life.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 15 (CP). — When word was flashed from the Olympic games at Los Angeles in 1932 that Duncan McNaughton had won the high jump for Canada, sports editors in the Dominion were almost unanimous in asking the question: "Who's McNaughton?" It was almost as big a surprise as Percy Williams' sprint victories in 1928 at Amsterdam.

Now McNaughton is in the news again. He is Pilot Officer McNaughton of the R.C.A.F., visiting his Vancouver home and hoping to land an overseas berth shortly in the photographic reconnaissance branch of the Air Force.

Dunc's 1932 Olympic victory caught Canada by surprise because he had done all his major competitive jumping in United States as a student at University of Southern California. He had gone through public and high schools in Vancouver but had chosen to attend the California college.

McNaughton did not compete in the Canadian Olympic trials at Hamilton, Ont., in 1932. Jack Portland of Collingwood, Ont., now a Major League hockey player with Montreal Canadiens, won the trials and was expected to be Canada's top contender for Olympic laurels.

McNaughton was added to the Canadian team at Los Angeles because he was on the spot and had a good reputation as a jumper in California. Portland failed to place in the Olympic jump. McNaughton tied for first place with Van Osdale, a U.S.C. team-mate, and Tooribio of the Philippines. Dunc proved he had the will to win, the competitive courage, when he captured top honors in a gruelling, two-hour jump-off.

Since then, Dunc had dropped from sight. He preferred to make geology his career rather than sport. As a geologist he went to the oilfields in the Colombia jungles near the equator. But he is a Canadian. He's in competition again in another big league—the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Incidentally:

Cornwall finished at the top of the Quebec senior hockey league this year but lost to Ottawa Commandos in the league play-offs. Cornwall aims to do better next season. They say Johnny Shewchuk of Boston Bruins and Hal Dewey of Cleveland Barons are tabbed for Cornwall... Commandos Congratulated On Winning of the Allan Cup

BUY VICTORY BOND

Montreal, May 15. (CP)—George M. Slater of Montreal was re-elected president here last night at the Quebec Senior Hockey League annual meeting at which it was announced that an all-time high attendance mark of 450,308 was recorded during the regular schedule and play-offs. Comparative figures were not available.

Others officers re-elected are:—Vice-Presidents, Marc Drouin and Eddie Gronau and Secretary-Treasurer, Jimmy Voley. The executive announced purchase of $1,000 worth of Victory Bonds.

President Slater congratulated Ottawa Commandos, the League champions for going on to take the Allan Cup.

Reviewing prospects of hockey for next season, Slater said a committee had been appointed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to interview government officials at Ottawa and outline plans for the new season. He also said a suggestion had been made that all Q.S.H.L. teams be limited to the use of five National Hockey League players.

(Many service teams have former N.H.L. stars on their rosters.)

Tribute was paid to Q.S.H.L. members who had died during the year—J. G. Miron, on the executive of the Cornwall, Ont., Club; and Sub Lieut. Russ McConnell of the Montreal Royals.

R. Norman Dawe, president of the parent body—the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association—spoke of the cordial co-operation received from the Q.S.H.L. during the past season.

James McCaffrey, manager of the Commandos, described the team's Victory tour of Canada to the Allan Cup final. He said the Commandos would be honored at a special dinner in Ottawa, June 9.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Britain, May 15 — (CP) — They call them "Flying Yachtsmen," these boys of a Canadian Sunderland squadron, but when they bring these big air boats back from patrol their minds are far from such things of the sea. They rush off to pit wits against Scottish bunkers.

A classic instance of the squadron's devotion to the golf pastime is Sgt. Mike Steffenick of Kindersley, Sask. It could almost be said of Mike that he clambers from behind the guns of a Sunderland and reaches for his niblick.

Mike couldn't be termed a "regular" on Scotland's ancient courses but when he does tread the links he keeps in the low 70's. One of his golfing pals is Flt. Sgt. Ernie Charlton, a Sunderland navigator from Winnipeg. He pencils a pretty good card, too.

Several other sergeants in this squadron led by Wing Cmdr. Larry Skey, D. F. C., Toronto, swing mean clubs and there are plenty of enthusiastic "duffers". Included in the lower handicap bracket are Sgts. Jim Stafford of Calgary, D. P. Porteous of Vancouver and A.M. Spear of Montreal. Everything is just about perfect for the unit's golfers. They are located near a course where both clubs and balls are available — and that's a record in these days of austerity. In addition, link fees are practically negligible of service personnel.

* * *

But to get back to Mike. He held the Goose Lake golf championship in Saskatchewan for two years and was a six-handicapper back home.

Unlike most airmen, Mike doesn't rush to the big cities when leave pops up. He substitutes a golf bag for parachute harness and makes a bee-line for a golf course. He has been over all Scotland's big championship links except one and is familiar with the layout of famous Old St. Andrew's, the "Cradle of Golf", and such others as Carnoustie and Prestwick.

* * *

Back in the good old days Sgt. Ivor Preece of Ottawa and LAC. Jerry Dussault of Quebec City crossed paths on occasion around tennis courts of Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec. Now they meet more frequently—at an air force station stabling a Canadian torpedo-bomber squadron where Preece is a wireless operator-air gunner and Dussault works in the orderly room.

Preece was one of Ottawa's leading doubles players, once partner of the brilliant Joe O'Hara. One of his best performances was as a runner-up for the Maritimes doubles crown.

Dussault, 20, was a crack junior when war sirens blew and was runner-up in a Montreal district tourney. He's exchanged shots with such outstanding netmen as Vancouver's Bill Pedlar and Phil Pearson, former Davis Cuppers, and with Don McDiarmid of Ottawa, Canadian champion now overseas with the R.C.A.F. Preece and Dussault despite the more important job at hand, still find time to get together on the courts once in a while.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Counsel was cross-questioning a witness in an important case. He asked: "And on July 11 you say you called upon Mrs. Murphy. Now, what did she say?"

"I object, my lord, to the question," interrupted the opposing counsel. Then ensued an hour's fierce argument between counsel; and in the end the judge allowed the question.

"And as I was saying," continued counsel, "you called upon Mrs. Murphy. Now, what did she say?"

"Nothing—she was out," was the reply.

Softball Convenes.

President H. Chris Knott announced today that the annual meeting and election of officers for the Belleville and District Softball Association will be held in the police court rooms on Monday evening. Associate clubs please note and such teams functioning last year are: Army and Navy Vets and champions, Mountain View "Bombers", Stephens Adamson "Marines", Bristol Aircraft, No. 5 I.T.S. "Flyers", Reliance A.C. and Belleville juniors.

Last season saw one of the most successful years of city league softball played in Belleville in many years and at least six of last year's clubs have already signified their intentions of facing the 1943 barrier again. The "Vets" have abandoned the sponsorship of an intermediate team for that of fostering junior softball in Belleville and according to reports the Vets juniors will be the classiest dressed squad in the loop. It is proposed to bedeck the kids with blue trousers along with white shirts trimmed with red satin.

Regretful News.

It was with much regret that Bubby Gaulin had to announce that the Point Anne "Cementmen" would not be able to play in the city softball league again this year. "We have the nucleus of a good club, but the question of transportation under the present gas rationing program makes it impossible for us to see our way clear to field a team with all games being played at the Belleville Exhibition Park," explained Bubby Gaulin. Last season the bulk of the 1941 intermediate champion Point Anne team played with the Army and Navy, but with the Vets out of the intermediate picture there should be a wild scramble for the Cement Village players. With such players as Ding Luffman, Murney Green, Art Whitehead, Mike Whalen, Pee Wee Hutchings, Murney Green Jr. and others available from Ox Point, such players would not only be an asset to any other club, but also help to raise the playing strength of the league in general.

Bigtime Stuff.

Promoter Frank Tunney surely rang the bell with the announcement of his main bout for next Wednesday night's main bout at the Hume Arena. He signed no less personages than Yvon Robert of Montreal to meet the sensational colored champion, "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, from Cape Town, South Africa.

Robert once held the world title and even today is claimant for that crown and recognized as such in Quebec, Boston and the New England States. Claybourne proved the most popular wrestler ever to appear in a local ring in his first appearance the other night and mat patrons are still singing praises of his ring prowess. This bout sticks out as truly bigtime.

Remember when—

Four years ago today a frog-jumping contest at Angels' Camp, California, created wide interest. "Zip", a "dark horse", surprised the fans by leaping 15 feet, 10 inches, setting the record. Nowadays, the spectacular jumping in California is being done by Uncle Sam's troopers on commando training.

Bill Dickey's Opinion.

Bill Dickey, veteran catcher of the Yankees, who is anything but a popoff, spoke his piece on the new ball after the opening game. Chirped William: "The ball's a dud. It's the deadest ball I've seen in my 16 years with the Yankees. It's a refined bean-ball and just about as lively".

DID YOU KNOW — There is a movement on foot, backed by officials of the Y.M.C.A., to adopt a program of recreation and sports for the teen aged children of Belleville? . . . Sensing the increased amount of juvenile delinquency that is spreading the length and breadth of the continent, "Y" officials feel the introduction of such a program would materially help to alleviate the situation in Belleville. . . . In all world series history 225 games have been played. The American League has won 126 of them and tied three. . . . The American League has won 24 of the 39 world series played with the National. . . . This is Joe McCarthy's thirteenth year at the head of the Yanks. Before Joe, the manager on the job longest was Miller Huggins, twelve seasons. . . . In seven seasons the A's have lost 100 or more games, and on two other occasions lost 99. . . . The Yanks have an old battery in Jim Turner, 37, and Bill Dickey, 36. . . . The Pirates have finished in the first division of the National League 34 times in the last 43 seasons. . . . Thomas H. Connolly, chief of American League umpires, has been in the league since its start in 1901. . . . Bill McGowan is the oldest umpire in the American League. He started in the circuit in 1925.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.)

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, May 15. AP)—This is a queer town. . . . An inter-Collegiate track meet today figures to draw only about 4,000 customers because it's being held on Randall's Island—just a five-minute bus ride from the subway. . . . The same athletes pulled more than 10,000 into the garden for the indoor championships and it was called a "disappointing" gate.

One-Minute Sports Page.

Only three of the Chicago Cubs who won the National League championships in 1938 still are with the Club. They're Stan Hack, Bill Lee and Phil Cavarretta. . . . Fred Digby of the New Orleans item missed a perfect record of picking the Derby and Preakness 1-2-3-4 by putting Seven Hearts, who was scratched, third on his Derby list. Fred and Count Fleet now are aiming at triple crowns in the Belmont. . . . . .

Today's Guest Star.

Jesse Linthicum, Baltimore Sun: "Chalky Wright, pound for pound, is one of the greatest fighters to come along in this generation. Some wiseacre may crack that he doesn't belong to this generation".

Cleaning The Cuff.

There'll be no special "track" buses for Fairmount Park racing fans this morning so the fans will have to hoof it 260 feet from the main highway to the gate. . . How far they have to walk to get back to St. Louis depends entirely on the customers themselves.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 56

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

How times have changed from days of yore when Father graced the barroom floor. When little Nell would pipe appeal for Pop to start his homeward reel.

How often would we jerk a tear for Maw whose life was drab and drear. Who sadly sat home gnawing gristle while Paw went out to wet his whistle.

Those awful times have gone away. Now, home is cheerful, neat and gay. Where Father takes a restful snooze or tunes his mike for latest news.

No longer does Ma stand and scrub a week of washing in a tub. Instead she goes to join the WAACs. Or sheds her dress to put on slacks.

With war work finished for the day, she takes a little time to play. So, nowadays, if we know grief, it well might be this kind of beef:

Oh, Mother, dear Mother, come home with us now. The baby needs nursing — and changing — and HOW!" "Oh, children, dear children, there's no use to blubber. I cannot come home till we finish this rubber."

When you come right down to it, bridge is Mother's most popular furlough from housework. What a pity that experts induce her to make such hard work of the game.

Mama plays bridge easier and faster with Horse Sense rules. For no-trump tricks, she counts aces, kings, queens. She adds her short cards to them for suit tricks.

She opens one in a suit with five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable suit. She opens one no-trump with five no-trump tricks, two sure tricks, and no biddable suit.

She has this hand:

♠A 9 5
♥Q 8 3
♦K 7 4 2
♣K 5 2

She knows this hand is not an opening bid of one. It has four high cards. But it is shy a trick. It is shy a sure trick. It has no biddable suit.

What she needs now are some simple rules about responses. Come along and see what they look like.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Klondike Fury"

One of the finest motion pictures ever produced by Monogram is "Klondike Fury", which comes to the Capitol theatre on Sunday midnight, with Edmund Lowe in the starring role.

An exceptional cast appears in support of the star, including Lucile Fairbanks, William Henry, Ralph Morgan, Mary Forbes, Clyde Cook, Jeanne Brooks, Vince Barnett, Robert Middlemass and many other popular Hollywood players.

"Wife Takes a Flyer"

"The Wife Takes a Flyer", Columbia's new comedy romance with Joan Bennett and Franchot Tone, opens Sunday midnight as the added hit at the Capitol Theatre. Directed by Richard Wallace and produced by B. P. Schulberg, the cast also includes Allyn Joslyn, Cecil Cunningham and Roger Clark. "The Wife Takes a Flyer" is said to be the laugh-filled fable of an R.A.F. man who bails out over enemy territory, into the arms of the loveliest saboteur who ever made a Hitlerite feel like a heel.

AT THE BELLE

"Star Spangled Rhythm"

Every Paramount star you can think of, and more than that, is in the long-heralded musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rhythm," which comes today to the Belle Theatre after three weeks at the Imperial Theatre, Toronto.

And by "every Paramount star you can think of," we mean such outstanding favorites as Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Victor Moore, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Vera Zorina, Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester and many, many others.

The story tells of the dilemma of the Paramount studio gateman, Victor Moore, who has been pretending to his sailor son, Eddie Bracken, that he runs the studio. When Eddie shows up on shore leave, the old man is on the spot. Betty Hutton helps him off via a serious of hilarious deceptions, in which more than 48 stars and directors actually appear and do their stuff.

The Belle News of the World and Popeye in "Spinach for Britain" will be presented on the same program. Continuous shows will be presented today. The engagement ends on Wednesday.

Murmuring that she didn't want any publicity about the matter, Mrs. Rose Hovick appeared in Domestic Relations Court in New York city and said that her daughter, Gypsy Rose Lee, ABOVE, had stripped her of her allowance. The famed undresser told a reporter that she didn't know what it was all about.

Little Benny's Note Book

I took a walk with pop before dinner, and on the way home I said, Do you see this man coming, pop? He's been stopping people to ask them for money and I bet he'll stop you too, I said.

Meaning a man with a green necktie and a red face without a shave, and pop said, I know how to get rid of him if he takes me for an easy mark. I'll offer him work. In these days of acute labor shortage no healthy man has any excuse to beg, he said.

Which just then the man stopped in front of pop saying, Could you spare me a little change, mister, I haven't had anything to eat all day hardly.

I've got something better than that for you, I've got a job of work that'll give you a chance to really earn some money, pop said, and the man said, G, mister, that's swell, lucky and wanting to start that way. now.

Which he started to do and pop said, I warn you it's not easy work, it's full of dust and splinters and heavy lifting and carrying.

Work's work, lead me to it, the man said. And he kept on walking alongside of pop, and Mr. Simkins went passed and turned around to look, and pop said, It'll probably take you a good many hours and there wont be anything to eat for you meanwhile because we're not doing any housekeeping just now with all that hauling and moving and sawing and sweeping to be done.

I'm used to not eating and I can sleep anywhere, I'll sleep on your kitchen floor or any place, the man said, and just then Mrs. Judge looked out her front window at us with her mouth open, and pop said, You win the oratarical contest, brother, here's the silver meddle.

Meaning a half a dollar, and the man took it and quick walked away like somebody suddenly feeling lucky nd wanting to sta that way.

Miss Kitty gave out the report cards in school today, mine being pretty bum, and I had to give it to pop to sign on account of that being one of the rules of the family, and he was smoking to himself after dinner and I thought I better ask him gradual, saying, Hay pop, I'm getting better in school by degrees.

Good, that's the same way the temperature improves, pop said, and I said, The only trouble is, the degrees vary, I mean sometimes they're a good deel smaller. Anyways, pop, if I get a lot better can I go in business with you when I grow up, William P. Potts and Son Company? I said.

That has rather a quaint and pleasant sound, I admit, pop said. It's a nice thing to think about, but I dont know, though, it seems to me your nature is a bit too dreamy for business. It's probably more suitable for painting clouds on ceilings as an assistant to some first rate mural artist, he said, and I said, Anyways, pop, here's my new report card. I've had worse ones, I said.

That's rather faint praise, pop said. You must be getting better by pretty sickly degrees, he said.

And he started to look at it, saying, Yee gods, arifmetic Very Poor.

That's my worst thing, that's my only Very Poor, I said. Is there much arifmetic in business, pop? I said, and he said, Entirely too much, I'm afraid, if you include the red figures.

Well then gosh, pop maybe I cant go in with you, because I dont think I'll ever be very perfect in arifmetic, I said and pop said, Well, the world of opportunity is wide and there's a nitch for everybody. If your head for figures is quite hopeless you might make an ideal government economist, he said.

Sounding important anyways.

We were eating dinner, the main thing being a little steak under a lot of onions, and ma said to pop, William, you just simply have no idea of the way money goes for vegetables these days.

I have a sort of hazy idea of the way money goes in general, pop said, and ma said, Now take these string beans.

I've been taking them with pleasure, they're especially tasty, pop said, and ma said, Well I'm sure they ought to be, because they certainly were especially high. Fifty cents a pound at this time of year, can you conceive of it in your wildest imaginings? she said.

My mind can take in about 39 cents and a pound of string beans at the same time, but after that it balks pop said, and ma said, And even these potatoes, ordinary unpealed raw potatoes 3 pounds for 30 cents.

That's practically 10 cents a pound, when you break it down, pop said, and ma said, Isn't it awful? And do you know what I had to pay for this solitary cucumber that's mixed with the tomato salad? Twenty eight cents. I wont even mention the price of the tomatoes themselves, she said.

No, they might not like it, they might turn even redder, pop said. And before we get off the subject, my dear, will you help me to a small helping of beans, say about 9 cents worth? he said.

It's no scoffing matter, ma said. And she gave pop more beans, saying, I wish every living sole had a victory garden. That would show somebody something, whoever's responsible, she said, and pop said, I'd like a 4 cent portion of potatoes too, and if the spoon slips and you give me too much I'll even it up by returning a couple of cents worth of cucumber slices.

Now William are you going to keep that up or do I have to get mad? ma said, and pop said, The general and inclusive answer is No.

Being the end of the subject.

PASSING DREAM

by MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 16

"I'd rather you think, 'I belong to Jud for three days and there's nothing anybody can do or say about it.'"

She shook her head and smiled again. "But it isn't real."

"It's real enough, but it's so new. You aren't used to it yet. Wife . ." He shook his head and smiled a very boyish smile. "Nope. Doesn't click either. Wives are things other men have. Wives don't like you to spill ashes on the rug or get tight or spend your own money." He drew her to him and kissed her. He looked very happy. "You'll have to tell me the way to Paula's farm house."

"What's the name of this little town?"

They rode down the lane between green fields. It was lovelier, she thought, than the carpeted aisle that led to an altar. Jud stopped the car at the picket fence and looked with approval mixed with amusement at the little white house.

She gave him the key as they walked up the flagstone path to the front door.

When he had difficulty opening the door, he said, "This never happens in the movies."

But an instant later he was sweeping her up in his arms, carrying her across the threshold of a home borrowed for a honeymoon of three days.

From the kitchen she could see Jud wearing a brown sweater, his collar open, sitting in the chair before the fire smoking his pipe. As she dried the last dish, she thought, "I'll go upstairs by the back way and pack. I don't want him to see me pack." As she looked down at the plaid skirt and red sweater and moccasins she thought, "I'll wear these back."

But when she went upstairs she found that he had packed. There was nothing of his in the room except his brown Gladstone. Presently there was nothing of hers except her bag. Once more the room was just one of Paula's guest rooms. Not her room and Jud's where there had been laughter and love and the sound of their voices in the night but . . just one of Paula's guest rooms. Who would sleep here next, unknowing? Who could sleep here next, unknowing?

She came downstairs, went into the living-room, sat on a footstool and lay her head against Judson's knee. Humility that had once come hard to her came easily now. He ran his fingers through her hair.

"It's been idyllic, Temple. And the peace, Oh, the peace of this! Listen to the rain. It's like music. Music to us while to others it bogs down the machinery of war and brings a curse. We haven't seen a newspaper and we haven't turned on the radio. Temple, what do you know of marriage now?"

"I know that ecstasy isn't just a word I couldn't ever spell."

He smiled. "Husband is real. So is wife. Very real. You've been so wonderful and so alive, so terribly alive. We've given our best. We've had the best . ."

"I want you to stay in love with me all of my life, Jud."

She did not see the muscles in his jaw tighten. "That'll be easy. You won't ever get fat and you have the kind of mind that will always go exploring and learning. Will you write often? Remind me to write down my address."

She stopped breathing for a moment. "I'll probably write too much. No, I won't write unless I have something to say."

"And you'll be cautious in what you say?"

When she wrote to him, she could not be his wife. "Of course."

"We have to say these things, darling. I don't want to talk about them either. When I get settled and know the ropes, I want you to come down. That brings up the sordid subject of money. I should not need all of that twenty-one a month. In a few months I should be able to send you something."

"I'll manage."

"You're sleepy. I'll move the chair and get some pillows and we will lie down before the fire."

"How much longer have we?"

"I'd say about three hours."

It had been three days. Now it was only three hours.

They lay side by side on the hearth rug and the shadows played over them.

"I hope your thoughts are happy ones, Temple."

"They are. My thoughts are at peace even though we have less than three hours. I thing this is the first time in my life that simply being alive was enough for me. I was always trying to do things better than anyone else—not to show off, but to prove to myself that I could. But to be a good lover you have to have only an intense awareness of being alive and in love. That is enough."

"I hope your growing pains won't hurt too much."

"I'd hate to be like Paula. She'll never discover anything again. Nothing will ever be new to her. What good are mink coats and diamond bracelets when nothing will ever be new to you. No new sensations, no surprises."

He watched her as she slept. There was a lost look on his face. He let her sleep as long as he could. When he awakened her, she saw that he had brought down their bags and put out the fire and closed the curtains.

"Why did you let me sleep?" She had slept away time! Nothing was as precious as time now! She arose, pushed back her hair.

"Don't dress," he said gently. "You look all right. I won't take you to your front door. That would look too obvious. . . put you in a taxi a few blocks away." He stood still and looked at her. "Are you ready, Temple?"

"Will I ever be ready? I'm sorry for that. Yes, I'm ready."

She put her arms around him. For an instant it amazed her, as it had for three days, that she could be so demonstrative. She closed her eyes, thinking, "as long as I can touch him, I'm happy. There isn't any sadness when he's near."

He was smiling. "What? 'No tears? I knew you wouldn't make it tough for me. I wonder if there's a rule, about carrying the bride back over the threshold . . . the other way, I mean. If not, here's a new rule. . . By the way, how much do you weigh?"

They were laughing when the door closed behind them. The click of the lock resounded in her mind.

In a few moments they were riding down the lane again.

Temple entered the boardinghouse quickly and quietly, hoping, praying that no one would see her. When she closed the door of her room and put down her bag, she saw that everything was the same. The room, Abby's playing softly on the piano downstairs, a letter from home which the maid had left on the dresser. Everything was the same. But how could it be? Slowly she took off her wedding ring and let it rest in the palm of her hand before she put it in the dresser drawer to be locked later.

Everything was the same. It would go on being the same. And tomorrow she would sit in the big office and type and look at the clock on the wall, trying to keep from screaming.

The following afternoon in the station their final good-bye was brief and hurried. Jud was late and when he arrived, breathless and anxious, they had only a minute. No time now, no time to say any of the things she wanted to say.

"Are you all right, Temple?" he asked, his fingers pressing into her arm. "You look . . " He smiled. "You look as if your sleep has caught up with you."

"I'm fine, Jud. You'll write soon? I don't know your address. We forgot."

"Soon as I get there. Take care of yourself, darling."

They were walking together now. He stopped, then put his arms around her and kissed her mouth hard. The train was moving and people were looking at them through the windows.

"Good-bye, Jud!"

He was running away from her to the moving train.

She raised her hand to wave but dropped it. There was no one to whom to wave. He was gone.

For a few minutes she stood alone, bewildered and empty, before she turned and walked slowly out of the station. Imps in her mind were jeering at her, "You're married but you have no husband. You're a war bride. . . What now, little girl? What now?"

Jud had said, truly, that memories were no good because they could not talk to you or make you laugh or touch you. Temple wondered now if he had learned, as she had, that they were tormenting shadows from which there was no escape . . even as there was no escape from the summer heat which descended, like a plague, upon Washington. Her life went on in its routine way as though she were in a deep groove made bearable by letters from Jud and from home.

It seemed to her a long time before she began to live again after he left, to feel hot or cold, to taste or to see. Each day she sat at her typewriter in the large room; each night she went back to the house to sit in the same chair at dinner and then to go to her room to write or to sit again, looking into space, remembering those three days in May or what Jud had written last.

His letters were brief and hurriedly written. The training was rigid, the food fair and the men a "good lot"; but getting up at five brought out the worst in him. Usually his letters consisted of two paragraph, the first containing a terse report of his activities, the second his thoughts of her, ardent and sweet. Her letters to him were much longer and more carefully written, even though the thermometer hovered near the century mark. She wrote beautiful things which she did not believe herself capable of expressing. Yet in none of them was she his wife.

OUR TEA RATION

Greek Minister Expresses Gratitude For Generous Donations to Relief Fund

Total contributions to the Greek War Relief Fund drive which was staged in Belleville during late winter and early spring were $2,159 according to Mr. Sam Pappas, prominent Greek leader in this city.

While there was no organized drive for assistance to the Greek War Relief contributions and donations were accepted from various organizations. The local Greek fraternity turned over the proceeds of one day's business to the fund.

An organ recital staged by Mr. Alec Gordon in Bridge Street United Church realized $502, while sundry donations turned in later by Mr. Gordon totalled $27. St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church donated $50 and contributions through the Royal Bank netted another $45. Ten dollars was received direct from Mrs. D. Leeming.

Proceeds from a play produced by Miss Joanne Maraskas and which was staged in the Belleville collegiate amounted to $525 and contributions from Greek stores totalled $1,000. Total net contributions to the fund have now been forwarded to headquarters of the Greek War Relief Fund in Montreal with the following letter of appreciation being received from G. Depasta, Minister of Greece, Ottawa. The letter follows:—

Mr. Sam Pappas,

Dear Sir: I have noted with great satisfaction that two outstanding functions were held in Belleville, Ont., for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Fund of Canada. Due to the magnificent results you obtained, it is a real pleasant duty for me to convey to you personally and through you to each one of the members of your committee and all co-operating with you, the sincere appreciation and heartfelt thanks of the Greek government.

Judging from your active enthusiasm and feeling sure you will continue your patriotic efforts on behalf of our suffering people, please accept my sincere congratulations and best wishes to each of you for a very happy Easter.

Sincerely yours,
G. Depasta,
Minister to Greece.

Front Line Coast Line

(BBC Press Service)

Probably it is the saddest little communique in the world. Practically every day in the English week it appears, buried at the foot of some newspaper column, insignificant yet vividly real. Usually only a few words are necessary: "Bombs which were dropped at several places caused some damage. There were casualties, including a small number of people killed". And then, often for good measure, there is a supplementary paragraph which says "Four enemy raiders were brought down by R.A.F. fighters". So more British lives have been given—gladly enough—for the cause which Britain and the British Empire and Britain's allies, believe to be great and right and just.

There has been hardly a day in Britain since July 1940 free from air-raids. True enough, those mass affairs of 1940 and early 1941 are now portion of the history of war in the air. No longer do 400 and 500 planes sweep from London to Liverpool, from Hull to Southampton, from Portsmouth to Glasgow and Edinburgh, and even Aberdeen and Inverness. Not for almost two years have we in London known the shattering horror of the mass raids of the past.

* * *

Perhaps in those days we felt that there was not much future for any of us, until those of us whose job it was to tell the story of England to the British Empire began to see the indomitable courage of what I call England's little people. By that I do not mean that her greater people have one whit less courage, nor do I suggest that they have not joined to the utmost limit of their capacity in fighting the war for Britain, and standing up as they stood up to the worst onslaughts of the Luftwaffe. But today in the endless bringing of death from the skies by the Luftwaffe, the little people are always in the front line.

No longer do the Germans find it cheap enough to risk their planes in masses at the great cities. As British and American bombers bring home the lesson in their relentless smashing of German industry and military objectives, Germany retaliates in a snide and cowardly way. Those of us who watched the early raids on some little coastal towns in 1940 knew the temperament of the German airman. He wanted everything, as British Air Force slang has it, to be a piece of cake. He wanted to make his machine-gun bear on what British airmen call the middle button. He could only do that when there was no adequate anti-aircraft barrage. He could only achieve his object of killing school-children and aiming direct at their playground when either through cloud he could evade retaliatory action, or he was flying over some tiny village near to a portion of England's coast.

* * *

Ever since May 10, 1941, as British air-power has grown, Germany's air striking has been done almost exclusively at the little people of this country. Not long ago I saw the ruins of a school in a quiet suburb. The German airman must have got the school playground and the children directly in his sights before he dropped his bombs, for later he boasted on the German radio that he had hit the target he had been ordered to hit. And then, for good measure, he returned, aiming—as I wrote for Australia—almost at the hair-ribbons on some of the tiny children standing aghast in the playground. He had already killed those who were in the school dining-room, but his day of joy was no complete until he had fired his guns at the others. No doubt the ribbon of the Iron Cross he received may remind him, in some of the sleepless nights of the future, of the hair-ribbons of the little girls he killed.

* * *

Each day now he comes over, except when weather is bad. Very, very rarely does he reach the big cities. The R.A.F. fighters see to that. Occasionally, after heavy raids on Berlin, the enemy sends what can only be regarded as a token force to raid London.

I had the great pleasure of being with some American war correspondents on the first of these fighter-dodging reprisals. The Americans had to be restrained, as most Americans occasionally have to be, from getting into trouble. A couple of the boys who had only arrived within the week, didn't think it necessary to take their tin hats into the Strand, from which they saw the show. One had to remind them that the barrage of today can be just about as lethal as the German bombs themselves, for Britain no longer says she can take it. Britain today gives it, as every German airman who has ever crossed as far as London knows and will remember, if he is alive.

* * *

But the little churchyards in many an English village do not show the [illegible] as fresh graves because of token raids on London. Obviously in quiet hamlets in which there is no military objective there is no need for heavy anti-aircraft protection. The villagers, the country folk, whether in small houses or big, realize they cannot be protected as great arsenals or factories would be. That knowledge does not alter one jot of their simple daily lives. The village church and the village chapel welcome them on Sundays. They have their Wings-for-Victory campaigns and their local whist drives for war aims and objects. Their village schools go on as in the days of peace. Their old men meet as cronies in the tiny local pubs and drink the local ale.

At nights the blackout descends upon the village, and there is silence, until some gallant German raider decides this is the place to drop his bombs. When he drops a bomb in a village, perhaps the life of the village ends. The German bomb could destroy, and has destroyed, the whole street of some tiny English or Scottish hamlet. And after the rubble has settled, the dust and smoke have cleared, the little people who remain—with their warden's hats, their local doctor, their local parsons—set about the work of recovering their beloved dead and succouring their wounded.

* * *

There is no beauty in suffering, except in the ability of people to suffer for a cause. Never in my experience of different countries have I seen courage such as is shown in these quiet small places to which death drops in from the air, when old ladies are brewing their pot of tea and old men lean on their sticks getting joy from the last ray of sunshine before evening comes.

These little places and these little people are eagerly sought by what are now known as "tip-and-run" raiders. What could be better from the point of view of the German Luftwaffe lieutenant than to take a village green or a village street, one preferably in which there is no anti-aircraft battery within a score of miles. And then just before the sun goes down, the streets of the village are made hideous by machine gun bullets and cannon shells, and perhaps a small calibre bomb from a German bomber—and life ceases for some. But life goes on for England, and life goes on in every great munitions factory, in every great troop concentration, in every avenue which is helping, once and for all to smash the military edifice which has grown like a cancer on Germany.

* * *

But the villagers are not the only ones to suffer. In the suburbs of cities and of London as well, scarcely a day passes without another Englishman or Englishwoman laying down his or her life in the great cause which belongs to us all. The simple news tells the story. Drivers trapped in their blazing buses, bombs dropped in shopping centres, as workers before eight in the morning crowd buses and trams in order to get to their work; streets gunned in towns in Home Counties and elsewhere; German aeroplanes skimming over telegraph wires so that they can escape anti-aircraft fire; trains machine-gunned as they approach stations, passengers killed and injured in their compartments; motorists on official business killed on the highways by lone Messerschmidts—that is all portion of the daily life of England.

And England today, as in 1940, is not afraid. Now to say that England is not afraid does not mean that one boasts on account of the courage of others. All I can say, as one from Australia, is that I have not yet met or heard of a simple English family of little people who have any fear when they realize they must remain in danger in order to help their country.

Great lessons have been learned from air raids—lessons which may be valuable if in the future similar raids occur. People were left homeless in their thousands after the great Blitzes, but they are being left homeless today in a score of little places. And therefore the training of the Civil Defence services is directed not only towards saving lives where possible, but to maintaining life when families are bereaved and homeless.

* * *

No one in this country imagines for a moment that there well be any cessation of tip-and-run raiding, no matter on what reduced scale major German assaults have been observed. The English people of the villaegs have today an outlook on life and death which is not merely emotional effect. Their habits and their customs do not change, although death is always over them. The humour—dry, some of it, but real nevertheless—of the people in England's little places, does not permit of morbid worrying about tonight or tomorrow or the next night. That is not merely a fatalistic attitude. Each man and each woman values clinging to existence. But whatever four years of war have not taught England, they have given her people a new strength and a new confidence.

For those who die in little places as German planes bank steeply and swoop back across the Channel to Occupied France, there are no elaborate obituary notices. There are no paeans of praise for them, either in their newspaper or on their radio. They want neither. They are the people for whom perhaps the greatest elegy is given practically every day in England. That elegy consists, as I said before, of a few lines in a short communique saying just this: "There were few casualties, some of them fatal". But those who are left in the villages know that they are beating their enemies—and that is all they live for today in England.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, May 15 (CP)—The combined training organization usually is praised for the number of airmen it has made available for operations against the enemy but it's done something else—solved a wartime traffic problem in Britain. H. A. Jones of the United Kingdom air mission here is the authority for the statement.

Space in the air, as on the ground, is pretty tight in Britain. It was getting to the stage where mass fleets of bombers going to or coming from Axis territory and hundreds of training planes were forming a virtual "traffic jam."

Then a large share of the British training program was moved to Canada under the C.T.O. not only were extra airfields made available for operational squadrons but the strain on landing, communication and other facilities was relieved.

Just by the way, Air Minister Power is expected to give some interesting statistics on the extent of British air training in Canada when the war appropriation bill is before the House of Commons.

Washington's tight housing situation won't be any problem for Prime Minister King when he goes there next week to see Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Mr. King, as he has done on all his trips to the United States Capitol in recent years, will stay aboard his private railway car when not at the White House. And it's up to the railway line to find a "parking" place.

Incidentally Mr. Churchill's arrival probably accounts for the unexpected cancellation of plans for an Ottawa visit by Dr. H. V. Evatt, Australian Minister of Foreign Affairs, which wasn't explained at the time. The British Prime Minister was on the point of leaving London then.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D. MacLeod) was talking about a list of goods shipped to Britain under the $1,000,000,000 gift of last year ... "If you took cod-liver oil out and put in men's underwear, it wouldn't alter the picture," he said.

"Well," interjected John R. MacNicol (Toronto Davenport) amid chuckles, "the underwear would keep out more cold."

Within half an hour, two members mentioned in the House that they were connected—one closely, one remotely—with ship casualties of the war at sea...Munitions Minister Howe was torpedoed on the way to England and described himself as "one of the first sinkings" of the accentuated submarine campaign of late 1940...And T. L. Church (Prog. Con. Toronto Broadview) recalled that a wooden ship built on the Great Lakes, and named for himself, "was sunk the third day of the war, along with the Athenia and all the rest of them," with loss of all on board.

When Rev. M. W. Coady, Director of extension at St. Francis Xavier university in Antigonish, N.S., commented the Credit Union at Waterford, N.S., had loaned its members $250,000 over a term of years and "never lost a five-cent piece," no one was more interested than W. R. McDonald (Lib. Pontiac).

"Speaking as a country merchant, I wish I knew the secret," he mused, mournfully.

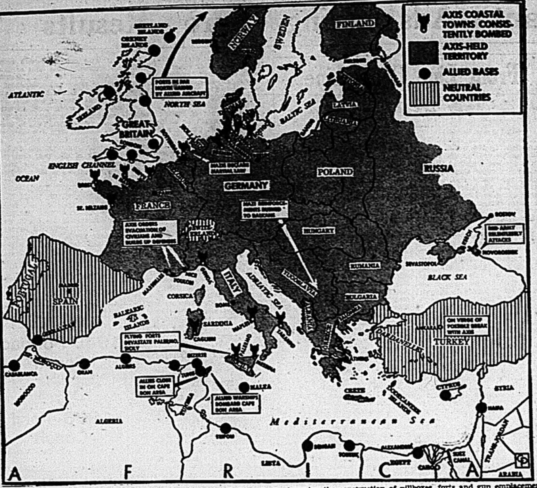
OUSTED FROM AFRICA, ANXIOUS AXIS AWAITS INVASION



Their African legions decimated, Axis leaders now are excitedly and blindly rushing work on fortifications at every spot along Europe's vast coastlines where there is even a remote chance that the Allies might attempt an invasion. On the Mediterranean islands of Crete and Sicily, in Greece and the Balkans, along the Italian and French coasts and in the Low Countries and Scandinavia, the Germans, Italians and satellites are hurrying the construction of pillboxes, forts and gun emplacements. Meanwhile, Allied air forces are pounding constantly at these possible invasion points as indicated on this comprehensive map; Russian forces are attacking in the Caucasus and also pounding the Nazis from the air; Turkey is reported on the verge of breaking with the Axis. Invasion is imminent, the Axis peoples are worried and conquered populations are growing more restless.

Delay May Make Victory Over Japan Impossible

Veteran War Correspondent Warns U. S. Must Throw Everything Available at Nips

IN STRONG POSITION

Unless the United States soon starts to hurl every weapon available at Japan while stepping up lend-lease aid to make certain that China remains in the war on the Allies' side, the Far East struggle may become impossible to win.

This forthright view on the critical situation in the Pacific is contained in an article in the current issue of Collier's Weekly by Clark Lee, Associated Press Pacific correspondent who states that Japan is prepared to sacrifice 10,000,000 men—nearly the size of the contemplated U.S. Army—to hold her captured empire.

"The truth is that Japan already has won her war", says Lee who discloses how the Nipponese are consolidating ill-gotten gains in the arc swinging from the Aleutians to New Guinea, the Netherlands East Indies to the Indian border.

"Unless we start to fight Japan soon with every weapon at our command, and unless we keep China in the war on our side, we may find this second war impossible to win. . . .All that Japan needs to make her the world's greatest power is time—time to exploit and developer new empire and to unite the people of Asia under her leadership".

• • •

And this unification already is underway, according to Lee. He points out that Japan is rapidly scattering her heavy industries, heretofore concentrated along a 400-mile strip of coast near Tokyo, to North China, Korea, Shanghai, Manila and Singapore. He tells how Japan is distributing rice as one means of maintaining "peace and order" and winning the friendship of the "liberated" peoples in occupied areas from which more and more products "are reaching Japanese factories".

To tie her vast empire together Japan is using the airplane as effectively as she employed it in war. Lee writes:

"The airplane is the key to Japan's plan for holding what she has taken. In our future advances, regardless of whether they are made island by island or directly against Japan's key bases, we will have to send sea-borne invasion forces against land-based planes. Without air control our forces will be smashed".

Lee recalls that Lieut. Gen. Homma during an interview in 1939 told him of Japan's intention, should war develop, to wage a conflict costly in lives—10,000,000 Japs if necessary—in order to convince Americans that "Japan is the logical nation to govern the Orient".

• • •

"If Japan's purpose is to play for a stalemate and hold what she has taken, our present policy of a 'holding war' in the Pacific is playing directly into the hands of the Tokyo war lords, for we are holding on lines established by Japan and not by ourselves", Lee writes. "We" 'stopped' the Japanese only after they had seized everything they needed and before they made the mistake of extending their lines too far. . .In sixteen months of war we have taken one airfield and three jungle towns. Japan has captured an empire.

"It took us six months of heavy fighting to drive the Japanese from Guadalcanal. That fighting ended in a victory, but it is certain that the Japanese have dug in strongly throughout the Solomons. . . . The Japanese could lose all of the Solomons and all of New Guinea and New Britain without endangering any vital point in their empire".

• • •

Lee stresses the importance both to the Nipponese and the United Nations, of airplanes which, according to latest estimates, are being produced by the Japs at the rate of from 800 to 1,000 a month. He says that Japanese Army and Navy is chiefly concerned with building an impregnable wall of defences around their Asiatic conquests, explaining:

"These defences centre around a chain of airfields for land-based planes, none of them more than 700 miles apart, and extending from Kiska to the border of India and from Singapore through the Solomons and Munda Bay to the mandated islands of the Pacific.

". . .The Japanese believe that airplanes, in sufficient numbers, can defend land bases by sinking an invasion fleet. . . . . .

"The Japanese are not overlooking the possibility that in some local area the United States may be able to mass sufficient airpower to make landing operations possible, as was done in the Solomons.

"Rehabilitation"

New Methods With War Wounded

By N. Ross Smith

(BBC Press Service)

One night some months ago one of our bombers was returning to Malta from a raid on Naples when the petrol gave out. The pilot glided the plane and managed to make land, but only by crash landing into a quarry. Very soon the Rescue Squad from the nearby aerodrome was on the spot and with cranes and pulleys rescued the surviving members of the crew. All were unconscious and one of them was also severely injured with a compound fracture of one thigh bone and dislocation of a shoulder. It must have looked as if this man would never fly again. Yet eight months later his arm and leg were almost normal and a few weeks later he was passed fit for flying.

Another pilot, flying a Hurricane over enemy territory, had his plane hit by gun-fire. When he got back to his aerdrome he found that the undercarriage had been damaged and he had to make a crash landing. Tightly jammed and harnessed into his seat, the impact on landing caused a severe fracture of his spine and wounds of his scalp. It might well have been thought that this airman was finished for flying even if he escaped with his life. But three weeks later he was up and about and not much more than three months after his accident, he was back on full flying duties.

A third pilot crashed while landing, his plane turning a complete somersault. His neck was broken, yet four months later he was back at full flying work with full confidence that his neck was as good as ever.

• • •

I want to tell you how the apperently miraculous recovery of them and many hundreds of similar cases has come about. It is by a process called "rehabilitation" of the injured. This simply means organized steps of treatment to get the injured man back as soon as possible and as far as possible to his former physical and mental fitness. It is almost as much a mental as a physical process. We aim to give him both the confidence and the strength to take up his former work, or, if the severity of his injuries makes that impossible, to be trained for other useful work.

This work of rehabilitation really begins at the moment of injury, with the First Aid. Much depends on the handling of the injured person by the First Aid team especially in spinal cases, so as to avoid complications which would increase the chances of permanent disablement. The work then continues in hospital, where wounds are treated to ensure their clean and rapid healing with the minimum of scarring and loss of tissues and fractured bones are carefully and accurately set. This is essential for the ultimate recovery of the injured limb or back. Now discoveries and new methods learnt during and since the Last Great War have made the healing of wounds much more certain and painless, and the repair of fractured bones more accurate than ever before. Most injured limbs can now be restored to normal use.

• • •

An injured man won't fully recover merely by the healing of his wounds and broken bones. In fact, he may remain seriously and permanently disabled even after his wounds and fractures have healed perfectly. Something more is needed —the will to get well and the active use of his injured limb to the fullest extent possible during and after the treatment of the injury. It is this "something more" which we mean chiefly when we talk about rehabilitation because it is or should be an organized process of mental stimulation and physical activity to supplement the actual surgical treatment, ending only when the patient returns to work or duty. The first step is to put into the patient's mind, if need be, the idea that it is up to him to make a constant effort towards recovery; and then we teach him how to exercise and use his injured limb, even if it is fixed in a splint, with gradually increased variety and strength of activity until it is good enough to be used as before injury.

• • •

At first this is the work of the masseuse, gently encouraging the patient to contract his muscles and move his joints soon after injury until, as he gains confidence, he does stronger and stronger movements. Later, or in some cases almost at once, another kind of instructor comes in—the occupational therapist, who teaches the patient to do purposive work such as making baskets, toys, wood and leather articles. This not only interests and diverts his mind but also gets him using his muscles unconsciously while thinking about the work. In the final stage the gymnastic instructor works alone or supplementing the occupational therapist. He gets the patient to do increasingly vigorous and suitably chosen exercises and play various games, all designed to bring him to a state of physical fitness as full as possible according to his injuries.

A great deal of this work is done in hospital while the patient is still in bed and his wounds are healing or his broken bones mending. But for the later part of the treatment, when the patient no longer needs tional environment.

But let me return to the airmen whose stories I spoke about at the beginning of this talk. I saw these men at one of the rehabilitation centres which the R.A.F. has set up in England.

• • •

The R.A.F. has been foremost to remain in bed, it has been found valuable to set up special centres away from the hospitals. A more cheerful and stimulating atmosphere can be created in a special rehabilitation centre, particularly if it is in pleasant surroundings. It's rather the atmosphere of a country club than that of a hospital, so the injured man no longer feels himself a patient and can enjoy a holiday and truly recreaamong the services in seeing to the restoration of its injured men. It realized that it owed it to the fine young men who make up its personnel to see that those who were injured were given the best treatment possible and the chance to make as complete a recovery as could be. The R.A.F. also realized that the nation could not afford to lose the services, through disablement, of any of these men. A number of special rehabilitation centres have been set up and it's inspiring to visit any one of them. The one I saw was for non-commissioned air-crews, but there are other centres for officers and ground staff and also minor centres for cases only requiring a short stay. It is situated in a large house in the country, previously a boys' school, with big sports grounds. It is, as I said, like a country club and the men under treatment evidently felt it so. They have pleasant bed, dining and common rooms, and rooms and grounds for all sorts of indoor and outdoor games. I watched some men doing exercises in the gymnasium. Others who were getting over leg injuries and perhaps had a leg still in plaster, were being drilled and cured of limps by an instructor. Still others I saw were playing clock golf, deck tennis, cricket and even football. They were moving about freely and, forgetting their injuries, were strengthening and loosening their stiff limbs. The swimming pool was in great demand. Swimming is very good for the recovery of injured backs as well as arms and legs. Some men were at work sawing logs or working in the carpenter's shop. Still others I saw were being taught dancing by dance-hostesses from a nearby city. The R.A.F. is very understanding and realizes that stiff ankles and hips may yield to the persuasion of music aided by feminine charm when all else fails.

• • •

In this R.A.F. centre, as in all centres, the importance of a stimulating hopeful psychological atmosphere for the recovery of injured men is fully understood. From his arrival when he has a personal interview with one of the medical officers, throughout his stay at the centre until he leaves, a spirit of recovery is fostered in the man and every effort is made to build up his morale as well as his physique. This is usually necessary for men who have been through harassing experiences resulting in severe injury. Before a man leaves the centre not only must his muscles be strong again and his injured limbs supple, but he must pass a test by a special machine to make sure that he is mentally as quick and alert as before.

• • •

You may well ask, if all this is being done in wartime to make the injured fit again as quickly and fully as possible, why was it not done for injured workmen and others in peacetime. The answer is the same as for many other of the reforms we want to see come out of this war. In total war, salvage is vital matter—salvage of human bodies as well as of all the material things necessary for carrying on the war and preserving the life of nations.

I recently saw a centre for injured miners run by a group of mining companies. It's situated in a large country house with spacious grounds making pleasant conditions to aid the recovery of men who ordinarily spend their lives in mines and dingy towns. Here men were being put through a carefully planned and graduated course of exercises, games and occupations. They were obviously enjoying it and full of hope and determination to be fit again. It was a contrast to the lot of many injured men under old unorganized conditions of treatment, in which perhaps they make regular visits to a hospital outpatient department but otherwise loaf more or less dispiritedly at home, often getting less rather than more inclined and fit for work.

In the years of peace, salvage of the injured was looked upon as merely a humane affair: in war it has become a vital necessity. The truth is that in peace no less than in war proper care of the injured is important to the welfare of a nation; but this has been little realized. Of course doctors have always desired recovery for their injured patients so that they could return to useful work; and every patient with courage and common sense has wanted this for himself. But how common is the injured workman for example who, after his treatment in hospital is finished, is still unfit for his former work, yet unable to get lighter or different work or training in a job within his remaining power.

The process of getting patients fully fit has never been properly organized in Britain or elsewhere except in a few instances. For it means something beyond the power of doctors or even of hospitals to arrange. It requires as well, the co-operation of employers, trade unions and accident insurance companies and should be recognized and to some extent controlled by the State, because of the important legal aspects and the national interests which are affected.

Now that the needs of war have shown the value of organized care of the injured, I, like many others hope that such organization will remain and be perfected as one of the good things gained by all the sacrifice.

LOAN OBJECTIVE SURPASSED BY $116,000,000

BRITISH BOMBERS ATTACK BERLIN, RUHR TARGETS

Averageof$108.52 From Every Man, Woman and Child

Cumulative Total Is $1,216,930,750 Collected From 203,668 Subscribers

SAINT JOHN N.B. LEADS

Ottawa, May 17 (CP)—The greatest financial drive ever undertaken in Canada—the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign—surpassed its $1,100,000,000 objective by more than $100,000,000 and loan headquarters said subscriptions represented an average of $105.82 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Up to the close of business Saturday—official end of the three week drive—the cumulative total was $1,216,930,750, collected from 2,029,164 subscribers.

The Saturday total was $91,576,800, highest for any single day in the campaign, from 203,668 subscribers.

Returns still unreported were expected to swell the cumulative figure still higher.

At the end of the campaign for the third Victory Loan last autumn the total was $950,246,150 but when the books were closed the figure had mounted to $991,389,050.

Finance Minister Ilsley in a statement said the amount raised "gives ample evidence that when the ultimate returns are totalled, a measure of success will have been achieved which at the outset many people considered difficult, if not impossible."

He said Canadians could take "a pardonable pride in the greatest financial operation that Canada has yet achieved," and paid special tribute to the "remarkable showing of the armed forces...who in this loan exceeded all their previous records."

Topped Over-All Objectives

Every province in Canada topped its over-all objective, said the National War Finance Committee which directed the loan drive. Alberta, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia also went over their general canvass and payroll sub-objectives.

A headquarters statement said a number of reports of payroll canvasses from plants and business houses were yet to be received and that further returns for general canvass were expected before the next announcement of the cumulative total on Wednesday.

The armed services figure showed a total of $23,867,550 from 250,798 men and women. This included $2,673,300 from 28,530 subscribers in the navy; $12,920,850 from 144,262 in the army, and $8,273,400 from 78,006 in the Air Force. 400 or 106.97 per cent. of its quota and Quebec province raised $306,075,500 or 104.46 per cent of objective, it was announced in Montreal. Quebec City made the best regional showing with $15,660,450 or 122.40 per cent. of its goal.

In Toronto it was announced that Ontario had contributed $630,386,500 to the loan, with more than 1,085,124 people subscribing.

Ottawa went over the top with a sum of $38,828,450 compared with quota of $38,550,000.

Latest figures showed that about 84 per cent. of all subscriptions have been for the long-term bonds and the remaining 16 per cent. for the shorter maturity loan headquarters said.

Saint John, N.B., reported 145 per cent. of its original objective, making it the leading city in the country. Fredericton was second with 139 per cent. Leading in the general canvass and payroll section was Summerside, P.E.I., with 132 per cent. followed by Charlottetown with 120 per cent.

U.S. Navy Denies Enemy Claim Poison Gas Used

London, May 17 — (CP) — The Berlin radio broadcast today a Tokyo dispatch quoting a Japanese army spokesman as saying that United States troops had employed poison gas in the fighting for Attu Island in the Aleutians.

"Japanese resistance was so fierce that the enemy on May 14 and 15 made use of poison gas," said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press.

Both Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have denounced the use of poison gas, but have issued warnings that should the Axis powers make use of this weapon the Allies would retaliate.

Washington, May 17—(AP)—The Navy Department denied emphatically today claims on enemy radio broadcasts that poison gas had been used by United States troops on Attu Island in the Aleutians.

"Enemy claims that the United States forces in the Aleutians have used gas are absolutely untrue," a Navy spokesman said.

The Tokyo and Berlin radios, quoting a Japanese officer, had broadcast reports that American troops began use of gas in the drive to force the enemy out of their Attu Island base.

RUSSIAN AIRMEN DESTROY 1,300 PLANES IN 2 WKS.

Ferocity of Aerial Warfare Indicated By Many Raids on Supply Lines

LITTLE GROUND ACTION

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 17 — (AP) — The Red Army employed planes and artillery to good effect in further harassing German preparations for any new offensive as another week of the war opened today with still no definite sign of the expected great summer campaign.

During the past week the Soviet Air Force spread fires and explosions in raids behind the German lines along almost the entire length of the long Russian front.

An indication of the ferocity of the aerial warfare was given in the midnight communique which said that Red airmen had destroyed 1,300 German planes in combat and on airdromes during the last two weeks while losing 339; better than a three-to-one Soviet advantage.

In the latest series of raids, Russian bombers attacked Bryansk, Dnieperopetrovsk and Kremenchug. Bryansk, important German supply base, was heavily blasted, and Red airmen counted 13 fires and powerful explosions as they dumped their bombs on the city which links the central and southern fronts. Kremenchug, 140 miles southwest of Kharkov, and Dnieperopetrovsk, 120 miles southwest of Kharkov and also on the Dnieper River, also were reported left with supply depots ablaze.

Artillery Attacks

At the same time, Soviet dispatches told of artillery attacks all the way from the Kuban to the Baltic Sea in which German pillboxes were destroyed.

Last week's destruction of 370 German planes was considerably below the previous week's total of 930, but bad weather which was mentioned in dispatches from the front undoubtedly was partly to blame.

The Russian mid-day communique as broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor in London said that Russian artillery was continuing the assault in the Lisichansk area which had resulted in a Russian breakthrough for a new toe-hold on the west side of the Donets River.

The heavy artillery barrage on German inner defences at the Black Sea base of Novorossisk also was resumed today, the communique said, and eight German block houses were demolished. The communique also described fighting on the Western and Kalinin fronts and in the Mogilev region but said that no important changes took place along the front Sunday night.

Toronto, May 17. (CP.)—Twenty men engaged in war work were idle today at the Mercury Cycle and Tool Shop because of lack of tools.

Victory Chimes of Westminster Broadcast to Allies in Tunisia

London, May 17—(CP)—Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim arrived in London yesterday, a prisoner of war, as Britain's church bells rang in celebration of the Allied victory in Tunisia and home guards paraded 5,000 strong before the King to mark their third anniversary.

Marshal Giovanni Messe, Italian Commander-in-Chief in North Africa, arrived by air with other senior fascist prisoners today.

The German officer who commanded the routed Axis forces in Tunisia was flown from Tunisia to Gibraltar and then to Britain. British officers escorted him to his internment lodgings.

Special victory thanksgiving services were held in the churches and the sound of Westminster Abbey's chimes were broadcast to the forces in Tunisia and to the continent.

Throughout Britain cathedrals and Parish churches tolled their bells in a victory concert, just as they were sounded for the victory at El Alamein.

Prime Minister Churchill's answer to the King's letter of congratulations on the conclusion of the North African campaign was published today.

"No minister of the crown has ever received more kindness and confidence from his sovereign than I have," Mr. Churchill's letter said.

"This has been a precious aid and comfort to me, especially in the dark time through which we have passed."

U.S. Submarines Sink 6 Enemy Ships, Including Destroyer

Washington, May 17 —(AP)— American submarines raiding through Pacific waters have sunk six enemy ships, including one destroyer and damaged another Japanese vessel, the Navy Department reported today.

A communique reporting the destrution told also of a torpedo bomber attack on four Japanese cargo ships off Buin in the northern Solomons. One of the cargo ships was set afire.

This damage inflicted by American submarines brought to 232 the number of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by under-sea action in the Pacific since the United States entered the war. The total announced by the navy includes 162 enemy ships sent to the bottom, 26 probably sunk and 46 damaged.

FLOOD OF RUMORS HEARD IN EUROPE CONCERNING ITALY

London Skeptical of Rumor King Emmanuel of Italy Will Abdicate

PURGE BY IL DUCE

Berne, May 17—(AP) — Italy's grave position in an Allied-controlled Mediterranean was being hammered home to her people today as a part of Premier Mussolini's redoubled efforts to tighten his defences, reports reaching neutral Switzerland said.

At the same time the situation confronting Mussolini gave rise to a flood of rumors concerning the international situation in Italy, the most sensational of which was a report by the Morocco radio that King Victor Emmanuel would abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Umberto.

(The Rome radio in a domestic broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission discounted the rumor. It said the King was present today at the opening of the fourth annual art exhibition in Rome and was "the object of manifestations of devoted affection on the part of the crowd which gathered in front of the exhibition building".

(The rumor was received skeptically in London, where it was pointed out that King Emmanuel's prestige was now higher than at any time since the Fascist march on Rome in 1922. It was recalled that the Rome radio's accounts of the final fighting in Tunisia had closed with "Long live the King—long live Italy," conspicuously omitting Mussolini's name.

300,000 Reported Evacuating

(Other unconfirmed reports included an assertion by the Dakar radio that the Italian cabinet had resigned, and a Moscow broadcast that more than 300,000 people had fled from southern Italy to Rome within the past two weeks in

Thinks Alexander May Be Named Supreme Commander

London, May 17. (CP)—The Daily Mail, in a dispatch from New York, said today there is reason to believe that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have agreed on a Briton as Supreme Commander for European operations.

"The name of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander is considered here to be the leading strategist on the Allied side and seems to be the logical one", the correspondent added.

Believes Sight of Eye Has Been Saved

Toronto, May 17 —(CP)— Dr. W. E. Tindale of Toronto, who performed an emergency operation Friday to save the right eye of 15-year-old James Gartshore, said today the youth was "doing as well as can be expected." He added that it would be 10 days before the results would be known.

Gartshore had his eye lacerated when he was inspecting a home-made "bomb" — a bottle filled with calcium carbide — when it exploded. The eyeball was lacerated and the lower eyelid nearly severed.

Dr. Tindale performed the operation on a couch at the Gartshore home.

After the operation, the doctor said: "I think we have saved the sight of the eye."

SAYS SOVEREIGNTY IS CHALLENGED BY JOHN L. LEWIS

U. S. War Labor Board States After Meeting Soft Coal Operators

LEWIS NOT PRESENT

Washington, May 17—(AP) —The War Labor Board said today, United mine workers President John L. Lewis has challenged the sovereignty of the United States and the issue now "is whether Mr. Lewis is above and beyond the laws which apply to all other citizens of the United States."

The Board issued the unanimous statement after a meeting with soft coal operators, which Lewis and other officers of the United Mine workers had been asked to attend to make arrangements for resumption of contract negotiations.

The Board statement, however, said nothing about the next step to be taken in the soft coal wage dispute to head off a threatened new tie-up at the expiration of the present 15-day truce tomorrow night.

Coupled with the public denunciation of Lewis, the board was authoritatively reported to have instructed soft coal operators not to resume negotiations until further orders.

No Comment by Lewis

Lewis had announced in New York yesterday that he would not obey the W. L. B. directive to attend the meeting today to arrange for a renewal of bargaining but said he was ready to meet the operators when they returned there.

Lewis was informed of the board's statement at the New York office of the United Mine Workers. He sent out word through a secretary that he had "no comment."

"The issue," said the statement, "now confronting the nation in this dispute is whether Mr. Lewis is above and beyond the laws which apply to all other citizens of the United States.

"The labor dispute in this case, like all other large disputes, is within the jurisdiction of the National War Labor Board ... under the national policy of economic stabilization established by the Act of Congress of Oct. 2, 1942 and the President's executive order of Oct. 3 and its supplements, issued in accordance with that act of Congress, if any wage adjustment is justifiable on the merits it must be approved by the National War Labor Board... .. ..

"This law applies to the coal miners and coal operators as well as to every other citizen of the United States.

"In demanding a wage increase and at the same time refusing to seek the approval of the National War Labor Board, Mr. Lewis is defying the lawfully-established precenures of the government of the United States.

"This is not only a defiance of our laws, but it is also the only thing that stands in the way of the working out of a new contract for the mine workers by orderly peaceful procedure...

"This defiance challenges the sovereignty of the United States in time of war and gives aid and comfort to our enemies."

LIDO DI ROMA SEAPLANE BASE NEAR ROME HIT

R.A.F. Bombers Roar Over Italian City In Bright Moonlight To Blast Base

HANGARS SET AFIRE

By WILLIAM B. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 17—(AP)—R.A.F. bombesr roared over Rome in bright moonlight last night and blasted the Lido Di Roma seaplane base at the mouth of the Tiber 15 miles southwest of the Italian capital, it was announced today.

Wellingtons which carried out the attack bombed and machine-gunned the Lido di Roma hangars, moorings and planes at will, with no interference from enemy fighters and almost no anti-aircraft opposition.

"Bursts were seen among parked aircraft," the communique said.

Two hangars were set afire.

No bombs were dropped upon the Eternal City, but the raid marked the closest announced approach of the Allied aerial offensive to its outskirts.

Churchill Made Statement

(Prime Minister Churchill announced Sept. 30, 1940, that he would not hesitate to bomb Rome "if the course of the war should render such an action convenient and helpful" and this attitude has been reiterated elsewhere in high Allied quarters.

(President Roosevelt last Dec. 11 said a report that Pope Pius XII had appealed to the United States and Britain to spare Rome from aerial bombardment should be taken with a grain of salt. The 108-acre Vatican City, seat of the Holy See, lies at Rome.

(The Italian capital experienced its first air raid alert June 12, 1940, a few hours after Italy entered the war as a partner of Germany, but no planes were heard at that time and there was no gun fire.

Made Four Runs Over Target

(A Malta-based intruder plane was reported in a Valetta dispatch March 26 to have flown low over the suburbs of Rome and machine-gunned a railway station "only a few miles from the city." An Italian communique of that day said the closest of the targets was Campo Leone, on the Naples—Rome railway 21 miles from the capital.)

The moon was so bright at Lido Di Roma that the Wellingtons, heavy two-engined craft, were able to employ the tactics of daylight fighter-bombers. One Wellington made four separate runs over the target, the last at 750 feet altitude.

Pilots said the hangars looked like framework of twisted steel as other raiders, after dropping their bombs, swept in twice from altitudes of 100 to 500 feet to shoot up remaining targets and survey the results.

A. A. Fire Scant

The Wellington crews said that Rome, although well blacked out, was clearly visible in the moonlight. Anti-aircraft fire there as well as at the seaplane base was scant.

Confirming a report yesterday by the Italian High Command, Headquarters announced that Wellington bombers attacked Trapani, Western Sicilian port, Saturday night.

Bombs hit the gas works, causing a huge explosion in the centre of the town. Other bursts were observed near the Trapani railway station and near the barracks to the north.

All aerial operations cost three Allied planes.

Coastal air force patrols knocked down two German planes, a Junkers-88 bomber north of Bone, Al-

La Guardia Believes Mussolini May Soon Flee His Country

New York, May 17—(AP)—Mayor La Guardia, who makes frequent short wave broadcasts to Italy for the United States government, believes that Mussolini may soon flee his country and that the people will set up their own government.

In his weekly radio talk yesterday, the Mayor—recently mentioned as a possible head of a United Nations government for Italy—said that upon the disintegration of the fascist government, "Mussolini will soon sneak out of Italy in the dark of night and abandon the alps."

"Italy is at this very moment at the mercy of the Allies and I predict it will soon be out of the war," he added.

Two of Largest Dams in Germany Burst by Air Blow

Valley of Ruhr And Eder Flooded Causing Blow to Industrial Reich

MANY MINES LAID

London, May 17 — (CP)—British bombers attacked Berlin, the environs of Rome, the Ruhr and the Rhineland last night and burst two of the largest dams in Germany, flooding the Valleys of the Ruhr and Eder.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, said walls of the Mohne and Eder dams were broken. One backed up 134,000,000 tons of water and the other 202,000,000 tons. Their destruction constituted a powerful blow to industrial Germany, he said.

The Germans themselves reported on the Berlin radio that the floodtide took a heavy toll of casualties.

Sir Archibald's disclosure was made in a speech celebrating Norwegian Independence Day at Albert Hall.

"The operation was one of extraordinary difficulty and hazard," the Air Secretary declared. "Eight big Lancasters were lost with their precious crews, but Wing Cmdr. Gibson who commanded an aircraft engaged in the operation, pressed home the attack against strong defences and regardless of danger."

War Carried Close to Rome

Wellington bombers which roared from North African bases carried the war close to Rome, battering the seaplane base of Lido Di Roma at the mouth of the Tiber only 15 miles from the Italian capital.

Sir Archibald called the R. A. F. attack on Germany last night "a trenchant blow for victory of the Allies."

He electrified the crowd by saying:—

"I have got news — great news —for you today. The bomber command — the javelin in our armory —struck last night heavy blows of a new kind at the sources of German war power."

Sir Archibald praised the bomber command staff and "those superbly daring and skilful crews who smote the Germans so heavily last night."

The bomber group of the R.C.A.F. sent out aircraft during the night to lay mines in enemy waters, it was announced. R.C.A.F. aircraft of the fighter command damaged railway targets over northern France during the offensive patrols. No Canadian craft is missing.

Fifth Successive Night

The raids last night marked the fifth successive night of attacks against continental targets by Britain-based squadrons which, with North African forces, are closing upon the Axis in an aerial pincer movement.

The Allied offensive thundered into its sixth consecutive day as five enemy aircraft were reported destroyed during Allied attacks on the continent this morning.

Four of the high-flying fighter-bombers which made three swift stabs at London last night were downed by the tight British defences. It was reliably estimated that not more than 20 enemy planes crossed the coast. The engagement represented a 20-per-cent loss for the attacking force.

The total strength of the three alerts was longer than in any night since June, 1941.

Nine Bombers Lost

Other targets in the R. A. F.'s air offensive against Hitler's Europe were not immediately identified.

Nine bombers and one fighter were declared missing from the night's operations, which also included extensive fighter plane operations against occupied territory.

It was the third raid on Berlin in four nights. There was no immediate indication just how heavy Sunday night's raid was, but the raids last Thursday and again on Saturday, by speedy Royal Air Force mosquito planes, were diversion assaults in connection with other heavy forays.

"The German radio announced that Northern, Central and Western Germany were the R. A. F.'s targets last night and an early claim was made that four R. A. F. planes were shot down.

The raid marked another peak in 36 hours of spirited action after a slackening Friday night. The current air offensive, launched with the heavy raid on Duisburg last Wednesday night, was followed by record-breaking United States smashes on successive days at Meaulte and St. Omer, Kiel and Antwerp and Emden, and by British bombers blasting at Bochum, Berlin and Czechoslovakia; and by continued strafing of targets in France and the Lowlands.

Mohne, Eder Dams

(By the Canadian Press)

Both the Mohne and the Eder dams, blasted by R.A.F. bombers, were sources of hydro electric power which served the German war effort through the industries of the oft-bombed Ruhr valley

Lying in the Prussian uplands east of the Rhine, they also served to regulate the water levels of the navigable rivers they fed. The Mohne is a tributary of the Ruhr; the Eder flows into the Weser.

The Mohne dam backed up a lake four square miles in area and 125 feet deep in the hills 48 miles east of Essen. The structure was rated by a German statistical yearbook as the fourth largest dam in the Reich.

The Eder dam, also knwon as the Waldeck, was Germany's second largest among 30 dams which the German yearbook listed. It lies 40 miles southeast of the Mohn dam.

It was one-fourth mile long.

Backed up behind this dam was a reservoir 4½ square miles 164 feet deep. The reservoir was used to maintain navigation levels in the Weser river and to feed the Ems and the Wester canals. Motor boats operated upon its surface.

Clubhouse Interior And Furniture Painted by Girls

"Really, it was lot's of fun, and boy, what a dinner," so chorused a group of sixteen young Belleville ladies, all members of the Quinte Golf Club who over the weekend painted the furniture and interior of their clubhouse.

Owing to the scarcity of labor members of the club were puzzling their heads in an effort to figure out how the clubhouse was going to be painted when a group of the feminine members relieved the situation by volunteering for the job. Headed by Miss Shirley McIntosh, the girls made a lark of it, while the club offered a prize of golf balls for the three best-painted chairs. Owing to the inclement weather the girls stuck to indoors and really did a marvelous job on the furniture and dance hall while the exterior will be "decorated" Wednesday afternoon.

President of the club, Mr. G. A. Freeman, served the girls with a tasty chicken dinner as a reward for their services.

Ezra S. Nicolson Instantly Killed At Level Crossing

When the automobile he was driving collided with the electric engine hauling freight along the C.N.R. - Canada Cement Company spur line late Saturday afternoon, 48-year-old Ezra S. Nicolson of Stirling, was instantly killed at the level crossing five miles east of Belleville on Highway No. 2. Two occupants of the motor car escaped with serious injury and were taken to the Belleville General Hospital. James McCann, Deseronto, suffered six broken ribs, facial lacerations and internal injuries, while the other passenger, William Huck of Point Anne, sustained deep facial lacerations as the result of flying glass and is suffering from shock.

A preliminary inquest was held at the hospital before Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson and following identification of the deceased man the matter was adjourned until June 8th, Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson announced

Driving Westerly

Nicolson was driving westerly on Highway No. 2 and as he approached the spur line level crossing east of the Point Anne lane the Canada Cement electric engine was proceeding north on the spur line hauling a number of loaded box cars of cement. Eye witnesses informed investigating police that it appeared as though Nicolson attempted to "beat the train over the crossing." The motor car crashed into the right front section of the electric engine, driven by Leo Roluf of Point Anne. The automobile was carried some 30 feet up the track before Engineer Roluf could halt his train. The crew informed Provincial Police that the engine warning whistle had been sounded as the train approached the crossing.

The motor car struck the engine with such force that Nicolson was pinned firmly behind the steering wheel and it was necessary to pry the car away from the engine before the body of the dead driver could be released following the impact. Traffic Officer W. G. Milton investigated the fatal accident.

The coroner's jury impanelled by County Constable Thos. Thorne included the following—B. Lattimer, Herb Fox, Wm. Redner, George Cocker and R. Caverley.

Airman Grateful To Belleville Girl

Ottawa (Special)—When a flier has to bail out of his aircraft, he not only appreciates the parachute that does the trick of saving him, but looks on its packer as the person who threw a life preserver when he started to sink.

Flying Officer T. R. Delaney of Mount Vernon, New York, who recently jumped from a flying aircraft, landed safely and went to the parachute section of the Royal Canadian Air Force Station at Rockcliffe, to thank the airwoman who 'brought him back alive.'

She is Leading Airwoman Irene Camken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Camken of Belleville. Formerly a fabric worker at the Cooey Metal Works, Brighton, Ontario, LAW. Camken enlisted in the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force fourteen months ago, and has been packing parachutes ever since. In her estimation, that is a real war job.

"You never can let yourself forget how important your work is when you're packing 'chutes' she said. "It isn't your life that depends on them. It's somebody else's, and your best is the only job that's good enough."

Now transferred to another station of the R.C.A.F., LAW. Camken took along evidence of how good her 'best job' can be. It is a new identification bracelet, one shining side bearing the RCAF crest, her name and Women's Division number. The other is the side she prefers. That reads, simply — "Thanks. T. R. Delaney."

Guest soloist for the evening was Mr. Reginald Roberts who sang various delightful numbers, while a piano solo "Piano Musings" by Flight Sergeant J. Postelnick and a cornet solo "Roses of Picardy" by Sgt. A. Davidson were also much appreciated. Station Warrant Officer John A. Silver, with his sparkling personality again proved a popular master of ceremonies. Special air force numbers as well as well-known marches and overtures were played by the R.C.A.F. band with finale for the evening being the popular "Land of Hope and Glory".

Members of the Quintena Rebekah War Workers' Unit, under whose auspices the concert was staged, express their appreciation to the Trenton Band for their generous contribution of time and effort in the support of their war work. Thanks are also expressed to the management of the McCarthy Theatre and to Mr. J. Imlah for the use of chairs. A collection taken at the door amounted to approximately $80. Following the concert, members of the band were served lunch at the I.O.O.F. Hall.

Pig Comes to Market, Makes His Escape, Retaken After Chase

What resembled somewhat of an old fashioned "greasy pig chase" commanded considerable excitement along East Bridge Street early Saturday afternoon as police and civilians attempted to capture a six-weeks-old shoat that had escaped from its pen off the market square without the knowledge of the vendor.

The six-weeks-old porker was first observed running nonchalantly beneath parked motor cars near the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets. At first curious pedestrians merely watched the porker with interest, but later efforts to capture it proved more difficult. Police joined in the chase and by now the lithe and agile shoat was galloping in high gear east on Bridge St., with police and civilians in hot pursuit. Past Church Street and turning south on John Street the porker was later captured on Turnbull Street, but not before many a tumble had been taken by its pursuers in an effort to catch the elusive piggy.

The strange part of the chase and capture came when the porker was subsequently returned to the owner, James Cowan of Read, who had not even so much as missed the shoat from the litter he was offering for sale.

Trenton and District

Eleven Families Homeless By Rising Waters in the Bay

District Known as Trenton's Mill Yard Inundated by High Water

ONE HOUSE COLLAPSES

Trenton, May 17. — (Special.) — Eleven families are homeless today as the result of the rising waters of the Bay of Quinte here, while many more on various part of the Bay Shore are threatened with a similar fate. With an east wind blowing a gale the waters are swiftly piling high on the shore, waves rolling in four and five feet deep. Eleven homes on the Bay Shore, known as Trenton's Mill Yard, are completely inundated. Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m., the last of these families were forced to leave, namely Mrs. Joe White and six children, whose husband is serving overseas. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gallagher and one child, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Beckwith and their married daughter, Mrs. James Crooks and her four children, whose husband is also in the army, Mr. and Mrs. Acel Gonyea and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarke and their two children. The others had moved from the shore two or three days ago when the water first started to rise. Several, it is understood, have purchased lots and are planning to move their homes when the water recedes, in order that another such flood will not affect them.

Forced to Move Quickly

Most of the families to move were forced out without furniture or bedding, many just taking their ration cards and other valuables. The worst sufferers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarke and their two children, whose house literally collapsed under the constant pounding of the waves.

Mayor H. R. Cory and several constables were on hand during Sunday afternoon to give all the assistance possible to the unfortunate families, who were all eventually housed with friends or relatives.

The property where these families had located during the dark days of the depression was formerly owned by the Gilmour Lumber Company and used as a mill yard but had been abandoned by the owners many years ago. These people had taken squatters rights and built for themselves comfortable little homes, where they have for the past ten years made their livelihood by earning small salaries wherever work could be obtained, and supplementing this by the use of the valuable black loam where vegetables of every kind were raised. Some of the best garden crops in this district were located on this part of the Bay Shore.

Farther along the shore near the Bridge hundreds of tons of soft coal for commercial purposes and owned by the B. W. Powers Coal Co., are in grave danger of being washed away. This would constitute a tremendous loss to industries as well as the dealer as this coal is badly needed and extremely hard to replace.

Across the width of the Bay just below the Bridge the Government Docks are completely flooded and here there is serious danger of the dock disintegrating as it is faced with logs instead of cement. The Trenton Coal Storage too stands in great danger from the rising flood and if the rains persist it is difficult to say when the peak will be reached.

In addition to this all boat houses in and near this locality have suffered considerable damage from the rising water, and boat house owners could be seen Sunday afternoon with long hip boots pulling their boats farther up the shores away from the dangerous floods.

Tag Day Successful

Tag day for the Navy League on Saturday might have been considered by some to be asking too much of the public when it was also the day of the closing hours of the Fourth Victory Loan, but those who held such thoughts did not know Trenton's patriotic population. Saturday's tag day was one of the most successful to be held in some years. From early morning hours till evening hundreds of young girls and boys took up posts on every corner and curb of the streets, both down-town and in the residential districts, and before closing about $500 had been gathered into their blue and white boxes. In addition to this all the local school children are yet to be heard from as they also volunteered to donate, and a cheque for $100 was received from the St. George's Parochial Guild as the result of amusements which they have undertaken for patriotic purposes.

One young lady tagger was sorely distressed when her own father refused to purchase a tag from her, but was heartily thrilled, upon her box being opened, when a cheque for $25 was found in the bottom, having been placed there by her dad without her knowledge.

The taggers on Saturday were under the direction of Miss Doris Powers, and Mr. E. A. Simmons gave a section of his store to be used as headquarters for the taggers, as well as giving a window for advertising.

The local president, Mr. J. H. Matson, manager of the Bank of Montreal, is to be congratulated on his untiring efforts in behalf of the Navy League and other worthy causes. Though Mr. Matson is a comparatively new-comer to Trenton he has already done much to help in every branch of the town's war activities, in fact he takes a leading part in all town enterprises.

Quota Oversubscribed

Trenton's part in the Fourth Victory Loan closed on Saturday night with the quota oversubscribed to the tune of $22,500.00. The beginning of last week saw the committee and canvassers feeling extremely blue when they were known to be some $300,000 short of their objective, but if Trenton is slow in starting they certainly make an extra effort to see that the finish is all that is desired.

Saturday night's final figures showed $482,500.00 had been purchased. Every branch of subscribers, employees, factories, banks and individuals subscribed to the fullest. One of Trenton's banks was second in the county having subscribed over 150 percent.

Great credit is due the canvassers, members of the committee of which Mr. W. H. Ireland was chairman, and Mr. Doug Mitchell of Toronto who again supervised the loan for our town. It is indeed gratifying to know that our citizens realize the necessity of backing our fighting forces with all the equipment necessary to bring up to ultimate Victory.

Miss Doris Heaslip and Miss Marion Boulter left today for Kingston where they are to report for duty at the Kingston General Hospital.

LAC. John Scea of Moncton, N.B. is spending a leave with friends and relatives in town.

Mrs. S. Taylor, Henry Street, is visiting her son and his family in Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. A. S. Twiddy left on Sunday to visit her brother-in-law Dr. Henry of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who is seriously ill.

Young Canadians wearing the badge of the Royal Canadian Air Force are flying and fighting in most of the theatres of war around the world. The roundels on the map show the amazing distribution of R.C.A.F. personnel. Those on the map of Canada mark the training and operational command headquarters. Squadrons and other formations of the R.C.A.F. are located in the United Kingdom, the Middle East and in Ceylon. At other indicated points, large numbers of officers and men of the R.C.A.F. are serving with R.A.F. units. In Alaska, formations of the R.C.A.F. are serving with the United States Army Air Forces. Fighting Essex Scottish Ready For Fray Again

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, May 17—(CP)—The fighting Essex Scottish from Windsor, Ont., are ready for the fray again, re-formed, re-equipped and trained to second-front pitch.

Ever since that blazing, unforgettable day last August at Dieppe, the Essex have been working on rehabilitation of the unit. There was only a handful of men who came back around which to build the new battalion, but under the leadership of an energetic Windsor lieutenant-colonel and a group of astute, loyal young officers, the Essex have been re-created as a crack battle battalion.

This regiment, which suffered the heaviest casualties on the raid, has much to remember and much to avenge, and the tradition of Dieppe has spurred its preparations for the next operation.

Reinforcements came to the Essex from the Windsor area and also from the Kent regiment of Chatham, Ont., and the Oxford Rifles of Woodstock, as well as the Canadian Scottish of Victoria and several other Scottish regiments, all proud to wear the badge of the "Dieppe Highlanders."

In Great Army Manoeuvre

In March the re-formed battalion went on the great army manoeuvre in central England and proved they were ready for another fight.

Maj. Hugh Kennedy of Windsor, who won the Military Cross at Dieppe, is second-in-command now but is returning to Canada to take the staff course at Kingston, Ont., along with Capt. Alex Hayes of Sarnia, Ont., now a company commander.

Adjutant is Capt. R. H. Lund of Victoria, formerly with the Canadian Scottish. Of 33 officers with the battalion in the field, 17 are regular Essex Scots.

These include three other company commanders — Capt. F. A. Wansborough of Windsor, Capt. S. C. Reade of St. Thomas, Ont., and Capt. D. Mackenzie of Ingersoll, Ont., Capt. H. O. Laird of Sudbury, Ont., formerly with the Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury regiment, is another company commander.

Officers from other units who jokingly refer to themselves as "foreigners" admit they're rapidly becoming "Windsorized" by the Essex and one captain said "no unit could make us feel so much at home or be so good to us; and the support this regiment receives from the people of Windsor and Sarnia and places in those areas is mighty fine."

Officers

Other captains are H. W. P. Thomson of London, Ont., D. Campbell of Hamilton, Ont., R. J. Harris of Toronto, D. J. Hunden of Cumberland, B.C., R. D. Thomson of Waterdown, Ont., the medical officer and J. C. Cottrell of Windsor, the paymaster.

Intelligence officer is Lieut. W. C. Wilson of Ingersoll, formerly of the Oxford Rifles, and the transport officer is also from the same outfit — Lieut. A. R. Johnston of Stratford Ont. Quartermaster is Lieut. E. I. Coehn of Pembroke, Ont., and in charge of Bren carriers is Lieut. P. M. Grandjean of Windsor.

Other subalterns include G. A. Ponsford and A. MacCrimmon, both of St. Thomas; E. C. D. Washer, I. MacDonald, M. J. Heffernan, S. H. Bull, F. B. Walton, R. S. Morgan, A. J. Hidges, and T. Martin, all of Windsor; J. A. McCormick of Edmonton, J. A. Chandler of Springhill, N.S., C. J. Havill of Amherst, N.S., W. H. Pope of London and S. B. McDonald of Cornwall, Ont.

The regimental-sergeant-major is William Potts of Windsor, who served with the Black Watch in the last war.

The Essex are stationed near a little town in a rural part of southern England and the local people have made them feel right at home with warm hospitality. "They remind me a lot of the Sarnia folks; they are much the same," said Capt. Hayes.

While mushroom rumors of Italy's impending collapse undoubtedly are watered by wishful thinking, and therefore should be regarded with great caution, there can be small doubt that the kingdom is indeed rocking and that Mussolini is in a bad way.

Reports that Hitler plans to withdraw and leave his Italian stooge to stand off invasion alone don't sound wholly unreasonable. Undoubtedly the Fuehrer up to this junction has been prepared to defend Italy strongly, but the elimination of the Axis from North Africa has changed the Mediterranean picture entirely.

As things stand, Italy is a bad insurance risk. So long as Hitler held powerful air and submarine bases on the North African coast he had a good chance to defend Italy, and gave indications that he intended to do so. Now, however, the Allies possess the African bases, rendering Italy highly vulnerable to attack.

If and when the Allies attempt invasion, much must depend on air power. They now hold overwhelming aerial superiority and unless Hitler should rush a large section of his weakened Luftwaffe to the defence of his colleague—a move which might be suicidal — Mussolini likely would be quite unable to withstand the assault.

The Anglo-American air fleets are making heavy inroads on the Italian mainland.

Last night a force from Tunisia successfully raided a seaplane base only 15 miles from Rome which lacked the defence to stand off the attack. On the whole it's a sore toe of Italy that now projects down into the Allied-controlled Mediterranean.

Would Profit Hitler Little

By and large it probably would profit Hitler little to expend much energy in defending Italy. He most likely has discounted the loss of this great base already. There's no question of loyalty to Mussolini involved, for the Nazi overlord would cut the Duce's throat as quickly as Benito stabbed France in the back when he saw she was helpless.

Therefore, the natural thing for Hitler to do would be to withdraw to his defences behind the Alps and not waste manpower and equipment on a hopeless quest. The Boche are pretty self-centred and practical in that way, as witness the manner in which Hitler's boasted legions surrendered against his orders in Tunisia when they saw that they were fighting a losing battle.

This doesn't necessarily mean that Hitler would strip Italy clean, because the longer the Allies can be kept out of the country, the better chance the Nazi chief has to prepare himself for the onslaught which certainly is going to be directed against his first-line defences. However, any German troops left in Italy will quit when they see the game is up, just as their comrades did in Tunisia.

Lacks Confirmation

Rumors that King Victor Emmanuel may abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Umberto lack confirmation from any source. If the King should withdraw it wouldn't be because of his personal unpopularity but to make way for his more vigorous son. There was a time long ago when the Royal Family sunk fairly low in public esteem, but that situation has changed.

When I was in Italy not long before the war the King had recovered his hold on the public and there was no doubt that, if Mussolini passed out of the picture, the King would again become the real head of Italy. Since then the people more and more have leaned longingly towards the old Monarch.

So far as concerns Umberto, some years ago his standing wasn't too high with the public because of his play-boy activities. However, he has pulled up his socks and reinstated himself in the good-will of the people. He probably would be acceptable to the public as King if his father chose to make way.

Young Women's Guild Entertains At 'Y' Open House

In the closing day of the "Y" Open House program for this season, an outstanding day was enjoyed by all present. Early in the afternoon, it was thought that the inclement weather would cut down the crowd considerably, but as the skies cleared, the crowd grew until a fine group of young folks were gathered at tea time. During the afternoon the usual program of small games, bowling, and swimming was enjoyed, and in the evening a fine concert program.

Refreshments served at the tea hour and again after the evening concert were unusually good, home made tarts making a decided hit with the boys and girls away from their homes. Members of the Young Women's Guild originally a group of old John Street Church, but now embracing members of many churches, took on the job of supplying the food and serving it, and as they do in most things they undertake, they made an exceptionally good job of it, and the acclaim which they received from the guests was hearty and sincere, and the boxes of cake and tarts which went to the various barracks after the evening was through were no small part of the enjoyment.

Request Program

The concert in the evening was an all request program, the artists, and many of the numbers presented, having been requested by the men from time to time during the season. A rousing sing song, conducted by Mrs. Plumpton with Mrs. Smith at the piano, got things under way, and a little stunt arranged by Mrs. Plumpton brought peals of laughter. The body of the concert introduced song by Jack Deacon with Mrs. Deacon at the piano, readings by Miss Bernice Arbuckle, song and dance routines by Misses Madeline Walden and Barbara Diment, with Mrs. Calvert at the piano, and that old favorite monologue about the nigger in the Army, by Ed Shortt, and the audience enjoyed every bit of it.

An Inspiring Message

The closing period of the evening was conducted by Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, who recently took over the pulpit of the Wesleyan chapel from Rev. D. R. Chatreau, and his short message was an inspiring one, which rounded off a Sunday evening of real enjoyment in a satisfying manner.

The thanks of the association to all who contributed was warmly expressed, and in announcing the conclusion of this organized Sunday program until fall, Ed Shortt, Program Secretary, thanked all the organizations and individuals who had so materially contributed to it during the seven and a half months of this winter season.

Although this program has been wound up, it does not mean that the "Y" will not continue to serve the forces on Sundays. On the contrary, the building and its facilities will continue to be at the disposal of the men and women in uniform throughout the summer, but on a more informal basis, and without evening concerts being planned, but the coming of warmer weather tends to more enjoyment of the out-of-doors, and the need is not so great.

Ice Delivery Service Rule

Referring to reports that ice dealers in some communities have been endeavoring to reduce their services by declining to place ice in refrigerators or other containers upon its delivery, the Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out that such a reduction of service cannot be countenanced if it was the practice of the dealer to perform it during the season of 1941, unless, of course, specific permission to reduce this service has been given.

The Board recognizes the fact that in numerous instances women alone in households at the time of ice deliveries are physically incapable of handling heavy blocks of ice and ice not placed in refrigerators when delivered will be wasted. If, however, it was not the practice of the dealer to perform this service, he is not required to do so. But if he did perform it during the season of 1941, it must continue to be given unless he has been granted permission to alter the service.

Five Cents For The Red Cross

One Didn't

Apparently an official of the school didn't know that he shouldn't park his bike on the ground. As a result, the bike was impounded. As a result, he had to proceed to the principal's office to retrieve his bicycle. As a result, he 'donated' five cents to the Junior Red Cross, and got his bike out of the pound.

Eight Hundred Did

The impounding of a school official's bicycle is part of the school's effort to tidy up the grounds. It all began when bikes parked against the school walls slipped and broke panes in the basement windows. That brought about the ruling that any bike found parked against the school would be locked up; the owner had to see Mr. Turner before it could be released.

This worked very well, except that the warning was not extended to the public schools. This meant that public-school students arriving for special technical classes on bicycles unknowingly erred, and were dismayed to find their bikes missing.

Then the rule was extended. This time, bikes had to be parked against the fence in an upright position. Thus, there would no longer be bikes strewn hither and yon in an untidy manner. It is hoped that the appearance of the school will thereby be made more beautiful.

Fisticuffs and Fanfare

During the last Assembly, Grant Locke ambled out on the stage and stated quite mildly that there was a boxing club now in action in the school, and would any boys interested turn up in the gymnasium on Thursday afternoon. He then disappeared back-stage and produced Stan Carefoot and James "One Round" Greer. After the shrieks subsided, the bout began with Stan swinging wildly, and ended with Stan coming to a crashing finish on the floor.

Such announcements are few and far between these days. Do you remember the battered war-victim and the confused Stuart Woods? There are a few others, and they will all be neatly pigeon-holed for future reference, as all good announcements should.

It was successful, too. About a dozen young men turned up for lessons in the noble art of self-defence, presumably all with quarters tucked in their palms. The class was opened by the would-be boxers trotting around the gym, in the neighbourhood of twenty-five times. It is interesting to note that one of these is (now hardly) able to walk (as of Saturday afternoon); namely, Donald P. (Shorty) Shore. Poor boy.

Over the Top

Canada has done well in the Fourth Victory Loan with a preliminary figure of the total of $1,216,930,750 raised in the greatest financial effort the nation has ever been called upon to make. More is expected.

All who have taken part in the selling of this banner security have given their utmost of effort and ability and those who have responded to the call of their country to buy and buy bonds to the point of sacrifice deserve credit for their co-operation in the campaign. The news of the all-time high record attained by the loan will be news that will thrill the men in the armed forces as they appreciate what the people at home are doing to provide them with materials of war, clothing, food and with the inspiration of the co-operation of the home front.

Canada has proven that she responds willingly to the call of financial backing of the men to whom has been entrusted the task of attacking the enemy.

Design and Forethought

"Design and forethought must be our guides and heralds," said Prime Minister Churchill in his message broadcast to the Home Guard of Britain from Washington. These words could be applied to the great spirit and mind of the British leader himself in whom design and forethought concerning the conduct and operations of the war have worked out so well.

The tribute which His Majesty King George paid in a message to Mr. Churchill at Washington is repeated by the British people. Mr. Churchill drew a design, he has been himself the very essence of design and forethought not only since he came into the office of Prime Minister but also in the days before the war, when he had seen the sinister rise of Hitler and dared to warn the nation of the menace of aggression.

Plans of Britain under Mr. Churchill have carried well. Who does not remember his stirring message in the dark days of May 1940 when he spoke these words, "We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our island, whatever the cost may be, we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender."

That was the design of a man who knew the spirit of the people of Britain and the Empire and democracy.

So when he said on Friday "march after march must be planned as far as the eye can see," the people of the world are fully confident. They know that in Washington as at Casablanca great leaders are at work, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, they know that those other great leaders, Premier Stalin of Russia and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China are co-operating with the leaders of other United Nations in designing the overthrow of the German disease of Nazism and Italian Fascism. The peoples of so many of the nations of the earth represented by the Allied Nations know that these leaders and their staffs and their military chiefs are laying the course that will bring victory.

The world latterly has had the two great examples of Stalingrad and of Tunisia to show that Allied plans are well laid and it knows in all confidence that the United Nations will crush the Axis. The reason is clear, the Allies are fighting a fight for the right. Germany, Italy and Japan are fighting in support of crime, aggression, selfishness, treachery, looting, lying and dishonor, which are opposed to the principle of organized society and which cannot win because they are evil, for no world order could rest on such rotten foundations.

The Home Guard of Britain was a proud company when they heard their Prime Minister speak so highly of their service, especially in the days of 1940 and they are honored in being urged to be ready for service still.

The British Premier forecast the advance against Germany, "we must prepare for the time which is approaching and will surely come when the bulk of these armies (Anglo-American troops in Britain) will have advanced across the seas into deadly grapple on the continent."

On this there is absolute confidence felt by the people of the free world and of the captive and enslaved nations that the great heads of the Allied Nations will chart the course of the war to victory and peace.

People Are Honest

A company has found that its customers are strictly honest and so will extend to 2,300 more patrons the right to read their own gas meters and make out their own bills. That company is the gas and electric company of San Diego, California.

It was necessity that led to the adoption of the plan, in fact a war necessity, created by the acute shortage of meter readers. The company inaugurated the self-billing as an experiment in the Julian area, 60 miles east. Now the system is to be installed in ten other zones.

After all the vast majority of people are honest because they like to be honest. It substantiates man's faith in the goodness of human nature and the inherent honesty of nearly all people to find this experiment proves what they believe.

There is a certain satisfaction in knowing that business accepts the honesty of people as a fact. Business exists because people are honest. If they were not in the great majority honest, society and business would be far less developed than they are today. A society that cannot trust its members is really no society at all. Business would stagger under so great a handicap that it probably would never ever become trade if many were dishonest.

It is a safe guess that the San Diego company was not really surprised to find that users of gas and electricity charged themselves correctly.

Shaft Honors Tasman

To mark the place on the coast closely approached by Abel Janszoon Tasman, discovered of New Zealand, on his voyage of exploration for the Dutch United India Company 300 years ago, a high white concrete column was unveiled recently at Tarakhohe, Golden Bay. The unveiling was attended by the Netherlands delegation. Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand said that the Tasman delegation had been ordered out of the Indies to keep aloft the flag of the nation and administer government in exile. He added that their womenfolk did not leave, remaining to share bravely the trials imposed by the tyranny of the invading Japanese. He said that in future the Tarakohe memorial would rank in distinction with the spot near Gisborne where Captain Cook landed.

Axis Policy of Inhumanity

(Edmonton Journal)

For the past eight years Japanese and Germans have been writing their policy of inhumanity, sadistic cruelty and barbarism in the blood of hundreds of thousands of victims. The authors of this policy and the tens of thousands of their willing followers who have put it to the bloodiest test the world has known must be punished in the only way they and their fellow-countrymen can understand. Barbarism must be exterminated.

LIFE SAVINGS

He had a thousand dollars for a nest egg, so he said,
To serve him down the future when the clouds were overhead,
But what could some tomorrow hold of peril worse to meet
Than the danger of the moment from the Japs we must defeat?

'Twas all he'd saved — that thousand!— 'twas to serve them later on
When age had come upon them and the strength to earn was gone,
But what could old age threaten worse of hunger or disease
Than is threatened at the moment by the savage Japanese?

For many years he'd struggled to put by that tidy sum,
Against the needs for money which he knew were sure to come,
But now he stood and pondered. What greater need could be
Than this for arms and substance in the fight for liberty?

He had a thousand dollars, which he had hoped to save,
To pay for decent burial and mark the family grave,
But for a bond of freedom he gladly turned them in,
Since doomed was all he'd worked for if tyranny should win.

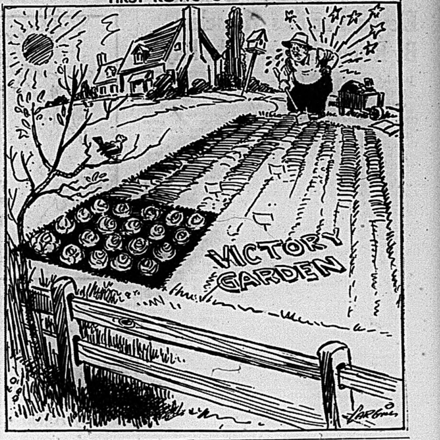
FIRST ROWS OF SUMMER



ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

On Eve of Invasion

New York, May 17.—A despatch from London on Friday says, "With the fall of Tunisia there has come further enlightenment about Allied plans for the administration of liberated Europe.

"A definite decision has been reached that victorious commanders will treat only with military leaders. . . . .

"For instance, if Italy sues for peace, a deal will be made with the field commander at the time . . . not with . . . any Fascist or Fascist sympathizer who suddenly sees the light".

The Field Commander who arranges the capitulation will also be a Fascist or Fascist sympathizer who suddenly sees the light.

A defeated army may be an army in complete disorganization, and its heads may, as in the case of General von Arnim, refuse to sign any surrender even when in custody. With whom, then, is one to treat? With any general who will sign a surrender perhaps for the sake of getting hold of the armed forces—as in the case of Darlan?

The plan is only a formula for forcing enemy armies to recognize publicly their defeat. As such it has its merits. But it is no solution for the European question. If it represents the sum total of our policy for Europe, we shall find ourselves in an unhappy situation.

Army Only An Instrument.

The idea that we can handle Europe by military Governments indicates a complete absence of mind in our political leaders—absence of mind in the exact, literal sense, meaning that no mind is present.

An army is only an instrument, to execute a policy. Left alone without a policy it will have to make one, for it is impossible to govern without one. Therefore, this "decision" indicates that we are going to leave the political leadership of Europe to Allied generals.

But generals are generals because of military competence not because of political intelligence.

There is literally ony one ideology under which Europe can be governed by occupying forces, and that is Nazi ideology. Are we to accept this ideology in order to carry out our decisions?

Europe in Revolution.

The military leaders will have to pick administrators—as they had to do in North Africa. In North Africa they picked former collaborationists, and turned their backs on the one man whom all France follows as its leader and symbol.

If military decisions alone determine our policy, the same thing is going to happen in every single country.

But Europe is in a full state of revolution—as the news reveals every single day. The attitude of our leaders is that we do not understand the meaning of this revolution, and that therefore we cannot canalize it, organize it, and use it. This is a confession of total intellectual bankruptcy.

The lines in this revolution are perfectly clear, to anybody who will take the trouble to study the facts and to think.

The European revolution, which will be joined by Germany and Italy the moment the Fascist armies collapse, is a revolt against military rule and a police state. It is a revolt against those elements in society who have directly or indirectly helped the Fascists to maintain their power. It is a revolt of the nations for governments representing the people. It is a social revolution for the establishment of an economy which maintains employment and serves the people.

You cannot satisfy a rebellion against military rule and the police State by substituting an Allied occupation for a Nazi one.

Sudden Events May Come

That occupation will be welcomed only if it serves the revolution —not if it suppresses it.

The military mind will invariably try to take the line of least resistance, for the military are concerned with but one thing: Maintaining order. The military will take its advice from generals—as it did in North Africa. It will use to the greatest possible extent the existing administrations, because it will not know where to find any others.

And so it will inevitably come into conflict with the masses of the people, who are our friends, and who will be turned into enemies.

We live under the illusion that this will certainly be a long war. But on the eve of the invasion I warn that sudden events may come, and that it is the very last moment in which to explain our policy to the millions of people awaiting us. It is the last moment to affirm the European freedom revolution, and by affirming it canalize it into a long and lasting friendship.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

Protected, 1942, by The George Adams Service.

INTERNATIONAL SALUTE

The international salute consists of 21 guns fired in succession.

Gun salutes, like all other salutes, were originally signs of submission.

The underlying idea of the gun salute at first was that the saluter by discharging his gun disarmed himself and virtually placed himself at the mercy of the saluted.

When cannon salutes were first fired hundreds of years ago it took half an hour to reload.

And, of course, actual balls were used in firing cannon salutes.

The Turks did not discontinue the use of shotted salutes until 1910.

It is an ancient superstition that gun salutes should be in odd number.

When George VI was crowned in London a 62-gun salute was fired, 41 guns for each completed year of the new king's age and 21 guns for the royal salute. Several persons protested at the time that this was a violation of the ancient custom of firing only odd-numbered salutes and that it boded no good for the Empire.

Originally British warships saluted by firing seven guns, seven being selected probably because of its mystic and symbolic significance in sacred literature. Shore batteries, however, were permitted to fire three guns to a ship's one, three also being a symbolical number. Thus batteries on land fired salutes of 21 guns. The difference arose from the fact that centuries ago, when military salutes originated, powder was very valuable and readily spoiled on shipboard. It was much easier to keep a larger supply on land. Later, when better powder was developed, the salute of 21 guns was retained as the British national salute because of long usage.

The United States officially recognized 21 guns as the international salute August 16, 1875.

The United States national salute, or "the salute to the Union," has always consisted of one gun for each state in the Union.

When John Paul Jones saluted the French Admiral La Motte Picquet at Quiberon Bay in 1778, he fired a salute of 13 guns, one for each of the 13 former colonies. In those days a republic rated fewer guns than a monarchy, and the Frenchman replied with nine guns, the number accorded to the Dutch republic. That was the first salute ever fired in honor of the Stars and Stripes and was a virtual recognition of the independence of the United States.

In 1810 the national salute was officially declared to be one gun for each state. By the admission of new states into the Union the national salute reached 21 guns in 1818, and in that year only did the national salute of the United States consist of 21 guns, or the same number as the international salute.

Graduating Nurses Hold Baccalaureate Service At Victoria Ave. Baptist Church

Rev. H. O. Eastman Says Nurses Have Double Privilege in Service

NOBLE PROFESSION

"Yours is the double privilege, to bring about healing of the mind, as well as healing of the body," said Rev. H. O. Eastman in his address to the graduating nurses of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing at the Baccaloureate Service held in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

"Men and women today are heart sick and heart sore. There are those whose hearts are heavy and who have fears they cannot tell about. I am convinced that the greatest healing in the world is healing of the mind, heart and spirit. Wherever you go to minister you will be a great joy and blessing if you bring with you something of the spirit of devotion that comes only through fellowship with our Lord Jesus Christ. That is the privilege of your profession, to give the healing touch of the Eternal God as your Christian service through the spirit of Jesus."

Referring to the healing of Peter's wife's mother by Jesus, the minister said: "The house of Simon was not a normal home because there was sickness and anxiety there. But how different it was when Jesus came. Jesus was a bearer of hope. He had a reputation for going about doing good. In that kind of situation you nurses will be called upon to go. Yours is a noble profession. You have a reputation. When you have entered into a house of sickness, tension is relieved and confidence is established. At the healing touch of Jesus, Simon's mother arose and ministered unto them. That is gratitude. Sometimes you may think there is no gratitude; but when you serve people for Jesus and Jesus' sake there does grow out of it a gratitude that is rewarding and satisfying.

"In your art you will realize that you are one with the doctors, the scientists and chemists; you are one of a great group who have gone before; you are one with Jesus Christ, the Great Physician. You will get out of the practice of your profession just what you put into it. May God grant you young ladies of grace and culture the strength of body and purity of purpose to go about doing good."

Mr. R. L. Orr, Sunday School Superintendent, read the scripture lesson and assisted the pastor during the opening exercises. The anthem "Love Divine" was rendered very effectively by the choir, with Miss Muriel Jobson singing the solo parts, and Miss Phyllis May was heard in a lovely solo "Voice of Prayer," Miss L. Lavoie supplying the organ music throughout the service.

WEDDINGS

ANDERSON—DREW

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Christ Church on Saturday afternoon, May 15, at 3 o'clock when Rev. G. G. Wright united in marriage Naida Dorothea Drew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Ray Drew and John Martin Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Anderson, Genoa, Illinois.

Mr. Youdale, organist of Christ Church, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a lovely picture in a floor-length gown of white silk Jersette with shoulder-length veil falling from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a nosegay of blush rose buds.

Miss Elaine Drew, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, was charmingly attired in nile green net over taffeta with white flower hat and gloves. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and pink and mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Robert Anderson, brother of the groom from Genoa, Ill., acted as groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents for immediate families, after which the young couple motored to Chicago, Ill., by way of Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride donned a printed silk navy frock with black coat and white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside at Chicago, Ill., where the former is employed as a civilian flying instructor.

Housewives Given Three Reasons

Ottawa, May 17—(CP)—Canadian housewives were given three reasons by the Prices Board today why they couldn't have as much sugar as they wanted for canning purposes.

The reasons, supplied by H. J. Hobbins, Deputy Sugar Administrator, were as follows:

1. Many ships which normally would have brought sugar to Canada were diverted to North Africa and other theatres more closely related to war developments.

2. Ships loaded with sugar were at the bottom of the sea. Destruction of ships had resulted in sugar losses of between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 pounds.

3. Prospects for the Canadian sugar beet crop were not good, especially in Ontario, which usually provides about 90,000,000 pounds of sugar.

Canadian housewives asked for more than 200,000,000 pounds of sugar for canning. The board has announced that 100,000,000 pounds is being set aside for this purpose.

Letter to Accompany Special Coupons For Canning Sugar

The local Ration Board said today that when applicants for canning sugar receive by mail the special coupons which will be issued to them for the purchase of such sugar, they will also receive a letter setting forth the existing sugar supply situation and explaining why it has been necessary in numerous instances to reduce the quantities of sugar for which application was made.

It was recently stated by the Sugar Administration that it had been possible to provide 100,000,000 pounds of sugar for use in this year's home canning program, but that this would not be sufficient to fill all the applications that had been received, those totalling almost 210,000,000 pounds. Accordingly, a reduction in many of the quantities asked for had to take place.

All those applying for canning sugar should receive their special coupons by June 1 when official "canning season" will begin. The sugar so obtained must be used only for the specific purposes outlined by the Ration Administration.

To Get Rid of Blackheads

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

The last 40 years have brought many blessings that have helped the cause of beauty—pure milk, pure water, better ventilation, enlightenment concerning food values, greater interest in outdoor sports. But there is one blessing that is not yet ours, and that is clean air. In big cities where chimneys throw out black clouds we live in a sort of smoke screen.

Soot collects on the surface of the skin despite the utmost care and frequent scrubbings. The skin, pumping out oil for the purpose of keeping the surface smooth, soft and healthy, catches floating particles of atmospheric dirt. Blackheads form in the pores. These ugly points often develop into pustules. Then the good looks jig is up.

Hands get many washings during the day, but the face receives only a morning and nightly cleaning, except possibly a little freshening with oil before dinner. Some women seem afraid to give their faces a good scrubbing. Silly. Soap and water doesn't wear out the human hide; the epidermal coat thrives upon it.

The complexion is benefited now and then by a dry cleaning. Pour a little eau de cologne over a moist wash cloth, pass over the flesh lightly. Do that twice a week.

Ordinary baking soda dissolves blackheads. After washing the face at bedtime, rinse with warm water. Dip a heavy wash cloth in hot water, give the flesh a good steaming to soften the wax like plugs. Dry gently, apply a lotion made by dissolving one teaspoonful of baking soda in half a cup of water. Let it dry on. In the morning, rinse with clear water, dry—use the solution again.

Don't press out blackheads with the fingers. Use a comedone extractor; you can buy one at your drug store.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

War Accompanied by Rise in Something-for-Nothing Unions.

No longer ago than the last World War, it took a rare and audacious type of man to offer a girl a free-love union and expect to get away with it.

Today, the type is commoner. He seems to fear neither virtuous indignation on the part of the girl nor her father's shotgun. His line is that marriage is an outmoded institution and that it's foolish for people to enter into such a contract blindly without knowing in advance how the relationship will work out.

Many letters have come to the column on this subject. Girls away from home ask about these casual unions which they have observed for the first time. Some of them seem to think these unsanctioned relationships are part of the crazy pattern into which a distraught world has thrust men and women. But the world, whether distraught or calculating its moves carefully as a chess game, pays no bills for the girl.

It's well for everyone of them, considering this type of union, to realize what may be in store for her. It is, as its name implies—free love. It's a relationship entered into without responsibility. And with the presumption that if the girl is a good sport and the man decides to marry someone else, she'll not make a nuisance of herself about it.

It prevents the idea of maintaining a home in the usual acceptance of the term—such as suggests a quiet fireside, a beloved helpmate, a circle of pleasant friends, and lastly it precludes the idea of children. A woman may claim to be indifferent to formal marriage in her own case but she can promise no such degree of freedom for her child who may come into the world conventional to the last degree, and object bitterly to being born out of wedlock.

If one enters into any other kind of partnership, he seeks the best lawyer his purse can afford, and draws up articles of agreement and sees to it, even though his partner may be a relative or friend, and that the arrangement protects him with every rivet the law affords.

Unless a girl is an out-and-out light o' love, why than should she be casual about an arrangement which will affect her whole life.

A woman who had experienced all the bitterness of an unsanctioned union wrote me: "The only thing free about free love, I have discovered, is freedom to support myself and freedom to assume all the duties and obligations of real marriage without any of its dignity or protection."

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is engaged to an Army lieutenant, and since he has just written her that he may get his leave sooner than he expected, we are trying to plan everything so that we will know just what to do when he wires her the exact date he will arrive. We are planning to have a very simple wedding.

1. We are especially concerned about the invitations. Since we won't be sure of the exact date until the last minute, written notes (which I had planned to send) will probably be out of the question. Is it ever permissible to telephone the invitations to the guests?

2. We have met the young man's parents, but only recently and saw them for a very short time. But we know none of his other relatives, whom we know he would want to have invited. How do we contact them, since the groom-to-be is not here?

3. Do I, the mother, write the notes (if there is time), or do the telephoning?

4. As we want everything to be very informal, is there any need to have a receiving line at the reception?

—T. H.

1. Yes, it is proper to telephone the invitations, and in these days of hurry-up wedding plans, this is the customary procedure. You may have to telegraph some of the guests, and this is proper too.

2. If there is time your daughter might write or wire her fiance for a list of names and addresses of his relatives and friends whom he wishes to have invited. If this isn't convenient get in touch with his mother and ask her for this list, and for the telephone numbers. Please do this as soon as possible, so that you will have your lists completely ready for the last-minute plans.

3. Yes, since you are to be the hostess of the wedding it is the best form and taste for you to give the invitations. Of course, since you will have a great deal to do, your daughter might do the inviting of her close friends, but it is important that you show your daughter's prospective in-laws that you know what's what in extending invitations. And this is especially important since you and your daughter don't know them very well.

4. If you wish, you may not have a "formal" receiving line. That is, have only the bride and groom, or the bride and groom and the bride's attendant or attendants in the actual receiving line. (The bride stands on the bridegroom's right, the maid of honor on the right of the bride, and, if there are bridesmaids, they stand on the right of the maid of honor. The best man and ushers do not stand in the receiving line.)

In this case, you, the hostess, stand near the entrance door of the room to greet and welcome the guests. And your husband, the host, may stand with you, or he may mingle with the guests, to carry out his host-ship. And I would suggest too that, since you do not know the groom's relatives, it would make introductions very much easier and make your hospitality and "receiving" very much simpler and more cordial if you invite the groom's mother to stand with you.

In other words, don't think of the receiving-line as a formal procedure, but as a convenient and practical way for the bride and groom to "receive" the best wishes of their relatives and friends, and, as at any other kind of party, as a friendly and convenient way for a host and hostess to greet and welcome guests, and to make necessary introductions. Also, since the groom's mother is the woman guest of honor at the wedding, it is appropriate that she stand with you.

WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

Glamourize Meat Loaves

No matter what else your meat market doesn't have, chances are there'll be the makin's of a meat loaf

What's in a meat loaf? Well, that's up to you; but take it from me, a meat loaf can be a rare and elegant thing with a bit of thought and planning. Take shape for instance. Everyone likes variety, so make the loaf different every time. Meat loaf in a ring mold with the centre full of buttered peas or creamed celery is a sight to start mouths watering.

Then the flavour, that's up to you again. Some folks like to season the mixture with sage or other herbs. Then others like a dash of Worcester or horseradish. And don't think a meat loaf must be 100 per cent beef! Try mixing ground beef with the same amount of ground heart. (That's putting extra nutrition into the meal, too.) And don't be afraid of other meats (veal, pork or lamb) which may be available. Or the leftover meats in your refrigerator.

As to texture, some like a dry loaf, some a moist one. The secret lies in the bread crumbs. Fine crumbs make a compact loaf—need more liquid to avoid dryness.

And one last hint. When the meat loaf is cold it is excellent sliced between mustard-buttered slices of Canada Approved bread for a tasty and sustaining lunch-box sandwich.

LUNCH BOX CONTENTS

. . . should include 1. milk in some form (soup or cocoa or straight); 2. meat, fish or egg; 3. Canada Approved bread; 4. a leafy green or yellow vegetable and 5. a fruit . . . these as a minimum.

Early Blooming Crucial Series Sprouts Today When Cardinals Visit the Brooklyn Dodgers

Brooklyn Squad Steaming Ahead With Double Win Over Cubs

PHILLIES STRONG

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

An early blooming "crucial series" sprouted today in Brooklyn with the Dodgers matched against St. Louis Cardinals in a twilight tussle at Ebbets Field.

The Dodgers prepared for the invasion by cuffing Chicago Cubs twice in a doubleheader yesterday, 4-0 and 3-2.

Ed Head pitched the shutout, spacing five hits in a duel with Lon Warneke, who kept Brooklyn scoreless till the eighth, when the Dodgers bunched all their runs. Bobo Newsom relieved Kirby Higbe in the nightcap and propelled himself to his fourth victory by singling home the deciding run in the seventh.

In the meantime Cardinals were held to a draw in two games with rambunctious Phillies before a crowd of 30,823 at Philadelphia.

Howard Krist pitched six-hit ball in a joust with Schoolboy Rowe in the first game, but was forced to 10 innings before getting a 4-3 decision on Whitey Kurowski's squeeze bunt. The Phillies bounded back to take the second 2-1 with rookie Al Gerheauser, a southpaw, pitching seven-hit ball, fanning seven and issuing no passes.

As a result the Cards slipped into a tie for second place with Boston Braves, who swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and 6-1.

Giants Divide

In the other National League show New York Giants divided with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Manager Mel Ott hit his third homer in three days, with one aboard, to decide the first game 3-1.

New York Yankees split at St. Louis, but lost none of their American League lead. Spud Chandler pitched nine-hit ball for his fourth victory without defeat as the Yanks nailed the opener 7-3 with the help of homers by Charley (King Kong) Keller and Rollie Hemsley. Then the Browns bagged the nightcap 4-3 in 10 innings although held to five hits while New York made nine.

Cleveland's second place Indians also divided a double bill. They were beaten 5-3 by Philadelphia Athletics in the first game, with freshman Jesse Flores getting credit for his fifth victory, but retaliated with a 3-2 verdict in the second contest, which was decided by Roy Cullenbine's eighth-inning home run.

Washington moved into third place by downing Detroit Tigers twice, 7-1 on five-hit hurling by Early Wynn and 10-6 in a slugging session.

Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox halved a pair of games with identical 4-2 scores.

In the National League Saturday Brooklyn beat Chicago badly with a 13-6 count while New York gained a slim 2-1 win over Pittsburgh. Boston edged out Cincinnati 1-0 while St. Louis took Philadelphia 6-3.

In the American League that day Cleveland whipped Philadelphia 2-0 while Detroit pasted Washington 8-1. Games between New York and St. Louis and Boston and Chicago were postponed.

U. S. ARMY TEST PLAN E CRASH KILLS FOUR

These crowded marine recruiting huts bordering Lindbergh Field at San Diego, Cal., were smashed and set afire by an U. S. Army experimental plane which failed to clear the ground in a test flight. Four men were killed and 63 injured. The casualties included three marines killed and 57 hurt. The plane's pilot, Richard A. McMakin, died. Six civilian occupants of the plane were injured.

TORONTO LEAFS SCORE TWIN WIN OVER ROCHESTER

Dick Conger and Luke Hamlin on Mound and Letchas and Gruzdis Homer

CHIEFS MOVE UP

By The Associated Press

Often the addition of a single player to a sluggish baseball club will provide the spark that sets off a string of victories.

That is what apparently is happening to Syracuse of the International League since the arrival of Richard West, hard hitting catcher, from the parent Cincinnati club.

The Chiefs were deep in the cellar when West arrived early last week but since his arrival they have been beaten only once and now have a victory string of four.

Yesterday the Reds came from behind to down Jersey City, 5-4 in the opener and then Tom De La Cruz hurled two-hit ball for a 9-0 verdict in the seven-inning nightcap.

Toronto, which now has won 11 of its last 13 games, swept its twin bill with the hapless Rochester Red Wings while Buffalo and Baltimore shared their bargain attraction. The scheduled doubleheader involving Newark and Montreal was postponed.

Lead by 4½ Games

The Maple Leafs, league leaders by a 4½-game margin, combined seven hits with an error for a 2-1 victory in the first game as Dick Conger held the Birds in check. Luke Hamlin, on the hill for the winners in the second, had an easier time after Letchas and Jim Gruzdis each struck homers with a mate on base in a four-run fifth inning. The Leafs won 6-3.

The defeats were the fifth and sixth in a row for the Pepper Martin aggregation after a spurt that carried the Birds out of the cellar 10 days ago.

Buffalo made five errors in the first game with Baltimore and lost, 8-3, and then made four more in the nightcap but pulled out a 3-2 decision in a game that needed an extra inning for a decision.

In Saturday's games, Newark and Toronto split a doubleheader, the Leafs winning the first game 4-1 but dropping the afterpiece 5-4 in nine innings. Jersey City shut out Rochester 3-0 and Syracuse nosed out Montreal 1-0. Baltimore at Buffalo was postponed.

Captured Generals Taken to Britain Says Dispatch

Madrid, May 15 (AP).—Cifra, the Spanish News Agency, said in a dispatch from Algerciras today that eight German and two Italian generals, including Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim who commanded the defeated Axis armies in Tunisia, arrived at Gibraltar last night en route to Great Britain as prisoners.

A report from La Linea, opposite Gibraltar, said Allied warships had brought 300 Axis prisoners, most of them high German and Italian officers, to the rock from Tunisia.

The prisoners were taken in heavily-guarded trucks to barracks cleared for them. Other barracks near the Rock were cleared to accommodate more.

The report said the prisoners would remain in Gibraltar only until they can be transferred to Britain.

C.N.R. to Operate Road Indefinitely

Port Hope, Ont., May 15 (CP)—A delegation of citizens from the Peterborough-Port Hope district who visited Transport Minister Michaud in Ottawa to protest the closing of a rail line connecting the two centres today brought word that the Canadian National Railways would continue to operate the line indefinitely.

Municipalities along the route claimed they would have sustained loss and inconvenience had the line been closed. The Board of Railway Commissioners had recommended that the line be closed May 23.

TO SEGREGATE JAP GROUPS

Washington, May 15 (AP)—The war relocation authority is ready to start "very soon" on a program to segregate pro-Japanese from Americans of Japanese ancentry in the 10 relocation centres in the United States, Director Dillon B. Myer announced yesterday. The segregation will be accomplished largely on an individual basis, he said.

BRAIN INJURY DEATHS REDUCED

Cincinnati, May 15 (AP)—Dr. Geoffrey Jefferson of London told the American Surgical Association yesterday that Britain's deaths from brain injuries in war had been reduced from 40 per cent to 20 per cent through use of one of the sulfa drugs and by suction as a means of cleansing the wounds.

WORLD TITLE CLAIMANT

Recognized as the world heavyweight wrestling champion in the Eastern Section of this continent, today, Yvon Robert, Montreal, claims the world crown. Robert meets "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the colored heavyweight champion, in the feature bout at the Hume Arena, Wednesday night, when Promoter Frank Tunney will feature other stars such as Maurice Robert, Yvon's younger brother; Earl McCready, and a galaxy of ring stars for this outstanding show of the season. Reserve seats are still available but 'tis wise to Phone 74 before the S R O sign is hung out.

Tonight's the Night

President Harry Knott's softballers go into a huddle at the Police Court rooms tonight where the future program of the Belleville Softball League will again be decided and officers elected. After serving five years as secretary and treasurer Skipper Knott was elected to the chief chair of president in 1942 and no doubt will be given the conventional two year term of office when the mushballers convene this evening. Harry has served softball long and well in Belleville, having been manager of the only O.A.S.A. championship team to represent Belleville—the 1936 Percivals. The remainder of his softball tenure of office was at executive work.

It just may be so that a last minute application for affiliation might see the Stewart-Warner Alemite Company enter a team this year, after an absence from softball of many years.

Top-notchers Here

Apparently Promoter Frank Tunney isn't sparing any of the mazooka in order to keep good his promise to give Belleville rasslin' fans the bestest of the best. Last week the local wrestling clientele were all agog over the thrilling ring performance of "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the lithe colored sensation. Sensing Claybourne's popularity Tunney went one further and signed Yvon Robert, claimant to the world's heavyweight championship, to meet the colored lad at the Hume Arena Wednesday night. Now this lad Robert is just about one of the best in this business of muscle bending and has wrestled all over the continent meeting all comers and winning over 93 per cent. of his bouts.

Robert has the weight advantage over Claybourne, but the lithe Negro's ability might make up for this handicap. At any rate local fans are seeing two of the best matmen of the respective races in the world here Wednesday night.

The Marines Landed

Whenever a United States Marine goes on foreign duty, a baseball is as much a part of his equipment as a rifle and the game has followed the sea soldiers all over the world. Baseball is the Marines' most popular sport and they have done more to spread the gospel of the national pastime in foreign lands than any other branch of the service, Col. J. M. Tildsley, officer in charge of recruiting for the southern division, points out.

"The Marines have introduced baseball in New Zealand, Mexico, Haiti, Nicaragua, Spanish Honduras, San Salvador, Costa Rica and Panama, among other places," Colonel Tildsley reveals. "I recall that out in China, when space was restricted, the men turned to softball.

"Baseball is a fine game for morale, a clean, wholesome sport. For civilians it offers a little escape from the more serious problems of the day. And it is something that can be played without a lot of paraphernalia. I think you can say it is believed the Marines have been baseball's foremost boosters in the service. Certainly they have introduced the game in many places."

Remember When—?

Jess Willard, heavyweight boxer of the world in 1915-'18, came out of retirement 20 years ago today to sign for a fight with Luis Firpo, the bull of the Argentine Pampas. Although this fight saw two of the heaviest men ever to box in the ring opposing each other and Firpo k.o'd Willard. Firpo never made the world title. However, his bout with Jack Dempsey later was the most thrilling of all times, 23 knockdowns were scored in less than four rounds.

Old Pete, Nice Man

Discussing Grover Alexander in a recent fanning bee, Mike Gonzalez, Cuban coach of the Cardinals, said of the former great hurler:

"I catch Ol' Allie—you know, Alexander, when I play with Cubs. Allie never talk. He was most silent man I never knew. Nice man, though. No matter what I say pitch, he pitch and never have word to say. And Allie work fast jus' like Charlie Root. Get the signal, throw the ball. If fellow gets hit that's all right, too. Very nice man. Never shook off Ol' Mike."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 57

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is no mule like an old bridge player. When he gets set on some notion it takes more than a crowbar to pry him loose from it.

Take an opening bid of one. Why does a player start with such a bid? Only to advise his partner that he has a sound basis to work from for their future bidding.

What would be a sound basis? Only if he had better than average in all the essential items. The essential items include tricks, high cards, and sure tricks.

That is so obvious, it needs no other convincing arguments. Most expert players adopt it instinctively. Horse Sense uses it as the sound rule in every case

But many bridge oldtimers have been brought up on other ideas. Their bids are based on what are known as honor tricks. They were weaned on the assumption that three honor tricks are all they need.

So far as they are concerned, three honor tricks can do no wrong. It is as if they could do everything but wash the dishes. It is as if they sprouted wings and grew a halo.

If any such players muff their contract, a pained expression comes over their faces. They peer owlishly at you and exclaim: "Why, I had three honor tricks."

Some three honor tricks will take only three tricks. They are not nearly as good as less honor tricks that will take four tricks. But such players close their minds to that.

After all, what are partners trying to do in a bridge game? They are not there to see how many honor tricks they have. Their aim is to take as many tricks as they can.

You have this hand:

♠9 5 2
♥A 9 5
♦A K 7
♣10 7 5 3

You have what some players call three honor tricks. They will take only three tricks. Smother them with affection or fan the pants of them. They will still take no more than three tricks

Once and for all time, make up your mind to one definite thing. A hand with only three tricks in it is not a good opening. Not even if they are all aces

There are 12 high cards in a pack; the four aces, four kings, four queens. Each player is entitled to an average of one fourth of them in each deal; that is, three high cards.

To have more than his average, a player needs more than three of the high cards. And to start an opening bid of one, he needs better than average. Which is why an opener promises four high cards.

The trick to it is not to be tricked by a trick.

LESSON NO. 58

Why does a chicken cross the street To get over to the other side. That's what we are going to do right now.

We have been spending some of our time with the opening bidder. Let's cross the table and start messing around with partner.

The opening bid is the first numbered bid in a deal. Partner of the opening bidder must answer. An answer is a response. So, partner of the opener is the responder.

Responder always has an honest answer on tap. He may not always know the truth. He may not always tell the truth when he knows it. But the truth always is available.

If you are responder, there is one surest, and easiest way of knowing the truth. Horse Sense bridge has it. Let me tell it to you slowly in the days that follow.

To fulfill an opening bid of one, the partnership needs seven tricks. The opening guarantees five of them. So the balance of two tricks are expected from responder.

As a responder, that is your first cue. Before you even open your yap, your opening partner counts on you for two tricks. You build around that basis.

If you have only two tricks or less, say so. There is only one truthful way of saying so. You have a word for that purpose. The word is "Pass."

Suppose your partner starts with an opening bid of one heart. You have this hand:

♠9 6 4
♥A 7 8
♦10 5
♣8 6 4 3 2

When it is your turn to respond, count your tricks; one for each ace, each king, each queen, each short card. Your ace is one. Your short card in diamonds is one. You have two tricks and no more.

With not more than two tricks, respond with a pass. That will be the truth. And don't let some sap talk you out of it.

AT THE CAPITOL

"KLONDIKE FURY"
(First Belleville Showing)

It is only at rare intervals that the screen presents such a powerful, closely-knit drama as "Klondike Fury," the Monogram picture which opened Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre. The picture qualifies as engrossing entertainment, and a distinct contribution to the season's film output.

Cast, director and story all contribute importantly to this happy result. Edmund Lowe is starred, and comes forth with one of the best performances of his career as a disbarred doctor who flies into the northern wilderness when a patient dies in an operation, and he becomes involved in a scandal. Other sterling characterizations are those of Lucile Fairbanks, William Henry and Ralph Morgan in principal roles.

"Klondike Fury" definitely takes its place among the season's better pictures.

"THE WIFE TAKES A FLYER"

The husband takes a trip! "The Wife Takes a Flyer"! The flyer takes advantage!

There, in a nutshell, is the laugh-packed story of Columbia's hectic new comedy, "The Wife Takes a Flyer", the added hit now at the Capitol Theatre with Joan Bennett and Franchot Tone starred. Joan is the loveliest creature who ever occupied enemy territory; Franchot is a Yankee daredevil in the R. A. F. who dives head-first into intrigue, danger and romance!

Major featured players include Allyn Joslyn, Cecil Cunningham and Roger Clark. Richard Wallace directed the comedy, which was produced by B. P. Schulberg.

The newest Canada Carries On Featurette "New Soldiers are Tough" and the Universal News complete the big double bill.

AT THE BELLE

"Star Spangled Rhythm"

"Star Spangled Rhythm' is a picture with enough entertainment in it to make a dozen top films! Its more than forty stars go through their singing, dancing and acting paces in a way that brought applause from the packed Belle theatre where it opened Saturday. The picture will have every movie fan in the country talking about it for a long time to come.

Paramount has everything it's got into "Star Spangled Rhythm" and that "everything" includes Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Victor Moore, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Vera Zorina, Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester, William Bendix, Jerry Colonna, Macdonald Carey, Walter Abel and every other Paramount star you can think of.

The glamour boys and girls really go to town in this story, played within the Paramount studio. It tells of gateman Victor Moore who has pretended to his sailor son, Eddie Bracken, that he runs the studio. When Eddie and his pals show up on shore leave, Moore, with the help of studio telephone operator Betty Hutton, and the assistance of all the stars, keep up the deception.

The specialty acts of the various stars who put on a show for the sailors, are really terrific. Their singing, dancing and fun-making to the tune of seven hit songs set "Star Spangled Rhythm' in an entertainment class by itself. It should be a "must" on every movie fans list!

The Belle News of the World and Popeye in "Spinash for Britain" will be presented on the same program.

JAPANESE BASE AT LAE POUNDED

Progress of New Guinea Jungle Warfare is Not Disclosed

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 17 — (CP) — Aerial warfare in the Southwest Pacific dwindled to comparatively minor raids yesterday after Saturday's 100-plane Japanese assault against Allied positions in New Guinea.

Today's communique said nothing of ground fighting in New Guinea. Sharp clashes in the Bobdubi-Salamaua-Mubo area had been reported the day before.

The Japanese base at Lae, where enemy planes frequently stop to refuel, was hit three times Saturday. The first attack caught six bombers and four fighters on the ground. That night a small force of Mitchells twice hit the airdrome, starting numerous fires and coming away without any enemy attempt at interception.

Kendari Airdrome Bombed

Approximately 2,000 miles to the west, four-engined aircraft bombed Kendari airdrome on Celebes Island, causing explosions and large fires that were visible 50 miles away.

Single bombers raided a half dozen points in New Guinea, New Oreland, and New Britain.

A flight of medium bombers returning from a raid, attacked two Japanese bombers and 10 fighters off the Papuan coast, destroying one fighter and damaging one bomber and coming away without loss to themselves.

Progress of the New Guinea jungle warfare was not disclosed. Sharp Japanese attacks late last week at Bobdubi were repulsed and the Allies counter-attacked. Last reports said the battle was seesawing, with the Japanese still trying to drive out the Australian and American troops who had virtually cut off the Japanese advance positions at Mubo from their supply base at Salamaua.

Bobdubi Attack

The Bobdubi attack was supported by 64 planes. Nine bombers, escorted by 15 fighters, hammered the ground positions. Hardly had the sound of their engines died away when 40 dive bombers roared in—the largest such force sent out by the Japanese since 45 attacked Buna several weeks ago.

Twenty bombers and 14 fighters attacked Wau. No damage and no casualties were inflicted there and first reports from Bobdubi indicated only slight casualties. The dense jungle cover was believed to have screened the Allied troops effectively from the raiders.

FLOOD OF RUMORS

hopes that Rome would not be bombed.)

The Swiss newspaper Die Nation, commenting on Italy's defence preparations, said that Italy does not expect further help from Germany in case of an invasion, since Germany's own preparations to beat off an invasion attempt are demanding her full attention, and because Swiss neutrality would bar the use of railways through Switzerland for military preparations.

Two London Papers Say Hitler May Desert Italy

(Two London dailies went further—declaring that Hitler is preparing to withdraw his troops through Brenner Pass and leave Italy to the mercy of the Allies. The German Gestapo and army officers have returned already, and there are unmistakeable signs that the army will follow shortly, the newspapers said.)

Mussolini's realistic attitude toward the Tunisian defeat has been accompanied by further party purges and a tightening of his control.

Describing Italy's defence preparations, it was pointed out here that Italy's geography prohibits the defence-in-space strategy. The high command has constructed long, staggered defences in the north and south protecting the Po valley plain and the passes beyond. A natural defence line exists between Genoa and Venice, along the lower course of the Po, and much recent attention has been given the Po line.

Italy's Flat Vulnerable

In the past, Italian defence plans have been centred on fleet and air force to meet an invasion before it could reach Italian beaches.

Italy's fleet is still potent, with six or eight battleships, heavy and light cruisers and 50 to 60 destroyers. But it would be highly vulnerable to air attack by superior Allied forces based on North African or on Sicily and Sardinia should those island outposts be overrun.

Italy's Air Strength Weak

London, May 17 — (CP) — The British Air Ministry said in a summary today that "the total Italian air strength is so small and so technically inferior to the Allies that its best efforts, even in conjunction with the German Air Force, could not adequately protect Italy from Allied air attack."

The bulk of the Axis air strength in Africa, the ministry statement said, was the German Air Force, and even with that trained personnel and with planes superior to those of the Italians the Axis lost at least four times as many aircraft as did the Allies.

Food Conference Opens Tuesday

By WADE WERNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Hot Springs, Va., May 17 —(AP) —How to squeeze a decent living for 2,000,000,000 people out of 4,000,000,000 acres of productive land is the basic problem which representatives of 43 governments will discuss at the United Nations food conference opening here tomorrow.

Inasmuch as the conference will devote itself exclusively to post-war questions, it will consider the food and clothing needs of the world as a whole — not merely of the countries now aligned against the Axis.

Agricultural experts estimate that only about 11 per cent of the total land area of the earth consists of cultivatable soil. In other words about 4,000,000,000 acres must be made to supply the food and clothing needs of some 2,000,000,000 human beings.

What the conference plans to discuss is the prospect of making the available acres provide an adequate living for all.

The conference is an exploratory session, in which agricultural and health experts as well as key government officials will participate, and their aim will be to explore the difficulties and opportunities involved in feeding and clothing the post-war world.

No agreements will be signed and no government commitments made; but it is hoped that the recommendations resulting from some three weeks of study and discussion will point the way to further international collaboration toward eventual world freedom from want.

Picton and District

Prince Edward 'Over the Top'

Picton, May 17. —Prince Edward County went over the top in the Victory Loan campaign by subscribing $1,162,400 or 102 per cent of its quota. The objective was considered very high for a purely agricultural district. In the general canvass, the objective of $1,060,000 was exceeded by $22,000, while special names accounted for $90,400 additional. Pratically every district exceeded its quota with Picton R.A.F. and Mountain View R.C.A.F. in the lead. North Marysburg township was the first civilian district to exceed its quota.

LATE HOURS BAD

Remember! You teen-aged girls who want to be popular—that late hours will never help you on the road to be popular and respected.

The young lady who has to be home at a proper hour is the one who is taken out again—not the one who allows herself to be taken home in the "wee small hours" of the morning.

Such behavior is proper etiquette and tells whether you know the right thing to do at all times. No one will ever worry about you doing the wrong thing so long as they see you behaving well.

Many good times are in store for girls and boys who know the rules of etiquette. They are welcome guests because they are pleasant to be with.

Good manners and poise are among the most valuable possessions that any young person can have.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning pop was drinking his coffee with his eyes shut to see if that would make it taste stronger, and ma said, William, the Orsems are making the most miraculous progress.

What orphans? pop said, and ma said, Now William you know very well I'm an officer in the Offer Rides to Service Men, the Orsems. We're enlisting dozens of new members every day. Can you imagine what that means to hundreds of tired soldiers and sailors? she said.

It's also a break for fresh ones who might eventually get tired, pop said, and ma said, Well naturally, we dont make any distinctions. Any driver with O.R.S.M. on his windshield will gladly offer a lift to any and every service man, and no questions asked, she said.

Well hay, ma, do you want to hire me for a special scout to report the Orsems that drive right passed service men as if they didn't even see them? I said. and ma said. Dont be preposterous.

I'm not, ma. because I can tell you why? I said. Me and Puds Simkins tried it yesterday. We took a walk and every time we saw a car with an Orsem sticker we made signals at it with our thumb, and not a one of them stopped for us. I said. and ma said. Then they all showed good sense, they're not suppose to pick up children for land sakes you silly thing.

But jimminy, ma. I had on my sailor hat and Puds was wearing his soldier suit, so the principal was the same wasn't it? I said. Good night, ma, we had to walk all a ways home again, I said, and ma said, Well I should hope so, it served you right. How far did you walk? she said.

Only a couple of blocks, we were so busy making signals we didn't have time to walk far, I said, and ma said, Oh, eat your breakfast and drink your milk.

Which I did.

CHAPTER 17

She had seen Paula only once for luncheon because Paula was leaving Washington for the summer to visit friends in various places. They had met in the restaurant, Paula sweeping in like a colorful tempest. Temple had wondered whether Paula would ask questions. But she didn't. She looked at her as she had always looked at her—as though Temple were a child to whom she was devoted. Paula was full of talk of herself and the summer so the hour passed quickly.

When they were about to leave, Paula said, "You'll hear from me from time to time. Postcards. And if you need me, write me at my last address on the last postcard you receive. You make me feel more of a parasite than ever, running away from the heat while you have to stay and take it." Then Temple had said, "Everything is all right with me, Paula, I'm still glad we did it." And Paula had said, smiling, "My little roof was honored, darling."

The people in the house thought her free since Jud came no more to wait restlessly in the sitting-room for her to join him. Thus to the young men in the house who had been conscious of her from the first she was "back in circulation." Merritt Brown, with whom she ate breakfast and dinner, was the first to ask her one evening in June: "Are you doing anything Saturday night, Temple? If you aren't, I'd like you to meet some friends of mine who are driving over from Baltimore to go dancing."

"I'm sorry but I can't," she said.

"Another time then?" he asked as they parted amiably in the hall.

When Abby said, "You should go out with other men, Temple. Oh, I know I don't, but I'm different. Miles is the only man who ever wanted to take me out but you, . . besides, the boys at the camps want dates and it's a patriotic duty to make yourself available. It does not mean that you are disloyal."

Temple had answered in the only way she could with a lameness that shamed her, "But I don't want to, Abby. I'm not interested."

When Merritt Brown was refused the third time, he passed the word around to the other young men who accepted it as a challenge. Thus she became a target for invitations. Some telephoned; others approached her in person and one young man was certain that he would relate success when he gave her a lift and suggested that rather than return to the house for dinner they go some place else. But Temple said truthfully that she was expecting a telephone call from home that night and must be there.

So it became not flattering, but embarrassing to refuse. An answer was not always quickly forthcoming, but once or twice she had fumbled for words to express her regrets. Moreover, a few who had been rejected neglected to be courteous after that and others regarded her with defiance mixed with pretended amusement when she entered the dining-room. Only Merritt continued to be the same. One day in July they met a few blocks from the house and walked together. He said, prefacing his words with a chuckle, "I'd like to ask you something. You've turned me down three times I've asked you for a date. I could understand that if you didn't turn down everyone else."

Temple said, "I'm making myself generally unpopular in the house. I know. But I . . ."

He looked at her and smiled. "For the duration?" Temple nodded. Then he said, "That's a big order for what seems to be a long war. A crowd of us is going swimming on Sunday and taking along a picnic lunch. How about coming along?"

"Well, how about it?" she thought. "To dive into cold water, to feel genuinely hungry after a swim, to see woods and sand and a sunset." She said, "All right."

So the unapproachable Temple went swimming in Chesapeake Bay on Sunday. "It isn't wrong," she kept telling herself. It isn't wrong, is it, Jud? It's so hot in the city. I can't always be alone. Where are you this afternoon? Where are you and what are you doing?"

After that afternoon at the beach when they discovered that she was really not unapproachable but rather shy and that she looked as good in a bathing suit as they had thought she would and that in the cruel daylight glare she was even lovelier-looking than in the dim lights in the house her refusals had to begin all over again. That they began to leave on vacations shortly after saved her from what might have been an intolerable situation.

Abby went to Virginia Beach, Merritt to Lake George. Paula sent postcards from Maine. In Washington the sidewalks were soft from the heat and the boarding house was almost empty.

The war was spreading. And there were still people who said that it was no concern of ours that brave men died and people starved and intolerance was turned into a whip.

For Temple life was bearable because there had been three days of happiness in May and there would be October. In October when—heaven grant—it would be cooler and her savings would have accumulated, she would go to Jud. She denied herself every luxury and even some necessities in order to send her usual stipend home and to save enough to take her to Jud. She walked to work and back and at noon had only a cool drink for luncheon. A quarter lost in her purse and found was cause for great inner rejoicing. Never had money been so important. But no amount of love or longing could take her to Jud now. Only money. It seemed to her then that her life was concentrated on fighting the heat and thinking of money.

Temple's mother was begging her to come home for a weekend. Finally she weakened and took a coach one Friday night and aroused her family from bed early the next morning. They received her noisily, affectionately and tearfully.

"You're thinner, child," Grandmother Hallett said as they sat for hours around the breakfast table. "You don't eat enough bread."

Allison, chin in hand, worshipped her. "Oh, Temple, don't go back! Don't ever go back! I won't let you go back. Guess what? I did figure skating this year."

Her mother's eyes worshipped her, too, but with more restraint. She did not ask Temple any of the intimate things she wanted to ask her. Even a mother had not the right. Instead she inquired about the boarding house and Temple's work and the feeling in Washington concerning the war. She was thinking that although Temple seemed thinner, she looked happier. "But no," she thought quickly, "that wasn't quite right either." Temple did not look happier. She looked rather as though her old resentments had died with the much younger Temple who had left home in January. For there was maturity in the Temple who came home in August. Why, she wondered. Why won't they ever tell their mothers? Why must they think that to their mothers they must always be nice little girls untouched by experience and mistakes? She thought, I was that way, too . . .

She said, "Dr. McCormick came back last weekend to see the Reynolds. Virginia told me where he is stationed, but I'm afraid I've forgotten. It isn't Dr. McCormick now, but Captain McCormick."

Allison giggled, "Oh, Temple, you should see him in uniform. He looked wonderful!"

Harry . . . How remote! He might have been some figure out of her childhood. When she looked at her mother, she thought, "If I had a daughter, I wouldn't want her to do what I did. I'd want to be there when she was married. Will it hurt you? Will you ever forgive me?"

She went for a walk that afternoon, with Allison hurrying at her side. She stopped to talk to people she knew. When she walked across the campus over earth that she had loved and left, it was as though she had been gone a long time. It was only that she had lived a long time in the space of a few months. And Jud walked invisibly beside her, seeing her town and her school. Oh, they would come back together "my husband and I" . . But where would they live? How long, how long before there would be peace and order again, and people could plan their lives and their homes and their families? How long before a young man was not a number to be called, but an individual with a name and a job of his own choosing?

She visited only her family though several people telephoned. It had been so much easier than she had thought to take her roots elsewhere, but there was sadness in the realization that they would never grow again whence they had sprung. Now she was a visitor in her home. Though she could not speak of her marriage, she felt married; and her home would be with Jud after the war. Nothing would ever be as it had been. "You can never go back," Paula had said.

When Temple returned to Washington and the people in the house returned, sunburned and refreshed, and letters from Jud came at least twice weekly, the feeling of being married grew upon her. She now began to pause before windows containing furniture and to read newspaper and magazine articles on interior decoration. One day on her lunch hour she bought linens that were on sale, after that each week added to the small collector for which room had to be made in the already crowded dresser. At times she regarded that dresser with defiance, thinking, "I will look ahead! I will!"

Temple's moods ran up and down the scale from high cheer to dark despair. At times she was very happy and could see the war ending soon and Jud coming back. She saw them going home, to her home, to announce their marriage and then making a home for themselves. But that home was not in Washington. It was always in some place less crowded. She saw them sitting before a fire on winter nights and sailing a boat together in the summer. She saw them inseparable. There was a place—there would be a place—for his frivolous mother. A visit now and then cheerfully tolerated. Yet the dark thoughts that it would be a long war and that he would never come back or if he did he would be so changed they would not know each other, came, less frequently than the good thoughts. One dream had passed. This was the new dream, and this new dream was the essence of her.

Abby had changed. Rather Abby's appearance had changed. Gone were the drab, shapeless clothes, the sensible oxfords and the flat, uninteresting waves in her dark hair. Temple, who loved pretty clothes went shopping with her and saw a hairdresser lift Abby's heavy hair and arrange it in a soft roll around her well-shaped head. And Temple thought, "If Miles loved you the way you were, why do you want to change? I don't want to change for Jud. I want to be exactly the same."

Walking back to the house, holding her old hat in her hand, Abby said. "It isn't that I've lacked vanity. It's just that I thought I was hopeless. Because I was plain and studious, my family called me an old maid even when I was a child. So I got to believing I was. It was so much bother to be working on your hair and thinking about what you were going to wear. It was too much trouble."

BEY OF TUNIS DEPOSED

London, May 15 (CP).—The Algiers radio said today that Gen. Henri Giraud has deposed the Bey of Tunis for endangering the security of Tunis. It said a successor has been appointed but did not name him.

The Bey, Sidi Mohammed Al Mounsaf, had been elevated to "king" by the Germans in return for his collaboration during the German-Italian occupation.

Col. Zigmund Berling To Command Polish Army in Russia

Moscow, May 17 —(AP)— Pravda, the Communist Party Newspaper, said today that Col. Zigmund Berling will command a new Polish Army now being formed in Russia to fight against Germany.

Col. Berling formerly was chief-of-staff of the 5th division in the Polish Army of Gen. Wladyslaw Anders. That army was composed of Polish soldiers freed after Germany attacked Russia.

The Army did not take the field and later was moved out of Russia into Iran.

In their recent dispute with the the Polish government in London the Russians made much of the fact that the Polish army had not gone into battle against the Germans.

Synthetic Rubber Plants Completed By End of Year 1943

Washington, May 17—(AP)—Every plant in the synthetic rubber program will be completed by the end of this year, United States Rubber Director William M. Jeffers reported today, but "the non-essential driver cannot expect new tires for a long time."

Jeffers, in his third progress report, said essential drivers would get 12,000,000 new tires this year-5,000,000 synthetics and 7,000,000 pre-war tires—and 30,000,000 new tires in 1944.

Jeffers' report followed a warning by Petroleum Administrator Harold Ickes and Price Administrator Prentis Brown that "drastic steps" will be taken unless east coast motorists cut down on their use of gasoline.

See Indication of Grip Germany Has on Finlandd

Stockholm, May 17 — (AP) — Prime Minister Edwin Linkomies of Finland made an Independence Day speech yesterday in which he said: "We must live and it is better not to create any more trouble." This was seen as an indication of the grip Germany has on the country and of the fear of the Finns that a clash with the Germans would cause more difficulty than a break with the United States.

He also took note of recent attacks on the government by labor elements which favor closer cooperation with the United States and declared "it would be very bad to weaken us by quarrels on the home front."

Finland is at war with Britain and Russia but not with the United States.

NIXON IS READY TO ASSUME OFFICE OF PREMIER

Conant is Expected to Resign on Monday or Tuesday

ELECTION COMING?

Toronto, May 17 — (CP) — Premier Conant arrived at his office today preparatory, it is expected, to his relinquishing today or tomorrow the Premiership in favor of Harry Nixon, Liberal member of the Legislature for Brant who recently was named leader of the Ontario Liberals.

It was Mr. Conant's first visit to his office since his collapse from nervous eyhaustion on the eve of the election of a party leader to succeed Mitchell Hepburn who resigned the Premiership in Mr. Conant's favor last October. Mr. Conant had been a candidate for the leadership until his surren illness.

The Premier declined a statement on his immediate intentions today but it was known that he was going to meet his cabinet later, a meeting at which he probably will tell his colleagues just when he intends to resign.

Mr. Nixon arrived in the city today from his St. George farm. He also declined comment on the situation.

Premier Conant appeared to have lost considerable weight because of his illness.

The telegram said today that Premier Conant would resign tomorrow morning and that Mr. Nixon and his cabinet would be sworn in at the same time.

View in Toronto

Toronto, May 17. (CP)—It was believed today that all is in readiness for Harry Corwin Nixon, the St. George farmer and recently-elected leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, to become the Premier of the Province.

Elevation of Mr. Nixon to the Premiership may bring about a provincial general election. Indicative that an election is expected was the announcement Saturday night by Leopold Macaulay, Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for York South that "election forms are being printed in Queen's Park and everything there is being made ready for Mr. Nixon's election announcement".

Macaulay Will Retire

Mr. Macaulay made this statement at a meeting in his riding at which he announced his retirement from active political life.

Mr. Macaulay has represented the riding since its inception 17 years ago and served as a cabinet minister under two premiers. He spent eight years on the government side and nine years in opposition. He was provincial secretary under Premier G. Howard Ferguson in 1930 and in 1931 when George S. Henry became premier he was made Minister of Highways.

For eight of his nine years in opposition he was the financial critic.

Described one time by Mr. Hepburn as "the best rough and tumble fighter in the House", Mr. Macaulay said Saturday night that his decision to retire was taken because he must devote more time and energy to his law practice.

Meanwhile, Premier Conant was expected to meet his Cabinet today for the last time. In readiness for his retirement from the government his staff moved his personal files and belongings from the Legislative Bulidings, Saturday.

Germans Execute Entire Czech Family

London, May 17. (CP)—The Czech government said today that, for the first time since the summer reprisals for the assassination of the Gestapo "hangman" Reinhard Heydrich last May, the Germans had executed an entire family on a charge of harboring a Czech engaged in anti-German activities.

The execution of the family, made up of a man and two women, was reported to have been announced in Prague.

A government spokesman said last September that 1,568 Czechs had been executed since Heydrich was shot.

SAVE 6,000 ACRES FROM FLOODING

Soldiers, Men, Women, Children Heighten 2-Mile Dike to Hold Back Waters

Chatham, Ont., May 17 (CP)—Six thousand acres of low-lying farm land in the Erieau area were saved from inundation by the waters of Lake Erie yesterday when hundreds of men, women and children, bolstered over 50 soldiers from No. 12 basic training centre, heightened a two-mile long dyke sufficiently to hold back the waters of Lake Erie which rose about four feet above normal. The half-million dollar Erieau onion-growing area is included in the area saved from flooding.

Activities were centred on the Fourth Concession road, which is the county highway into Erieau, and the Harwich Township road, which links the highway to the Lake Shore road. Both roads are utilized as dykes and front on a lagoon of about 50 acres in area which is separated from the lake by sand and beach.

The fight to save the land from inundation, which would have rendered it useless for two years at least, began early Sunday morning and lasted until late last night. Patrols are still in force and the dyke is under constant observation.

The work reached such a tempo that residents of Blenheim, Harwich, Raleigh and Erieau were called upon to aid in the fight.

2 Axis Vessels Scuttled, Trying To Avoid Blockade

London, May 17 (CP)—Two Axis vessels attempting to break the Allied blockade of the continent have been scuttled after interception by British warships, an admiralty communique said tonight.

One blockade runner, the 4,793-ton Silvaplana, was "inward bound from the Far East with a valuable cargo of rubber and tin," the communique said. The cruiser Adventure sighted her 200 miles off Cape Finistere, Spain, and ordered her to stop, whereupon the crew started coming over the sides.

"Flames enveloped the blockade runner's bridge and a series of explosions rent her hull," the Admiralty said, "burning fiercely and with her ammunition exploding, she heeled over and sank stern first."

Tokyo Says U.S. Landing Stream Of Forces on Attu

New York, May 17 (AP) — The Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese army spokesman today as saying that attacking United States forces were landing a steady stream of reinforcements on Attu Island under cover of a naval and air bombardment.

Japanese troops, however, are holding on to their positions and have a number of damaging counter-attacks against tremendous numerical odds, the spokesman declared.

The acknowledgment that American troops still are pouring ashore at Attu was subordinated at the end of the broadcast, which sought to emphasize successes which the Japanese were said to have gained.

The broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press, said in the early phases of the fighting, heavy fighting was raging on the northern coast.

Chief of Italian General Staff Reported Resigned

New York, May 17. (AP) — A Berne dispatch broadcast by the Moscow Radio today quoted Milan sources as saying that Gen. Vitorio Abrosio, chief of the Italian General Staff, had presented his resignation to Premier Mussolini.

The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.

Gen. Ambrosio succeeded Marshal Ugo Cavallero as chief of the General Staff after the latter resigned Jan. 31, following the disastrous Libyan campaign since followed by the ousting of the Axis from all North Africa.

Brantford, Ont., May 17—(CP)—J. Pedley had to wade through waist-deep water on a river-flooded section of Birkett's lane to carry his wife from their marooned automobile to dry land. Unaware of the inundation, they had driven into three feet of water before realizing its depth.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 17 —(AP)— Stock market leaders generally plodded over an irregularly lower path today as most cash customers appeared to be awaiting developments both at home and abroad.

The list was a trifle shaky at the start.

The coal labor controversy, tax matters and the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences were used as arguments for speculative and investment conservation. The good war news seemed to provide scant inspiration.

The Canadian section was quiet. C.P.R. and Dome held unchanged. Lake Shore gained fractionally.

stocks lacking much support included U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Western Union, American Telephone, Radio Corp., Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, American Can, Anaconda and Allied Chemical. Ahead at intervals were Bethlehem, Great Northern, Pennsylvania, North American and U. S. Gypsum.

Soft Coal Operators May Be Asked To Renew Bargaining

Washington, May 17 —(AP)— Certain to be shunned again by the United Mine Workers, the United States Labor Board may urge soft coal operators today to return to New York immediately and renew bargaining with the miners as the only apparent way of assuring an extension of the 15-day truce after tomorrow night.

The Board had directed both sides to appear today to make arrangements for negotiations, but John L. Lewis, the miners' president, announced in New York the miners would not be represented.

Operators said they would be on hand, though deploring Lewis' attitude.

The miners' chief, again denouncing the Board, said he felt the case was now outside its jurisdiction and that committees of the U. M. W. "are here in New York awaiting the arrival of someone with whom they can negotiate new agreements for the mining industry." He withheld comment on the prospect of continued production after Tuesday midnight.

"We are still ready to negotiate at any hour when the bituminous operators show up for a conference," Lewis told newsmen in New York yesterday. "In the light of all facts we think that such a conference would be fruitful."

Madoc Red Cross Meets

Madoc — The regular monthly business meeting of Madoc Red Cross was held in the Community Hall, with Mrs. Allen Johnson in charge. The treasurer gave a report on the finances of the branch. A report on the shipments of work to date were very encouraging. Rev. Mr. Poulter, chairman of salvage division, appealed to those present to co-operate in the Salvage Drive. It was felt that interest in Red Cross work should be stimulated and with this in mind it was planned to have a public meeting in the near future under the direction of Major Watson, field secretary, featuring pictures of the war. The shipments for April amounted to 110 articles. The following donations were received: Rebekah lodge 2 quilts; Harts Unit 5 quilts; Trinity Church 9 girls' sweaters, 10 girls' knickers, 1 boy's sweater, 2 ladies' knickers, 6 comfort bags; Knitwit Club, 8 comfort bags; Hazzards Unit 4 quilts, 1 Afghan; Mrs. Farrow 1 pair mitts.

Trinity W.M.S. Meets

The W.M.S. of Trinity Church met at the home of Mrs. Corrigall for their May meeting. The president welcomed two members who had been away during the Winter months. The corresponding secretary reported cards sent to the sick members of the congregation. Fifteen calls were made during the month. It was decided to hold a public W.M.S. service some Sunday during June. Plans were laid for a party for the Baby Band and their mothers. Mrs. Caverly as delegate, with the assistance of Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Poulter, brought most interesting reports from the presbyterial. Information regarding clothing for the annual bale was given by the supply secretary. Rev. Mr. MacKay of All People's Mission, Toronto, spoke on the "Value of Missionary Work." RAF ATTACKS MANY TARGETS ON CONTINENT
AUSTRALIAN HOSPITAL SHIP TORPEDOED BY JAPS

Coastal Aircraft Damage 5 Ships In Enemy Convoy

3 Escort Vessels And Two Supply Ships Left Sinking And Abandoned

TARGETS NOT NAMED

London, May 18 —(CP)— R.A.F. bombers, returning again last night to the air offensive on Europe, attacked targets in southern Germany, fighters swept northern France and Belgium, and coastal aircraft damaged five ships in an enemy convoy, it was announced today.

The Coastal Command planes attacked a convoy off the Netherlands coast which was initially attacked by Beaufighters yesterday. Two of the supply ships in a convoy of eight merchantmen and three escort vessels were left sinking and were seen to be abandoned by their crews, it was said.

Axis radios on the continent began going off the air this morning, indicating that Allied air raiders were continuing to blast European strongholds by daylight. First to go silent was that at Calais.

An R.C.A.F. communique announced that two of the ships which were left sinking and abandoned by their crews were hit by torpedo-carrying Hampdens of an R.C.A.F. squadron in the Coastal Command.

Rail, Road Targets Hit

Other R.C.A.F. aircraft, of the Fighter Command, attacked rail and road targets in northern France during offensive patrols.

From the night's operation, three R.C.A.F. aircraft are missing.

The targets in Germany were not immediately named. The new attacks were a continuation of the smashing Allied aerial offensive of the night before in which two of Germany's largest dams were breached and devastating floods loosed, and the daylight attack of U. S. bombers yesterday against Lorient, Bordeaux and the U-boat base at Keroman.

An Allied headquarters communique announcing that Alghero in Sardinia was bombed again last night indicated that the air offensive was also being carried on relentlessly from Africa against the south of Europe.

Channel Battle

The moonlight channel battle was the finishing attack of a fight started in daylight yesterday with hits on escort craft and supply ships by Beaufighters. The Canadian squadron then attacked with torpedoes.

The ships hit by torpedoes were described as large merchantmen.

Two Coastal Command planes, two fighters and one bomber were reported missing from the night's operations. These included the three missing Canadian planes.

During the night, enemy planes again struck at London. At least 10 persons were known to have been killed. A Welsh town, identified by the German radio as Cardiff, underwent one of the worst raids since 1941. By noon the bodies of several dead had been recovered, and rescuers said it was believed that at least 20 were buried in wreckage.

The Allied aerial offensive reached new heights Sunday night as British raiders breached two of the Reich's largest dams and loosed floods in the Ruhr and Weser valleys.

It was the R.A.F.'s sixth successive night foray over the continent and followed daylight thrusts by American airmen who dumped 500 tons of bombs on three important targets on the French coast.

Sweep Out in Force.

Sweeping out in force, United States heavy and medium bombers attacked Lorient and the adjacent U-boat base at Keroman yesterday, leaving the whole waterfront pockmarked with bomb bursts, while another force roared southward to Bordeaux. Returning crews reported "very good bombing results" on all three targets.

Meanwhile reconnaissance reports indicated that the daring raid by picked Lancaster crews, including Flt. Sgt. Kenneth W. Brown of Moose Jaw, Sask., assigned to attack and breach two of Germany's largest dams Sunday night had attained the goal of "doing as much damage as could be done by thousands of tons of bombs dropped on many nights running" on the usual objectives.

A mammoth wall of water swept down into the highly-industrialized Ruhr valley, site of some of Hitler's most needed war plants, from the blasted wall of the Mohne dam.

Farther to the east, the Eder dam, backing up 202,000,000 tons of water and characterized by the air ministry as the largest dam in all Germany, spilled terrific quantities of water through at least two uncontrollable breaches into the Weser valley, drowning out Nazi war plants and disrupting water-borne traffic.

Long-range four-engined Lancasters dipped into a hail of anti-aircraft fire to an altitude of only 100 feet to drop a barrage of heavy mines against and over the dam walls. Picked crews trained for weeks for the novel attack.

The Sorpe reservoir, which with the Mohne Dam controls about 70 per cent. of the Ruhr basin waterfall, also was attacked, but results were not reported.

A late reconnaissance revealed that the Mohne Dam was breached over a length of 100 yards, the Air Ministry said, and that the power station below had been swept away.

The sweeping floods tore up railways, carried away bridges, and destroyed or damaged Hydro-Electric power stations, the Ministry added.

Enemy raiders, meanwhile, poked at the London area again last night and early today, giving the capital three alerts over approximately the same four-hour period as on the previous night, and fire and smoke were observed in suburban areas.

The intruders struck most sharply, however, against a Welsh coast town, causing considerable damage with fire-bombs, incendiaries and delayed action bombs. Damage and casualties elsewhere were small, authoritative sources said. Three of the raiders were reported downed.

May Have Election This Summer Says The New Premier

Toronto, May 18. (CP)—Ontario may have an election this summer with the time for it not necessarily restricted to June, Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario's new premier, told reporters today shortly before he was sworn in to succeed Hon. Gordon Conant.

Mr. Nixon said the issue is not definitely settled and is dependent on the military position of the Canadian troops overseas but he added: "An election could be held anytime during the summer because people are not now going on extended holidays as they used to".

"Does that mean you would hold an election later than June?" he was asked.

"Yes", Mr. Nixon replied. "It might be in July or August or later, based on the position of Canadian troops coupled with the assurance they may vote by proxy".

Mr. Nixon said that the procedure would be to set the election date when the troops are not in action and should they then proceed into action after the date is set the election would not be postponed.

Air Attacks on Germany Creating Panic Among Population Says Paper

London, May 18—(CP)—The Soviet Information Bureau took official cognizance today of the effects which British air attacks are having upon Germany, declaring that increasingly frequent raids on industrial centres are "causing the enemy considerable loss" and creating panic among the population.

Evidence of this, said the communique, which was broadcast by the Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor here, has been found in letters taken from German soldiers killed or captured on the Russian front.

The bulletin quoted one such letter from a Dr. Schmitsrantz of Cologne as saying:-

"We have almost daily alerts. True, only single bombs are dropped on the centre of the town, but large numbers fly over the suburbs where big factories are located."

The broadcast quoted another letter from a Berlin resident as saying:-

"We in Berlin have been given an idea of what war is. After a British raid there were fires all over town. The firemen spent several days trying to cope with the work of putting them out."

An expect from another letter said:-

"British airmen have done a fair amount of damage again. Dusseldorf and Essen suffered heavily. One feels helpless against the awful inevitability of a tragic end."

ACTION TAKEN TO END SERIOUS COAL SHORTAGE

Compulsory Transfer To Mines of Men Experienced in Coal Mining Ordered

AFFECTS ARMED FORCES

Ottawa, May 18 —(CP)— Government action to end a serious coal shortage by increasing output of Canadian mines was in prospect today following an Order-in-Council which declared in effect that a state of national emergency existed in coal production.

The Order-in-Council, announced in the House of Commons yesterday by Prime Minister King, provided for a proclamation to declare a state of national emergency in this sphere.

It was expected that an order probably would be issued within a few days providing for the compulsory transfer to mines of men experienced in coal mining and now engaged in other employment. It is also expected to affect miners now in the armed forces.

"Unless supplies of coal are forthwith increased and maintained at an adequate level the war effort and the life and health of the nation will be gravely imperilled," said the Order-in-Council, dated Monday.

Coal Board Appointed

Last November an emergency coal board was appointed to devise means of stimulating production. It consisted of J. McG. Stewart, coal administrator; Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada; C. L. Payne, representing the United Mine Workers of America, and J. C. Godsoe of Toronto, associate co-ordination of controls in the munitions department.

Defence Minister Ralston told Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South) in the House of Commons yesterday that some 1,200 soldiers had been given leave to go back to coal mining. Mr. Gillis had said he had received about 50 letters from men in the forces saying they had been unable to get leave to go back to the mines.

Order-in-Council Tabled

The Order-in-Council, tabled by Mr. King, made these points:—

"The Canadian economy and the national war effort based upon it depend upon adequate supplies of coal;

"The need for coal has grown and continues to grow with the development of war effort;

"Supplies of coal are substantially below the level required to meet the increased national needs resulting from the war."

Mr. King told Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, that it was proposed to issue the proclamation regardless of the coal situation in the United States. But, he added, "that situation is one which the ministers of the Crown must necessarily take into account as having certain possible consequences upon Canada's fuel supply."

The last previous proclamation declaring a national emergency was issued immediately prior to Canada's declaration of war. It provided a basis for implementing the War Measures Act.

Weekly Meat Rations From 1 to 2 1-2 Pounds Coupon Values for Cuts

Ottawa, May 18 — (CP) — Each Canadian will be entitled to a weekly meat ration of between one pound and 2½ pounds a week, depending on whether the meat is purchased with or without bones, under the Dominio's impending ration scheme, the Prices Board announced today.

The effective date of meat rationing has not been announced. Board officials said yesterday it is hoped it may go into effect by the end of this month, or early next month at the latest.

Coupon values of all meats which will be rationed were contained in today's statement.

Each individual will be entitled to spend two coupons a week for meat. For rationing purpose meat is divided into four groups. Types in group "A" are valued at one-half ound per coupon; group "B" at three-quarters of a pound per coupon; group "C" at one pound per coupon; and group "D" at 1 1-4 pounds per coupon.

"Sonsequently," said the Board, "in group 'A' which is made up of boneless meats the individual may have one pound of meat per week, while in group 'D' the weekly amount is 2 1-2 pounds."

Charts showing the value of each type of meat have been printed and soon will be distributed "to every household and butcher shop in Canada."

Newspapers will soon carry copies of the chart.

The Board said ration coupons will not be required for such meats as oxtail, liver, heart, tongue, kidneys, wieners, bologna and other smoked sausages and cooked meat loaves.

Following are the meats in each of the food ration groups:—

'THIN RED LINE' HELD AXIS IN NORTH AFRICA

Alexander Had Available 17 Allied Divisions Now Massed on Coast

FORCE BUILT UP

How a "thin red line" of British troops held the Axis in North Africa during their dangerous winter push is told by Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent who spent two months in Tunisia early this year and who witnessed the Axis breakthrough at Kasserine Pass which for a time menaced the entire Allied position. Now it can be told that the famed 1st Army which finally took Tunis hardly was an army during those critical months.

By ROSS MUNRO

(Can. Press War Correspondent)

London, May 18—(CP Cable)—For the final successful attack in Tunisia, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander who commanded the ground forces in North Africa, had available at least 17 Allied divisions. These and more now stand massed on the Mediterranean coast for further offensive action.

But for the greater part of the campaign it was a skeleton force of the British 1st Army which held the Axis in check for the kill 10 days ago. Steadily, this almost meagre force was built up by each convoy from Britain to a powerful attacking formation which played a major part in producing the collapse of German-Italian resistance.

The 1st Army as an army—which is supposed to consist of two to five corps—just didn't exist until mid-February. It was a myth and it actually was a lone British corps—the 5th Corps aided by American and French units — which

BEVERIDGE TO APPEAR BEFORE DOMINION COMMITTEES

Ottawa, May 18 —(CP)— Sir William Beveridge, author of the widely publicized plan for social security in the United Kingdom, has accepted an invitation to appear May 25 before a joint meeting of the Senate Committee on social security and the House of Commons committees on social security and reconstruction and re-establishment.

BRITISH SUBS SINK DESTROYER AND FIVE SUPPLY SHIPS

Several Other Ships Were Damaged in Action in Mediterranean Recently

BOMBARD RAILWAY

London, May 18 — (CP) — British submarines torpedoed and sank an Italian destroyer and at least five supply ships during a recent series of Mediterranean encounters, the Admiralty announced today.

The destroyer was sunk off North Sicily.

Several other ships were damaged.

Prowling near Palermo, Sicily, a submarine attacked a large supply vessel under a strong escort of destroyers, causing a heavy explosion. The destroyers' counter-attacks prevented observation of full results, but an hour later the destroyers were seen searching the area and there was no sign of the damaged enemy ship.

A medium and a small supply ship were torpedoed in the same area, and the smaller one was seen to sink.

Another small supply ship was sunk by gunfire in the Aegean Sea, and an enemy submarine chaser was hit five times with deck guns before action was broken off, the communique said.

Two small supply ships were destroyed off Northern Sardinia, and the submarines then audaciously entered Porto Torres harbor and sank a medium-sized supply vessel.

The railway at Platamone in the Gulf of Thessalonike was bombarded by submarine gunfire, and hits also were scored on two small supply ships at anchor.

In a running engagement in the Western Mediterranean, another submarine scored several hits on an Italian supply ship which ran to refuge in Spanish waters.

Alghero in Sardinia Target of Heavy Attacks

By WILLIAM B. KING

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 18—(AP)—Carrying on an unrelenting attack on Italy's Mediterranean islands, R. A. F. Wellingtons bombed the airfield and port of Alghero on the west coast of Sardinia last night.

Bomb bursts were seen in the town and port areas and one large fire in the centre of the town appeared to be spreading beyond control, pilots said.

The Wellingtons topped off their raid by machine-gunning the targets from low altitude.

AMERICANS TAKE MAIN DEFENCE POSITION ON ATTU

Capture of Important Ridge Climaxes First Phase of Campaign For Strategic Island

CASUALTIES NOT HIGH

Washington, May 18 (AP)—Amelcan forces have captured a ridge which apparently is the main Japanese defence position on Attu Island, Navy Secretary Frank Knox announced today.

United States troops advancing north and south across the eastern neck of the island, Knox said, have been brought very close together by this victory if they have not actually joined.

The operation against the ridge apparently climaxes the first phase of the campaign for this island in the Aleutians and Knox reported to a press conference that despite stubobrn resistance so far "our casualties are much lighter than had been expected."

Supported by Navy

The army troops on the island, Knox added, have the full support of warships standing off to sea and planes operating from American bases to the eastward whenever weather permits.

Capture of the important height, while its significance awaited further military developments to be fully measurable, may have brought the Attu campaign to the point where little more remains to be done than mopping up.

The extent of enemy resistance from now on appeared to depend on whether the Japanese troops which held the ridge had retreated to new and less favorable positions or whether they were killed or captured.

Two Landings Made

The ridge runs along the main Axis of Attu Island in an east and west direction. To the north of the ridge is Holtz Bay and to the south is Massacre Bay. One of the American landings was made at Holtz Bay and the other at Massacre Bay.

The pincers began to close in from the two initial beachheads and Knox said it was his understanding that the main enemy defence force in the region south of Holtz Bay was smashed by the Massacre Bay landing expedition, which he described as the main American force.

GOLD LACE TO DISAPPEAR FROM R. A. F. CAP PEAKS

London, May 18 —(CP)— Gold lace on R.A.F. officers' cap peaks is to disappear under an Air Council austerity order. The rules mean that new group captains or other officers of air rank — air commodore up to marshall of the R.A.F. — will have to go without it. Those who have it, however, may continue to wear it.

General Chiang Kai-Shek Praises Christian Church and Missionaries

Chungking, May 18—(AP)—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek praised the Christian Church and its missionaries in China today and said the "abolition of unequal treaties had freed the Christian Church from all association with foreign imperialism or aggression."

In an address to the opening session of the first National Christian Conference held since the outbreak of the war, the Chinese leader said:-

"We still need them (the missionaries) and welcome christians from other lands who serve the people of China with true sympathy and devotion. Don't feel you are guests. You are comrades working with us to save our people and build a new nation."

Brilliantly Lighted Ship Sank Quickly With Loss of 299

Boat Carried No Patients and Those Lost Trapped on Lower Decks

SIXTY-FOUR RESCUED

Allied Headquarters, Australia, May 18. (CP) — The Australian hospital ship Centaur, brilliantly lighted and unmistakeably marked, was torpedoed and sunk in flames by a Japanese submarine off the coast of Australia last Friday with a loss of 299 lives.

No warning whatever was given. The ship capsized and sank within three minutes.

Sixty-four of 363 abroad, including only one of 12 women nurses, were saved. Forty-three of the crew of 73 and 245 Australian and British medical staff men went down, most of them trapped on a lower deck of the blazing ship. The ship, en route from Sydney to New Guinea, carried no patients.

Survivors, crowded on makeshift rafts in waters swarming with sharks, were picked up 36 hours after the Centaur went down.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur expressed deep revulsion at the "limitless savagery" of the sinking.

"The vessel was travelling unescorted and was fully illuminated and marked with the Red Cross and complying with all provisions of International Law governing hospital ships in time of war", the announcement from Allied headquarters said. "The weather was clear and visibility was excellent".

The torpedo hit at 4:10 a.m. while the ship was 40 miles off Brisbane and most of those aboard were asleep below decks. The huge red crosses on its side had been newly repainted in Sydney two days before and survivors said the vessel 'was lit up to glory". It offered a perfect target for the attack.

Only One Woman Survivor

Sister Eleanor Savage of Sydney was the one woman survivor. Survivors said her fervent prayers did much to help keep up morale. It was only after the rescue that she mentioned a side injury. Doctors found three ribs broken.

Sister Savage said she and her cabinmate were awakened by a terrific explosion. They ran to the door and looked into the passageway. The ship already was afire. Donning lifejackets over their pajamas, they leaped from the ship together. The other woman struck floating wreckage and was killed.

"The sea was covered with oil which fortunately did not catch fire," Sister Savage said. "I am a good swimmer and got to the raft. One of the men gave me his overcoat which I shared with a 15-year-old cabin boy.

Frank Davidson, ship's butcher from Sydney, said he saw a great mass of men struggling futilely to force their way up from a lower deck through the debris blocked hatches. He could hear them screaming for help as he jumped from the ship.

Before leaving the Centaur Davidson helped one nurse don her life-jacket. He never saw her again.

Davidson swam through the oil-covered water to one of the rafts. From there he watched the Centaur go down.

"We thought we heard airplane motors in the darkness but the pilot (of the ship who was on the same raft) said it was Diesel engines. Then we saw a couple of lights close by and knew it must be the submarine.

Rockets Unnoticed

"During daylight Friday we saw seven airplanes, one big ship at a distance and we sent up rockets but they went unnoticed.

NIXON SWORN IN AS ONTARIO'S 13TH PREMIER

Elevated to Office Less Than Month After Chosen as Leader of Liberals

SWEAR-IN CABINET

Toronto, May 18 — (CP)—Harry Corwin Nixon, 52-year-old St. George farmer, today became Ontario's 13th Premier since Confederation when Hon. Gordon Conant resigned and recommended to Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews that Mr. Nixon be asked to succeed him.

POLICE ENFORCING PARKING BY-LAW

Enforcement of the city one hour parking bylaw in the downtown area went into force this morning when police were instructed to record the parking time of all motor vehicles on Front, East Bridge and Campbell Sts., and Victoria Ave. east to Pinnacle St.

Vehicles left parked in these zones for a longer period than one hour will ultimately result in parking violation police tickets being affixed the vehicles and licence plate numbers recorded. There is a one-hour parking limit by-law in this area in Belleville and that by-law in to be rigidly enforced in the future, police officials warned today.

STEEL CHEESE TESTING GAUGE STOLEN

J. M. Bain, of the Department of Agriculture at Listowel, Ont., reported his motor car had been entered and robbed while parked on East Bridge St. some time Monday night. CYCLISTS WARNED AGAINST RIDING BIKES OVER BRIDGE

The practice of riding bicycles upon the approaches to and over the city footbridge was investigated on Monday after pedestrians complained to police of this continued annoying practice. Some pedestrians reported they had been practically pushed off the sidewalk by daring cyclists, who ride their bikes at a fast rate of speed over the bridge approaches.

Police investigations after school hours on Monday resulted in ten juveniles being apprehended in violation of this city ordnance. The names of the offenders were recorded at the police station for future reference.

R.C.A.F. RECRUITING UNIT VISITS CITY

A Mobile Recruiting Unit of the Royal Canadian Air Force is in Belleville this week accepting recruits for aircrew personnel and for women and girls for the Women's Division of the air force. The unit is stationed at the city hall where applicants will be received on Tuesday and Wednesday from 12 noon until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Recruiting officers are especially anxious to interview potential aircrew personnel and are equipped to give applicants medical examination thus eliminating the expense and time required to travel to recruiting stations in the larger centres.

Applicants for entry into the Women's Division are also in demand with recruits accepted having splendid opportunity for advancement and promotion. Full pay and allowances are granted during training at basic training centres while many interesting clerical and mechanical trades are now open for women and girls in the air force.

Would Be Long Wait

Believe it or not I'm waiting for a street car—how many times has that time-worn phrase been used as a practical joke?

Well, a man stood at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets about 3.30 am. the other morning waiting for a city bus.

Becoming impatient the stranger approached P.C. Bill Evans with this remark—"What's the matter, the buses aren't running tonight? I've been waiting here for over half an hour."

Eyeing the stranger a second P.C. Evans finally realized the man wasn't trying to give him the rib and then explained that the city bus service in Belleville only operated from six o'clock in the morning until the final round trip commencing at midnight.

"Thanks," remarked the man, as he mumbled something about it being a long hike to Bleecker Ave.

Three Jailed On L.C.A. Charges

As a sequel to disturbances at the upper end of Coleman St. in the vicinity of the C.N.R. tracks early Monday evening, two men and two women appeared on L.C.A. charges before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Tuesday's police court. Their names were given as Mr. and Mrs. George Asselstine, South Front St., Belleville, Mrs. Nora Sheppard, Marmora and Jack Rosebush, formerly of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Asselstine pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and were sentenced to serve 12 days in the common jail without the option of a fine. As it was Mrs. Sheppard's second offence to a drunkenness count this year she was fined $50.00 and costs and in default of payment she must serve one month. The fine was not forthcoming today and the accused woman therefore was lodged in the county jail. Jack Rosebush was given time in order to pay a $10.00 fine after pleading guilty to a charge of the illegal consumption of liquor.

"This is a deplorable state of affairs. People getting drunk and fighting in public. All of these people have been in some sort of trouble before and I recommend a jail sentence in each case so that they will realize the seriousness of their actions," commented Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., before His Worship passed sentence.

Other Cases Heard

Jack Wilson, Sidney Township, was convicted on a drunk driving charge and sentenced to serve seven days in jail. His motor car was ordered impounded for three months. Robert Allen, Malton, pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault and was assessed $11.75, including costs. Mr. R. D. Arnott K.C., local barrister appeared on the accused man's behalf.

Two juveniles appeared charged with theft from their employer. Restitution having been made the youths were given a year's suspended sentence and a severe reprimand by His Worship.

Seven persons had pleaded guilty to intoxication charges prior to the opening of the court and paid the conventional ten and costs to Deputy Chief Harman, clerk of the court.

Kinsmen Enjoy Musical Program

It has oft been said—a community lacking in musical talent and appreciation thereof is soon forgotten Such cannot be said of Belleville judging from the splendid musical program, provided by Belleville talent and enjoyed by the Kinsmen Club at their fortnightly meeting held at the Quinte Hotel last evening. Deviating somewhat from their regular routine and with Kin Gardiner Duff as program chairman, a musical program that featured various phases of this city's entertaining talent was thoroughly enjoyed by lovers of music in all of its glorifications.

With the President Orliff Lloyd and his kindred Kinsmen associates the chief gainers, both vocal and musical presentations were interspersed on the program. In his usual inimitable manner James Bankier, with a fine tenor voice, provided the solo features. Then the Belleville male octette, consisting of Messrs. E. Moorman, J. A. Thomson, W. Colclough, H. Howard, Fred Jobson, G. Duff, A. Evans and Jas. Bankier, added further vocal pleasure to the picture and were roundly applauded in several renditions. In the musical line it fell to the lot of Bruce Sills with his musical saw and Ronnie Moorman and Cyril Smith in cornet solos to add further delightment to the musical end of the program. Finally Bruce Sills on the accordion and Ernie Barragar with the guitar climaxed the picture with renditions of popular airs in the finest musical night ever enjoyed by the Belleville Kinsmen. Alec Gordon acted as accompanist.

During the business session Capt. E. Bateman of the First Battalion Argyll Light Infantry, approached the Kinsmen Club relative to the possible sponsoring of a Royal Army Cadet Corps in Belleville. The matter was left in abeyance to be discussed by the club executive. President Lloyd and Kin "Toots" Holway reported as to the business at the recent Kinsmen District Council meeting held in Sudbury.

St. John Ambulance Brigade Members Demonstrate First-Aid Procedure

Members of the ambulance and nursing divisions of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade have shown splendid progress in first-aid, home nursing and stretcher drill it was stated Monday evening by Major General W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., honorary president of the Eastern Ontario district of the St. John Ambulance Association.

Major General Anderson complimented members of the local brigade on the progress they had made following their regular annual inspection at the Collegiate at which he officiated. Accompanied by Dr. W. J. Bell, Toronto, provincial commissioner and surgeon for the brigade, he saw local brigade members give practical demonstrations of their ability in all phases of first-aid work.

Detailed by Dr. Bell, members of the local units gave evidence of training in first-aid work when splints were bandaged on "broken" limbs of willing patients while demonstration of artificial respiration to revive near-drowned and shock patients was also given.

Proper procedure for first-aid workers to take when patients are suffering from broken arms, elbows, ankles, legs or back was capably demonstrated by the brigade members with the school gymnasium appearing somewhat like an emergency hospital as "patients" lie about the floor with various types splints strapped about their limbs.

"Disaster Kit" Shown

Receiving special interest on the part of the inspecting officers was a "disaster kit" specially designed and built by the instructor of the local unit, Mr. John Hodgson. Named "Hodgson Kit" by members of the local brigade, the disaster kit contains complete first-aid requirements for any but large disasters.

Ground sheets and first-aid haversacks are contained in the lower section of the kit, while above are patterned trays containing special bandages, medical supplies and splints for all kinds of broken limbs. Such kits are planned to be kept in easily accessible places where they may be transported readily to the scene of disaster.

Need More Members

Although satisfaction with the progress of the local unit was expressed by inspecting officers, lack of numbers was claimed a drawback. The local unit should be three times its present size, it was stated. Instruction of members of the two local units, the brigade and nursing divisions, have been under the direction of Mr. Hodgson and Mrs. W. N. Ponton, who have been working under adverse conditions and lack of sufficient equipment.

That increased interest is being taken in St. John Ambulance work in this city was seen in the fact that approximately 25 new members are now taking lectures once each week under the direction of Dr. Russell Scott. When new members attain certificates in first-aid they are eligible for entry into the St. John Ambulance Brigade for further instruction.

Special Train Ban Serious Handicap To Fall Fairs

Decision of the Dominion Transit Controller to ban all special trains this year will be a serious handicap to Belleville Fair this Autumn as Conklin's Midway will be unable to attend as in former years according to Erle S. Denyes, secretary.

All carnivals and circuses ordinarily transported by special trains will be affected by the order, it was intimated and unless the order is countermanded will strike a serious blow to fall fairs dependent upon midway attractions as a drawing card.

Conklin midway officials have already communicated with directors of Belleville Fair notifying them that unless the order is changed they will be unable to appear at the fair. When contacted by The Ontario Intelligencer, Mr. Denyes this morning stated that he was waiting for further word on the matter as Western Ontario fair officials were working on the matter trying to get the train order ban changed.

"It might just be possible that the Belleville fair would be unable to continue if Conklin's midway is unable to appear", stated Mr. Denyes. "Definitely it will be a serious blow to fall fairs across the province".

Picton and District

James de C. Hepburn Pres. of Golf Club

Picton, May 18 — The annual meeting of Picton Golf and Country Club was held with a good turnout of members and much interest was shown. The club decided to give free use of the club and grounds to members of the armed forces for the duration.

Officers elected were: James de C. Hepburn, President; Judge E. H. McLean, Vice-President; H. B. Tully, Secretary-Treasurer; N. McDonald, W. Branscombe, directors.

The importance of the club to summer tourists visiting the county was stressed by Norman McDonald. He said nearly all visitors asked if the town had a club and this was an important factor in inducing them to make reservations.

Owing to so many members of the club being in the armed forces, it has been difficult to carry on successfully for the past three years.

Anyone having clubs to loan for use by men in uniform is requested to get in touch with W. Branscombe, captain, or N. B. Tully.

Swedes Say Gneisenau Nazi Merchant Ship Sunk in S. Baltic

Stockholm, May 18 (AP)—Swedish seamen at Malmo report that the 18,160-ton German merchant ship Gneisenau had been sunk in the southern Baltic last month by a mine. The ship, one of the largest in the German merchant marine, was built in 1935.

The Malmo reports said two German tugboats also were sunk by mines late in April while towing a floating dock, and 40 persons were killed.

The R.A.F. has engaged in extensive mine sowing in recent weeks.

Tribute Paid by Rotary to J. B. Boyce, Chairman of Victory Loan Committee

He Disclaims Any Large Measure of Credit and Praises Committees

ROTARY'S TASK

Tribute to J. B. Boyce, general chairman of the Hastings County Victory Loan Committee, for his untiring efforts contributing to the success of the Fourth Victory Loan Campaign in this county was paid at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club, Monday noon.

Rotarian Howard Clarke congratulated Mr. Boyce on the success of the campaign declaring that it was principally because of his able leadership that the county objective of $3,300,000 had been reached and surpassed. Unanimous approval of the vote of congratulation was extended to Mr. Boyce by his fellow Rotarians.

"I am just a very small cog in a very large wheel", stated Mr. Boyce as in reply he modestly disclaimed any large measure of responsibility in the success of the Victory Loan campaign. "It's a case of the soldiers doing the work and the general getting all the credit".

It was only through the unselfish efforts of the various members of the committee organization that the success of the loan had been possible, declared Mr. Boyce as he paid tribute and expressed appreciation to all contributing to the success of the campaign. He especially extended a vote of thanks to the heads of the various committees who gave freely of their time, to the bank staffs and to the press. Without the splendid co-operation he had received from the organization success would have been impossible, he said.

Rotary and Post-War World

Guest speaker for the luncheon meeting was Dr. George G. McNabb, of Guelph, Rotarian district governor, who in a brilliant address outlined to members the place Rotary should take in building a better world order following the present war. Dr. McNabb's visit to the Belleville club was an unofficial one, his real purpose of visiting the Quinte district being to make efforts to organize a Rotary Club in Picton.

Inspector of public school for Guelph and part of Wellington County and past president of the Ontario Educational Association, Dr. McNabb considered that Rotary should possibly pay more attention to international aspects. He admitted, however that it was through nationalism, or love of one's country, that it was learned to appreciate other countries.

The speaker compared the British national outlook with that of Germany, stating that the British outlook was founded on right and justice while that of the German was built around the belief of force and that "might is right". Moral laws are not binding on the state, is the German claim, it was stated.

Peace terms following the war should include guarantee against aggression with a rejuvenation of the League of Nations and the establishment of a strong international police force, stated the speaker. Pending the establishment of a League of Nations a strong commonwealth of nations would have to be formed.

Feeding Starving Peoples

The great problem confronting the world following the war would including feeding the starving millions, the rehabilitation of millions now in the armed forces and the transfer into other employment of those now engaged in war industry. Labor problems would be acute but reasonable assurance of full-time employment with fair play for the worker at all times must be attained, according to Dr. McNabb.

Three "musts" in the new order to follow after the war included equal rights for all before the law; equal educational privileges, equal rights for all to participate in government.

The role Rotary should take in the promotion of a lasting world peace was likened by Mr. McNabb to a lubricant. Rotary should spread the spirit of friendship and internationality. "There is no finer task and no nobler aim", he concluded.

J. Owen Herity, in his accustomed capable manner introduced the guest speaker to Rotary members, while club appreciation was expressed by Dr. Bert Howard. President Lloyd Hicks was in the chair, while Alec Gordon acted as pianist and "Sandy" Burrows as song leader.

VON ARNIM, SUBORDINATE GERMAN GENERALS IN ALLIED HANDS

Captured German generals, including the commander-in-chief of the Axis armies in North Africa, Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, are pictured in these radiophotos from North Africa as they were taken to Allied headquarters. Von Arnim, successor to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, is shown, RIGHT, as he stepped from an automobile at British First Army Headquarters after a 100-mile trip from the spot on the Cap Bon peninsula where he was captured. Other German generals are shown, LEFT, as they walked to an American transport plane after their capture in the Bizerte area. LEFT to RIGHT are Maj.-Gen. 'THIN RED LINE' held the Germans and Italians on their mountain line and prevented the whole Allied schedule for Africa being disrupted.

Two Infantry Brigades

The original elements of the 1st Army involved in the push toward Tunis in late November included two infantry brigades and some tanks, one column pushing down the Mateur Valley and the other down on Medjez El Bab. This thrust at Tunis failed by only a few miles and a few hours. The Germans flooded into Tunis and Bizerte and blocked the attack. The British troops were forced back to the Mateur-Medjez line.

More British troops reached the front in December. By the first of the year the 5th Corps was almost completely in the line. The 78th Infantry Division held the area from the Mediterranean west of Mateur down through Medjez to the Bou Arada area and the 6th Armored Division was between Medjez and Bou Arada.

With two Commando units of 500 men each and a paratroop battalion and a brigade of Guards, this 5th Corps was in fact the 1st Army at the turn of the year and right through until mid-February. Then the 46th Division joined the 1st Army and later another division came in.

British Bore Brunt

But during the fighting from the second week in January through to the big battles in the south when the Germans hit the Americans hard at places like Kasserine at the end of February, British troops bore the brunt of the assault. To do this they even took troops from rest camps.

It was a tremendous task to hold such an area, but the dog-tired Tommies did it.

Sharing the defensive victory were American combat troops and French soldiers, but it was principally a British show. French native troops in considerable strength were in Tunisia throughout the campaign, fighting under French officers. Their numbers were estimated as high as 60,000, but for the most part they were poorly equipped.

Red Cross Report for April

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on May 13, with the President, Mr. M. P. Duff in the chair.

The Treasurer, Mr. Zeran, reported for April: Total receipts $213.57; Bills to be paid, $644.40.

The final result of the financial campaign was reported to be $25,409.75.

A letter from headquarters was read expressing appreciation of the success of the financial campaign.

A letter of resignation from Mrs. Lazier was read, severing her connection with the Belleville Branch, as she is leaving the city. The secretary was instructed to write Mrs. Lazier expressing the appreciation of the executive of her long and faithful services. No appointment of vice-president in Mrs. Lazier's place was made.

The secretary was instructed to write letters of appreciation of their services as cutters in the work room to Mrs Weatherill and Mrs Warnica who are leaving the city

Mrs. Mikel appealed for more workers especially cutters and for the leather work.

Mrs. Ketcheson reported that the War Emergency and Home Nursing Committee are carrying on.

Mrs. Mikel reported for the Women's War Work Committee as follows:

Twenty cartons were shipped to Toronto during April, which contained 4,920 articles. Of this number 3,492 were surgical dressings, 94 quilts, 731 British civilian clothing, 15 box linings, 15 leather jerkins and 523 knitted articles.

Headquarters in Toronto have written us that there is a great need for the leather waistcoats or jerkins. The Friday group, under Mrs. G. K. Graham are trying to increase their output and would be glad of volunteers for this work They will be welcomed on Friday afternoons at 2 o'clock, at the rooms on Campbell Street.

A request has been received for 400 rolled bandages, made of flannelette and four and six inches in width. They will be made at the Blood Donors Clinic on Monday evenings by the group who made surgical dressings under the convenership of Mrs. Ketcheson. As they are to be finished by June the first, it is hoped that the workers in this group will be able to attend faithfully.

Our groups of sewers and knitters have been doing marvelous work. We know household duties are demanding attention at the present time and our friends living in the country have many other demands on their time, but we hope they all will try to keep up with their good work in the Red Cross, for the demand is as heavy as ever.

Our sincere appreciation is due to all who help us in this noble cause.

Respectfully submitted,
Lilian E. Mikel,
Chairman, Women's War Work Committee.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The prediction by United States Army officers in Washington that Japanese-held Kiska Island is likely to be the next objective in the Aleutians — after they've mopped up the nasty little piece of business called Attu — has brought a request that I discuss this obscure sector of our global war.

Because they're an out-of-the-way spot up on one shoulder of the world, the Aleutians seem a long way off. That's especially true when Europe is drawing us with such spectacles as the catastrophic unleashing of the floods by the Royal Air Force's blasting of the Mohne and Eder dams east of the Rhineland. This unprecedented feat, by the way, likely will prove to be one of the far-reaching victories of the war — the equivalent of a major land operation by a great army.

Still, the Aleutians are important, if mysterious. Were the Japs allowed to retain their hold on these westernmost islands of the group, the day might come when North America would have to pay heavily for it. Mind you, I think it's possible to exaggerate the importance of the present Nipponese position there, but you know the old tale about little acorns growing into mighty oaks. The Japanese are dangerous wherever they get a foothold. Here's the way the situation frames up:—

The Japanese last June occupied Attu — the island for which an American invading force is now reported to be fighting fiercely—and Kiska, which lies some 180 miles to the southeast. These little volcanic knobs, which poke their hard heads up out of the northern Pacific, are on the western end of the Aleutians, which sweep out from the Alaskan Peninsula in a curve like Halley's Comet, 1,500 miles long.

Most of the Aleutians are of small use to man or beast. They don't even grow trees, but confine their activities to producing some of the filthiest weather the world knows. Fogs exist the year around; gales constantly lash them; it rains 250 days in the year.

They are volcanic rock, and in some of them the volcanoes still smoke and fume. Some of the tiny islands constantly disappear and reappear, like odds and ends out of a sleight-of-hand man's hat. Most of the Aleutians rise sharply out of the sea, making landings hazardous in the extreme.

However, part of the islands are susceptible to development as submarine and air bases. The most important, of course, is Unalaska which lies next to the Alaskan peninsula. That's where the naval base of Dutch Harbor is, and the inland has vital defences for the protection of the approaches to that part of the North American continent.

The islands held by the Japanese are on the other end of this tail of islands. Kiska is the best of the lot, for this has spaces which can be developed as air fields. Attu also could be used for emergency airplane landings after a lot of work in preparing the ground.

The Japanese objective in occupying these islands probably was mainly defensive. Attu and Kiska are in the path of shipping and airplanes, and if developed as bases could be used to hamper any operations undertaken against Japanese territory from Alaska, or try to stymie sea and air communications with Russia.

Of course, these defensive bases also might be used against the Alaskan mainland or even Canada and the United States, if the Japanese were permitted to develop sufficient strength. Certainly it's a potential menace which couldn't be overlooked.

One would assume that when these westernmost islands have been reclaimed they will be developed as bases. They would be valuable in defence, and they would be fine stepping stones both for operations against the Japs and for communications with Russia. Attu is only about 700-odd miles from the Japanese base of Paramushiru, just south of Kamchatka.

Blasting German Dams

Allied raids are keeping up a crescendo of attack on Germany and Italy and the latest and newest object is seen in the raid of British bombers on German power sites and dams, the Mohne and the Eder, two of the largest in Germany. Three hundred and thirty-six million tons of water are in the lakes just back of these great dams. The damage and delay caused to industrial plants in their areas in Germany must be immense.

"A trenchant blow for victory of the Allies," Sir Arrhibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, called the raids.

The importance of these dams lies first in their physical destruction, then in the interruption of the power which is fed out to German war industries and thirdly the mass psychological reactions reaching across Germany and the jubilation in the enslaved lands.

The relentless strokes of the Royal Air Force and American airmen are being maintained at an increasing tempo so that Germany gets no rest from the waves of airmen who night and day visit enemy territory and occupied territory and leave wrecked industries in their wake.

North Africa was a proving ground which showed the tremendous nature of Allied air power among other forms of military power, and the full measure of the blows that the United Nations can strike. They have started on their way to Italy, Germany and Japan.

Italy Rumor-Ridden

Rumors are afloat in Italy, a natural consequence of her being in the ranks of the Axis through the greed of Mussolini and Fascism and a direct outcome of the series of brilliant and masterly Allied victories in North Africa, reaching a climax in the destruction of the Axis armies in Tunisia most of whose men will have to be provided with prisoner-of-war accommodation, both Italians and the so-called "invincibles," the Germans, even Hitler's Elite Guard. The Italians realize what is coming to their country through the criminal course pursued by Mussolini and his fraternizing with Hitler. Mussolini himself is said to have called for aid from Hitler and there is a rumor that Hitler may pull out of Italy, leaving Italy to manage for herself.

The course of the war for a long time has been an unbroken series of crushing defeats for Italian arms as well as for German arms so whatever is taking place in Italy it may be certain that Mussolini has reason to be especially anxious and worried. The Allies are at Italy's doors at a time when the United Nations are growing in power while the Axis nations are dwindling. Three years ago the Axis was very powerful but could not gain a decision. Now they are much weaker and do not relish the thought of a test or decision.

Art, Culture in Camp, Barracks

An ambitious and far-reaching plan to support the educational and cultural interests of young Canadians under arms by bringing original paintings by Canadian artists into army camps and barracks, air stations and naval bases in Canada, Alaska and Newfoundland has been launched by the Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services, under the direction of its associate secretary, William R. Cook.

Ten travelling exhibits of oil paintings, water color paintings, etchings and photographs have now been secured, each to remain in one centre for a week or more for Canada's fighting men to enjoy. Three of the exhibits are now on the road and have been viewed by thousands of uniformed men. The others are in process of being organized. The task of routing the exhibits to the training camps and isolated barracks is tremendous, Mr. Cook pointed out. He said it would take eight years for one exhibit to cover even one-third of all the places where the Y.M.C.A. is serving, allowing a stay of 10 days in each place.

Cooperation of the Canadian Chartered Art Societies has been enlisted in the launching of the enterprise. Two of the exhibits consist of works selected by the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Color; two of works chosen by the Society of Canadian Painter-Etchers and Engravers; one by the Canadian Group of Painters; one by the Ontario Society of Artists; one by the Canadian Society of Graphic Art, and one of flower paintings chosen by Fred Haines, R.C.A., while the remaining two consist of photographs of which one is supplied by the Pictographers' Society of Toronto, the other by the Toronto Focal Forum.

The art exhibits are not only being shown in camps where the Y.M.C.A. War Services are available, but have been offered for showing in other areas served by other national voluntary organizations.

A series of pamphlets on "How to Get Started" is being prepared by the Y.M.C.A. The first one — on painting and sketching in water color — is being written by the internationally known artist Dr. Arthur Lismer, formerly Educational Director of the Art Gallery of Toronto, now Montreal. These pamphlets will be circulated to little groups in training camps where special interest has been displayed in the art exhibits.

The travelling exhibits of paintings are only one phase of a wide program of activity stimulated by the Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services for the benefit of uniformed men.

Plant Something

(Chatham Daily News)

Any person who, about this time of year, doesn't plant something, is cheating himself out of one of the simple pleasures of life that anyone can enjoy.

You have no farm? Very well, there is the back yard. No backyard? Very well, there are the window boxes and strip between sidewalk and porch. Not even these? Well, there is always a flower pot, cheap and undemanding.

It need not be a field of wheat or a formal garden, or a boxwood border. It need not be a broad lawn or a clump of lilacs or a bed of pansies.

A couple of geraniums in a pot will do the same thing for man or woman—provide a link between them and the earth that bore them, and by putting them in a position to create life and beauty which might not have existed otherwise, bring them as near to God as is permitted a sinful man in a wicked world.

Post-War Wonders

(Minneapolis Star Journal)

Are you looking forward to a world, right after the war, in which you'll drive a super-streamlined automobile made mostly of plastics and with a motor weighing practically nothing? Or in which you'll go marketing and carry your week's groceries home in your purse because they'll all be dehydrated? If so, forget it! Changes are not going to come that suddenly.

There will be plenty of new wrinkles in your way of living after the war, just as there were in the post-war period of 1920-40, but they will be evolutionary rather than revolutionary. It's a healthy thing to give your imagination play, but don't let it run away.

Topsy-Turvey

(Brantford Expositor)

An English silk manufacturer says there are three jobs in which men are superior to women—dressmaking, millinery and cooking. This combined with the fact that women are now working in the factories, engaging in lumbering and flying airplanes makes the old phrase "topsy-turvey world" seem trite.

Where there is no hope there can be no endeavor. — Johnson.

JUST FOLKS

HOME HAZARDS

The hazards of the home are these:
A knife with sharp edge pointed out,
Small obstacles that no one sees,
The toys the children leave about;
A piece of soap on floor and stair,
Torn rugs which trip unwary feet.
The home, statistics all declare,
Is far more dangerous than the street.

Against the hazards when we roam,
Are signs which warn us to beware.
But all turn careless, when at home,
By thinking surely safety's there.
Through spaces dark we boldly go,
Disaster swift and dire to meet,
Though this, by now, we ought to know:
The home's more dangerous than the street.

The hazards of the road we fear.
The hazards of the home we scorn,
We're careful when the signs are clear
But heedless when there's none to warn.
We've marked the curves where danger waits
Lest proper caution be forgot,
But once beyond the family gates
At home we're all a careless lot.

It is estimated that about four hundred persons were present. The chair was occupied by Reeve G. B. Airhart of Marmora Village.

International Co-operation On Universal Scale Is Urged

Hamilton, Ont., May 18 — (CP)— International co-operation on a universal scale is one of the prime needs for post-war reconstruction, Dr. James S. Thomson, president of the University of Saskatchewan and general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said Monday in an address prepared for delivery at the annual convocation at McMaster University.

"As a prelude to any reconstruction, we shall need men and women for whom both the tradition and ideal of humanities is not an unfamiliar realm of experience and who have been nurtured in a spirit and attitude of life from which self-interest and self-seeking has been removed, he told the 116 receiving degrees, presented by Chancellor G. House Approves Interim Supply Bill, $40,307,998

By JAMES McCOOK

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 18 — (CP) — Variety was the spice of House of Commons discussion yesterday as members had coal, representation abroad, cheese prices, doctor's fees, the public accounts and work for prisoners of war before them.

Today, the order of business calls for discussion of an interim supply bill to provide one-sixth of the $3,890,000,000 war appropriation. Yesterday the House approved $40,307,998 in interim supply from non-war estimates.

Opposition demands for fuller information on government expenditures occupied the House for a substantial part of yesterday's session.

Asking that more detailed information on outlays be provided, J. G. Diefenbaker (Prog. Con. Lake Centre) said a reply to a question had shown that Dr. Aime Chartier of Montreal had received medical fees of $92,000 in approximately three years under the government employees compensation act for the benefit of those injured in the government service.

Figures in the auditor-general's report did not give information about fees paid this doctor. Had it been known a doctor was receiving $30,000 or $35,000 a year for part-time examinations and assistance to the government there would have been an inquiry earlier.

War Brings More Cases

Transport Minister Michaud said that Dr. Chartier headed a clinic and two other doctors worked in the same establishment. Persons seeking compensation under the act could choose their own doctor. Dr. Chartier was recognized as an authority on compensation act cases, and the increase in war industry had brought more compensation cases in the Montreal area.

Amounts paid Dr. Chartier were examined by government officials. The clinic bills covered treatments, x-ray examinations and consultations. Dr. Chartier did not treat more than from six to eight per cent of the compensation cases in the Montreal area.

"Whatever the modus operandi is, Dr. Chartier seems to have done pretty well by himself because he got $92,000 in three years," said Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury).

J. W. Noseworthy (C.C.F. York South) said the fees of $92,000 for what appeared to be about 1,000 patients appeared "rather a high cost for medical services."

Treated More than 1,000

Mr. Michaud replied that more than 1,000 had been treated by Dr. Chartier.

Speaking on other government expenditures Mr. Hanson said there should have been information on the quantities of goods obtained under Prices Board subsidies on imports.

Dealing with fruit imports, he said "We not only subsidized the importation of luxuries from the United States, but we make a loss in the operation of more than $1,000,000."

Mr. Ilsley said he did not agree that articles such as oranges, prunes, raisins and apricots were luxuries. The government could have disregarded the price ceiling and let prices rise. It could have held the ceiling, in which event importations would have ceased. The third choice was subsidies, which had been granted.

Had Specific Duty

Mr. Hanson said the Auditor-General (Watson Sellar) had the specific duty of reporting annually to the House of the accounts of Canada so as to show the true state of each account at the termination of the previous fiscal year. The Auditor-General had departed from the course which by custom and the sanction of decades had been expected from him, and it could not be found in detail where money went.

In his last report the Auditor-General had suggested a new set-up for presentation of reports on accounts, with presentation of a document called the public accounts divided into two parts with the state of the accounts certified by the comptroller of the treasury (B. G. M. McIntyre) and by the Auditor-General.

Mr. Hanson said this was in effect a suggestion that the act of Parliament in respect to public accounts be defied.

Mr. Hanson said three civil servants—the auditor-general, the comptroller of the treasury and Dr. W. C. Clark, deputy finance minister — had taken it upon themselves to advise the Finance Minister that he should change the whole course of public accounts.

Avoids Duplication

Mr. Ilsley said the proposed change in presentation of the accounts was to avoid duplication. If Mr. Hanson held the proposed change illegal it could be referred to the justice department.

Two Ontario members, Capt. G. S. White (Prog. Con. Hastings-Peterborough) and G. R. Boucher (Prog. Con. Carleton) urged that Agricultural Minister Gardiner consider raising the price of cheese so production would be enlarged.

Mr. Gardiner said that with subsidies the cheese price would run about 25 cents a pound this year, an improvement over 1942 when 202,000,000 pounds were produced. This amount of cheese would not be needed this year and he did not propose to change the existing policy until it became evident action was required to ensure the 150,000,000-pound British contract was met.

Mr. Hanson said that New Brunswick dairy butter producers felt there was discrimination against them, in that a subsidy was paid for creamery butter and their markets now were restricted.

Labor Minister Mitchell announced a government proposal to use prisoners of war on certain types of work and said woodcutting, mining and selected types of agriculture are likely to be the first tasks on which prisoners will be employed.

State of Emergency

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced an order-in-council providing for a proclamation to declare a state of national emergency in coal production.

He said action to be taken by the government would be announced later. It was understood an order shortly will be issued providing for the compulsory transfer of men experienced in coal mining and now engaged in other employment.

Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South) protested a reported intention to use women and girls at coal mine surface work and declared women should not be put to work in any part of coal mining until every possibility of using men and boys had been exhausted.

The Prime Minister, in a statement, praised the work of Hon. Leighton McCarthy, Canadian Minister to Washington and defended him against what he called "innuendoes" in a House speech by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader last Friday in which Mr. Coldwell referred to Mr. McCarthy's business connections and the Aluminum Co. of Canada Shipshaw, Que., development. Mr. King said Mr. McCarthy had nothing to do with negotiations concerning the Shipshaw development.

Military Occupation Of Germany Urged On Adequate Scale

London, May 18 (CP) — Looking forward to the problems which will confront the United Nations after the war, 36 Conservative Members of Parliament have approved a report urging adequate military occupation of Germany and formation of an Allied council of control to govern many international activities.

The memorandum, prepared under the chairmanship of Sir John Wardlaw Milne, pointed out that "owing to the many difficult questions to be settled" it probably will be several years after the cessation of hostilities before a peace treaty can be formulated.

In the meantime, it said, the proposed council would be charged with the duty of preserving order and carrying out the immediate demobilization of Germany's armed forces.

Says He Has Made No Arrangements for Any Talks on Power Development

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. Leader, said Monday he will be in Washington Thursday to meet members of the National Committee for war relief.

Mr. Coldwell said he has made no arrangements for any talks in Washington in connection with the big shipshaw, Que., power development carried out by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

(The New York newspaper PM in a dispatch from Washington said today Mr. Coldwell during his visit would "map joint strategy with American progressives for an international investigation of the Shipshaw Power development. Last week Mr. Coldwell suggested in the House of Commons that a royal commission be established to investigate the project.

PM said the C. C. F. leader would confer with representative John M. Coffee (Dem.-Wash.) who has a resolution for investigation of the shipshaw development before the House of Representatives rules committee.)

"I have no appointment to see Mr. Coffee or anyone else about shipshaw," said Mr. Coldwell. "I'll tell you what I have done; I've just mailed Mr. Coffee a copy of hansard—that's all."

Dispatch in 'PM'

BIG BONANZA

"Bonanza" is now synonymous in the United States with a rich mine, a successful enterprise, a profitable undertaking, sudden prosperity or good luck.

It is a Spanish word meaning fair weather, particularly calm weather at sea, and its ultimate source is Latin "bonus," good.

To wish one bonanza in Spain originally was equivalent to God-speed, bon voyage, prosperity, success, a good trip.

Bonanza, a port near San Lucar on the Gudalquivir Estuary in southwestern Spain, was so named because of its good anchorage and security from the boisterous winds of the ocean.

In colonial days a chapel at Bonanza was dedicated by the South American Company of Seville to the Virgin of Fair Weather.

"Bonanza," like "Eldorado" and "Eureka," naturally lent itself to application to the new-found mineral treasures of the New World.

A famous silver mine near Saltillo in Mexico was called Bonanza by the Spaniards as early as 1554.

The term in the sense of a rich deposit of ore was carried into Western United States from the border country after the Mexican War.

It became customary to say of a prospector, when he discovered an exceptionally large and rich pocket of gold or silver ore, that he had struck a bonanza.

The term was given international circulation after the discovery and development of the Comstock Lode in what was then Utah Territory but what is now Nevada. This lode, fabulously rich in ore containing both silver and gold, was named after Henry Topkins Paige Comstock, who was born of United States parentage in Trenton, Ontario. Not suspecting the riches under his land, Comstock sold it for a trifling sum and spent the rest of his life prospecting. The Comstock Lode was discovered and opened in 1859. During the next 30 years it produced about $350,000,000 worth of gold and silver. During the development of the Comstock Lode some ten "bonanzas" were found, the most famous of these being known as "the Big Bonanza."

The remarkable output of this mine became the basis of a notorious stock speculation fever that swept the whole country. Shares in the operating company that originally represented many dollars per square foot in a tangible mine continued to rise in price for several years notwithstanding they were multiplied in number until they represented little more than the thickness of the paper they were printed on. After the inevitable collapse, "bonanza" acquired the connotation of short-lived as well as sudden riches.

One of the nicknames of Montana, because of its mineral wealth, is "Bonanza State." "Bonanza" survives in the names of towns, mountains, creeks, rivers and other places in western United States and Canada. There are post offices named Bonanza in Kentucky, Colorado, Arkansas, Oregon and the Yukon.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has to Go Broke Before He'll Take Employment

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married one year to a man I knew only about a month before we were married. I thought a lot of him at first, as he seemed so different and much kinder than other fellows I'd met. He is 29 and I am 23 years old.

During the first months of our marriage, I was so miserable, as he didn't trust me, and he was so moody. Now I don't know if I really love him and am wondering if I should leave him. Our marriage has been one hardship ofter another, trying to stretch our money. My husband has had seven different jobs in this year. He can't keep one; lays off when we get a little ahead, and when we're broke, starts again. We seem to be getting no place, although he's a good machinist.

I have no decent clothes, and have pawned my nice things to get money for food. My husband thinks clothes aren't important, and is never affectionate, although he says he loves me. He says he's happy, but I'm not contented the way things are. I am not in good enough health to work, but have been taking care of two small children, because he wanted me to. We love children.

My husband is in a low category as far as the army is concerned I know he won't be going into the Army. He doesn't chase around, and isn't mean to me, and I know where every bit of our little money goes. However, I'm convinced we don't love each other. Do you think I should leave?

Clocia

So many women with ambitionless and unsuccessful husbands have written to this column after the separation, that they never knew how much they cared for their happy-go-lucky partners 'til they had quit them. How about a time limit? Tell him you'll give him another year, and if things aren't on a better basis you'll get a job and paddle your own canoe. That may put him on his mettle.

Only Fifteen, Employed, and Wants to Do Her Bit

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 years old, and have had only an eighth grade education. I quit school to go to work. My parents are separated and it's a hard life not to have your parents together.

My brother is in the Army and has a very dangerous assignment. Before he went into the Army I didn't worry much about the war, but when he told me some of the horrible things, I felt that everyone should do his part.

I adore my brother more than anyone in this world and want to do something to help. I am a healthy, strong girl, and always made good grades in school. Have worked most of my life. Can you suggest something for me to do?

If you have time for your regular job you could enroll in the Junior Red Cross. It takes girls of high school age, and even those in the higher classes of grade school. In its classes you will be taught to make surgical dressings, and other work which will prove highly valuable to you all your life. If you have a sewing machine, where you are employed and are permitted to use it, the Red Cross will give you garments to make. It's pretty difficult for a girl as young as you are, and also employed to do defence work.

Doesn't Want Her Husband Out of Her Sight

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young married woman of 20 years. We've been married almost 2½ years. At first we were very happy, and then I found out I was to become a mother. My husband didn't want children, although he is crazy about other peoples'. I was thrilled at the thought of being a mother, but when I asked him for money to buy some baby clothes, he said he wasn't interested in buying any.

This worried me because I didn't want to bring a child into the world whose father didn't like it. But I lost the baby. I miss it so much and since then we can't get along at all. We quarrel, and my husband doesn't seem to want me around. This has been going on so long that I'm beginning to wonder if there's another woman. I know I mustn't get jealous as that has wrecked many another marriage. He senses that I don't want him out of my sight, which is true.

What must I do to prevent our marriage breaking up? Am I to blame for this coldness? I love him dearly and want to spend the rest of my life with him. He is good in every other way.

D. H.

Nothing could hurt a wife more deeply than for a husband to tell her he is not interested in the baby she is going to have. And the baby's death must have been an added burden to bear.

Your husband apparently is the type who dislikes the idea of too much domesticity and responsibility, which he associates with children. That being so, he'll naturally resent your not wanting him out of your sight. Since you love him, you'll need to suppress any jealous tendencies, if you wish to prevent a rupture in your relationship. This will be difficult to do, for the wife without children naturally centres all her interest on her husband. No man, after his day's work, likes to come home to a brooding, suspicious wife, no matter how much provocation he may give her.

I suggest that you build up other interests—a hobby, or social activities or civilian defence work, so that he won't be your whole life.

Her Boy Friend Doesn't Know She's Been Married

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 19, married last August, lived with my husband two weeks. I left because he was untrue to me from the beginning. Should I tell him I am married and perhaps lose him, or shall I wait until my husband obtains his divorce? He is suing now.

By all means tell the young man you've been married. Apart from the fact that a deception of this kind would be absolutely unfair to a man you're considering marrying, he may not be as understanding of the situaton if he learns of it first from others.

Old Men and Women Can Eat More Food Safely

Now that men and women live longer and there are so many more "old" people in the world than in previous years, many of these old men and women are not allowing themselves to become old in their habits of life and are not allowing the younger members of the household to give them friendly advice for their old age.

Until recently it has been accepted ars the "proper" thing that the elderly should eat much less food than those who are middle aged. I have spoken before of one of Charles Dana Gibson's drawings showing an old man eating crackers and milk while his day dreams showed him as a boy eating turkey and all the "fixings". Under the picture were the words "Backward, turn backward, O Time in Thy Flight; make me a boy again just for tonight".

That the elderly should eat less food than when they were active and doing physical work is right, but elderly men and women today do not sit around all day; most of them get about doing light chores or walking some part of the day. As exercise stimulates all the body processes, heart, lungs, digestion, increases the appetite and prevents constipation, th elderly not only want more food but they need more food.

One of the arguments against elderly men and women eating hearty meals is that all their body processes are ebcoming weaker and so must not be forced to handle large quantities of food. Thus it has been believed that the stomach in the elderly is "drying" up, becobing smaller does not empty as rapidly as when they were younger. It is interesting therefore to read of a recent experiment in The American Journal of Physiology.

Drs. Edward J. Van Liere and David W. Northrup, West Virginia University, investigated how aging affected the emptying time of the stomach. Twelve men, the youngest 58 and the oldest 84, were studied. Ten were without funds and resided in the county infirmary; one was a college professor and one was a janitor.

A definite amount of food was given each man and about 2 ounces of barium sulfate was added which enabled the investigators to wacth the position of the meals by Xrays.

The average length of time for the test meal to leave the stomachs of the twelve men was 1 hour and 56 minutes. The emptying time of the stomach in 59 young adults previously studied averaged about two hours and two minutes.

This investigation shows that elderly men and women can safely eat more food if they feel like it.

Beauty in 'Teen-Age Hands

Susan Hayward has beautiful hands.

By HELEN FOLLETT

'TEEN-AGE girls don't know what to do with their hands. They become hand conscious and that's bad. They should try to forget them. How often you see a sweet young thing hiding her hands in the folds of her frock. She does that so she won't be brushing back a lock of hair, twiddling with a button, pulling at an ear lobe or digging at a hangnail. Poor darling! Youth has it worries.

She won't feel that she's all hands if she gets interested in giving beauty care to her hands. Neatly groomed, she will be proud of them. They will be proud of themselves, will learn to move gracefully, won't want to be hidden.

A Good Scrubbing

The surface must be kept white and smooth; that is possible through thorough scrubbings with soap suds and a brush, gentle drying and frequent applications of a hand lotion. Summer and winter, a lotion should be applied daily, especially if household tasks must be performed. Once a week the skin must be lubricated. Lanoline is a good medium, so is cocoa-butter.

Spread on the softening agent, thumb the knuckles. Rub it into the cuticle around the fingernails. This is the time for the elbows to get consideration. Oil the palm of the hand, cup it, swing it round and round the elbow.

Care of Cuticle

After the bath when the skin is soft, lift the cuticle around the nails with the orangewood stick. If the flesh adheres to the nail fabric, hangnails are bound to form, and hangnails have a terrible effect upon even the sweetest disposition. If shreds appear, snip them away with the curved needle-point scissors, pointing the ends toward the nail base.

Use nail white when cleaning the eaves, applying with the orangewood stick, forming a clear cut outline.

HEALTH CHATS

Pneumonia in Babies Still Dangerous Despite Miraculous New Drugs.

Deaths from pneumonia in babies are fewer than ever before. The remarkable record is due to the dramatic value of the sulfonamide drugs. Yet, no mistake should be made in assuming that pneumonia is not a dangerous disease.

One of the most important things in treating pneumonia in children is care by a nurse who has been trained in the handling of children. This type of nursing will not only make the child's illness less uncomfortable, but the nurse can be of great aid to the physician in noting the symptoms and course of the disease, thus helping to determine what treatment should be employed.

The baby with pneumonia should be kept in a warm room in which the temperature is about 65 or 70 degrees. Of course, the baby should have plenty of fresh air, and this can be obtained by keeping the window opened at the proper level. Drafts should be prevented by the use of screens. The clothing should be light and loose and any clothing which may interfere with the breathing, should be avoided. Furthermore, heavy poultices on the chest, while they may aid in relieving pain, interfere with the breathing and should not be used.

Insofar as diet is concerned, fluids should be given in large quantities. Water, fruit drinks sweetened with glucose, and milk all are useful. If the baby is breast fed, he should continue to receive breast milk. If the baby is on a cow's milk mixture, the strength of the mixture should be reduced by half. The child should not be fed any more often than normally, since this may interfere with his rest and sleep.

The physician will decide just which of the sulfonamide drugs should be used and the quantity that should be employed. Some doctors favor sulfapyridine because it seems to have a better effect on the pneumococci which cause many cases of pneumonia. On the other hand, pneumonia can be produced by other germs, such as streptococci, and in such instances sulfathiazole may be preferred.

Oxygen is useful in the treatment of pneumonia, particularly when the child's skin becomes bluish, due to not getting enough oxygen, and when the child's breathing becomes quite rapid. The child may be put in an oxygen tent or the oxygen may be administered through a small rubber tube called a catheter which is inserted into the child's nose. Serum treatment is difficult to employ in babies because, before it is used, it is necessary to determine the type of pneumonia germ producing the symptoms. This cannot always be done satisfactorily.

FASHION FLASHES

ALL SORTS of clever trimming novelties appear on new Spring gloves. A nice white kid glove has a cuff lined with aqua blue kid. The cuff can be turned back to convert the glove into a sleek four-button plain white, right with any outfit.

IF YOUR CHOICE is for a leather bag, pick out the best possible quality and lavish on it plenty of care and attention. A good bag is a large-size dressy bag of fine black patent leather feather stitched in white in a striped effect and lined with red grosgrain.

ONE WAY to look flower fresh is to wear one of the new Spring flower prints. A pretty afternoon frock is of honey-beige silk crepe with a green orchid print. Self ruchings mark the deep round neckline, the pannier pockets and the skirt hem.

JOURNEY'S END finds many a weary gal coming home to enjoy a tub and then slip into an easy, pretty, comfy housecoat. A neatly tailored model is a soft design in red striped white jersey with pearl studs down the shirtwaist-like bodice. Skirt has front fullness.

THERE'S A WEALTH of novelty in coats this season, but the emphasis is mainly on the simply tailored model. A real novelty, but one with plenty of use, is a raglan sleeved Chesterfield in red bengaline made with easy sleeves and a black velvet collar.

THERE'S NOTHING to equal the charm of white touches on navy. A waist-fitted double-breasted coat of navy wool has broad lapels and wide cuffs of white pique buttoned on with rows of tiny pearl buttons.

Quality counts most—for that rich, satisfying flavour which only a fine quality tea yields, use..

The Association also voted ten percent of the gross receipts of all games to be retained by the executive for future league financing purposes.

Commissioner C. B. Colling approached the meeting and invited the league to return to the Belleville Exhibition Park for the purpose of league play during the 1943 scheduled season at the rental rate prevailing in 1943.

The previous mark of two minutes 51 seconds was set in March, 1940, by Bernice Bebeck of Hamilton Athletic Club, Kingston, Ont.

APPEAL FOR HELP FOR 300 PERSONS

Hebertville, Que., May 18 (CP)—Emergency pleas for help to Prime Minister MacKenzie King and Premier Godbout of Quebec were expected to set in motion plans that would bring aid to almost 300 persons, left homeless here Saturday night when a $250,000 fire swept through this Lake St. John district town.

Fifty buildings—including 26 dwellings—were destroyed in the blaze which started when a grass fire in an adjacent field got out of control and, fanned by strong wind, razed half of the town.

LEAFS DEFEAT JERSEY GIANTS FOR 12TH VICTORY

Al Jarlett Allows Only Four Hits as Club Wins 8-2

BEARS KEEP PACE

By The Associated Press

Graduation to New York Yankees, the draft and trades wiped out virtually the entire 1942 Newark Bear nine which manager Bill Meyer guided to an International League pennant but the play of newcomer Don Savage is making Meyer smile again.

Savage was out of baseball last year because of illness and hasn't recovered completely. The third baseman, who the army rates 4F but whom Meyer lists A1, takes a medical injection before each game.

Yesterday Savage showed a distinct liking for the speedball offerings of Harold Gregg, Montreal hurler, and clubbed out a pair of doubles and a single as the Bears, striving to replace Toronto Leafs at the league top, downed the Royals 3-1.

And just to show how good that insulin injection makes him feel, Savage also starred afield with eight assists, one of them starting a double-play.

Toronto, however, wasn't in the mood to relinquish any of its lead and defeated Jersey City 8-2 for its 12th victory in 14 starts, while Buffalo was drubbing Syracuse, 9-3. The Baltimore-Rochester game was postponed.

The Maple Leafs got four-hit pitching from Al Jarlett to manufacture their triumph. After the game manager Gabby Hartnett of the Little Giants said Nap Reyes, towering Cuban, would report to New York Giants at once. Reyes, who batted .241 for Jersey as a first baseman last year, has been used at third this spring.

Montreal Claimant To Wrestling Crown In Mixed Bout Here

Completely ignoring the possibilities of a shot at the British Empire wrestling championship, Yvon Robert, the sensational French-Canadian heavyweight from Montreal, is shouting from the housetops of his claims to the world's heavyweight wrestling champion.

"I've beaten Browning, Katan and all the rest of them and in the Boston-Montreal area there is no denying my claim to the world title," Robert shouted as he shook his fist in Promoter Tunney's face after signing to meet "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the Cape Town colored sensation, at the Hume Arena Wednesday night.

"If I pin this black boy pet of yours, you fellows in Toronto, Buffalo and New York will have to recognize my claim to the world title," roared the quick-tempered Robert as he signed for the most important wrestling bout ever to be staged in the Hume Arena. Claybourne lays claim to the colored championship, so this meeting is a battle of claimants.

A strong supporting card including Robert's younger brother Maurice, Earl McCready and others introduce the card.

TURNS UP IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—FO. Lew Hayman, Toronto's builder of football champions, reported to R.C.A.F. headquarters here Monday under what one air force official described as "a normal service posting." Football, it is understood, has nothing to do with Hayman's visit—or stay—in Ottawa.

Hayman is being consulted upon a physical fitness program.

Toronto, May 18— (CP) —There could be some connection between Ottawa's sudden interest in reviving Eastern Interprovincial Football and the impending transfer to Ottawa of FO. Lew Hayman, who coached Toronto R. C. A. F. Hurricanes to the Dominion title last fall. . . Walter (Hamilton Spectator) McMullen throws cold water on suggestions the big four might be revived. He says Hamilton Wildcats are satisfied to remain in the Ontario Union and Hamilton Tigers will not talk football until after the war. . .And speaking of football, that great old campaigner, Dave Harding, has been promoted group captain. One of Canada's best halfbacks for nearly 20 years, Harding now commands the R. C. A. F. station at Hagersville, Ont.

Golf Hints:

Karl Keffer, who has retired after 32 years as professional at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, doesn't agree with those who claim play in other sports is a handicap in golf. He says baseball should help develop a golfer. The swing is different, but the timing in batting and in waking a golf shot is the same. "A ball player can take up golf at 30 years of age and shoot under consistently."

Most other sports also help a golfer but not tennis, says Earl. "It will hurt your golf. Tennis tends to make you snap at the ball." Keffer says public courses were the greatest factor in the rise in golf's popularity. "Not only did the public links aid in development, but they kept the youngsters at the game which was more important. They bridged that gap which formerly resulted in young players losing interest because they didn't have the cash to continue their golf at a time when steady play was essential to their progress as golfers."

Incidentally:

Toronto is baseball wacky this season with Leafs riding at the International League crest. They expect great things from shortstop Frankie Zak, a 19-year-old rookie up from the class "D" Pony League. They're even calling Zak a second Peewee Reese. . .The Western Canada racing season is under way but some of the better known jockeys are missing. Augie Sylvester now is with the United States Army in Australia. Ray Reilson is with the U. S. Pacific fleet. Sammy Baird is an R. C. A. F. pilot. Art Stewart and Willie Devlin are with the Canadian Army in Britain.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

London, May 18 —(CP)— Henry Cotton, who once conquered sickness and rose to be one of the world's greatest golfers, has been invalided from the R. A. F.—because of ill-health.

Now 36, Cotton is confined to his $45,000 home in Hertfordshire where, until he joined the air force three years ago, he was professional at the Ashbridge Golf Club. He has been in failing health for several months but despite his illness played many exhibition matches for the Red Cross Fund.

Before gaining international fame he was professional to the Waterloo Club in Brussels where he went after a long period of adversity in England. He planned to become Britain's No. 1 golfer and was determined to attain a high standard of physical and mental fitness.

A Paris specialist worked out a simple but tough plan of diet and exacting physical exercises and gradually a now Henry Cotton emerged. The one-time assistant professional at England's Fulwell course returned to his native heath to astonish the golfing world with such feats as winning the British open four years in a row—1934-1937.

Aubrey Boomer, British International golfer who succeeded Cotton as Waterloo Club pro, took his drive and the hall landed on the "fairway"—a sunbaked stretch of desert along the banks of a Persian river.

That's the best course Lieut. Boomer of the Royal Engineers can find at present. But he plays when he can get a little time off from looking after the welfare of thousands of British and Indian troops who transport stores and equipment to the 10th Army and to Russia.

Chairman of Bath City Football Club, Arthur Mortimer takes home all players' kit after every match—and his wife washes it.

Each Monday she hangs out 11 jerseys, 11 pairs of shorts and 11 pairs of stockings. She winds up the weekly chore with any necessary darning.

BROOKLYN WINS FIRST GAME OF CRUCIAL SERIES

Dixie Walker Scores Only Run on a Double, Walk and Infield Out

By JUDSON BAILEY

A microscope still is standard equipment for National League fans trying to find any difference in strength between Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals.

These two rivals for the pennant in the senior circuit collided at Ebbets Field yesterday for the first time this season and Dodgers won by the most infinitesimal margin possible, 1-0.

This was good enough to chase the Cardinals into third place and make it impossible for them to gain the league lead during their stay in Brooklyn, but it failed to indicate any clear cut superiority for the long grind ahead.

The twilight tussle, opening a four-game series, was decided on a run in the second inning. Dixie Walker led off with a double, the only extra base blow of the game. He advanced to third on an infield out and Alex Kampouris walked. Then pitcher Rube Melton rapped a perfect double lay grounder to third baseman Jimmy Brown, but Kampouris banged into Lou Klein at second hard enough to break up the throw to first and Walker scored.

Only two other games, both in the National League, were played yesterday. Cincinnati Reds squeezed back into the first division by beating the New York Giants 3-1. Ray Starr gave an effective eight-hit pitching performance for the Reds and also singled with the bases loaded for two of their counters in a three-run second inning that decided the game.

At Philadelphia the surprising Phillies conquered the last place Chicago Cubs 8-4 to extend the Bruins' losing streak to six games. John Podgajny, long a Cub nemesis, held them well in check after a wobbly first inning. His bad start was offset by the Phillies scoring five runs in the first frame. Danny Litwhiler collected his fourth homer of the spring in the second.

"You know," it remarked, "human beings are silly."

"Why do you say that?" asked the other.

The first fly tapped the ceiling with its foot.

"Well, take a look," it chirped. "They spend good money building a nice ceiling and then they walk on the floor."

Golfers on Alert

With preparations for a gala opening of the golf season at both the Belleville and Bay of Quinte Golf Clubs ready for next week-end, the dubs and duffers at both local courses are availing themselves of what pre-season practice they can have. Bill Steer, club captain at the Quinte Club has a complete program for Sunday that will even include mixed play for the official opening of the season.

Last Saturday a large gallery of "divot diggers" availed themselves of an afternoon of good golfing weather. Among those at the Bay of Quinte Club was Don Lee, assistant campaign manager of the local Victory Loan. Don was so elated over his campaign going over the top in Belleville he in and out of bunkers as though it was a pleasure. But then Don did manage to head his contemporary, Ted Wooley, and enjoy the last laugh at that famed 19th hole.

Softballers Organize

After re-electing Harry Knott president, the Belleville softball moguls cleared decks for what looks to be a banner season last night. Seven clubs affiliated, and nothing has been heard from the camp of the Mountain View "Bombers" as yet. With the Army and Navy Veterans assuming a new role as sponsors of junior softball, three other new teams joined the fold in the Stewart Warner-Alemite, Belleville Garrison and a team now known as "Our Gang." The latter is a collection of the old guard headed by Gerald Barriage and boasts of such veterans as Johnny Bawden, Cy and Jimmie Barriage, Bill Whalen and some of the boys from Point Anne, all of which should go to make up a strong entry. However, Coach Barriage quietly informed your correspondent that these veterans of local softball wars would appreciate a named sponsor at an early date.

Stewart Warner returns well supplied with diamond material while the Belleville Garrison have at their disposal all players available from the Argil Light Infantry, 34th Battery and kindred units of the reserve forces. The other clubs making up the league roster are well established, having been hold-overs from 1942.

Some fine handsome trophies have been put up by the Trenton Rotary Club for their annual track and field meet. The usual dashes, half mile run and field events for teen-aged boys and girls will be featured.

CHALKY WRIGHT DEFEATS CARTO

Baltimore, May 18 (AP)—Chalky Wright of Los Angeles, former featherweight title claimant, scored a technical knockout over young Frankie Carto of Philadelphia last night before 7,000 fans in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Carto mixed willingly with the veteran Negro and took a slight edge on aggressiveness in the opening rounds, but when Wright began stalking his man in the fourth the Philadelphian lacked stamina to last.

Wright weighed 130 pounds and Carto 130 1-2.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO 53

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

I dare not tell you here what some bridge partners call each other. But the partner of the opening bidder is called the responder.

The opening one-bidder promises among other things, five tricks. The responder is expected to hold two tricks. If he has them, the pair will have the seven tricks they need for the contract of one.

The responder may have less than two tricks. Or he may have exactly two tricks and no more. In either case, he has but one honest response. That answer is pass.

The word pass, gals and fellers, is the most eloquent word in bridge. It covers a multitude of skinny hands. It says: "Partner, I have no more tricks than you expected me to have."

Comes now the next hot step in your training as a responder. Here it is. In answer to an opening bid of one, the responder with more than two tricks should bid.

Suppose partner starts with an opening bid of one heart You have this hand:

♠A 10 7 5 3
♥9 6 2
♦Q 8
♣7 5 2

Count your tricks; one for each ace, one for each king, one for each queen, one for each short card. You have three tricks; one for your ace, one for your queen, one for your short card in diamonds.

You thus know you have more than two tricks. You thus know you should bid something. To satisfy your curiosity, let me tell you that your response should be one spade.

When you respond with one spade what does your partner know about your hand? Among other things, he knows you have more than two tricks.

That much must be evident to your partner. Because with not more than two tricks, you would have passed. Unless you are a responder who should be called by another name.

Paste that on your brain. With more than two tricks, you must bid. You gotta. And when you gotta bid, you gotta bid.

Orders Dim-Out On Lower St. Lawrence

Montreal, May 18 —(CP)— As a defence against enemy U-boats, the Federal Government has ordered a dim-out down the St. Lawrence River from the mouth of the Saguenay River, 115 miles below Quebec City, to beyond the Gulf of St. Lawrence, it was announced yesterday.

The dim-out, similar to precautions taken last year during the shipping season, will extend inland for a depth of five miles from both the north and south shoers of the river. It became effective May 10 and will continue until the closing of navigation next fall.

The dim-out, announced by civilian protection committee officials here, was ordered under a proclamation issued by pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie in his capacity as head of Canada's A. R. P. organizations at the request of Canadian naval anthorities.

On the river's north shore it covers a 600-mile stretch from the mouth of the Saguenay to the boundary line of labrador. The south shore dim-out area runs from the village of L'Ile Verte, opposite the Saguenay, to the village of Douglastown on the Gaspe Peninsula.

Regulations

The governing regulations, which are effective from sunset to sunrise, include:-

1. Show window lights, illuminated signs and ornamental lighting of every description which are visible out-of-doors, and flood lighting which illuminates buildings or signs, including but not limited to all exterior advertising signs, billboards, display lighting, theatre marquee signs, and interior signs, and all ornamental lighting immediately within unobscured window areas, shall be extinguished.

2. No lights or lighting of any kind, whether interior or exterior, including street lighting, shall be displayed if the same is visible from the waters of the St. Lawrence River or Gulf of St. Lawrence, and unless the same be shielded as to prevent direction of their rays upward and outward.

3. No vehicle shall be so operated that the beam of its lights is directed upon the waters of the river or the gulf unless such lights are so shielded as to prevent them from being visible from the waters, or unles each light is of no greater capacity than 250 beam candle power.

4. Lights on railway passenger cars shall be so shaded as to prevent them from being visible from the waters of the river or the gulf.

5. The regulations shall not apply to any authorized light for facilitating air or water navigation, or to any authorized railway signal light.

The proclamation noted that the order was made with the concurrence of the three defence ministers and applied not only to civilians but also to the naval, military and air services.

C. P. C. field parties are visiting the dim-out areas to instruct residents and authorities in dim-out technique.

26,000 in North Ireland Volunteer For War Service

Belfast, May 18—(CP)—A veil of secrecy obscuring northern Ireland's war effort has been partially lifted and for the first time it is permissable to say that 26,000 men have volunteered for service. This figure does not include men already in the forces when war started or men who joined up in Britain.

Apart from three regular northern Ireland regiments, a light tank regiment, an anti-aircraft brigade and a search-light regiment have also been raised.

From northern Ireland and shipyards has come the aircraft carrier Formidable, largest warship ever built in Ireland, and the destroyers Belfast and Terror. One shipyard, capable of launching 200,000 tons of shipping a year, now employs more than 20,000 workers.

Six Belfast-built liners have been commissioned as auxiliary cruisers, including the Alcantara, Carnarvon Castle and the Ulster Prince. Two Russian merchant ships come from there—the Skala, launched as Maine, and the Neva, formerly the Essequibo.

Many thousands of civilians are helping make aircraft, tanks, guns and ammunitions. Agriculture, the principal industry, has made gigantic strides.

By the end of 1942 there had been a 100 per cent increase in land cultivation and an agricultural turnover of $200,000,000. More than $50,000,000 worth of food is sent Britain yearly, including 300,000,000 eggs and 1,130,000 gallons of milk.

PREPARE MEALS OVER OPEN FIRES

Nipigon, Ont., May 18 (CP) — Residents of this town 60 miles west of Port Arthur are preparing meals over open fires in backyards and using candles and oil lamps following a power failure in a transformer at the village sub-station last Friday night.

The town's water system depends on an electric pump but officials said if citizens conserve water there would be enough for two weeks under normal conditions.

Theatres were closed Saturday night.

DODGES ROBBERS, SAVES $1,200

Waukegan, Ill., May 17 —(AP)— Oliver L. Hove had a narrow escape from being trapped in a revolving door of the Citizens' National Bank by would-be robbers.

As he entered the door with $1,200 to deposit in the bank, two men attempted to rob him but he held his own and the $1,200, and as a crowd gathered, the two men fled.

AT THE BELLE

"Star Spangled Rhythm"

If ever there was a picture to make every movie fan happy, it's Paramount's unparalleled musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rhythm," now on the Belle Theatre screen with just about everything imaginable in the way of entertainment and just about everyone on the Paramount lot. It's without doubt the best and biggest show of shows in Hollywood history — a feast for eyes and ears and heart and funnybone.

No matter who your favorite Paramount star is, you're sure to see him — or her — in "Star Spangled Rhythm," for the studio has turned out en masse to make this the top musical comedy of this or any other movie season. Stupendous is definitely the word for it. There hasn't been anything to equal it since the first movie flicker fascinated audiences.

Any film which utilizes the diversified talents of more than forty stars, giving them all a chance to strut their stuff and making that stuff an integral part of the story, really has something. And that's exactly what "Star Spangled Rhythm" does. Among the forty stars you'll find Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Victor Moore, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Vera Zorina, Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester, William Bendix, Jerry Colonna, MacDonald Carey, Walter Abel, and more, and more!

Don't get the idea that "Star Spangled Rhythm" is just a revue; it isn't. It tells the story of Victor Moore, Paramount studio gateman, who has deceived his sailor son, Eddie Bracken, into believing that he runs the studio. When Eddie shows up at the studio with a group of friends, something drastic has to be done, and Moore and Betty Hutton, his switchboard operator friend, do it. Before very long, every one of the stars is helping them do it and it all adds up to really hilarious fun.

All the stars — most of them playing themselves — are seen on their home ground, the Paramount studio. They all perform against a background of music, dancing and comedy, making "Star Spangled Rhythm" the greatest entertainment of its kind.

The Belle News of the World described by Lowell Thomas and Popeye in "Spinach for Britain" complete the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Klondike Fury"
(First Belleville Showing)

The snowy beauty of the north woods forms the setting for much of the action of "Klondike Fury," the Monogram drama which is now at the Capitol Theatre with Edmund Lowe in the starring role.

Early in the story Lowe's airplane crashes in an isolated northern district, and he becomes the centre of an absorbingly dramatic series of events during the winter he spends at a trading post conducted by an old man and his pretty daughter. The arrival of the spring thaw brings the story to its climax.

Lowe's supporting cast includes Lucile Fairbanks, William Henry and Ralph Morgan, and the picture was directed by William K. Howard.

"The Wife Takes a Flyer"

Laugh-filled fable of a Yank in the R.A.F., who is forced to bail out over occupied Holland and finds himself in Dutch, in danger and in love, Columbia's hilarious "The Wife Takes a Flyer," the added hit at the Capitol Theatre. Lovely Joan Bennett is the "wife"; Franchot Tone, the flyer. Major supporting players in the bright new comedy include Allyn Joslyn, as a pompous Nazi major; Cecil Cunningham and Roger Clark.

Richard Wallace directed the delightful love - and - laughfest, which was produced by B. P. Schulberg. Wallace, who also directed the co-stars' "She Knew All the Answers," makes of "The Wife Takes a Flyer" a joyful combination of thrills and romance, comedy and excitement.

"The Wife Takes a Flyer" moves through some of the swiftest action in recent months, as well as some of the most hectic hilarity.

The new Canada Carries On featurette "New Soldiers Are Tough" and the Universal News round out a splendid program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Let's Have Fun"

Bert Gordon, the "Mad Russian" of the screen and radio fame, is one person who takes no offense when people laugh in his face.

The only time he'll start worrying, he says, is when they stop considering him a funny-looking fellow who can't speak perfect English.

Gordon's butchery of the language is not only deliberate but a polished art in which he takes considerable and pardonable pride. It's earned him a good living while winning him a top spot on the screen and over the airwaves.

An actor who literally worked his way up from the Bowery where he made his footlight debut at the age of seven, Gordon credits his advent into pictures to the fact that he is a very bad salesman. It was while trying to sell Eddie Cantor an ad in a theatrical journal that he gained Cantor's attention and his help in getting a radio try-out.

Currently featured at the McCarthy Theatre in Columbia's "Let's Have Fun," Gordon was born on New York's Eastside where he got his first Broadway break at the huge salary of eight dollars a week in a Bert Lahr show called "The Stage Struck Kids."

Allied Invasion May Be Led By Several Generals

(By WILLIAM FRYE)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 18 (AP)— The Allied invasion of Europe may be directed—not by a single supreme commander—but by several commanders, each having his own sphere of operations.

Presumably, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have by now set the course of invasion, and it is more than likely that they have agreed on a commander—or commanders. Assuming a single all-out smash, the names figuring most prominently in speculation are those of three full generals, one Briton and two Americans —Sir Harold Alexander, Dwight D. Eisenhower and George C. Marshall.

If, however, a multiple invasion is the plan, Marshall's name drops out of most of the guessing here. It is regarded as unlikely that he would give up his present post as United States Chief of Staff to take over a force doing only a part of the job. That would be relinquishing a large share of the High Command for a smaller share.

The situation does not hold for either Gen. Alexander or Gen. Eisenhower. In each case, command of one prong of a multiple and co-ordinated assault on Europe would be an enlarged command, involving greater numbers of troops and more diverse problems than the North African campaign.

If, for instance, the High Command has decided to hit Europe simultaneously among all four of the most frequently mentioned possibilities —the Balkans, Italy, the English Channel, and Norway —Gen. Eisenhower would seem to be a logical man to command the Italian thrust.

The Balkans route is one of the two invasion roads generally regarded as likely to carry the main drive, the other being the "short line" across the Channel. For either, Gen. Alexander would be a "natural". His indomitable leadership turned the disasters of Dunkerque and Burma into classic examples of rearguard actions.

Ray Milland makes very merry in the Paramount musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rhythm." Ray is one of the more than forty famous stars now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop smoking to himself, and I said, Hey pop?

Come right in, pop said.

Meaning what, and I said, I've got a good mind to sue Sam Cross. I was going to ask Lucky Leroy Shooster to ask his father's advice because his father's a lawyer, only I haven't seen Leroy since, I said, and pop said, Since what?

Since Sam Cross claimed his father got a letter from Russia and offered to swap me the stamp for my envelope full of exter size red rubber bands, so I said yes and Sam took my rubber bands and went in his house and brought out the letter, and there the stamp was just an ordinary stamp like you buy in any drugstore, and nothing Russian about it, I said, and pop said, Do you mean to say the letter wasnt from Russia, at all?

Sure it was from Russia, but his father had sent it there, only it had the wrong address on it so it came back again with Russian writing on the envelope but no Russian stamp, so I cant claim it didn't actually come from Russia and Sam Cross wont give me back my rubber bands, so why cant I sue him for false pretences, pop? I said, and pop said, Well, I'm no lawyer like Mr. Shooster, but I can tell you just about what a lawyer would say. He'd assure you that you had a case there, and he'd open one of his law books to the section marked Torts and Dervishes and show you the case of Bingo versus Lotto, in which Bingo successfully sued Lotto for fraudulently retaining a consignment of wedding rings. True, they weren't rubber bands, but they were wedding bands, and that's enough of a tecknicality for a smart lawyer. But he would warn you that the suit would cost you approximately 3 or 4 dollars, of which he would retain approximately 2 or three pop said.

The result being I decided not to sue him, not feeling as bad about it as what I would if the rubber bands had been fresh instead of so stale it's dangerous to try to stretch them.

Col. Elliot Roosevelt Escapes Injury

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 17. —(Col. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the United States President, escaped injury yesterday when his plane collided with another on an airfield near Algiers.

Col. Roosevelt and the pilot had landed in a cross wind which carried the plane off its course, crashing it aground into a large transport which had just arrived.

AT THE CAPITOL

Edmund Lowe, as a famous surgeon, and Ralph Morgan, playing a backwoods doctor in primitive Alaska, find they have much in common in "Klondike Fury", now at the Capitol. On the same program "Wife Takes a Flyer."

Hollywood and HERE

By HYE BOSSIN

The domestic side of Hollywood life attracted more attention in the period just past than the technical side, movie making. Press agents may release reams of glorified guff about pictures in production and the players in them but babies steal the show, there as elsewhere.

Alice Faye, after 10 years of movie action, is going to call it quits. Why? Oh, just to have more time to look after her year-old baby, Alice Faye Harris, Jr. As simple a reason as that—and there was never a better one. You can have the fame and fortunes, says Alice, give me the coos and gurgles.

Mrs. Alan Ladd, the former Sue Carol, presented the popular star, now in the USA army, with a daughter weighing 8 lb. 11 oz. Mrs. Ladd was a starlet who decided to become an agent. Ladd became her client, her sweetheart and her husband. To guard against any rifts between them she sold his contract to another agent for $10,000. It was her shrewd management that switched hubby from anonymity to stardom. Now she has another Ladd to manage.

The hand that rocks the cradle still rules the world—including Hollywood.

In Missouri there's a move to ban films in which any of the players have been divorced in real life. The unusual number of Hollywood divorces has many wondering why. A good reason is that the stars, while not too busy to fall in love, are too busy to develop the companionship that secures most marriages. . . . Maurice Chevalier, the French actor who was such a hit in America for a while some years ago, is a quisling now. He entertains at the orders of the Germans. He was all set to do his act in a Belgian theatre when Allied sympathizers blew up the electrical system. . . . Joan Fontaine and Olivia de Havilland, who are sisters, were born in Tokyo, daughters of an English professor who divorced their mother and married a Japanese woman.

Sunday shows for men and women in the armed services were a great success, the first one in Toronto being attended by 2,500. Admission is free and confined to service men and women on leave away from their homes. Famous Players Corporation provided the theatre and staffs free and distributors donated the films. . . . You'll see plenty of musicals shortly. Thirty-nine are ready and 65 more in various stages of preparation. One studio will make "Ziegfeld Follies" in technicolor—and without a story of any kind. It will be an interesting experiment. . . . Barbara Stanwyck made several stopoffs in Canada recently. . . . Desi Arnaz, Cuban screen star and husband of Lucille Ball, is in the USA army.

• • •

Stan Laurel's ex-wife, Ileana, the Russian singer, will marry the brother of the late Huey Long. Laurel's exciting life with Ileana enlivened newspaper reading for quite some time. . . . Van Heflin cycles to work every day in slacks and a sweatshirt. His wife has given up trying to make him dress and act like a movie star. . . . Joan Bennett, husband Walter Wanger and her two children were driven from their home by fire, which destroyed many valuable books and works of art. Joan's two daughters, Diana, 14, and Melinda, 8, will have a baby brother or sister next month. . . . Grand-daddy of the western film is "The Great Train Robbery," made in 1903. Westerns have been popular ever since. It would be interesting to see "The Great Train Robbery."

4,000 DUTCH STUDENTS DEPORTED

London, May 17 —(CP)— German occupation authorities have deported 4,000 Netherlands students to Germany for forced labor, the Netherlands agency, Aneta, said today.

Aneta quoted Marshal Goering's Essener National Zeitung as saying the students had been deported after 90 per cent refused to sign "a declaration of obedience" to all Nazi regulations.

CHAPTER 18

"I was playing bridge one night in a girl's apartment and Miles came in with her brother. When he took me home, I didn't know what to say to him. I'd never known any men outside business. I couldn't believe it when he said he wanted to see me again. I did not drink or smoke or dance. He doesn't either. Out of the whole world I found someone like me. Since I've known him I've often thought of trying to look more attractive, but somehow I always bought the same kind of clothes and my hair always fell in the same waves." She laughed. "I feel undressed with my ears showing.

That evening Temple was in the dining-room when Abby came down to dinner. For several minutes there was a lull in conversation because Abby was wearing a smart light blue dress and tall-heeled white sandals and something most becoming had happened to her hair. No one before had ever realized that her eyes and teeth were beautiful. Nor did Abby hurry to her chair to escape the startled glances. She came in slowly, smiling at Temple. Other than have a young man ask to see her again, Temple thought, coming in the dining-room this August night was the most dramatic thing that had ever happened to Abby. It was the first time that people had stopped to look at her.

Autumn came, bringing coolness and her long-anticipated plan to go to Jud. It also brought Paula back from the north. Two nights before she was to leave for Florida, Temple had dinner with Paula at a table by the window in Paula's living-room.

"Did you have a good summer?" Temple asked as the crisply, uniformed maid moved between them.

Paula shrugged green velvet shoulders. "Oh, so-so. It was just the same old thing with all due respect to my various hostesses who tried hard. But when I was in one place, I thought the next would be better. When it was not, I thought that home was the best of all places. And now that I'm back—" She shook her head and her fingers drummed on the blond wood.

She looked down at her drumming fingers. "Yes, it's like that. If something doesn't happen to me soon, I'll have an expensive nervous breakdown out of sheer boredom. Oh, but don't pay any attention to me, darling. Just one of my moods. When I get like this, it scares me. I'm always afraid I'm going to get interested in a man . . as if I didn't know what that was from start to finish. But come now, tell me about you. How long has it been since—"

"Since May?" Temple said. Her heart was singing. "Two more nights and then Jud, waiting for her. She could be sure of that. How wonderful it was to be sure of something again!"

Paula laughed. "You look so composed and confident. Youth composed and confident while older people drum tables and take pills to make them sleep. I don't like me any more, Temple. I used to like me quite a lot. I used to pat myself on the back occasionally and tell myself I'd done all right. I had plenty of money and no responsibility, I couldn't get out of by picking up the phone. Perhaps it's the fever of the times of these middle years when you are neither young nor old."

She stopped suddenly and smiled rather grimly. "This is quite beyond you and I'm not being at all amusing. I'm thinking of moving and getting some new things. I think these pictures are making faces at me. All of which probably adds up to 'Don't let this happen to you.'"

Temple said, "It isn't likely." Tonight she felt that only the best things would happen to her in the future.

"No, it isn't. You haven't red hair, baby, and your beginning was different. Mine was . . but let's not go into that. I don't want to ruin your dinner. Have you noticed how much I'm eating? Women grow lazy and fat when their minds are useless. But tell me about you and Jud. Haven't you met anyone else who attracted you? Yes, I know. You've had a few fears that Jud would meet another girl, but you haven't had any for yourself and another boy?"

Temple smiled. "I haven't had the slightest murmur of an attraction."

"You're young and alive and lovely-looking. You're married and you've lived with a man. That makes you, whether you realize it or not, more vulnerable. It also makes you more attractive even though the others don't know you are married. I'm sorry, darling. I shouldn't think aloud."

"You've heard me speak of Abby Booth. Abby said that it was easier to send away a sweetheart than a husband. I didn't want the easiest thing. I have lived with Jud and it was good. It showed us how we would live together when the war is over."

"You're sure we'll win?"

"I don't think we will win. I think we must win!"

"Go on. What else do you think, Temple?"

"Abby and Miles could end everything between them with a couple of letters. Jud and I would have to go through a divorce. But I still think it was worth it. I'm glad I belonged to him first. He is my first love. I am not his first, but that doesn't matter. He didn't choose me as much as I chose him. I have to believe in Jud and my marriage just as he has to believe in the cause he'll probably have to fight for. He would never talk about the service and the war. I think he felt too deeply to talk about it. Isn't it strange that the things you fasten to your heart, the things you live by and for, are intangible like love and faith and loyalty? I've never been demonstrative. I couldn't be. But with him I was. I lost myself in loving him. That was almost the most wonderful part of it — forgetting myself for someone else."

Paula said, "Maybe I won't move and maybe these crazy pictures aren't making faces at me. Maybe I'll go out and get a new beau or maybe I'll just have you to dinner more often. No, darling. I'm not making fun of you. You're like escapist fiction . . to sit here and look at you and listen. Why do I always talk so much? I should listen more. With you I'm always turning back the clock and you are living for calendar dates that haven't been printed yet.

As she looked out the window at the swiftly passing small South Carolina towns, Temple thought that in only a few hours the long episode of Jud, sharply broken in May, would begin again.

She had been able to travel first-class mainly because she had had a birthday in September and had asked her family to make their gifts in money and because Ron, with his newly acquired conscience, had sent her a check for a hundred dollars. She had almost wept with joy over it, knowing that Jud would not have to see her step from a crowded coach disheveled and sleepy.

She had written him that she would need no money from him and he had written that he would pay her expenses while she was with him. Spending carefully, she had been able to manage a few new clothes, light, bright, soft things.

Her immediate superior at the office, a brisk young woman, had granted her request for a week's holiday after Temple, standing beside the paper-littered desk, had explained that it was a young man in the service who had no hope of getting leave soon whom she wished to visit. She had dreaded the interview, fearful that the request would not be granted, wondering whether she would have the audacity to quit her job if her request were refused. But no doubt the young woman had considered how unimportant Temple's job was, the power of the Senator who had recommended her and the importance of the morale of her subordinates.

Abby and Merritt had come to the station to see Temple off. Paula had sent her an expensive corsage. As the train pulled out of the station in Washington and Abby and Merritt waved good-bye she was not unmindful of the fact she was putting more miles between herself and her family without their knowledge and that Ron probably would be outraged to know that she was spending his birthday present to take her to a secret, soldier husband.

But regrets soon passed. She was on her way at last. The hot summer nights and the going without adequate food were almost forgotten. She was on her way though she knew not and cared not where she was going after she arrived. That she would see a State she had always wanted to see was of small importance. She was going to see Jud. She was going to live and feel again for a little while until once more a moving train broke the episode.

Would he be in uniform when he met her? He would look splendid in uniform. He would have a great deal to tell her, of course. But she would not tell him of the heat and the hunger that had begun to bother her about three in the afternoon. How many afternoons she had felt light-headed in order to save only a fraction of the amount Ron had sent her.

And the brave plan of her life two years ago which did not include love for a long time and most certainly did not include hunger! She thought, "If I learn as much in the next few years as I have learned the last nine months, then I shall know too much when I am 30. You have an experience and think of it and that is wisdom. And all of a girl's wisdom that is important to her comes from men. But men have other fields to draw from. War brings men close to other men in a way that girls are never close to other girls. Mother wrote last that there were fewer students at the university this year. They're enlisting. The war seems to be creeping upon us like a snake. Planes have an ominous sound they never had before. I can't fasten my thoughts on any one thing. They seem to shoot out from a central point and the central point is Jud. All my feelings are those of a wife, not a sweetheart. When I see him, I'll probably be only his sweetheart, not his wife. . . . I don't see how we can live with each other in Florida."

Temple took a long time at luncheon, wondering whether her fellow-passengers noticed how impatiently and how often she looked at her watch. Several men in uniform were on the train.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 18 — (CP) — Higher prices ruled for the mining groups and the industrials in the early stage on Toronto exchange today and western oils held about steady. Turnover was sizable at 213,000 shares for the first three hours.

The golds firmed on leadership of Kerr-Addison, a gainer of 20 cents to a new high at 6.50. East Malartic, Macassa, Preston, Pioneer, Omega and Jason were among the stronger issues. Hudson Bay and Ontario Nickel were stronger base metals and other issues of the group were firm.

Senior oils, steels and foods displayed moderate strength. Canners B, Consolidated Bakeries, Ford A, Brazilian and International Petroleum were strong interlisted issues.

In the western oil list Home, South End Pete and Vermilata were up against minor losses for Anglo-Canadian and British-Dominion.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 18 (AP)—Assorted rails, steels and other stock market favorites shifted to the recovery column today while many leaders continued more or less apathetic.

Considered mildly bullish was the extension of the coal labor truce, a number of good earnings statements and the over-all war news. Offsets were seen in tax problems. Lack of information regarding the Washington global strategy conferences and thoughts of further governmental contract cancellations.

The direction was moderately upward at the start. Dealings then slowed but gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed near the fourth hour.

Dome and Lake Shore featured trading in Canadian issues, both scoring fractional advances. C.P.R. was off a fraction. Bonds and commodities were narrowly mixed.

Axis Losses in Africa, Mid East Nearly Triple British Since June '40

London, May 18—(CP)—Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced today in the House of Commons that Axis casualties in Africa and the Middle East were nearly triple the losses sustained by Britain since Italy entered the war on June 10, 1940.

British, commonwealth and empire forces have lost approximately 20,000 men in killed, wounded and missing, Attlee declared.

German casualties in Africa and the Middle East, he said, total 227,000, and Italian casualties 400,000

Attlee gave the figures in introducing a resolution of pride and thankfulness for the Allied Tunisian victory.

A.R.P. Auxiliary Fire Fighters Give Efficient Demonstration of Training

Amazement at the proficiency of members of the auxiliary fire fighters of the local A.R.P. organization was expressed by Mayor Harry Rollins on Monday evening following an informal inspection of the department at the local fire hall.

The Mayor expressed considerable surprise at the progress which auxiliary fire fighters had made in fire fighting ability and was also impressed by the efficiency of the portable pumper furnished to the A.R.P committee by headquarters.

Use Portable Pumper

Trained under the direction of Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance members of the local auxiliary fire fighters demonstrated their portable pumper to the inspecting party and proved its efficiency by throwing three one-and-one-half-inch streams of water high enough to fight fire on any building in Belleville. Water was pumped from the river for the demonstration.

Although remarkably efficient considering its size, the present portable pumper supplied for use in Belleville will be relaced by a larger and more powerful unit by A.R.P headquarters if the strength of the local auxiliary force can be raised to 35 members, it was stated by committee vice-chairman Harold Seldon.

Need Truck for Transportation

As the result of the recent fire in Cannifton when the city pumper was called to fight fire at the Watts' residence, Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance has recommended that suitable transportation equipment be supplied for the present auxiliary pumper.

Had a fire broken out in the city at the time the city pumper was at Cannifton it would have been necessary to return the equipment to Belleville leaving the Cannifton blaze without protection. The present auxiliary pumper cannot be towed behind a truck therefore it being impossible to move it any great distance to a fire. It is recommended a small truck be made available on which the pumper could be loaded for transportation to a distant fire.

Had such equipment been available at the time of the Cannifton fire, the city pumper could have returned to the city if necessary leaving the portable pumper to fight the blaze. If the municipality would supply such a truck, one half its cost would be born by A.R.P. headquarters, it was stated.

Extensive Damage In Toronto Fire

Toronto, May 18—(CP)—Extensive damage to merchandise was caused when fire swept through a three-storey building on Yonge street in downtown Toronto today. The flames gutted a warehouse and damaged the entire stock of the Metropolitan chain store on the upper two floors.

Michael Troy, 50, a chef employed by the store, was almost overcome by smoke while attempting to fight the blaze, but staggered out to give the alarm. Two firemen were slightly injured by flying glass.

Fire Chief George Sinclair estimated damage to the building at $5,000 to $10,000. Damage to stock was not estimated.

Is There Agreement Not to Bomb Rome? Air Secretary Asks

London, May 18 (CP)—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, was asked in the House of Commons today by Capt. L. D. Gammans, Conservative, whether there was any agreement, "explicit or tacit," that Rome would not be bombed. An answer is expected later in the week.

Replying to a similar question, Foreign Secretary Eden said on Oct. 21, 1942, that there was no such agreement. On April 18, 1941, the British government warned there would be "systematic bombing of Rome" if either Athens or Cairo were raided.

The statement, issued from 10 Downing Street, added that once the bombing of Rome started "it will continue as convenient to the end of the war."

House of Commons In Secret Session

London, May 18 —(CP)— The House of Commons went into secret session today to hear a statement which Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said the government deemed "inadvisable to make in public."

Mr. Eden's words in making the motion that the House close its doors were almost the same he used last week before telling the members confidentially Prime Minister Churchill was in Washington.

There was no indication of the nature of the statement to be made today, but political observers were prepared for another dramatic development.

ABANDON SCHOONER

Cairo, May 18. (AP) Long-range R.A.F. fighters, which have been harassing Axis shipping daily in the Aegean sea, damaged another schooner in that area yesterday and forced the crew to abandon the vessel, a Middle East Air communique said today.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

OTONABEE RIVER AT FLOOD LEVEL

Peterborough, Ont., May 18. (CP) —As a result of heavy rains and snows of the past winter the Otonabee River is seven and one half feet above its summer normal level. Much farm land is flooded and all the upper lakes of the Kawartha chain, which act as a huge reservoir of water for power purposes, are holding their capacity. All stop logs in the dams between Peterborough and Campbellford have been removed to enable a steady flow of water to Lake Ontario. Summer cottages in many sections of the Kawarthas and Trent River are under several feet of water.

Doesn't it feel swell to wake up in the morning clear-eyed, refreshed, just rarin' to go? Yet so many people, especially over 40, get up tired all-over, never really feel their best.

RAF Harasses Japs in Burma

New Delhi, India, May 18—(CP)—R.A.F. bombing continued to harass Japanese positions in Burma yesterday, setting fires during a low-level attack on Indainggyi, in the Myittha Valley, and striking at Narigan, a village on the only road which connects the town of Akyab with the mainland, a communique said today.

The war bulletin said "From the Arakan there is nothing to report." This was in the area where last Friday British headquarters announced a land army withdrawal from Maungdaw in the face of further Japanese infiltration.

The air war against Japanese-held Burma reached a peak Saturday when R. A. F. planes made day and night raids on Kandaung airfield in Central Burma, as well as against the Keiktila airdrome, factories and rail sidings at Myingyan and a series of attacks on the town of Akyab.

At the same time United States heavy bombers were out in force, dumping high explosives on gasoline dumps, enemy barracks and an electric power station at Lashio, railhead of the Burma road.

American bombers also dropped 10 tons of bombs on three junctions near Shwebo yesterday and an even greater tonnage of explosives on the railroad yards at Zigon, 27 miles northwest of Shwebo, it was announced today. Shwebo is 50 miles northwest of Mandalay.

"Fires followed an explosion in the storage sheds at Zion caused smoke columns which were visible 50 miles from the target," a United States communique said.

The formation's bombs were reported to have destroyed rolling stock, tracks and warehouses.

Hull Advocates Renewal of Power To Negotiate Pacts

Washington, May 18. (AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull advocated renewal of the United States government's power to negotiate reciprocal trade pacts today with the assertion that the time has arrived to "chart the general direction of our post-war course and begin to make decisions on policies".

Appearing before the Senate Finance Committee in behalf of the House of Representatives Legislation for a two-year extension of the Trade Agreements Act under which Canada has a treaty, Hull testified that a "clear cut extension" of this authority would be of "even greater historical significance" than its original adoption.

Letter From Eire

(By Joseph Dennigan)
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Dublin May 18. (CP)—The line-up for Eire's general election, expected in the last week of June, is beginning to take shape.

A great deal of spadework has been done by all parties and it is expected that candidates in the 34 constituencies will be known by the end of May. The three major parties, Fianna Fail which is the Government Party, Fine Fael which is the Opposition and Labor, will nominate about 80 candidates each, enough if successful to form a government in the Dail of 138 seats. Four or five farmer parties may also enter the field.

Electioneering By Bicycle

Due to scarcity of gasoline, electioneering will have to be done by bicycle and horse-drawn vehicles. Only party leaders will be permitted motor transport.

A slight improvement in the newsprint position has enabled newspapers to print six-page papers twice weekly and this has been welcomed by politicians, many of whom will have to depend on the press to circulate their speeches in back districts.

So far little interest has been shown in the election and many people had expressed hope it could be put over for another year.

The popular opinion appears to be that Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail Government will be re-elected with possibly some small losses. William T. Cosgrave's Fine Fael may lose a number of seats and there may be some gains by the farmers.

Potatoes Very Scarce

While people in Britain daily are being told to eat more potatoes to save bread and other foods, Dublin householders can scarcely buy enough for a family meal. And this in a country where potatoes are considered a staple crop.

Prices have soared to double pre-war rates and an order controlling future changes has been issued by the Minister for Supplies. Poor transport is understood to be responsible but it has also been explained that farmers find it more profitable to feed the potatoes to stock than to send them to market.

Considerable newspaper space has been devoted to details of the discoveries of Prof. Erwin Schroedinger, Senior Professor of Theoretical physics at the Dublin Institute of advanced studies, which have been sent to Prof. Albert Einstein in the United States.

Schroedinger, an Austrian who with his wife was given the hospitality of Eire in 1938, has completed his unitary theory of physical fields and, according to Irish writers, has succeeded in closing a gap left by Einstein's theory of relativity.

Second Line Medical Service

Newsy notes about Dublin: Leading medical and surgical specialists have been enrolled in the defence forces with the rank of major as the final step in the establishment of a Second Line Medical Service which will be capable of dealing with emergencies. . . . New hours for sale of intoxicating liquors have come into operation. They run from 10.30 a.m. to 10.30 p.m. on weekdays and from 1.30 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

CANADA PROVES ABILITY TO FACE CRISIS OF WAR

John Bracken, Leader of Progressive Conservative Party, Speaks at Edmonton

POST-WAR PLANNING

Edmonton, May 18—(CP)—John Bracken, National leader of the Progressive Conservative party, declared in an address Monday that Canada had proved herself capable to face the crisis of war and warned that there must be "no letdown in national effort to lay the basis for a better economy when the great struggle is over."

Freshly back from a two-day trip to the north, Mr. Bracken suggested "that practically every surrender made by democratic governments in the last ten years was because those governments were too complacent and their people too indifferent to become united in facing the realities before them.

"The price that is now being exacted for that indifference is the blood and sweat and sacrifice of the greatest war in all human history."

The party leader, speaking to a joint Chamber of Commerce and service club (Kiwanis) luncheon, called for full employment in the post-war era; an international police force to assure the peace; parity prices for the farmer and the harnessing of science and mechanization for the good of the people.

"The major weakness of the old democracy was the failure to provide full employment, in Germany Hitler remedied it by Fascism. In Russia Stalin remedied it by Communism. You and I must remedy ours by an enlightened democracy—a rational social order if you like—or one-half of us will go Fascist and the other half Communist and then we will be well on the way to another war."

To attain post-war ideals, Mr. Bracken said, Canada must see that governments are held strictly responsible for the stewardship of funds and responsibilities; she must conserve her physical resources; she must have peacetime policies to maintain economic prosperity as well as to provide social security; the state must be the servant of the people, not their master.

YOUTH DROWNS AS BOAT SWAMPS

Yarmouth, N. S., May 17—(CP)—Albert Deveau, 17, was drowned Saturday at nearby Salmon River when a small fishing boat was swamped by a heavy wave. Two companions clung to the overturned boat until fishermen were able to reach them.

Recovers Trailer Badly Damaged From River Mouth

Believed to have been dumped into the river by three men who had been seen in the vicinity a short time previous to its disappearance, a two-wheeled trailer owned by Mr. Enos David, of David's Electric Shop, Front Street, was recovered by its owner below the C. P. R. railroad bridge the same evening.

Although the trailer was recovered from the swiftly flowing current of the Moira a short time after its submersion, the rolling and tumbling it received in its quick trip downstream almost completely wrecked the vehicle. When towed to the riverbank by Mr. David who had quickly obtained a boat, the wooden frame of the trailer was smashed to bits while the running gear was twisted necessitating considerable repair.

While thankful that he recovered his smashed trailer, Mr. David would like to meet up with three men who apparently like to see such vehicles floating downstream.

COULDN'T SLEEP COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning — never comfortable. CHURCHILL PLEDGES FULL SUPPORT AGAINST JAPAN

MEAT RATIONING TO GO INTO EFFECT MAY 27

First Pair Brown Spare 'A' Coupons Valid on Date Set

Cuts Containing 50 Per Cent or More of Bones Are Exempt; Divided in 4 Groups

FIVE KINDS RATIONED

Ottawa, May 19—(CP)—Coupon rationing of meat will go into effect May 27, the Prices Board announced today. After midnight May 26 meat may only be purchased with the surrender of brown spare "A" coupons.

The first pair of these coupons, marked No. 1, becomes valid on May 27. Another pair will become valid each succeeding Thursday. Coupons becoming good before the 15th of a month expire at the end of that month. Coupons becoming good on or after the 15th of a month expire at the end of the following month.

"After midnight of May 26 it will be unlawful for any consumer to buy rationed meat without surrendering valid coupons and unlawful for anyone to sell to a consumer without receiving valid coupons," the Board said in its announcement today.

Rationed Meats Named

Rationed meats are beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb. "Fancy" meats such as heart, tongue, liver, brains, sweetbreads and kidneys and cooked sausage such as Bologna and wieners are not to be rationed. Cuts containing 50 per cent or more of bone, such as spareribs, oxtails and pigs knuckles are also exempt.

The Board yesterday announced four groups of rationed meats which will have varying coupon values. Under this plan the weekly individual ration will be from one pound to two and one-half pounds, depending on the type of meat purchased.

Charts showing the coupon value of various meats are to be displayed in butcher shops and distributed to all households.

"Meat retailers, although required to collect coupons from May 27, will not be required to tender coupons to their suppliers for a period of two weeks after that date," the Board said today.

"This will make it possible for them to accumulate ration documents against their purchases and thus maintain their stocks."

11,686 Officers Now Graduated

Ottawa, May 19 (CP)—Defence Minister Ralston in the House of Commons last night said that officers' training centres at Brockville, Ont., and Gordon Head, B.C., to the end of April had graduated 11,686 officers in all, 669 graduated at certain temporary schools being included in the total.

Brockville accommodation was being increased to 8,000 and Gordon Head to 2,900.

The Minister praised the comradely association of English-speaking and French-speaking officer cadets at the Brockville training school as a demonstration of the united war effort.

Gen. Montgomery Wishes 8th Army "Good Hunting"

London, May 19 (CP)—For the hardy troops of his victorious 8th Army, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery still wishes "good hunting in the battles yet to come"—the phrase with which he sparked the epochal African rout of the Axis.

In a message to his forces May 14 on completion of the Tunisia campaign, the General implied that the famous 8th would not rest on its laurels. The message was released here today.

Noting that each soldier was probably wondering when he would be able to return home, Montgomery said:—

"We can have only one thought and that is to see this thing through to the end. Then we will be able to return to our families honorable men. Therefore let us think of the future in this way.

"To each of you the very best of good luck and good hunting in the battles yet to come."

Nixon to Meet His New Cabinet

Toronto, May 19—(CP)—Ontario's new premier, Hon, H. C. Nixon, will meet his cabinet today for the first time since he assumed his new office and reports were that possibility of a provincial election before the end of this year would be discussed.

There were reported also that the cabinet would pass an order-in-council naming Gordon Conant, former premier, to the post of master of titles of the supreme court of Ontario, now vacant.

In connection with the election reports, it was stated in some circles that Mr. Nixon will confer as soon as possible with Major Alex Lewis, Chief Electoral Officer, to acquaint himself with arrangements for taking the soldiers' vote.

The new premier indicated yesterday that as soon as plans for taking the vote in the armed forces are completed, the election date will be announced provided Canadian troops are not in action by that time.

SCORE OF RAIL, WATER OBJECTIVES TARGETS OF R.A.F.

Aerial Offensive On Europe Carried Into Eighth Day by Allied Bombers

SHOOT UP 9 TRAINS

London, May 19 — (CP) — The roar of a large formation of planes over the English Channel this afternoon signalled the continuation of the Allied aerial war on the Nazis in Europe after a night of light activity by the R.A.F.

The strong force swept over the straits in a southeasterly direction toward Boulogne and Cap Griz Nez, riding high in the haze.

Flood waters from the rapidly-emptying Mohne and Eder reservoirs in Germany, breached in Sunday night's spectacular aerial mining, continued to spread devastation and paralysis in Germany's Ruhr and Weser industrial areas as the offensive entered its eighth day of round-the-clock activity.

(N.B.C. said in a broadcast from London that it was reported there that a mine dropped by the R.A.F. in a large reservoir six miles south of the Mohne dam had started seepage which threatened further damage.

(Don Hollenbeck, NBC reporter in London making the broadcast, said it was indicated that frantic efforts were being made by German engineers to halt the seepage before the heavy weight of water plowed through the incipient break).

Overnight targets of long-range British fighters and bombers include a score of rail and water objectives on the strained Axis transport system, the air ministry news service said.

Bostons, Beaufighters and Mosquitoes made up the attacking forces for the moonlight forays, aimed at St. Fenger, Port Fraton, Saumur, Angers, Nantes and other points in occupied territory. Barges were shot up near Les Andelys on the Seine.

Two Canadian pilots flying Beaufighters shot up nine trains between them in Nazi-held France. PO. S. E. Murray of Warren, Man., damaged five and Sqdn. Ldr. S. J. Fulton of Vancouver got four.

One Canadian pilot reported he hit five trains in a four-hour period.

Observers on the British southeast coast reported that R.A.F. formations swept across the Channel in bright moonlight during the

Hitler and Military Advisers Switch To Scorned Maginot-Line Complex

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, May 19—(AP)—With invasion threatening, Hitler and his military advisers have switched to the Maginot Line complex which they once scorned and held partly responsible for the fall of France.

The Atlantic wall stretching from Northern Norway to Southern France is termed by German war reporters "the greatest defence wall of all time," superior in strength and depth to the west wall which Hitler built opposite the Maginot Line.

Hitler is in constant touch with Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi Minister of Munitions, on the progress of construction still going on after three years. As fast as fortifications are completed troops take up posts. They are constantly on the alert and engaged in anti-invasion drills.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin recently said that Germans admitted that Britain is acquainted with their western defence measures through air reconnaissance and espionage by workers, especially foreigners who are employed by the thousands.

The Germans contend Hitler benefited by the weakness of the Maginot Line in planning the flexible west wall and now has incorporated the costly lessons which the Russians taught him in the east.

Photographs Bear Out Plans

Latest photographs would seem to verify that. For example they have bricked in all openings on first and second storey levels of houses and stores in the evacuated channel coast towns. Thus the invader is deprived of the protection of doorways and house interiors while the Germans have converted them to their own use as forts. In addition a maze of barbed wire runs through all the streets and promenades.

That the Germans haven't too much confidence that the Atlantic wall will be able to withstand the storm of United Nations troops despite the boasts in seen in recent writings of military experts.

One in the Bruesseler Zeitung sternly warned Belgians that if the Allies succeed in smashing through the Atlantic defences and Germans have to withdraw to the west wall, such general destruction and disaster would result for the population as the armies clashed that it would make little difference whether the Belgians were pro-ally or pro-German.

Many Naval Bases

Sprinkled along the Atlantic are German naval bases, which Germans characterize as the most heavily-defended keypoints in the Atlantic wall. They are protected not only at sea by mines, nets and patrol boats, in the air by heavy concentrations of flak and fighters but also in the rear against surprise from that direction although one German war reporter said that no attack was expected from the rear.

One weakness in the Maginot Line was vulnerability from behind. Germans haven't revealed how they avoided this flaw in the Atlantic wall but it is presumably by equal fire power in all directions and an elastic rather than an "in line" placement of strongpoints.

Italian People Warned By Military Writers Of Invasion Prospects

New York, May 19 — (AP)—Italian military writers and commentators frankly warned the Italian people today of the prospects of invasion and at the same time emphasized the difficulties of such an operation.

The Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch by the military correspondent of Il Popolo D'Italia, who asserted that although the United Nations now have a good base in Africa, "they still would have to cross the Mediterranean." The correspondent said the Mediterranean is "extremely narrow" at some points and any concentration of shipping for an invasion attempt could not escape aerial attack.

The Corriere Della Sera of Milan declared in another article broadcast by the Berlin radio that the recent torpedoing of an Allied cruiser and a medium-sized freighter was proof that the Allies have not solved their shipping problems in the mediterranean.

Former Propaganda Minister Alessandro Pavolini, director of Il Messaggero, said "it is useless" for the Allies to believe that Italy can be conquered without invasion or that "aerial terror" can break Italian morale. His statement was broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press.

GERMANS FORCED TO TAKE AIRMEN FROM CRIMEA

Land Fighting Fails to Keep Pace With Bitter Aerial Warfare

ARTILLERY DUELS

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 19 — (AP) — The telling blows dealt German air and supply bases during the past three weeks by Soviet airmen were reflected today in a front-line dispatch to Red Star, Army newspaper, which said:—

"The Germans have begun to shift their air forces from Crimean airdromes to reinforce their exhausted airforces."

There was no elaboration in Red Star, but the Russians announced officially that they had destroyed or damaged 903 enemy planes in the week May 2-8, and had destroyed 370 planes from May 9 to May 15.

Russian pilots have downed 25 German planes over the front lines in the past three days, and German planes have attempted to raid Russian communications behind the Svesk front but their bombing has been ineffective, a dispatch said.

Land fighting has failed to keep step with the bitter aerial warfare although renewed activity was reported from the Kuban and Lisichansk areas.

Northeast of Novorossisk in the Kuban, the Nazis lost 100 dead in a futile attack last night. Fighting continued in the lower reaches of the Kuban River also. References to the lower reaches of the Kuban meant the Russians were close to the Kerch Strait.

Near Lisichansk on the Donets River below Kharkov the Russians captured a series of trenches after heavy artillery fire had prepared the way.

Artillery fire destroyed several German pill-boxes in the Lisichansk area during the stiff battle, the mid-day communique said. Land fighting also was reported. In the Sevsk area where artillery dispersed and partly destroyed upwards of a battalion of Germans and snipers killed 110.

Loan Total Now $1,268,428,950

Ottawa, May 19—(CP) — Subscriptions to Canada's Fourth Victory Loan up to last night had reached a total of $1,268,428,950 as late returns drifted in to National Headquarters of the $1,100,000,000 drive which closed last Saturday, loan officials announced today.

The figure attained up to the Tuesday night following the third Victory Loan campaign last autumn was $971,996,150, but the objective in that drive was $750,000,000.

"Since Saturday night's reports were totalled Sunday, 235,600 more subscriptions have been reported for the sum of $51,498,200," said loan headquarters. "The cumulative total of subscribers is 2,264,764, compared with 1,827,222 at the comparative date of the Third Victory Loan.

AMERICANS CLOSE PINCERS AROUND JAPS ON ATTU

Navy Reports Part of Enemy Troops in Retreat Towards Last Stand

DOMINATE HEIGHTS

Washington, May 19 — (AP) — American pincers have closed their trap around Japanese positions on Attu Island, the Navy Department reported today, and at least a part of the enemy troops are in retreat toward a last ditch stand.

The main enemy position on Attu Island, Navy Secretary Knox reported to a press conference yesterday, is at the southern end of Holtz Bay. A subordinate position is held by the Japanese at Chichagof harbor which lies to the northeast of the Holtz Bay position and between five and ten miles away.

The junction of American forces in the heights southeast of Holtz Bay place the Japanese in a position where they are fighting with their backs to sea and have no choice except to make a stand either at Holtz Bay or Chichagof harbor.

The fact that American troops now hold these heights suggests that the Japanese are in an untenable position there and may be compelled to withdraw.

Counter-Stroke Expected

The only place to which they could then fall back, so far as is known here, would be Chicagof harbor. To prevent their becoming too strongly entrenched there it seemed likely that at least a part of the Massacre Bay force would strike out in that direction in pursuit of the fleeing troops from the Pass.

Throughout the Pacific U. S. forces were braced for a possible Japanese counter-stroke to their apparently losing battle to hold Attu Island.

Since the battle may be lost in a few days, unless bad weather hampers operations, Tokyo has little time to lose if it intends to follow the pattern of opposition laid down in the South Pacific when United States troops invaded Guadalcanal and Northeastern New Guinea.

Hold at All Cost

The battles in those islands were marked by Japanese determination to hold their positions at all costs and as a result they spent ships, planes and men in campaigns which they could have had but the slenderest hope of winning.

The Japanese High Command may still attempt to get reinforcements into Kiska or it may try a face-saving thrust in some other sector.

Failure of the enemy command to make any sort of amphibious move to reinforce Attu could be regarded here, authorities said, as evidence that the strategists in Tokyo have at last concluded they no longer can afford to risk ships in defence of any but their most vital outposts.

97 PER CENT. SURVIVE

Washington, May 19 — (AP) — More than 97 per cent. of the United States navy men and marines wounded at Pearl Harbor have survived, the Office of War Information reported today.

Of all the naval and marine personnel listed as wounded at Pearl Harbor only 2.6 died subsequently, O.W.I. said. Fifty-three per cent. had reported to duty by March 31, 1943, while 43.5 per cent. were still under treatment and 9/10 of 1 per cent. were invalided from service

AXIS CASUALTIES TOTAL 324,000 IN NORTH AFRICA

30,000 Are Killed, 267,000 Captured And Remainder Seriously Wounded

PANTELLERIA BOMBED

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, May 19—(AP)—Total German and Italian losses in the Tunisian campaign from the smashing of the Mareth Line to the overcoming of the last Axis resistance in North Africa were 324,000 men, including an esimated 30,000 killed, 27,000 seriously wounded and 267,000 captured, it was announced officially today.

Simultaneously with the disclosure that nearly a third of a million enemy troops were out of action in the final stages of the North African campaign came the announcement of the heaviest raid yet on the Italian island of Pantelleria, 45 miles from Cap Bon in Tunisia, carried out by United States Air Forces.

Heavy bombers smashed at the same time at the important Sicilian base of Trapani, blowing up a ship in the harbor and covering docks and the railway-yard with bomb bursts.

Photographs Taken

Photographs taken immediately after the assault by the large force which dropped 100 tons of bombs on Pantelleria, showed hits on six merchant vessels in the harbor, numerous fires from hits on the dock and warehouse areas, extensive bomb hits on the airdrome, five planes smashed on the field, and many small boats based in.

The warehouse area was particularly hard hit, with the principal building and three smaller structures destroyed.

The Italian communique broadcast on the Rome radio said Porto Empedocle and Trapani in Sicily and the Island of Pantelleria were bombed and several localities near Calabria in Sicily were machine-gunned.

The broadcast said that damage was slight but that losses had not been ascertained.

An Allied convoy was attacked off the Algerian coast by Italian torpedo planes and "three large steamers were hit," the communique said. One of them having a displacement of 10,000 tons was sunk, it added. The claim was not confirmed by Allied sources.

Twenty seven planes were shot down, the Italians claimed.

SAYS BOMB DROPPED

London, May 18. (CP)— Dispatches from Berne quoted a Swiss communique today as saying that foreign planes dropped two high explosive bombs on the environs of Zurich and another on the Seebach-Affoltern-Wettinger railroad last night. There were no casualties.

Immediate Help To China Called Most Urgent Task

Fight to Finish Until Japanese War Industries Are Laid In Ashes

ALLIED AIR POWER

Washington, May 19 —(AP)— Setting his jaw firmly, Prime Minister Churchill pledged today British participation in an eventual finish fight until Japan's war industries and cities are laid in ashes.

Britain, Mr. Churchill said, will be in there fighting "side by side with you while there is breath in our bodies and blood flows in our veins."

When that finish fight will come he did not specify, but his ringing prophecy of utter destruction of the enemy in the Pacific sounded to a joint session of the United States Congress, went out over the air waves to the world abroad—enemy and Allied countries alike.

There was thunderous applause from members of Congress and high officials of the British and United States governments as the Prime Minister spread his feet apart, stuck his hands in his pockets in a characteristic gesture and made his declaration.

Hope for Meeting With Stalin

Then, he disclosed a moment later, he and President Roosevelt hope for a meeting soon with Premier Stalin of Russia and Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek of China.

Mr. Churchill declared also that Britain's air offensive is forcing Germany to withdraw "more and more" planes from the fighting fronts to "purely defensive" operations at the expense of loss of aggression and initiative.

This, he said, will prove a "major factor in bringing victory."

As for Japan's cities and war industries, Mr. Churchill flatly declared:

"In ashes they must surely lie before peace comes to the world."

"I regard the bringing of immediate and effective aid to China," Mr. Churchill said, "as one of the most urgent of our common tasks."

He turned to a discussion of the war in the Pacific soon after beginning his extemporaneous remarks, as if taking note of recent speeches in the United States Senate urging that the war against Japan be given precedence over the destruction of Hitler and Mussolini in Europe.

Recounting the loss of the Netherlands East Indies and of the Malayan Peninsula and the great British base at Singapore, Mr. Churchill said that "all this has to be retrieved and much else has to be repaid."

Let no one suggest, the Prime Minister said, that Britain has not at least as great interest in the Pacific war as the United States.

Mr. Churchill was making his first public appearance since his arrival more than a week ago for war talks with President Roosevelt. He brought with him Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell and other military leaders from the India theatre, but he told his audience, he did not bring them here "merely to improve the health and happiness of the Mikado of Japan."

They were brought here, he added, to thrash out all the points raised in a Pacific war "and there are many."

If all that is necessary to turn British forces in the East upon Japan is an order, he said, "then that order would be given this afternoon."

But he added that such movements are governed by what American military leaders "call the science of logistics" — the art of supplying military forces.

Given Thunderous Welcome

To a thunderous burst of applause Mr. Churchill walked into the Chamber at 12:31 p.m. He was escorted down the centre aisle by a committee of three Senators and three Representatives, representing the leaders of Republican and Democratic parties in Congress.

Entering the Chamber Mr. Churchill was greeted by an ovation that lasted two minutes. Speaker Rayburn introduced the visitor with the statement that this is a high mark in hisory with Congress having as its guest, "one of the most distinguished figures on earth."

There was another burst of applause before Mr. Churchill began talking at 12:34 in clear, clipped syllables.

Mr. Churchill said 17 months had passed since he addressed Congress the first time and for more than 500 days since the Allies have battled shoulder to shoulder against a mighty enemy and acted in close concert in many parts of the world.

Feels Highly Honored

He counted it a "high mark" in his life, he said, to be invited to come back before the American legislature.

He said "there is nothing more important for the future of the world than fraternal association" of our peoples in the prosecution of a "righteous war" and in peace.

Britons, he declared, have as much interest in retrieving Allied possessions lost to the Japanese in the Pacific as the United States.

He described the fall of Singapore as the greatest—at any rate the largest—military disaster in Britain's history.

Referring to the loss of the Philippines, of The Netherlands East Indies and of Malaya, he said:

"All of this has to be retrieved."

Repudiates Suspicions of Motives

Mr. Churchill said he wanted to "repudiate any suspicion" that Britain is holding anything back from prosecution of the war in the east.

He reported that in his 1942 conferences with President Roosevelt the task of fighting the Axis had been divided at sea, with the United States taking over the "main responsibility" for prosecuting the war against Japan.

This included, he said, the task of defending Australia from invasion—which he called more threatening in 1942 than now.

Mr. Churchill, speaking from notes, told his listeners that anti-submarine measures had yielded record results recently, particularly in the last three weeks.

U-Boat Greatest Danger

"While I regard the U-boat danger as still the greatest we face, I have confidence it will be met, contained and overcome," he said.

Referring to the aerial offensive being carried out against Germany, Churchill said the British have been "vastly aided" by American day bombings.

The increasing numbers of American and British planes are being felt, he said, adding:

Canadian Meat Rationing Scheme Looked on With Favor by Americans

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 19 —(CP)— Housewives in the United States, looking over Canada's announced plans for sharing the available meat supply, thought today that a Canadian probably will obtain more meat each week than an American and that the Dominion's planned system of rationing, while apparently less flexible than the United States', is less complicated.

Conditioned to purchasing rationed commodities under a "point" system, the American housewive generally looked with favor upon the Canadian plan under which meat is divided into four groups with the individual limited to two coupons a week. And Canada does not propose to ration such meats as liver and spareribs which are rationed in the United States.

Each American is allotted 16 points weekly with which to purchase meat, butter, cooking fats, cheese and canned fish. The quantity of any one commodity he receives is conditioned by the extent of sacrifice made in other commodities. It has been estimated that under the American plan the average individual receives two pounds of meat weekly.

Many differences exist in the rationing systems of the two countries, making comparisons difficult, but residents of the United States were of the opinion on the basis of Ottawa's announcement yesterday of the weekly allotments, that the American plan is less rigid than Canada's. Here, ration points may be spread over a wide range of meat products and "change" in points is given by the storekeeper.

But the Canadian housewife will know just how much and what variety she may purchase, although she may "split" her two coupons on only two groups of meats. In contrast to her American counterpart, she may, when her coupons have been expended, eke out the weekly menus by purchasing several varieties of unrationed meats.

Former Belleville Resident Honored

An old-timer in the service of the Sons of England, J. A. Vickers, was recently decorated at his home, 165 Hollywood Ave., Lansing, by the Supreme Secretary, on behalf of Supreme Council.

While pinning the veteran's jewel on the breast of J. A. Vickers, Bro. W. V. Oglesby thanked him for the work he had accomplished for the society in the early days. The recipient joined Lodge Oxford, Belleville, in 1887 and was elected to various offices in the lodge, including that of President. He later served most efficiently as District Deputy, and was a regular visitor to other lodges, especially Ingersoll. He also assisted in the formation of Lodge Northmount and at present is a member of Lodge Commercial.

Bro. Vickers was born at sea, in the year 1868; the exact place was that notoriously rough spot in the Bay of Biscay. His home was in Whitby, Yorkshire, England. He started his career as a sailor, but abandoned that and for more than 50 years has made his home in Canada. The house in which he lives, named "Flowergate" was built entirely by himself. He even manufactured the bricks, planted fruit trees, and near his garden gate grows his pride, red, white and blue lilacs. Two years ago he was forced to curtail his activities.

Editor's Note:—Jack Vickers will be remembered in Belleville, where he carried on as a butcher for a number of years. He also has three sons residing here.

Instructions on Hydro In Schools Featured In Hydro Publication

Matters of interest in and about the City of Belleville and the place where instruction regarding Hydro has been given in the curriculum in local schools just about makes a Belleville edition of the current magazine issue, "Hydro News," the official publication of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

The early history of this city as well as the biographies of officials of the Belleville Public Utilities are contained in the issue, while considerable space is devoted to pictures and reading matter regarding the unique system of Hydro education for school children in this city.

In well-illustrated article, "Hydro Goes to School," the story tells how a chance remark was the forerunner of the unique program of education in schools of Belleville where 2,500 children have learned about Hydro in the past five years. Mr. Everett Smith, salesman at the Public Utilities Commission store on Front Street has been responsible for teaching school children in Hydro matters.

A chance remark to Mr. Oswald Scott, manager of the Belleville Public Utilities that the children of today know very little about Sir Adam Beck and the principles of Hydro was responsible for the new subject to be added to school curriculums with Mr. Smith as teacher. In 1939 Hydro was taught in all four Belleville public schools and in the next year the Collegiate Institute was added to the list.

Questions pertaining to electricity and to the operation of the public utility with practical demonstrations give the children a real insight into the subject. School principals have expressed appreciation of the value of instruction.

Instruction in artificial resuscitation has also been given in all Belleville schools by Mr. Smith. This program was started two years ago with the first year's efforts being responsible for upwards of 1,000 pupils learning the procedure for reviving shock victims and near-drowned persons.

ABERHART'S CONDITION IS UNCHANGED

Vancouver, May 19—(CP)—Condition of Premier Aberhart of Alberta, seriously ill in Vancouver General Hospital, was described by hospital attendants this morning as "unchanged."

Ten Pounds Sugar Per Person Allotted for Canning Purposes

Ten pounds of sugar per person will be the amount permitted for canning purposes in Belleville and in the district under the Belleville ration board, it was announced today by officials of the local board.

Coupons for the Belleville district were late in arriving from Ottawa but today the office staff was busy preparing lists for mailing to district residents. Coupons received from Ottawa were sufficient only to cover approximately one half of the sugar asked by district residents.

Contrary to former expectations there will be no distinction in the amount of sugar permitted rural and urban residents, it was stated. It was considered by many that as canning was more popular among rural residents, more sugar should be permitted country families. This however will not be permitted and both country and city residents will be treated alike.

New Rotary Club Organized in Picton

The Town of Picton has a newly organized Rotary Club.

Dr. George G. McNab of Guelph, governor of District 168 in Rotary International, was in Belleville, on Monday of this week and addressed the local Rotary Club at its noonday luncheon. In company with several Rotarians from Belleville, he then proceeded to Picton where an energetic effort was made to interest the citizens of that town in having a new Rotary Club established in their midst. Before the afternoon was ended, Dr. McNab had received sufficient evidences of support to assure him that the organization of a Rotary Club there would be warmly welcomed by many of Picton's most influential professional and business men.

Obtain Required Number

Yesterday the required number of signatures had been placed on the application form and last evening at a meeting held at the Globe Hotel it was decided to organize the club and to forward the necessary request for a charter to the head office at Chicago.

Officers

The following officers were elected:

President—Edwin J. Williams.
Vice President—Sam McC. Sinton
Secretary—R. G. Attersley.
Treasurer—John deB. Arnaud.
Directors—John Maher, Albert F. Brown, Albert E. Grindrod.
Sergeant-at-Arms — Clair Newman.
Pianists and Song Leaders—Dr. Carl Brownson and Wm. Cavers.

It was decided to hold the regular weekly luncheon meetings at the Globe Hotel at 12.15 o'clock on Tuesdays.

Get Charter Last of June

It is anticipated that the presentation of the charter will take place at an evening banquet to be held the latter part of June. The members of all the clubs in District 168, and many of the clubs in the adjoining District 170, will receive invitations to attend the banquet.

District 168, which was organized in 1939, now consists of 33 clubs. At the time of organization there were only 25 clubs. District 168 covers that part of Southern Ontario between Belleville and Guelph and extends northerly to the outer limits of the mining districts of Ontario and Quebec.

New clubs were organized at La Sarre Quebec, and Pembroke, Ontario, in the recent past and will also be presented with their charters during the month of June.

'Youth Week' Winners Of Oratorical Contest Speak at Rotary Club

Trenton, (Special)—Finals of the oratorical contest of "Youth Week" sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club were heard at their regular weekly meeting which was held in Grace United Church on Monday evening. Although several boys and girls of various age groups had entered this contest, the final four were two boys of the senior group and two girls of the junior.

Guests of Rotary for the occasion were parents of the finalists and their school teachers, judges and several other honored friends of Rotary.

These youngsters gave splendid talks and are to be highly commended for the efforts put forth by them to make this part of "Youth Week" something to be remembered by all who were fortunate enough to hear their addresses.

First prize in the junior group (girls) went to Miss Margaret McAuley of Mount Zion School, who took as her topic, "What We Can Do to Help Win This War"; second prize to Miss Muriel Hill, a pupil of the York Road School, speaking on "The Defence of Calais."

First prize in the senior group (boys) was won by Percy Gitelman of the Trenton High School who chose "Incorporating Food in Allied Strategy." This talk proved to be especially well thought out and gives one the impression that the youth of Canada is well versed on the needs of the country and ready and willing to help do something about it.

Percy spoke of the ghastly famine which hangs over Europe as a result of dairy herds of Holland, Denmark, France, Belgium and Switzerland vanishing partly because of lack of food; poultry flocks diminishing; Norway deprived of her fishing fleets; while the most productive area of the U.S.S.R. is now but scorched earth. Famine gathering like a cloud on the horizon and promising to be even more inescapable with victory. "This," he said, "is definitely our problem." Against this picture, he said, we have a contrasting picture of plenty but it will take the resources, energy and foresight of all the United Nations to pool and distribute food and medical supplies.

His solution was a realistic plan and an acceptance of the plan as an integral part of the Allied strategy. The plan could be administered by an international commission, backed by an international financial pool, with a program of distribution formulated so that the close of the war would find us ready.

Second prize winner in the senior group was Richard Bussy of St. Peter's School, whose talk on "The Fourth Victory Loan" was also specially well done.

Each of these prize winners received fountain pens in addition to silver medals from the Trenton Rotary Club.

Judges for the final contest were Principal Chisholm of Brighton High School, Mrs. J. H. Redick and Mrs. C. Saylor.

Rotarian Fred Collins who has put much time and thought into this "Youth Week' acted as chairman.

Parents Visit Schools

Many parents visited all schools in the town and district today as "Parents' Day" was celebrated in conjunction with "Youth Week" which is being sponsored by the Rotary Club. While some of the grades held small concerts, etc., most of the general routine work was carried out, giving parents first-hand information as to the methods used in modern education.

Will Not Hesitate To Bomb Rome

London, May 19 —(CP)— The R.A.F. would "not hesitate to bomb Rome if the course of the war should render such action helpful and convenient," Capt. Harold Balfour, undersecretary of state and air, told the House of Commons today.

His statement followed a report from Italy printed in London newspapers that the R.A.F. had dropped leaflets over Rome saying the Eternal City was on the R.A.F.'s bombing list.

In reply to a question which pointed out that Rome was a rail centre and military target Balfour said:

"No assurance or agreement exists of any kind whatsoever that Rome shall not be bombed. On the contrary, as stated to the House on previous occasions, we shall not hesitate to bomb Rome . . ."

(The British government warned Italy on April 18, 1941, that there would be "systematic bombing of Rome" if either Athens or Cairo were raided.)

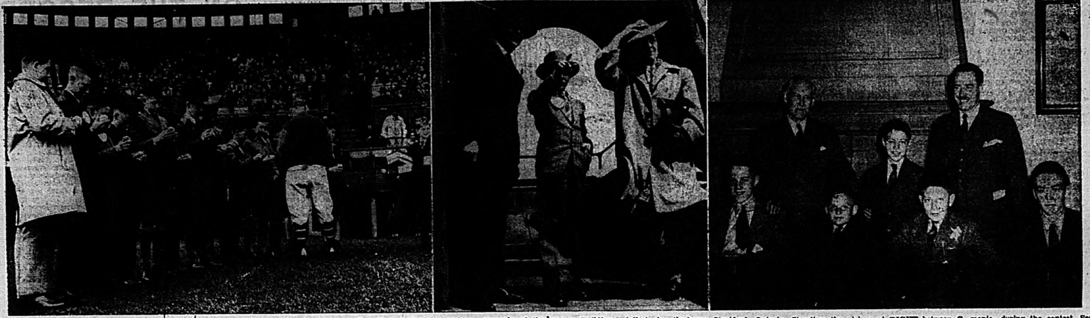
FARMER'S SON PROVES CHAMPION VICTORY LOAN QUIZ KID



Ontario's thirteen Victory Loan Quiz Kids spent an afternoon seeing the sights after the finals in a province wide contest, which began among 520,000 school children, had been run off. At Maple Leaf ball stadium, LEFT, they met the ball players, saw part of a double header game between Toronto and Newark and each one received a baseball autographed in the view of thousands by the Leaf's manager, Burleigh Grimes, formerly of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The afternoon program included a visit to the top of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Building, tallest in the British Empire, where John Thomson, in CENTRE, points out the direction of his home township near Stratford, Ontario. Standing beside him are Harrison Gilmour, Victory Loan chairman of the Quiz Contest, and his mother, Mrs. Jas. A. Thomson. John stands in the picture at RIGHT between C. L. Burton, President of the Robt. Simpson Co. Limited, which sponsored the finals, and Harry "Red" Foster, who was master of ceremonies during the contest. Seated from LEFT to RIGHT are the four runners up: William Anderson, Stanley Iwan, Ian Smith and Thomas Russell.

AXIS CASUALTIES

Bomb-carrying fighters led the attack, making the 45-mile sea hop to blast the airdrome, scoring direct hits on the barracks, blowing up a large transport plane and then leaving the administration building aflame from a strafing attack.

Medium bombers hit the docks and jetties as well as 12 to 15 small craft in the harbor and a number of gun positions.

Other fighters then joined the sweep of destruction, hitting a seagoing barge and three gunposts on the coast.

A second formation of medium bombers completed the attack by bombing the town and harbor while the target area was being swept by flames.

Encountered Bad Weather

The bombers encountered bad weather over Sicily, but their crews found a hole in the clouds over Trapani and were able to drop bombs in the middle of a concentration of six ships, one of which exploded, and on the railroad yards where fierce fires burst out. Numerous explosions also were seen in the town.

Twenty-five Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs attacked as the bombers were leaving, and in a running fight over the Sicilian straits six enemy aircraft were shot down.

Malta's intruder planes also were over Sicily last night attacking factories, railway installations and other targets leaving locomotives belching steam over Caltanissetta in the central part of the island.

224,000 Taken in 13 Days

Of the 267,000 Axis prisoners taken since the British 8th Army began the attack that broke through the Mareth Line, 224,000 were captured within the period of May 5-May 18 when British, United States and French troops began the terrific assault that suddenly cracked the enemy lines before Tunis and Bizerte and sent Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's disorganized units fleeing toward Cap Bon.

Official sources said the exact number of Italians and Germans among the prisoners was not yet available, nor were estimates given of the immense quantities of enemy war materials captured or destroyed.

night and that heavy explosions later could be heard along the French coast.

Making Headlines.

News of the Sunday night R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. dam-bursting exploit, however, continue to make the headlines as examination of reconnaissance pictures taken yesterday showed floodtides pushing through the middle Ruhr toward Duisburg and beyond Kassel in the Weser Valley.

Berlin admitted heavy civilian losses but declared damage "can be repaired partly in a short time."

Enemy raiders struck at London last night for the third successive night, giving the capital two separate alerts. The raiders were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire at the city's approaches, but dropped bombs at several points which an authoritative announcement said caused a small number of casualties and a little damage. One enemy plane was destroyed.

The 8th U. S. Air Force sent its new Thunderbolt fighters on offensive patrol in force over Axis targets in Belgium yesterday.

In another daylight foray British bombers attacked an enemy airport at Abbeville in France. Earlier R.A.F. Typhoons bombed a plane dispersal area at Loix.

THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

While we are waiting anxiously to learn whether the Allied High Command may find it feasible to undertake the essential invasion of France across the English Channel this summer, it's good to know that there is in Britain a big force of highly-trained, hard-as-nails specialists ready to act as the spearhead of that great adventure, if and when it comes.

This outfit is known as the combined operations command and comprises men from all three fighting services — army, navy and air. That branch probably best known to the public is the famous Commando outfit of men as tough as they make 'em. The Commandos are the army end of combined operations.

These experts will be as vital to invasion as the scalpel is in surgery. The landing in France is likely to be the most difficult and the most costly in lives and equipment of anything of the kind in history.

Success will depend on the establishment of a bridgehead on the coast in the face of terrific enemy opposition — a bloody business. That initial landing to open the way for the regular army cannot be a haphazard affair. The seizing and holding that all-important bridgehead will be a job for great specialists—and they are ready.

How many of these chaps are there? Well, that's a secret. Apart from Britain, of course, other Allied troops are passing through the combined operations command. So far as concerns the British forces it's permissible to answer in some such general terms as I heard yesterday while chatting with Hilary St. George Saunders, the distinguished Briton who probably knows more about them than any other man.

Story Just Published

Saunders is their official historian and has just published the story of the Commandos under the title of "Combined Operations." He says there are "many thousands", and since he is exceedingly careful in his language we know that he is talking about a lot of men.

The main business of combined operations — or let's just call them Commandos — is amphibious warfare. That means invasions, small or big, and naturally calls for intensive training in assault landings.

The Commandos are purely shock troops. Their job is to storm their way ashore and establish that bridgehead, which they hold until the regulars can be landed and take over, but they aren't for protracted holding operations.

It follows that the Commando must be a jack of all war trades. He must be not only a soldier but a bit of a sailor and must know enough about aerial affairs so he can co-operate with understanding. Most of all he must have guts and stamina.

The Commandos have been training for a long time, and have quietly been raiding the continental coast from Norway to Spain. These raids have been partly to gain information and wage a war of nerves against the Boche, and partly to find out by trial and error how to make these attacks.

Biggest of all the raids was the Canadian-led Dieppe affair which turned out to be so costly. However, combined operations in that harsh adventure learned invaluable lessons which will stand them in good stead in the hard days to come.

Complete Victory Only Solution to Problem Of Europe's Refugees

London, May 19 — (CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that complete and final Allied victory is the only solution to the European refugee problem.

"One of the things we are fighting for," Mr. Eden said, "is to create the conditions in which man in free to think and worship as he chooses."

The debate was opened by Osbert Peake, home undersecretary and a delegate to the recent Bermuda Refugee Conference, who said that "the United Nations can do nothing in the immediate present for the vast numbers under Hitler's control."

20 Men, Women Injured in Wreck

Winnipeg, May 19—(CP)—Police and railway officials today were conducting an inquiry into a train wreck on the greater Winnipeg water district railway in which 20 men and women were injured.

An eastbound freight train crashed into a westbound passenger train on a sharp curve near St. Genevieve, Man., about 30 miles northeast of here.

The passenger train, carrying about 60 passengers, was derailed, but the freight held the track.

Eight of the passengers were in St. Boniface Hospital today, two seriously injured. The train crews escaped injury.

After preliminary investigation, railway officials said a "misjudgment in timing" was responsible for the collision.

Bomb-carrying fighters led the attack, making the 45-mile sea hop to blast the airdrome, scoring direct hits on the barracks, blowing up a large transport plane and then leaving the administration building aflame from a strafing attack.

Medium bombers hit the docks and jetties as well as 12 to 15 small craft in the harbor and a number of gun positions.

Other fighters then joined the sweep of destruction, hitting a seagoing barge and three gunposts on the coast.

A second formation of medium bombers completed the attack by bombing the town and harbor while the target area was being swept by flames.

Encountered Bad Weather

The bombers encountered bad weather over Sicily, but their crews found a hole in the clouds over Trapani and were able to drop bombs in the middle of a concentration of six ships, one of which exploded, and on the railroad yards where fierce fires burst out. Numerous explosions also were seen in the town.

Twenty-five Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs attacked as the bombers were leaving, and in a running fight over the Sicilian straits six enemy aircraft were shot down.

Malta's intruder planes also were over Sicily last night attacking factories, railway installations and other targets leaving locomotives belching steam over Caltanissetta in the central part of the island.

224,000 Taken in 13 Days

Of the 267,000 Axis prisoners taken since the British 8th Army began the attack that broke through the Mareth Line, 224,000 were captured within the period of May 5-May 18 when British, United States and French troops began the terrific assault that suddenly cracked the enemy lines before Tunis and Bizerte and sent Col.-Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's disorganized units fleeing toward Cap Bon.

Official sources said the exact number of Italians and Germans among the prisoners was not yet available, nor were estimates given of the immense quantities of enemy war materials captured or destroyed.

News of the Sunday night R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. dam-bursting exploit, however, continue to make the headlines as examination of reconnaissance pictures taken yesterday showed floodtides pushing through the middle Ruhr toward Duisburg and beyond Kassel in the Weser Valley.

Berlin admitted heavy civilian losses but declared damage "can be repaired partly in a short time."

Enemy raiders struck at London last night for the third successive night, giving the capital two separate alerts. The raiders were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire at the city's approaches, but dropped bombs at several points which an authoritative announcement said caused a small number of casualties and a little damage. One enemy plane was destroyed.

The 8th U. S. Air Force sent its new Thunderbolt fighters on offensive patrol in force over Axis targets in Belgium yesterday.

In another daylight foray British bombers attacked an enemy airport at Abbeville in France. Earlier R.A.F. Typhoons bombed a plane dispersal area at Loix.

When Ted said that, my heart went haywire! Was I thrilled. I thought I looked a fright in my work smock ::: permanent tucked under my turban ::: smudge all over my face!

Jeepers! When I took this job, I figured I'd given up my complexion for my country. No time now for hours with beauty preparations! THE WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

While we are waiting anxiously to learn whether the Allied High Command may find it feasible to undertake the essential invasion of France across the English Channel this summer, it's good to know that there is in Britain a big force of highly-trained, hard-as-nails specialists ready to act as the spearhead of that great adventure, if and when it comes.

This outfit is known as the combined operations command and comprises men from all three fighting services — army, navy and air. That branch probably best known to the public is the famous Commando outfit of men as tough as they make 'em. The Commandos are the army end of combined operations.

These experts will be as vital to invasion as the scalpel is in surgery. The landing in France is likely to be the most difficult and the most costly in lives and equipment of anything of the kind in history. Success will depend on the establishment of a bridgehead on the coast in the face of terrific enemy opposition — a bloody business. That initial landing to open the way for the regular army cannot be a haphazard affair. The seizing and holding that all-important bridgehead will be a job for great specialists—and they are ready.

How many of these chaps are there? Well, that's a secret. Apart from Britain, of course, other Allied troops are passing through the combined operations command. So far as concerns the British forces it's permissible to answer in some such general terms as I heard yesterday while chatting with Hillary St. George Saunders, the distinguished Briton who probably knows more about them than any other man.

Story Just Published

Saunders is their official historian and has just published the story of the Commandos under the title of "Combined Operations." He says there are "many thousands", and since he is exceedingly careful in his language we know that he is talking about a lot of men.

The main business of combined operations — or let's just call them Commandos — is amphibious warfare. That means invasions, small or big, and naturally calls for intensive training in assault landings.

The Commandos are purely shock troops. Their job is to storm their way ashore and establish that bridgehead, which they hold until the regulars can be landed and take over, but they aren't for protracted holding operations.

It follows that the Commando must be a jack of all war trades. He must be not only a soldier but a bit of a sailor and must know enough about aerial affairs so he can co-operate with understanding. Most of all he must have guts and stamina.

The Commandos have been training for a long time, and have quietly been raiding the continental coast from Norway to Spain. These raids have been partly to gain information and wage a war of nerves against the Boche, and partly to find out by trial and error how to make these attacks.

Biggest of all the raids was the Canadian-led Dieppe affair which turned out to be so costly. However, combined operations in that harsh adventure learned invaluable lessons which will stand them in good stead in the hard days to come.

Complete Victory Only Solution to Problem Of Europe's Refugees

London, May 19 — (CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that complete and final Allied victory is the only solution to the European refugee problem.

"One of the things we are fighting for," Mr. Eden said, "is to create the conditions in which man in free to think and worship as he chooses."

The debate was opened by Osbert Peake, home undersecretary and a delegate to the recent Bermuda Refugee Conference, who said that "the United Nations can do nothing in the immediate present for the vast numbers under Hitler's control."

20 Men, Women Injured in Wreck

Winnipeg, May 19—(CP)—Police and railway officials today were conducting an inquiry into a train wreck on the greater Winnipeg water district railway in which 20 men and women were injured.

An eastbound freight train crashed into a westbound passenger train on a sharp curve near St. Genevieve, Man., about 30 miles northeast of here.

The passenger train, carrying about 60 passengers, was derailed, but the freight held the track.

Eight of the passengers were in St. Boniface Hospital today, two seriously injured. The train crews escaped injury.

After preliminary investigation, railway officials said a "misjudgment in timing" was responsible for the collision.

From Canada to Greece

The dumping of a bushel of golden Canadian wheat into the hold of a Swedish mercy-ship is the token of the continuance of Canadian relief to occupied Greece. The ceremony took place at Saint John on the deck of a ship in the presence of many citizens and the grain represents the five-millionth bushel sent to Greece by the Canadian Government on behalf of the Canadian people.

That the wheat sent to Greece by Canada has saved many a life was the statement of Greek Minister George Depastas who said that the five million bushels had "saved millions of Greek lives and evoked billions of thanks and the deep gratitude of the entire Hellenic nation."

The Swedish consul-general to Canada who had a part in the ceremony declared his government and the Red Cross were pleased to bring this relief to the suffering Greek people.

Canada is fired by humanitarianism in helping this suffering race who throughout their history have been the soldiers of freedom, the liberators of body, mind and spirit and who have inspired the course of civilization. What their ancestors were thousands of years ago, defenders of liberty and friends of the emancipation of the intellect and spirit, these people are today.

Canada may well take pride in the fact that wheat, symbol of Canadian enterprise, labor and of the fertility of the broad acres which makes this country the granary of the world is one of the things for which the Greek people will always remember her.

Purchasing by Red Cross

During the year 1942, the national purchasing committee of the Canadian Red Cross placed 1,825 orders entailing an expenditure of $12,384,743, a considerable increase over 1941, stated Wills Maclachlan, chairman, at the annual meeting of the Central Council.

There has been a tremendous expansion in the purchases for prisoners-of-war food parcels. Chocolate bars (5 oz.) to the extent of 796⅞ tons, and dried whole milk to 2,635 tons were purchased for these parcels during the year.

There has been an increasing number of drugs of numerous types needed. The total quantity of sulpha drugs being 12,382,450 tablets. On the night of December 14th the Secretary of the Purchasing Committee received a call for 100 lbs. of sulphadiazine burn solution for Newfoundland. This order was flown in by plane.

Large quantities of supplies have been purchased for Greece, Russia, China and other lands, for instance 48,550 lbs. of dehydrated vegetables and fruit were shipped out. An interesting item was a requisition for Polish Relief in Russia, received on January 23, 1942. This covered chocolate powder, dried and condensed milk. These supplies were obtained, despatched and an acknowledgment received from Kuibyshev, Russia, under date of May 7th. Any business man realizes the difficulty of finding goods and shipping them half way round the world through enemy lines in slightly over ten weeks.

The work of purchasing has been possible only through the wholehearted and generous co-operation extended by the controllers of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and by other Canadian Government officers. It would have been impossible to obtain salmon without the generous co-operation and support of the officers of the British Food Mission.

Among the many items bought were purchases of food parcels for prisoners-of-war $8,947,691.27; ambulances $21,870.90 and vehicles other than ambulances $14,793.06; general purchases such as warehouse stock $2,034,486.58.

Norman C. Urquhart, chairman, Prisoners of War Parcel Committee, reported that on January 6, 1943, the Canadian Red Cross Society had been packing parcels for three years amounting to a total of over three million parcels. The capacity of the 5 packing plants in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, Windsor and Winnipeg is 20,000 parcels per week in each plant, but in an emergency could be increased for a reasonable period of time.

Two Attitudes

The difference in spirit between the democratic state of mind and that of totalitarianism is shown by the contrast in the increasing demand for books reported in the British Isles and in the recollection of the action of the Hitler Nazis ten years ago when Nazidom strove to shut the doors of the mind by the burning of books, thirty thousand in number. Nazis gleefully enjoyed the bonfires which throughout Germany destroyed volumes which the Huns called "philosophy that ran counter" to the Nazi creed of tyranny and racism. Among the works the German aggressors consigned to the flames were works of the poet Heine, born of Jewish race, some of the German writers Schiller and Lessing, the works of philosophers, scientists, mathematicians, historians and other intellectual leaders. To the shame of German students, these young fellows marched with torches, threw on the fires the books which were "verboten" to the Nazis.

President Roosevelt has remarked "We all know that books burn, yet we have the greater knowledge that books cannot be killed by fire. People die but books never die. No man and no force can abolish memory. No man and no force can put memory in a concentration camp forever. No man and no force can take from the world the books that embody man's eternal fight against tyranny of every kind."

The Germans strove to destroy the Bible. Their reason was clear. Nazism and criminality and evil cannot stand the light of truth as revealed in the Old Testament and the New.

How different it is in Britain where there is an ever increasing demand and interest in books and reading! Books are the signs of the inquiring and the free mind which faces truth and fact and men are stronger for this contact. The German Nazis tried to blot out truth as if truth did not live on earth in men and women, in the records of man's effort throughout the ages and in books. The German Nazis burned the books because books are liberators of the mind and because the Nazis feared them and the people who read.

Democracy has no fear of books and of the truth with its emancipating power. The freedom of the expression of thought in books strengthens the people of a democracy.

Scrawled Signatures

(Windsor Star)

Every business man constantly has the experience of receiving letters bearing a scrawl at the bottom which serves only to arouse the curiosity of the addressee as to the name of the writer. There are many signatures which are completely illegible, and they lead to annoyance and embarrassment.

One cannot compel correspondents to write their names so that they may be read, but it would be good business on the part of these scrawlers to do something to remedy the situation. The obvious course is to have the name typed on the letter. When this is done, the man who goes in for flourishes and hieroglyphics can continue to indulge his strange fancy, but at least those he addresses will not have to engage in a guessing contest every time they open a letter.

Wasteful Cutting

Experts are to teach butchers how to cut up meat to save waste after rationing comes into effect. It is to be hoped the lessons have a lasting effect, for few nations have been more wasteful in the buying and consumption of meat than Canada.

PHEASANT TROUBLE

A pheasant with a collar white
To all men is a handsome sight.
The friends who come to visit me
Delighted are this fowl to see,
But handsome is as handsome does
And I am not so pleased, because
That pheasant has devouring ways
With everything I try to raise.

Time was that fellow and his brood
I welcomed in my proudest mood.
Although he is bereft of song
I fed his flock all winter long,
But he repays my kindness now
By ruining my garden chow.
Why must a bird so fair to see
In gardens so destructive be?

Arrayed in glittering bronze and gold,
Like some great mandarin of old,
He struts my plot of ground about,
Defying me to put him out.
On all my tender shoots he feeds
And leaves me nothing but the weeds.
In spite of all his finery
Merely a well-dressed thief is he.

Letter To The Editor

HOSPITALITY

To Editor Ontario Intelligencer,

As a stranger in Belleville I can honestly say that the place to go to get rid of that lonely, achey Sunday feeling that one gets when away from home is to Bridge Street Sunday Evening Friendship Group. It is the place to meet new friends. And to me, a newcomer in a strange city, the warm friendly handshakes and the cheery welcomes did more good than an injection of vitamins.

In response to the cordial invitation of Dr. Semple, more than a hundred and fifty crowded into the Sunday School room following the evening service to enjoy the closing Friendship Group. Young and old, airmen and airwomen from all countries, and airmen's homesick wives mingled with the regular church members, and during the lively sing-song and mix-ups soon drowned their strangeness in genuine comradeship. An exceptionally fine musical program followed the sing-song. All agreed with President LAC. Al Thompson when he said that he had not realized there was such outstanding talent in Belleville.

Then, to end a perfect evening, a delightful and plentiful lunch was served, and many more friendly greetings were exchanged over tea cups. The evening ended with a hymn, and a pressing invitation to come back again as soon as possible. I certainly agreed with the chap next to me, whose home is in P.E.I., when he said, "I've been away from home for eight months, and this meeting is the nearest thing to home that I've come across yet. I wish this wasn't the last one."

In reply to this the lady beside him said, "How would you like to come up to our place next Sunday after church?" She kindly extended her invitation to me, and we made a date for next Sunday, right then and there.

So, as a newcomer to Belleville, I think I can say on behalf of the others like me that we think Belleville is "Tops" in friendliness, and especially Bridge Street Church and the Fellowship Groups. We went home with a warm, happy glow in our hearts that hadn't been there at the beginning of the evening.

A Stranger.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The European Revolution

New York, May 19—The historical events in Europe will take their inevitable course. We can influence that course only by collaborating with the historical events. If we choose to ignore or oppose them, then the historical events will move against us.

There is an absolute logic in history. One thing invariably leads to another and there are no "cooling-off periods" of political and social vacuum.

We have helped call into being the European revolution, as a supplement to our arms. That European revolution is taking on form. We have sufficient reports from the underground movements to know their social composition. In not a single country have the captains of industry been on our side. Nowhere have the bulk of the high officers of armies been active on our side. And nowhere are the bureaucratic officials on our side except out of opportunism and a passion to retain their offices and pensions.

In all countries leaders of the workers are on our side. So can be, tomorrow, the masses of the soldiers. Everywhere in Europe the peasants are at least passively anti-Nazi, but rarely the big landowners. Everywhere in Occupied Europe the universities, the students, and all classes of intellectuals and free professions are with us. And everywhere most of the religious bodies, and especially the simple priests and pastors, are with the European revolution for humanity.

No Class-Conflict Ideology

If, therefore, we base our occupation and government of Europe upon military chieftains, propertied interest and ruling bureaucracies, we shall eventually find ourselves in conflict with the people.

The European revolution has characteristics which differentiate it greatly from the Russian revolution.

It has been forged under foreign occupation, without a dogmatic ideology. It is not, for instance, atheist. The Church, Catholic and Protestant, has contributed some of the noblest martyrs to its cause. It is not a "proletarian" movement, with a class-conflict ideology. It includes the great humanistic figures of Europe—scientists, professors, and every group of intellectuals, who have entered, not as "intelligentsia", espousing the cause of the workers, but as men of learning and breeding, espousing the cause of justice and reason. There are aristocrats in the movement, fighting for the honor of a noble tradition.

It is in the truest sense a movement of the people and their natural leaders, not of the "proletariat". It is pro-Russian, though not pro-Communist. It is, however, social, if not Socialist. It is not against private property. On the contrary, it is supported by the most intrepid defenders of real private property in any society—the peasants. But it is anti-monopolistic and anti the great industrial cartels. It is certain eventually to come out for popular control, in one form or another, of the basic resources and heavy industries of Europe.

American Revolution Reborn.

In a profound sense it is the American revolution reborn in the 20th century, with 20th century problems to meet, which did not exist in the 18th.

The American revolution could not have succeeded without exploiting the war in which Britain was engaged in Europe. It was an original American movement, that succeeded with foreign help—as the European revolution can only succeed with foreign help.

The European revolution is a movement against Nazi monopolists, economic and political, but its leaders will not turn over to foreigners the resources they are fighting to win back; nor do I think they will willingly return them to native monopolists, who have collaborated with the enemy.

There are two wars going on at the same time. There is an international war against the Axis powers, waged by armies for purposes of national survival.

There is also a revolutionary war of conquered and oppressed peoples against their masters, whoever they are, foreign or native. Only the convergence of the two wars can bring a United Nations political as well as military victory.

If the Anglo-Americans repudiate the European revolution, the heir to it, in the long run, will be Russia, regardless of what agreements Stalin can make. A revolution is an elemental force, and it bursts all agreements. It is highly overrating Stalin's power to ask him to stop such a movement. He cannot stop it.

Character to be Modified

The character of the European revolution will nevertheless be modified and influenced according to which nations support it. It is occurring geographically and ideologically, in the space between the Anglo-American and the Russian world.

It has all the characteristics of love for political and individual freedom, and civilized and traditional values, of the Western world. But it is also influenced by social and economic experiments in Russia. If unsupported by us, it will inevitably become dependent upon Russia alone, and that dependency will influence its course.

If supported by us, it will fuse Western and Eastern ideas, and become the bridge and interpreter between Russia and the West. If suppressed by us, it will turn against us, and confront us with a divided world.

This is the issue of this war. And if our political and military leadership do not realize it, the 20th century will find no peace.
